Sergeant Marks, who was the final witness questioned, declared that he accompanied Murphy to the Jackson house as the latter was requested by Murphy to do so as Marks can speak the Polish language. He stated that when Murphy made inquiry of Mrs. Jackson as to whether Malahewski was at the house, Marks stood within two feet of Murphy and could easily hear the conversation that took place. He declared that Murphy was not at the Jackson house two minutes and never entered the place, conducting his inquiry of Mrs. Jackson from the front steps.

In commenting upon his inquiry City Manager Holt declared that the information that had been supplied him by Councilor Streeter and which was handed the councilor by someone unknown to the city manager, resembled greatly an attempt to "frame" Sergeant Murphy.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has returned the operator's license of Juel Nass, United States Coast Guard, attached to the destroyer Ericcson, state pier. The license was recently suspended following Nass' arrest by Patrolman Frank Linehan charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence.

Patrick Shea, formerly of New London, late of New York, died at Bellevue hospital, New York, Friday night following a brief illness of pneumonia. Mr. Shea was 58 years of age and is survived by a brother, Michael Shea, 13 Methodist street, this city, and by a niece, Miss Margaret Shea, also of this city. He was employed at the New London pier, New York, many years.

The funeral of Seth Phillips, late of Waterford, was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapeley street, the services being conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. Relatives of Mr. Phillips acted as bearers. Interment was in Flanders cemetery.

Funeral services for Miss Edith Larsen, former domestic in the employ of Viggo E. Bird, 1071 Ocean avenue, who ended her life by drowning in the waters of Alewife Cove early Thursday morning, while suffering from a mental derangement, were held Saturday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Interment was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

John Connors, 21 Berkley avenue, and employed as driver of one of the trucks of the White Rose Bread Co., has complained to the police that every morning the past week the five loaves of bread that were left by him at the entrance to the Masters grocery store, Broad street, had been stolen, the thief stealing the bread between the time that it was left and the hour that the store was opened for business.

The New Haven police Saturday night requested the New London police to be on the lookout for three automobiles that had been stolen from the former city. One of the cars was a Cadillac touring, another a Chevrolet coupe and the third a Ford touring.

Miss Diana, a young woman patient at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, and an inmate at the State Farm for Women, Niantic, made her escape from the hospital ward early Saturday evening, but her liberty was of short duration for she was apprehended a half hour after she had made her escape. The woman had been under treatment at the hospital but a few days. Shortly after 7 o'clock she watched an opportunity when the attention of the nurses was attracted from where the patient was quartered. Climbing to a partially open window the young woman raised the window and climbed through it, dropping to the ground in safety. Her escape was quickly discovered and the police requested to assist in a search for the woman. The police automobile with Officers Edward Riordan and Augustus Ray and Policewoman Jane Cassidy was dispatched to the hospital, but when the officers arrived at the institution one of the nurses had located the patient near the hospital grounds and returned her to the ward.

The New London police were notified this afternoon by the New Haven authorities of the theft of a New York taxicab from the latter city and that the thieves, two youths, had declared that they were enroute to New London after they had been unsuccessful in disposing of the machine in New Haven. The car bears New York registration, O-64163. The youths reached New Haven shortly before noon and offered the car for sale for $60. The price of the car was so ridiculously low that suspicion pointed to the youths being thieves and the New Haven authorities were notified.

The Dodge coupe, owned by Alton T. Miner, 148 Crystal avenue, which was stolen from Union street Friday while Mr. Miner attended a banquet of the Community Chest drive at the Y. M. C. A., was recovered by the owner late Saturday. The machine was found on one of the streets of Providence where it had been abandoned by the thief. The New London police were notified of the finding of the car and Mr. Miner went to Providence later and operated the machine back to New London.

Sebastian Muscarella, 57 Bayonet street, is scheduled to be arraigned in the police court on continuance Monday morning, charged with breach of the peace by his wife. Muscarella was apprehended by Officers George McCaskey and William Riordan Sept. 21st following a row at the Muscarella home. The case at that time was continued until tomorrow morning.

Following the police being instructed to maintain an all night vigil on two club rooms, one on Main street and another on State street several nights ago and where an officer in plain cloth was stationed at the entrance of the places, a third place was ordered placed under surveillance this evening when the club room in the former Atheneum building, Railroad avenue, received the attention of the police. The Railroad Avenue club is a chartered organization and is reputed to be a gambling place. The State street place is declared to be a place where liquor is sold and the Main street place is stated to be used for purposes of gaming.

Mrs. Emma Parks, 54 Hempstead street; Mrs. Robert Bullard, and infant daughter, Uncasville and Charles Coulson, 32 Mather court, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed Saturday.

The fire department was called shortly after 8 o'clock this morning when a fire occured in a residence on Shaw street and threatened to cause serious damage. An alarm was sent in from Box 451, corner of Shaw and Stewart streets, but before the department arrived at the scene of the blaze the fire had been subdued by occupants of the house. The blaze was located in the chimney and was caused by an accumulation of soot.

For the first time within many months there was not a prisoner occupying a cell at the police station tonight awaiting hearing in the police court for Monday's business, for not within 48 hours had an arrest been made. The morrow, however, will not be without business for the court, however, for there are two cases scheduled for trial. One is that of Charles Schall, wealthy Pequot resident, charged with operating an automobile and resisting an officer. Schall was arrested on the night of the 1st inst., by Patrolman Clarence Martin and William Riordan, following Schall, it is alleged, failing to heed a traffic signal given him by Officer Martin at the corner of State and Bank streets. Martin followed Schall to the Union station, where it is alleged Schall struck Martin after the officer had placed the accused under arrest and after Schall had been adjudged intoxicated by the officer. Martin drew his black-jack and subdued his prisoner and at the same time opened up Schall's scalp to the extent that Schall had to obtain the services of a surgeon in order to close the wounds. Schall was then taken into custody and furnished a bond of $200 for his appearance in the police court the following day. Schall's condition the following day would not permit his case being tried and a continuance was granted until the 13th. He failed to appear in court on continuance and a further continuance was granted until Monday.

POLICE SEEK TO CLEAN OUT WICKED RESORTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 24—There is a prospect that the police court, on the evidence brought to it by the police department, through the work of Sergeant Nelson Smith, will clean out a couple of the vilest dens in the city. One of the places is at 28 Hill street and the other at 111 Potter street. Good work on the part of the police and the investigation by the prosecutor, Perry J. Hollandersky, has led to disclosures that show violations of the Mann act and the keeping of houses of prostitution with negroes as the inmates and the patrons, chiefly.

Robert (alias "Ambitious") Jackson, was sent to the county jail and was fined $100 Saturday in the court. He pleaded guilty because he saw that even harsher penalty was in store for him if he resisted conviction and then went to trial and was found guilty. He is the man who secured women for Maxie Williams, living at the Hill street place and secured money from the girls he secured and from the Williams women for his devilish work.

A fortnight ago, Sylvia Wells, a girl of 22 years, who had been an inmate of the Williams place, left there and went to the Potter street house. She had a difference with the Williams women because Sylvia would not submit to extortion in the payment of money to the Williams woman. Sylvia was followed to Potter street and there she heard the woman she had left castigate her in words and accuse her of acts that were even worse than she was guilty of. The Wells woman used a razor on Maxie and slashed her about the face. This led to the calling of the police and the arrest of all in the Potter street place. The Williams woman was sent to the hospital where she still is, while the others were held as witnesses against the Williams woman when she comes to accuse Miss Wells on the 2nd of February.

Then begun the investigation. The Wells girl was interrogated and she disclosed facts that led to the arrest of others concerned in the establishments. She disclosed the names of men who were frequenters of the place and laid bare the whole dirty mess in a way that opens the doors of the state prison to some of those concerned. She did not attempt to cover up her own connection with the persons accused, nor did she excuse her acts in slashing the Williams woman. She admitted that she acted to avenge the treachery of the woman she cut. Maxie Williams has been an undesirable character in this city many years and has been disciplined before the police court often. She has maintained disreputable places for a long term of years and at her home crime has been committed in various phases. Now there seems to be a chance to get rid of her as a resident of New London. Perhaps it will be taken advantage of and there is a very general opinion that this woman should be treated, with those concerned with her, as a procuress for houses of prostitution. A term in state prison for her and some of those concerned with her would have a wholesome effect and would rid New London of vile resorts that are a disgrace to the city.

Edward McDonald was only sent to jail for intoxication. He was guilty of begging in the street too, but the evidence to sustain that charged was not at hand so he could not be prosecuted as a vagrant.

John Pullin appeared to answer a charge of intoxication for the fourth time in as many months. On previous occasions he had been fined, but Saturday he was sentenced to serve ten days.

James Kennedy, a property owner in East New London, was found guilty of intoxication after he had set up a defense that he was not drunk. He was spared the penalty of either fine or imprisonment, but that leniency was not shown because he was not guilty. James appears to have peculiar notions of what he cannot do and what he can do. He is in a class of instruction now.

Second Concert in Y. M. C. A. Course

The public will be pleased to learn that the second concert in the local Y. M. C. A. course will be given on Tuesday evening of this week in the "Y" gymnasium. The entertainment will be given by "White's Revue", a company of five lady artists, one which the White Bureau of Boston considers an unusual combination of entertainers and a company that has made good in a large way wherever they have been seen and heard. The program will be exceedingly popular, consisting of a variety of musical numbers both vocal and instrumental and the company is coached and staged by Boston's favorite entertainer. Miss Janet Hersey "The Sunshine Girl" whose charming personality permeates the entire production. Miss Hersey gives wonderful impersonations and readings. The costumes are bewitchingly beautiful and were designed by Miss Dorothy McGann. The Y. M. C. A. management is proud indeed to present such a talented company of artists. Tickets for this concert may be secured at the Y. M. C. A. office and Smiths Shoe Store.

"That's That" by Lions Club

Norwich Lion's play, "That That" to be presented at the Broadway theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday evening of this week held a full dress rehearsal at the theatre yesterday at 2 p. m. The complete cast went through the entire play with faultless precision to the delight of Mr. Hammill of the John B. Rogers Producing company who is directing the performance. In his enthusiasm Mr. Hammill expressed himself in the following words: "In all my experience as a production director, I have never seen amateurs enter into the spirit of their work with such earnestness and coordination as the present cast. I have only words of admiration and commendation for the fine talent and ability of the men and women taking part in the play, both the leading characters and the chorus. Hard as the work has been during the three weeks of daily rehearsals, it has been a great pleasure and gratification to receive such fine cooperation from all who take part in the play."

It is timely that a word be said, in as brief a manner as space permits about the ladies and gentlemen who play the leading parts in the show, knowing how eager and interested their many friends are in the success of the performance. It is rather difficult to place them in order of their ability because all do justice to their parts with equal merit. It therefore may be inorder to mention the characters as they appear in the play. (1) Mrs. Walker Buckingham acting the part of Eloise is both charming and enertaining. Her fine ability is well known to the Norwich public. Mrs. Myles Standish, with her beautiful speaking voice and daintr pose has an excellence entirely her own. She surely will thrill the audience in her interpretation of Mrs. Suthwold. Mrs. W. E. McKenzie, as Nanette, is fascinating in all her movements, representing a charming American society girl with a truth which is surprising and enchanting. Mrs. Paul Chivers, as Letitia is playing the character of a country girl, aspiring to enter into society like a born actress. Her daintiy naivete is a delight to observe. Miss Ruth Eaton impersonating Maimie, is extremely interesting. Her refinement of features and breeding is diametrically opposite to the character she portrays and yet she presents her part very ably. Miss Bertha Hahn as Jane Bronson, plays her part faultlessly.

There are hardly enough words of praise to be said about Miss Gertrude Platt who is in charge of the piano. Miss Platt's dexterity and versatility on the piano is simply amazing. Her playing is a revelation to all who attended the rehearsal. The young men performing the leading parts, will also be mentioned in order of the appearance in the play. Lyle H. Fillmore, as Kenneth Johnes, plays his part to perfection. His impersonation of a rich American college athlete can truly be called an artistic presentation. Mr. Walter LaFontaine, as Martin Morris, has a difficult character to portray. In his imitation of a slightly flustered gentleman, he deserves great credit. Herb McNeelys, as Mr. Nelson presents a typical rich American father with faultless exactness. Tyler Stanton impersonating Mickey, has our sympathy for the difficulty of portraying the character in which he appears. However Tyler is there with his usual truth and sincerity. James Brassil the messenger boy will surely be loved by all mothers, as a lovable clever American boy, full of pep. Finally the last, but most beloved, Billy Mitchell whose lively humor is the life of the show, in acting the part of Eddie Dewey is simply "a scream." Of course every man and woman in Norwich will come to enjoy Billy Mitchell's rich and amusing funny character. The Charleston girls, Social Whirl girls, the Mascaraders, Bathing girls and choruses, numbering about a hundred, deserve special individual mention but lack of space makes it impossible to do them individual justice. Their names will appear on the programmes so that their friends may save them as mementos. Their reward for the three weeks of strenuous work in the interest of the Lions' Club Charity fund, ought to be a packed house on both evenings of the performance.

Breed Theatre

The old adage makers have always insisted that it is impossible to gild the lily. William Fox, the veteran motion picture producer, with his screen adaptation of "The Fool," which opened at the Breed theater last night has proven them all wrong. He was taken one of the greatest American stage plays, written by Channing Pollock, and which ran more than a year on Broadway, and by means of the camera, lavish expenditure of time and money, a great cast and a reverent and faithful transcription from the original, made this screen version of "The Fool," much bigger and better than the play.

It is, in fact, the finest effort from the Fox company that has ever come under our critical eye and we are not forgetting such of that company's famous successes as "Over the Hill," "If Winter Comes," and others.

"The Fool," as many local theatregoers know, is sheer melodrama and thrills—a story of a young and zealous minister with an ideal, an ideal to live like Christ in the twentieth century. How he sets about to do this, his triumphs and sacrifices and his many adventures, ending up with one of the most thrillingly dramatic "miracle scenes" ever staged, provides rich material for the author, the adapter, director and actors to work on.

Every member of the fine cast mastered his or her reputation as an actor beyond even his own hopes. Edmund Lowe, good looking young Fox star is superb as the minister, Daniel. Others who share the honors with him are; Mary Thurman, Brenda Bond, Ray Bloomer, Paul Panzer and Anne Dala.

Mlle. Francoise Belmi is now the wife of one of the prominent citizens of the village of St. Etienne, France, but she will not say "what might have been" had a letter from one of her numerous suitors, written September 24, 1905, been delivered on time. Mlle. Belami then lived at Montbrison. The letter was posted at Saint Jean Gloeymiux, ten miles way. The letter arrived just twenty years later.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—(AP)—Wall street gave its major attention this week to development outside the securities and commodities markets, of prime importance at least from a market standpoint, was the decision of the federal reserve and New York stock exchange authorities to give publicity to the amount of brokers' loans. While the first reaction of the market to this news was unfavorable, on the theory that it was a warning gesture against excessive speculation, bankers and brokers generally regarded it as a constructive influence.

Considerable interest also was manifested in the announcement of a proposed merger of the St. Louis-San Francisco and Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroads, the preliminary step in which was the purchase of a large block of Rock Island stock by the Frisco system. This was generally regarded as an offensive move to enable the Frisco to compete successfully with the Missouri Pacific and L. F. Loree's new Southwestern system, which will include the Kansas City Southern, "Katy" and the St. Louis Southwestern.

Consolidation of the public utility properties also took great strides during the week. Final details of the merger of the Power corporation of New York and the New England Power association through the formation of the Northeastern Power corporation was announced Wednesday. The Southeastern Power and Light company also made public its plan to acquire the Georgia Railway and Power company, and the Empire Power corporation announced it had obtained a majority stock interest in the United Gas & Electric.

Price movements in the stock market largely reflected the play of opposing speculative forces, with neither side obtaining a decided advantage. Uncertainty over the future trend of stock prices resulted in a widespread diversion of investment funds into the bond market, which displayed a firmer tone despite new offerings of over $100,000,000 during the week.

Lack of an export demand was one of the contributing causes to the decline in wheat prices. Cotton moved within rather narrow and irregular limits with speculative opinion sharply divided as to the future trend of the commodity.

Money rates were easier, presumably in reflection of the recent drastic reduction in brokers' loans.

Profit taking halted the march of the British and Japanese currencies toward gold parity, although yen reached the highest level in three years.

TAFTVILLE

The joint carnival of the Sacred Heart church and the Army and Navy club opened Saturday night at Parish hall, being preceded by a big street parade, led by a drum corps and participated in by most of the club members. There was plenty of red fire and hundreds of people stood along the line of march and followed the paraders to the hall, where the event was in full swing.

The decorations at the hall are probably the best ever seen in this section. The hall resembles an immense Japanese garden, the stage having for a background an Oriental scene, with huge orange drop lights suspended from the ceiling, and inverted Japanese parasols adding to the scheme. The front of the stage had a solid bank of cedar and laurel, with hundreds of dark red chrysanthemums. The entire side wall space is covered with blue-grey and gold bunting, with American flags and parasols hanging at intervals. Wide streamers of dark blue and gold bunting running from the sidewalks, front and back meet in the center where an immense orange covered light is suspended, covered with evergreen and laurel. Strings of lavender, green, red, blue and yellow electric lights run to the center from the sides, making a wonderful electrical display. White pergola posts stand in front of the gaily trimmed booths on each side of the hall, with two posts in the center of the hall to mark the dancing limits. These are connected with red, white and blue lattice work, which is trimmed with huge bunches of laurel.

On the stage the Army and Navy club's own orchestra played popular airs for the dancing. The booths along the midway did a brisk business, and the sale of noisemakers and comedy hats contributed to the carnival spirit of the crowd.

At 10 o'clock, the stage was cleared for the much talked of boxing bout between Young Coulon and Kid Wagner. Both these fighters are well known locally and there was much interest in the four rounds which they put on as the entertainment at the opening night of the carnival. The match was refereed by Frankie Busch, who was introduced by John B. Benoit as "one of the best fighters in New England," and who is to appear in an exhibition bout on some future night at the carnival, with an unnamed opponent.

Young Coulon took the aggressive at the start and maintained it through out the contest. He worked himself into a bunch of nervous energy and got over some good and well directed hits. Wagner, it was evident, was on the defensive until the final round when he became aggressive and took the offensive, more in two instances when they came to close quarters, until the final gong rang. Followers of clean sport were greatly pleased with the bout, which many pronounced in the high price class. The careers of both fighters will be followed with interest by people here.

The committees in charge of the carnival have outdone themselves in attempting to please their patrons. The affair is to run for six more nights and those under whose direction it is given are quite confident of its success. Among the local people who are to appear during the carnival are Hooker and Cassano the Spanish and Mexican dancers, and Lou Gagnon's Hollywood Four, well known for their melodious and pleasing harmony.

The general committee consists of Archie Molieur, John B Benoit, Thomas Labbee, Alonzo Lamoreux, Andrew Frohmader, James Hanlon, Henry Pepin, Joseph Waldron and Wilfred Cormier. Ticket committee, Ferdinand Brodeur, James Nolan, Henry Pepin; coat room, Eugene Lambert, Ernest Phaneuf, Emile Raymond; booth committee, Eugene Mercier, Romeo Paquette; novelties and souvenirs, John B. Frechette, Mrs. Antoine Paquette, Mrs. William J. Malone, John B. Benoit, James Murphy, Napoleon Pepin; candy booth, James Hanlon, Andrew Frohmader, Osa St. Germain; carnival dogs and lions, Arthur Paquette, Lawrence Blanchette, Edward Gauthier, Patrick Sullivan; fish pond, Edward Benoit, Joseph Guillotte; quick lunch, Harvey Pepin, Joseph Lemire; floor and dance committee, Emile Gauthier, Alfred Roberts, Isaac Lurette, Homer Pepin, William Pepin.

The decorations were by Hawkins.

Hugh H. Osgood lodge, I. O. O. F. M. U. gave a very enjoyable social and dance at Ponemah hall Saturday evening. There was a large attendance, many coming from out of town.

Because of the slippery condition of Post Office hill and other steep grades about the village, these spots were sanded Saturday morning. Some of the sidewalks also received that treatment.

The pedigreed shepherd owned by Malcolm Stinson of Boidue lane was stricken blind following an attack of distemper, and had to be destroyed.

Nelson Nygren of Lisbon has resigned his position with the spinning department of the Ponemah mills.

William J. Smith of Dion street who has been seriously ill for the past week was taken to the William W. Backus hospital Friday.

Old and discarded clothing was collected at the Wequonnoc school Friday for the Near East Relief, and sent by truck to Norwich late in the afternoon on that day.

Coughs and colds are a natural sequence to an unexpected blizzard, and should be treated promptly to offset complications. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is a pleasant and effective remedy for any emergency. "The children and I had colds and the first dose of Foley's Honey and Tar helped us right away, writes Mrs. Mather, Richwood, Ohio. Foley's Honey and Tar is a good cough remedy for the whole family. GREENEVILLE PASTOR ADVOCATES JAIL SENTENCES FOR LIQUOR LAW VIOLATORS

Jail sentences for liquor law violators as one means of securing better enforcement of the prohibition law were advocated by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church in a sermon on Prohibition which he delivered Sunday evening at Trinity Methodist church. We need to make a very clear distinction between liberty and license, he said. The reasons in 1926 for keeping prohibition in the constitution are just as strong as were the reasons for putting it there in 1918. The future success or failure of prohibition is going to depend upon the attitude of the people in standing back of their officials, said Rev. Mr. Ricketts.

The service was led by Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of the church. Rev. Mr. Ricketts took as his text; Galatians 5.21—Now the works of the flesh are these, which are manifest—envyings, murders, drunkenness. In his sermon Rev. Mr. Ricketts said:

Every new year has its problems to present, and the year of 1926 will be no exception. The problems that we are now facing may not be identical with those we had to deal with last year, and yet some of them are. Every year settles some old questions, and also brings up some new ones. There are some, however, that are so persistent that they last through a series of years.

Among the latter class must be mentioned Prohibition, which is tenacious of purpose and difficult to handle because the people themselves are divided as to its merits. This makes it one of the old-over problems from year to year. Some of our problems are wholly political like the tariff and taxation others are wholly moral; and still there is a third class that is a combination of both, and here we place Prohibition. It is the writer's emphatic belief that the principal underlying constitutional prohibition is logically valid and ought to be indorsed and upheld by all individuals and organizations that believe in righteousness.

The following is my argument in support of this position:

First, society has the inherent right to protect itself from the exercise of so-called individual liberty when its own rights are assailed.

We need to make a very clear distinction between liberty and license, which we do not always do. Liberty is the opportunity to acting within the realm of law, while license is doing what one pleases irrespective of law or the rights of others. The difference is fundamental. To illustrate:

Shall the man with an automobile operate according to law or just as he pleases? Shall it be liberty or license? Shall he be allowed to go tearing through our crowded streets at a high rate of speed or drive carefully? Shall he drive where he pleases or shall he keep to his own side of the street? Shall he park just where he wants to or where the city says he may? Shall he drive under the influence of liquor or shall he drive sober? Have you ever heard any objections to such regulations? Is such prohibition is not the state protecting itself?

In matters far less serious than this, am I permitted to do just as I please without regarding the rights of others? If alone in my own house it would be liberty for me to sing to the top of my voice. Nearer, My God to Thee, but if I should go out onto the street at midnight and try to do the same stunt it would be another proposition entirely. I might get away with it for a while, but soon my disgusted neighbors would complain that I was disturbing the peace, and they would put a quietus on my religious enthusiasm, and they would be justified in doing so. We cannot do as we please when it conflicts with law.

Two summers ago, one Sunday morning, a farmer in Windham county saw a man, woman and two big boys stealing corn. At once there was something doing. In explanation the man who was a foreigner said brokenly: "Dees is one free country, I takes what I please." In Windham county jail he had the opportunity to discriminate between liberty and license. The state has the right always to protect itself.

Secondly, the manufacture and sale of intoxicants for beverage purposes injuries the state, and hence the state has the right to prohibit such manufacture and sale.

I have nothing whatever to say of alcohol in relation to its medicinal purposes. It may be of some benefit to the sick body. It may be needed by those who are aged and decrepit for stimulation. It has its place in the mechanical arts and sciences. It is for these reasons that I am very careful to state that the manufacture and sale of intoxicants for beverage purposes is an injury to the state and hence the justice of the prohibition. In this age of the controversy one would think that no argument is needed. Science has established nothing more absolutely than the fact that the rum habit deteriorates the body, blunts the mind, and deadens the moral perception. There the state has the right to prohibit its sale. The state is always going to be what its individuals are. Water never rises above its source. If the strands that make a rope are rotten you will have nothing but a rotten rope. If the use of intoxicants tends to lower the mental, moral and physical tone of a community, the community has a perfect right to remove the cause. It is so in other things why not so in rum matters? If an epidemic of typhoid fever is traced back to polluted water we at once demand that the cause be removed. If evils arise from bootleg whiskey, a thousand times worse than polluted water, haven't we a right to say that it shall be prohibited? And is it not right that all forces of righteousness should combine with statute enactment in protecting the general welfare of the community? If small pox breaks out in my house the authorities at once quarantine my house. The state does all in its power to protect itself from the spread of the contagion and is justified in so doing. If then the state has a right to protect itself and if the rum business is harmful to the state, the only logical step is Prohibition.

Thirdly, If the state has a right to protect itself and the rum business is harmful, then making Prohibition a part of the organic law of the land is both consistent and logical.

Let us remember that the Eighteenth Amendment was not the outcome of any religious hysteria. It was not brought about by resolutions adopted by Sunday school conventions. Testimonials passed at great denominational gatherings had nothing to do with it. It was the outcome of a propaganda against the whole rum business that had been slowly working through our Assemblies of the forty-eight several temperance societies by the score came and went but they left something permanent in the soul of America. As we all know Prohibition was written into the constitution by the calm political judgment of the country. The agencies through it was accomplished was the various General Assemblyes of the forty-eight sovereign states. These state legislatures have never been accused of religious fanaticism. With the utmost deliberation forty-five of these state bodies voiced the sentiment of their constituents as being in favor of constitutional prohibition. With only three states voting in the negative, never before had any amendment been swept into the constitution with such tremendous unanimity. In no other way could we get such a calm and decisive expression of choice. With these facts in mind is it at all likely that the American people are going to make such an exhibition of fickleness as to reverse their action? The reasons in 1926 for keeping Prohibition in the constitution are just as strong as were the reasons for putting it there in 1918. To bow down now before the opposition of the "wets" would very justly make us the laughing-stock of the entire world, and the United States does not propose to do it.

Fourthly, the old license system was both inconsistent and unjust.

There are only two possible methods of dealing with the liquor problem. First, by prohibiting its sale for beverage purposes, or secondly, by putting it under some system of control. Now then, if the liquor business is all right and perfectly above board, and is needed by human society, why is it that under the license system you treat the liquor dealer differently from other tradesman? Why do you seize the liquor dealer by the throat and say: "pay me 1000 dollars or 500, or 250 (as the case may be) for selling your wares"? That is not the way the state deals with the man who sells boots and shoes, or the dry goods merchant, or the dealer in gent's furnishings, or those who sell meat and groceries. If the liquor dealer has a right to sell his goods because the community needs his wares as they do what other tradesmen sell, why in the world does the state discriminate against him and penalize him? If on the other hand the liquor business is not needed, if it injures rather than helps human society, if it is clearly a crime, why should the state allow it to be sold at any price? It is for this reason that the old license system was both inconsistent and unjust. Hence the only logical way to deal with this wrong, as with any other wrong, is to banish it from existence, just as far as we can.

Fifthly, the argument of the "wets" to return to the lod license system is illogical and ridiculous.

Their contentions run along two lines: first, they maintain that there is just as much liquor sold under prohibition as under the old license system. If this is true we ask the question: that if the liquor dealer sells as much now, when by doing it secretly without paying any license fee at all, why is he so anxious to return to a system that used to soak him for fees that ran from $50 to $1000? I refuse to believe that the American people are such easy marks as to swallow such absurdity. We know that the men who are violating the Volstead Act are in it for all they can get out of it, and if as much liquor is sold now, when it can be done for nothing, there would not be these frantic efforts to return to a system that was expensive to the dealer. There is no question in anybody's mind that the prohibition laws are extensively violated, and this good citizens have to bear would be greatly lessened if there was not so much treason on the part of those whose duty is to see that the provisions of the Volstead Act are strictly carried out. Bad as the situation may be let us not be fooled with the idea that "as much liquor is sold now as prior to 1918."

In the next place the "wets" are contending that constitutional prohibition is a failure because it does not really prohibit; that it is consequently a farce and subjects the government to humiliation. No reasonable person expects that the constitution of the United States is going to abolish crime. Nothing but the higher laws of God can do that. The highest function of statute law is to hold the violation in abeyance as far as possible. It cannot expect to convert the criminal. We must be satisfied if state enactments reduce violations to a minimum. This is as far as the legislation of the state can go. As a matter of fact laws against murder do not absolutely prevent murder, shall we then wipe laws concerning murder from our records and let any one murder at will? What sort of society would we have in a few short hours if every man was allowed to make free use of his evil instincts? You rarely take up the daily paper without reading of a murder. We are told that in Chicago alone there is on the average a murder for every day in the year among her nearly three million population. Now it is a fact that laws against murder do not stop people from committing this awful crime. Would it be likely to improve conditions if these laws were rescinded? Take, if you please, the big field of stealing in all its manifold branches, such as hold-ups, burglaries, embezzlements. Does any one believe there would be less of these things if the terrors of the law were withdrawn? Even with the law crime is something frightful, would it be likely to diminish if these laws were withdrawn? With all our boasted civilization we are not more than a quarter of a mile away from pagan savagery! It will be a full millennium before humanity will be safe without the protection of law. We must be protected from rum as well as from murder and robbery.

Sixthly, what are some of the outstanding results of constitutional prohibition?

We are very apt to be frightened by the scare-headlines in the daily press. A long line of rum schooners ready to dump their goods on our shores makes us feel that law enforcement is dead; that nothing is done to prevent these violations. If a big motor truck is held up laden with bootleg whiskey, we think that liquor is flowing all over our land like water. We fail to realize that the most is made of these seizures to create prejudice against the Volstead Act. We are likely to forget that vast amount of good that is done that never gets into the papers simply because it isn't news.

Very little is said of the enormous savings that have slowly been accumulating since 1918. In our big cities it is very difficult to get women to do scrub work, because they are no longer compelled to help provide for the family. The head of the family is now able to support his family just as a self-respecting man ought to. The world has seen nothing like the amount now deposited in the savings banks of United States. Is it mere coincidence that this rising trend began in 1918? No single fact has impressed me so much as the recent rush of our men and women to the colleges and universities in the last few years. It is a fact that some of our smaller institutions have a waiting list of over 1,000. A certain professor of economics has made an investigation of this influx and analysed it. His findings are as follows: There has been no perceptible increase from the families of the well-to-do. The applicants for the most part represent the families of the wage-earner. Now then the question arises what has made such an uprising from the ranks of the poorer people for education since 1918? Is it not reasonable to infer that the men who used to put their earnings into liquor are now putting it into the education of their boys and girls? If constitutional prohibition had done nothing else but that it would have justified itself. Now these are some of the real things that have been accomplished.

Seventhly, what can we do to strengthen the cause of Prohibition? It is clearly the duty of every citizen and of course of every Christian to stand by the constitution of his country. It is just as reasonable to plead for the return of the institution of slavery as it is to try to re-enthrone the rum element. Of course it dies hard because of the revenue it brings. It is galling to see so many foreigners who come to this country to better their condition, to throw off their new allegiance and at once violate the laws that offer them protection. Men and women who think so little of their new oath of allegiance as to throw it aside and trample it in the mire for a few paltry dollars deserve no better treatment than immediate and permanent deportation. This country in the breadth of its liberality has thrown open its gates wide for the downtrodden and oppressed of other nations deserves better treatment than this. Here is a situation that ought to be dealt with in no gender way; let the iron hand be seen! The condition is such that no "pussy-foot" treatment will be of any avail.

There is also reason for believing that in many instances officials have been in collusion with violators in making the Volstead Act of no effect. But evidently this is not as widespread as some would have us believe. There is, however, a general belief, that the judiciary ought to brace up in the imposition of sentences. The violator does not wince under quite a heavy fine; but he is not at all anxious for a jail sentence. Why not make more of the latter as a warning, and be far more stern with thosew ho are guilty of operating a car under the influence of liquor?

But above all, as it seems to me, there ought to be created on the part of the people a stronger moral atmosphere against law-breaking. The degree to which any law is enforced depends upon the moral atmosphere of the community in which the offence occurs. The future success or failure of prohibition is going to depend upon the attitude of the people in standing back of their officials. If all the powers of organized religion, and other bodies that believe in political righteousness will show their colors, and will uphold the strong arm of Uncle Sam, we will have a working agency for prohibition, against which "the gates of hell shall not prevail."

RECEPTION AND GIFT TO COMMISSIONER WATERMAN

Elisha L. Waterman of Lebanon, who was recently appointed county commissioner to fill the vacancy left by the death of George E. Fellows of Norwich, was tendered a surprise reception at his home last Friday evening by about 60 of his friends including prominent Lebanon residents, members of the school committee, board of selectmen and the republican town committee from Lebanon and guests from neighboring cities. Commissioner Waterman was presented a handsome traveling bag by Former Representative William T. Curry of Lebanon on behalf of the gathering. He responded with a speech of acceptance. Among the out of town guests were Judge Nelson J. Ayling of Norwich, State Central Committeeman Albert J. Bailey of Norwich, George G. Engler of Norwich, the defeated candidate for commissioner, Deputy Police Court Judge Henry H. Pettis of Norwich, County Agent Walter T. Clark of New London, ex-Senator Herman A. Gibbs of Yantic. Massachusetts Turning to Soft Coal.

That soft coal is coming into general use is indicated by the report just issued by Eugene C. Hultman, Massachusett fuel administrator. The report states that during December the coal dealers of Massachusetts delivered to householders 309,434 tons of soft coal.

Mr. Hultman reports that this is an increase of 90,000 tons over the amount delivered in November. That dealers are ordering soft coal in large quantities is shown by the statement that on January 1 the dealers had a total of 326,123 tons of bituminous in their yards. This was about double the quantity of anthracite and so called semi-anthracite coal on hand, even including coal from foreign countries.

17,000 HAVE OPERATORS LICENSES FOR 1926

About 17,000 motor vehicle operators have been licensed by the state motor vehicle department for the fiscal year beginning March 1. It has been the policy of the department to defer the issuance of operators' licenses until the rush for registration of cars has subsided, and it was mainly with that purpose in view that the state law was made to prove that, although motor vehicle registrations expired with the end of each calendar year, operators' licenses were to be effective until midnight of February 28.

Application blanks were sent out to all present operators a week ago, and the number of licenses issued thus far represents the results of the first week since the blanks went out. About a quarter million more remain to be issued before the number of Connecticut-licensed operators will be as large as those now licensed.

Examination is not required upon application made by persons who now hold Connecticut licenses, and, in order to qualify in this respect without examination, those who make application at the branch offices of the department, in New Haven, Bridgeport, New London and Waterbury, must show their license for 1925. This requirement is not made at the main office in the capitol, as all the department files are available there.

The great majority of applications for renewal of operators' licenses come in by mail, and the licenses are sent out by mail, making a trip to the motor vehicle department or any of its branches unnecessary. The fee is the same as last year, three dollars for each license, and the law fixes 18 years as the minimum age for licensed operators. The motor vehicle department has no power to issue licenses to anyone under that age, whatever his or her qualifications may be.

Bad luck causes a man to take a mental inventory of his friends.

Make old age more comfortable

OLD age is not a matter of years alone. Many folks feel younger at 70 than others at 60. Too many old folks are worried with backache, rheumatic pains and kidney irregularities. At such times a stimulant diuretic is helpful. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are recommended by thousands of elderly folks. Are endorsed here at home. Ask your neighbor!

ENTRY OF UNITED STATES INTO WORLD COURT ASSURED

Senate Voted 68 to 26 to Limit Debate on the Issue—37 Republicans and 30 Democrats Voted For Cloture—Leaders of Both Sides Predict a Final Roll Call Probably Today and Certainly Not Later Than Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Entry of the United States into the world court was made certain today by a senate vote of 68 to 26 to limit debate on the issue.

Leaders on both sides in the now bitter struggle predicted a final roll call probably tomorrow and certainly not later than Wednesday.

It was conceded generally that the vote for adoption of the much modified Swanson resolution of adhesion would be even more overwhelming than was that today to apply the drastic cloture rule for the second time since its adoption in 1917.

Cloture came to the test amid a colorful scene, after last minute efforts to hold out the olive branch of an unanimous consent agreement to limit discussion had been swept brusquely aside.

Every senator save two was in his seat, the floor was crowded by members of the house and the galleries were overflowing. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the war president, sat with Mrs. Swanson, wife of the senior senator from Virginia, in the president's row, and many other notables were in the private galleries.

An hour of debate with many barbed exchanges preceded the vote and as this went forward scouts for both sides were busy here and there trying to keep their forces in line. There was much shifting about and the strength rolled up by the opposition was somewhat surprising.

Thirty seven republicans and 31 democrats voted to impose the rule limiting each senator to one hour on the resolution of adhesion and all reservations, while 13 republicans, seven democrats and the one farmer-labor, Shipstead, of Minnesota, voted against cloture.

Senator Dupont, republican, Delaware, and Copeland, democrat, New York, were the absentees. Senator Jones of Washington, the republican whip, announcing the illness of Senator Dupont, said that if the Delaware senator were present he would vote in the affirmative. There was no announcement as to Senator Copeland's position.

Once the result had been announced there was a marked let down in the tension that had gripped senators and spectators alike. A rush for the lunch rooms began, and within a few minutes not more than half a dozen senators were on the floor.

Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, a leading opponent of adhesion, moved that the senate adjourn. Senator Walsh democrat, Montana, a leader for ratification, countered with the suggestion of absence of a quorum. The call developed the presence of a quorum and Senator Reed withdrew his motion.

Then came the reading of the protocol and as this proceeded, the Missouri senator again and again insisted on a quorum being present, stating that he had no disposition to delay matters, but that he believed senators should at least acquaint themselves with the protocol and statute to which it is proposed the United States shall adhere.

The clerk began reading the protocol at 1:30 p. m., but did not finish until 4:30 p. m. due to interruptions for quorum calls, motions to adjourn and speeches by senators explaining why they will vote as they will vote on the Swanson resolution.

Before the cloture vote, the Ku Klux Klan was brought into the discussion by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader, and a rapid cross fire of exchanges followed.

Saying that Senator Johnson, republican, California, "almost had a brain storm" when discussing the subject of propaganda for the court, Senator Robinson declared he had "said nothing about the Ku Klux Klan which in some localities has been stimulated and moved to adopt resolutions urging the senate not to act."

Conceding the same right to the klan to express its opinion as that of any other organization, Senator Robinson added:

"Amazing, spectacle, the senator from Missouri (Mr. Reed). The champion of unrestricted immigration, advancing with measured step tread with a king kleagle on one arm and a grand dragon on the other, sheeted and hooded."

"Does the senator mean to intimate that I am a member of the Ku Klux Klan or have supported that organization?" demanded Senator Reed.

"Oh, no;" returned Senator Robinson.

"Then do not say that I bear their insignia," snapped Senator Reed.

"I do not intimate anything," continued the minority leader. "I say what I mean."

"Then say it," rejoined Reed.

Senator Reed later declared that Senator Robinson knew that his attitude "consistently through the years has been for absolute religious tolerance and religious freedom."

Arguing that the Klan opposed unrestricted immigration, Senator Robinson said all he had meant to say was that there was presented "the amazing spectacle of the senator from Missouri, who is the leader of those who favor unrestricted immigration, marching side by side with a kleagle and a dragon."

Appealed to by Senator Johnson, the democratic leader surrendered the floor six minutes before the hour to vote. The California senator then launched into a fiery attack on cloture and more especially on the substitute Swanson resolution which was presented last Saturday for the original resolution containing the Harding-Hughes-Coolidge reservations.

MARSHALL CONFESSED THAT HE STRANGLED MISS DIETRICH

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25—(AP)—David L. Marshall, Philadelphia chiropractor, tonight confessed that he had strangled Miss Anna May Dietrich to death before dismembering her body in his office Tuesday night.

Marshall said he had killed the woman after an argument which he declared had followed an attempt to extort money from him. He made his second confession at 10:10 p. m., in the office of District Attorney Fox after being under a severe grilling almost continuously since 6 o'clock last night.

During the questioning Marshall, who had kept steadfastly to his original confession that he had dismembered the body but did not kill Miss Dietrich, suddenly flushed, and turning to the district attorney, cried:

"I'm lying. It's all lies. I'll tell the truth now."

A stenographer was called and 10 minutes later Marshall started making his new confession.

Marshall, who is married and the father of a 12-year old girl, declared that Miss Dietrich had tried to obtain money from him under threats of exposing his double life to his wife. He told how he had been out with her and later went to his suite of offices, where the quarrel started.

There, parts of the latest confession as given out by the police, said, she repeated her demands for money in the women's retiring room. Seizing her by the throat, he had strangled her, he went on, until she dropped unconscious to the floor. He then carried the body into another room, placed it on the operating table and went to his home. He returned the next day, dismembered the body by cutting off the head and legs and took the parts in his motor car to the outskirts of the city, where they were found the next day.

ATTEMPT TO BURN CLOTH MILLS AT BEDDEFORD, ME.

BIDDEFORD, Me., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Mystery tonight still surrounded a double attempt made last night to burn the cloth mills of the Pepperell Manufacturing company here. The only police theory was that some irresponsible or disgruntled person had sought to destroy the mills for some fancied grievance. No arrest or detention of suspicious persons had been made late today.

About 8 o'clock last night a group of young men near the No. 5 carding mill saw a flaming object strike a second story casement and fall to the sidewalk. It was quickly extinguished by a watchman and proved to be a section of brick, with oil-soaked waste wired about it.

Half an hour later a similar missile crashed through a second story window of No. 4 weave shed, about 1,000 feet from the carding mill. It was similarly warily away when a watchman found and extinguished it, before serious damage was done.

The weavers and loom fixers have been out of employment for several weeks. On Dec. 1 last the mills were shut down because the weavers would not accept the so-called multiple loom system by which a single operator controls many machines. Business men took a hand in an attempt to settle the dispute between the mill agent and the workers, but no compromise was reached. On January 4 the mills were reopened, and since then the number of looms in operation has been increasing. The mill management has declared that union workers were returning to their jobs but this has been denied by union leaders.

Tonight an extra force of watchmen was placed on duty in the mills, which cover a wide area, and the police arranged to have extra forces on watch in the vicinity.

The Pepperell mills normally employ about 3,200 persons and manufacture sheetings, shirtings, jeans, flannels, etc. The spindles number 250,000.

CHAPMAN APPEAL FILED IN U. S. COURT OF APPEALS

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Possibility that Gerald Chapman not only may escape the hangman's noose in Hartford, Conn., on March 3 but eventually the balance of a twenty-five year term in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta was seen tonight by Frederick J. Groehl, chief counsel for the notorious mail bandit and convicted slayer. Groehl's optimism was expressed soon after an appeal had been filed with the United States circuit court of appeals here, transferring the case from the Connecticut courts.

It was the last day for filing of the appeal under the rules of such procedure. The circuit court begins a three-week session next Monday.

Prepared to carry the case to the supreme court, if necessary, Mr. Groehl seeks by the proceedings begun to have reversed a decision of Federal Judge Thomas of Connecticut denying Chapman's petition for a writ of habeas corpus that would have removed him from the jurisdiction of that state and returned him to Atlanta to complete his sentence.

Would Patent Dances

PARIS, Jan. 25—(AP)—Fre[illegible] ing masters have applied [illegible] vernment for the protec[illegible]tent laws for new danc[illegible] they may invent. The associa[illegible]dancing teachers decided at a recent meeting that an artist who originates a new "Goose-Gallop" or "Fox-Fandango" has just as much right to enjoy exclusively any financial earnings of his brain child as has the artist who paints a picture or writes a novel. It is understood the masters already had some new dances ready to introduce to the public but are withholding them until they see whether they can get them "patented".

MIDDLETOWN DRUGGIST HELD FOR LIQUOR LAW VIOLATION

HARTFORD, Jan. 25. — (AP)—Leyis I. Peisner, proprietor of the Larkview pharmacy, 48 Main street, Middletown, was bound over to March 1, for jury trial on his entering plea of not guilty today to a charge of violating the liquor law in United States district court before Judge Thomas. He furnished bond of $1,000.

Peisner is facing three counts, possession of liquor, sale and maintenance of a place for sale, and the trial will be based on second offense charges. He was convicted in October, 1924, in New Haven on the charge and was fined $400 and costs.

Prohibition agents raided his drug store at Middletown last Thursday and seized twenty gallons of alcohol, a few pints of whiskey, some alleged whiskey, bottles and labels. They entered his premises with a search warrant issued by U. S. Commissioner Frederic J. Corbett.

It developed today that Assistant U. S. Attorney John A. Danaher had obtained the warrant after an affidavit was filed at his office by a man who swears he bought a pint of liquor from Peisner. Mr. Danaher remarked that he had sent the man to buy the liquor following complaints to the United States attorney's office that the druggist was engaged in illegal rum traffic.

[illegible]ce in Favor of Resale Price Control

Action of Directors of Conn. C. of C. of Interest to Industries in General.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Voting 11 to 10 on the second ballot, the directors of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, went on record today as in favor of resale price control. The first vote taken was 10 to 10.

Their action followed a lengthy discussion of the subject which is of direct interest to manufacturers, retailers, wholesalers and jobbers.

Judge Brandeis, of the United States supreme court told me years ago that he had never seen a case so mismanaged by its proponents as that of price maintenance and that were it to be presented to the courts on the basis of the fundamental justice involved, the principle would be upheld," declared Horace B. Cheney, of Cheney Brothers, South Manchester, in the debate. "Although many persons think so, the courts have never yet passed on the principle of price maintenance in itself," added Mr. Cheney.

"In asking the government to give them the authority to fix, maintain and enforce resale prices, manufacturers are asking the government to do more for them than it does for its own businesses," declared Edward N. Allen, of Sage-Allen and company of Hartford, who argued against legislation in favor of resale price control. "Such unlimited authority cannot with safety be given. Furthermore, if the government grants this right, it would probably be necessary to establish a new governmental agency to make sure that the established prices were fair."

Mr. Cheney reported to the state chamber directors for the chamber's industry committee which studied the resale control question last week and Mr. Allen reported for the chamber's trade and commerce committee which did likewise.

Mr. Cheney maintained that a merchant was selling the good will of the manufacturer of an identified product as well as the product itself and that price cutting nullifies "to a considerable extent" the results achieved by spending vast sums for advertising. He believed that the law of competition would prevent a manufacturer from obtaining unreasonable profits were he allowed to control resale prices for his products. Mr. Cheney told how price cutting had forced one line of his firm's products off the market at a loss of over $1,000,000. In reply to the claim that the manufacturer now had ample protection against price cutting, he said that a manufacturer's hands were tied because it is unlawful to form any organization to collect evidence as to price cutting activities of any suspected merchants.

"Price maintenance will make the retailer an agent for the manufacturer community which he should be," declared Mr. Allen. "Price maintenance instead of the purchasing agent for his is unfair to the consumer because fixed prices do not reflect the market fluctuations in the costs of materials nor does it take into account the fact that some merchants can operate more economically than others."

Samuel C. Parker, of Bridgeport, a director of the state chamber, said: "Considering myself a consumer, I believe that it is unfair that I be compelled to pay more for an article than the price for which the merchant who owns it is willing to sell it to me."

A manufacturer from southern Connecticut stated: "Much price cutting is due to the fact that certain stores want to get customers away from their competitors."

Robert T. Snow, of New Haven, asserted that price maintenance was class legislation and that its enactment would shortly be followed by a boomerang in the form of other legislation to modify it.

President Tracy and nearly a dozen directors of the New Haven Chamber of Commerce attended today's meeting. Among them was Mrs. Raynham Townsend, who is the first woman to attend a meeting of the state chamber's directors within memory. When called upon for her opinion she said: "There are so many points on both sides of the resale price control discussion, that it's a pity a law can't be enacted that will make both sides happy."

Ernest E. Rogers, treasurer of the state of Connecticut and president of the state chamber, presided today.

DISTRESS SIGNAL AGAIN HALTS RADIO BROADCASTING

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Broadcasting was shut down early tonight when a distress signal was picked up from a ship at sea. The signal came before the beginning of the night's session of the international broadcasting tests which were interrupted last night by another S. O. S.

Although there was nothing in the first message to indicate the identity of the disabled vessel, efforts were immediately made to discover if possible whether it was not the British freighter Antinoe, known to be in a badly damaged condition in mid-Atlantic.

The Antinoe was reported in distress yesterday by the President Roosevelt which stood by in hopes of being able to take off the crew until this morning when the freighter was lost to sight in heavy weather.

The S. O. S. call tonight was picked up by stations along the eastern seaboard and several operators calculated that the distress vessel was in the vicinity of New York.

International Radio Broadcasting Tests

Successful in Spite of S. O. S. Call, an Earthquake and Adverse Elemental Conditions.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP)—After the opening session of the third international radio broadcasting tests had proved successful in spite of an S. O. S. call, an earthquake and adverse elemental conditions, the continents hobnobbed by radio again tonight.

Stions WMCA, whose scheduled attempt last night to furnish music for dancers in the Hotel Metropole, London, was stopped by the distress call from the sinking freighter Solvang, once more tried to bridge the Atlantic with its music. Other stations made brave efforts to reach European listeners with even fragmentary parts of their programs.

When the American hour of broadcasting finished at 11 p. m., eastern standard time, European stations went on the air for an hour. In Berlin singers of the Berlin state opera were turning out of their beds before 5 a. m., continental time, to broadcast songs to reach the United States between 11 and 12 p. m. Spanish, Austrian, South American and Czecho-Slovakian stations projected special musical programs over the ocean at the same time.

Members of the radio week committee were still busy late today checking up the results of last night's tests. Repeated inquiries regarding the source of chimes that came on the air just as Lima, Peru, was signing off, showed that the sound came from that station when a chime clock fell from a shelf as the broadcasting ended.

A mysterious practical joking broadcaster who signed himself "Eiffel Tower, Paris" was traced to Philadelphia after the committee had received a cable denial from France that the Eiffel Tower was on the air but his identity was not learned.

The source of another mysterious program which was sent out on 490 meters has not been successfully checked, however. It is believed that this might have come from one of the Russian stations—possibly Moscow—which had shown willingness to participate in the tests and which were unofficially invited by the committee to take part.

The committee was also checking up on the report of one man in Hartford, Conn., who wired that he had received Brussels, Belgium, last night. So far as could be learned the Belgian city had not announced that it would take part in the tests and it is thought that it may have decided to do so at the last minute.

Word was received from Peru that its stations would observe a "silent hour" tonight to give listeners a chance to hear North American broadcasters.

CASE WAS SIMILAR TO THAT OF GERALD CHAPMAN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—(AP)—A decision held in some quarters as one which might apply to certain phases of the case of Gerald Chapman, convicted in Connecticut of murder, was handed down here today when the supreme court held a federal prisoner might be removed for trial on a new indictment without notice and hearing.

The case was that of Joseph B. Mersino, who was removed from Atlanta to Worcester, Mass., without being furnished a copy of his new indictment. He brought the issue to the supreme court, but that tribunal today affirmed the decision of the lower courts against him.

Though the circumstances are somewhat similar to those in the Chapman case, the department of justice, following a policy it had adhered to since Chapman began his fight for freedom from a death sentence in Connecticut, declining today to comment. It was pointed out, however, that Chapman now is making his chief contention a plea that President Coolidge had no right to commute his sentence so that he could be put on trial in Hartford, under the state laws, for killing a policeman.

Chapman has contended also, that he had no notice of his warning of his transfer from Atlanta or of the state's action in obtaining the commutation.

FRENCH FINANCIAL BILL COMES BEFORE DEPUTIES TODAY

PARIS, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Premier Briand will tomorrow engage in the greatest political battle of his long career in the chamber of deputies. The fight, which is one of the most curious that ever developed in a country where political complications and surprises are never lacking, will bring the premier to grips with his own majority in parliament on the policy to be adopted to balance the budget, provide a sinking fund for France's debts, and definitely renovate French finances and stabilize the franc.

The radical party, which has a majority of the portfolios in the cabinet, will, with the aid of the socialists and republican-socialists, endeavor to pass the bills prepared by the coalition members of the finance committee of the chamber as substitutes for the government programme. The radical-socialist measures comprise a long list of exceedingly complicated devices to increase the revenue without materially increasing indirect taxation and are estimated as likely to produce 3,870,000,000 francs new resources.

That sum, with 500,000,000 francs expected through economies, the committee report says, will balance the budget. The question of a sinking fund is left for separate consideration, the committee omitting to point out how it hopes to obtain the necessary money.

TO KEEP LITTLE IRISH MACKEREL OUT OF BARRELS

NEW York, Jan. 25.—(AP)—The salt fish division of the United States Fisheries association started a movement today to keep little Irish mackerel out of barrels that should contain only the big Irish mackerel.

Such a mixture, the salt fish importers said, had blighted the Irish trade for along time. They appointed a committee to draw up regulations, and also decided to put an inspector in Liverpool to see that the mackerel were properly graded and assorted before they are paid for.

At present, it was said, Irish exporters have no set standard for grading their fish. They send about 40,000 barrels of mackerel to this country every year, and are paid in advance, so that "when we complain that our fish are not assorted properly, they laugh at us."

COOLIDGE HAS MODIFIED THE MITCHELL SENTENCE

The President Sustains Five Years' Suspension From Military Service, But Rules That the Colonel Should Receive All of His Allowances and One-Half His Pay During That Period—Lengthy Statement Issued by President Coolidge—Acted on Recommendation of Secretary of War Davis.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25—(AP)—Official announcement was made late today at the white house that President Coolidge has modified the court martial setence of Col. William Mitchell.

The five year suspension from military service was approved but the president ruled that Mitchell should receive all of his allowances and one half of his pay during that period.

The findings of the president were summarized in this paragraph, concluding a lengthy statement:

"The sentence is approved and will be duly executed, except as heinafter provided. The secretary of war rports that the present monthly pay of the accused, without the special pay allowed to those who are actually engaged in flying, is $483.33. His allowances for rental and subsistance are $156 per month. If he be granted his rental and subsistance and one-half of his pay the amount is understood to be $397.67.

There are certain statutory restrictions on the activities of army officers by which the accused may be hampered in securing employment to provide support for himself and those dependent upon him. Therefore, modifying the recommendations of the judge advocate general and following the recommendations of war, the execution of so much of the sentence as adjudged forfeiture of all of the allowances and one half of the monthly pay of the accused making a total of $397.67 monthly is during the pleasure of the president, suspended."

In the statement, President Coolidge also said:

"The theory of government implies that every official, so long as he retains office, shall depart himself with respect toward his superiors. Unless this rule is applied, there could be no discipline in the army and the navy without which those two forces would not only be without value as a means of defense but would become actually a menace to society. Discipline is the whole basis of military training."

In modifying the court martial decision as to pay and allowances, the statement pointed out, the president, while following completely recommendation of Secretary Davis of the war department, had disagreed slightly with the judge advocate general's recommendation. Restoration of the colonel's allowances and one-half of the monthly pay which he would draw while not actually engaged in flying, will give him an annual income of about $4,760.

When informed of the action taken by President Coolidge, Col. Mitchell intimated that he would issue a public statement, probably tonight, and there was reason to believe he would at that time make known his decision to tender his resignation as an army officer to the president.

In the event the officer, whose vigorous criticism of the army and navy air service administrations aroused strong opposition among officials and finally led to his trial for insubordination should submit a resignation, it is virtually certain that the war department would recommend that it be accepted by the president "for the good of the service," despite that such action would automatically terminate the five-year sentence and give Col. Mitchell a complete civilian status.

Secretary Davis' letter transmitting the case to the president for action showed that the war department board of review, while sustaining completely the procedure and verdict of the court on all legal grounds, recommend that the forfeiture included in the sentence be reduced to a suspension of all allowances and one-third of monthly pay during the pleasure of the president.

Major General John A. Hull, judge advocate general of the army, concurred in this recommendation and the secretary stated his own concurrence except that he recommended forfeiture of only one half of the monthly pay.

DECLARES THE ESKIMOS HAD NO REASON TO LIE

BANGOR, Me., Jan. 25—(AP)—Eskimos whose stories were taken as an indication that Dr. Frederick Cook has failed to reach the north pole "had no reason to lie" Dr. Harrison J. Hunt, arctic traveler, said today. His comment was made in consequent of a statement attributed to Roald Amundsen questioning the veracity of Admiral Peary's claim to discovery. Amundsen later denied the statements insisting he had been incorrectly quoted.

Dr. Hunt accompanied Donald B. MacMillan on the Crocker land expeditions of 1913 t o1917 during which Dr. Cook's claims were investigated. He said that the two Eskimos, companions of Dr. Cook, were questioned at the request of General Thomas H. Hubbard before Dr. Hunt and six other members of the Crocker expedition and that they traced out Cook's course on separate maps. Without referring to each other, Apela and Etoykasche, the Eskimos Dr. Hunt said, showed that the explorer had at no time been nearer than 500 miles from the north pole.

Amundsen's reported statement was that Cook's claim to discovery could not be disputed on the ground of the Eskimos' testimony inasmuch as the Eskimos were "in the habit of giving you 'any answer you ask for."

FRANK M. SMITH IS NOMINATED AS POSTMASTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 26—President Calvin Coolidge, Monday, appointed Frank M. Smith as postmaster of the Willimantic postoffice. The appointment was confirmed by the senate. Postmaster Smith has been acting in that capacity since November 14th, last having been named to succeed to ex-postmaster Walter R. King who resigned to take up a partnership in the Jordan Hardware company with A. L. Weatherhead and Nelson A. Daniels. The postmastership constitutes Mr. Smith's initial entry into government work. Practically all of his life was devoted to the retail drug business. Postmaster Smith was born March 31, 1872 in Poquonock, town of Windsor, Hartford county. With his parents he came to this city in 1878 when he was six years old. At the age of nineteen he entered the employ of the Frank M. Wilson company drug store at 733 Main street. Three years later he removed to Hartford continuing in the same line of work. In 1899 when William P. Jordan abandoned the drug business and severed his connections with the Wilson company, to become a partner with his brother, the late Fred D. Jordan, in the hardware business, Mr. Smith was offered a position as manager of the Wilson company. Mr. Wilson died about one year later and Mr. Smith continued as manager for over 25 years. His administration of the drug business was along very successful lines and he soon became one of the recognized leading business men of Willimantic. During the brief months of his term as acting postmaster he gained control of his responsible position in a highly creditable manner. He was hardly in office when the annual Christmas rush came on. COLUMBIA MAN CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTED RAPE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 25—Ralph Woichowski, 35, of Columbia, was bound over to the next criminal term of the Tolland county superior court on charges of assault and attempt to rape Annie Zmutski, wife of John Zmutski of Columbia and said to be Woichowski's relative, when probable cause was found in the Columbia town court at 1:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. Justice of the Peace Hubert P. Collins presided over the court and Grand Juror Joseph N. Clarke prosecuted. Woichowski pleaded not guilty but the evidence which he gave was of an incriminating nature. Five witnesses were questioned relative to the case. Woichowski had been making his home with the Zmutski's. As near as the court officials determine the man and Mrs. Zmutski are second cousins. Mrs. Zmutski is about 30 years old. On the afternoon of Dec. 15 last, according to testimony given, Woichowski held a revolver to Mrs. Zmutski's face and commandered her to yield herself to him. In danger of her life the woman resisted him and finally succeeded in freeing herself. Upon the arrival of her husband she complained to him and the incident was related to the authorities. It was believed, at that time, however, that Woichowski had left the town and no action was taken. Within the past ten days' Woichowski announced his presence in the vicinity by filing a civil suit against Zmutski to recover alleged money loaned the defendant. This led the Zmutskis to renew their complaint and Monday morning Constable Harvey Collins located Woichowski and placed him under arrest. Woichowski admitted in broken English to having had a revolver and displaying it in the presence of Mrs. Zmutski. One of the Zmutski children was among the witnesses. Up to late Monday night Woichowski was still awaiting bonds of $1,000. Unless they are furnished he will be taken to the Tolland county jail Tuesday.

McCoy's New Discovery Establishes Regular Bowel Movement---Decisively Conquers Constipation In Ten Days

Try One Bottle and Prove the Above Assertion — With McCoy's Rinolin Thousands Have Won the Fight Against Habitual Constipation and Are Now Enjoying Radiant Health that Normal Peristalsis Brings.

A PLEASANT-TASTING EMULSION THAT COSTS NOTHING TO TRY, FOR LEE & OSGOOD CO., AND ALL DRUGGISTS ARE AUTHORIZED TO RETURN THE PURCHASE PRICE IF RESULTS ARE NOT SUPREMELY SATISFACTORY.

Continual daily purging of the bowels with violent carthatics and harsh salts means just one thing.

The formation of a vicious habit that will surely grip you stronger and stronger and cause you days and nights of unnecessary misery until the end of your earthly journey.

The search for a corrective that will actually overcome chronic constipation so that harmful purgatives can be discarded forever did not start in this century.

The search has been going on for scores of years and many thousands of great and learned physicians have given a lifetime of faithful study endeavoring to solve the problem of normal bowel evacuation.

But time overcomes all obstacles and solves all problems and now comes the discovery by a clever scientific pharmacist who after years of patient experimentation, has finally compounded just the right combination to really conquer and put an end to chronic constipation.

McCoy's Rinolin is no longer an experiment, for before one bottle ever reached the druggists of America thousands of people had tried it and always with the same grand result—habitual constipation need no more exist—it has been decisively conquered.

So now all men and women who have suffered in silence and patiently awaited a real remedy for constipation can put their faith in Rinolin—McCoy's Rinolin—a pleasant, wholesome compound that is sure to rid you of chronic constipation within ten days after you open your first bottle.

Like McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, Rinolin is a thoroughly efficient preparation—one that drives away constipation and all its attendant miseries, including auto-intoxication, by the simple method of causing normal, healthy peristalsis.

And here's the right method for every adult to pursue after obtaining a bottle of McCoy's Rinolin at any drug store:

First night, one tablespoonful, plain or in milk or in water—the next morning one good bowel operation. Second night, same dose—same result.

Then follow instructions as they appear on the bottle for nine days.

And now the tenth day your bowels are thoroughly cleaned; all toxins and poisonous waste and gas have been eliminated—peristalic action has been increased and bowel movements will be certain and perfectly normal for many days to come.

The vicious habit of daily purging has been conquered.

So when this grand result can be achieved so easily why should any man, woman or child be longer at the mercy of that tyrant constipation?

Sensible people will start tonight, and, for their benefit, let us say that Lee & Osgood Co. and druggists everywhere dispense McCoy's Rinolin with the distinct understanding that if you are dissatisfied with the results after the first bottle you can have your money back.

Rinolin contains, in scientific proportions, and in a very pleasant emulsion; mineral oil; agar agar; phenolphthalein and cascarin and is prepared by McCoy's Rinolin Co., Inc., 62-70 West 14th St., New York City. Rinolin tonight—Pep tomorrow.

DANIELSON

SQUEALING RADIO SETS BOTHER DANIELSON FANS

DANIELSON, Jan. 25—A checkup Monday of the efforts at reception here Sunday night of the first of the International broadcasts showed it to have been what theatrical people call a complete "flop." No radio fan could be found here who even claimed hearing any of the European stations that were on the air. Some receiving sets did give indications of being tuned in properly to get overseas reception, but the best that could be obtained was a station hum or low whistle.

But the radio fans are not discouraged. Scores of them were on the job again Monday night from 11 to 12 optimistic over the prospect of hearing from abroad. Atmospheric conditions Sunday night were decidedly against long distance reception. Even stations in the middle west were not coming in with anywhere near their usual volume, so it was not surprising to many of the fans that they did not hear England, Scotland, Spain or South America. The fans hope for better conditions and success sometime during the week.

Cuban and Mexican stations were heard here Sunday night between 10 and 11 o'clock, while the broadcast for Europe was being made on this side, but this is not an unusual occurrence.

Though all eastern stations were silent from 11 to 12 Sunday night, not so the squealing radio receivers. They howled up and down and around the dials, making a discordant, squealing symphony, that would have blanketed a high-power broadcasting station no farther distant than Wauregan. There were only a few position on the dials where a European or South American station could possibly be heard. The wave lengths were known to all well informed radio fans. This appeared to make little difference to many. The squeals indicated they were chasing stations far below and far above the points where they could possibly hope to hear what they were searching for, and heard nothing at all—excepting other squeals. They did mightily annoy careful listeners in who were set on wave lengths that at least gave them promise of hearing Europe. Possibly there will be more consideration and greater care in operation as the nights of the international broadcasts come and go this week.

A suggestion heard Monday was that fans compare the wave lengths of the foreign stations that are on the air each night with the wave length of some station with which they are familiar on this side. For instance, WHN, of New York, broadcasts on 361 meters. About everyone gets that station, so it should not be difficult to get a rating for 2LO, London, which broadcasts on 363 meters. One should find it about on the WHN position, and so comparisons may be made for all other foreign broadcasters.

Mrs. Aggie Shippee, 70, wife of Fred A. Shippee, died Sunday night at her home in South Killingly. Mrs. Shippee was born in Warren, R. I., a daughter of Nathan B. and Jukia (Guyett) Woodward. She leaves her husband, a brother, Samuel, of Nasonville, R. I., two sisters, Mrs. Emma Woodward of Shrewsbury, Mass., and Mrs. Adrianna Potter of Danielson and two nieces, Misses Doris and Tessie Potter.

Under a recent arrangement perfected by the town school committee pupils who have their applications for transportation to and from school approved and use motor coach lines in traveling will pay their own fares and later have the money rebated to them, allowance being made on the basis of the number of days they actually attend school. Transportation has been approved for pupils living in various parts of the town of Killingly.

Telephone subscribers will find a great deal to interest them and not a little to amuse them if they accept the telephone company's invitation to attend the demonstration of operating methods and experiences at the assembly hall of Killingly High school Wednesday evening. The demonstration, by a group of training operators and other employes, will give a splendid insight in just how calls are put through and of some of the things that happen and how the blame for them goes where it very often does not belong.

Officers and non-commissioned officers of the military here are talking about playing basketball against each other. That should be a game—"gradually," as a famous humorist has it. There would be only one drawback to game like that. A commissioned officer might issue the order "Cease firing," or "Fall out," and, in that case, of course, there would be nothing for the non-coms to do but obey.

Danielson is beginning to have a little experience with what might be termed the Pittsburgh haze. It was considerably in evidence on a cloudy day like Monday. Increased use of soft coal accounts for much of the additional haze that hangs over Danielson nowadays, not that soft coal has come into general use here, but because more of it is being burned than is usually the case.

Next week Tuesday is Groundhog day. This early those who believe in such things are anticipating with satisfaction the making of the annual weather observation of February 2nd. An old legend has it that if the day be cloudy and the groundhog does not see his shadow when he emerges from his months' long sleep, he will regard the backbone of winter as broken and remain out. On the other hand, should the day be bright and fair and he sees his shadow, he will return to his seclusion for there will be six more weeks of hard winter weather ahead.

Members of the Nazarene church have a prayer meeting scheduled for this (Tuesday) evening at Albert Trask's, near Killingly Center.

Mrs. A. C. Greene had members of the Ladies' Reading circle at her home for a meeting Monday afternoon.

Miss Martha Duckworth has been visiting with relatives in Pawtucket.

Some Rhode Island coal is being used in Danielson. It is a very hard coal, but a good fuel when one becomes familiar with the use of it.

An Indian, garbed in the striking regalia of the race, interested scores of children and not a few grownups in Danielson Monday.

Plans are going forward for the Danielson Rotary club installation on February 4th.

A vagrant who was refused a lodging at the police station here, boarded a bus to "ride as far as they let me," and was willing to be locked up because of his inability to pay fare.

There was a total of 82 marriages in the town of Killingly during 1925, the records at the office of the town clerk show.

Because of the funeral of the president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company at Akron, O., the Goodyear mills of this town were closed Monday afternoon.

Henry U. Blakeman, of New Bedford, was a visitor with friends in Danielson Monday.

Cutting of ice at the Hygeia reservoir, near East Killingly, from whence comes much of Danielson's supply, has not been undertaken as yet.

There are boys who persist in the dangerous indulgence of skating on the Quinebaug river, always a treacherous place for skaters to venture.

Trout fishermen here seem to be largely agreed that the state fish and game commission's plan to keep Snake Meadow brook closed to April 15, after stocking with large trout, is a good one. Massachusetts fishermen, waiting for their season to open April 15, will be shut off Snake Meadow this year until that date. Scores of them have made a regular practice of coming here to fish the first two weeks in April. The Connecticut fishermen can well afford to wait for this particular brook.

Baltic's All Star basketball team comes here this week to try conclusions again with the Danielson town team. Danielson lost to this team last Friday night at Baltic. Danielson is confident of winning this week's game.

Undertakar L. E. Kennedy was at Plainfield Monday to conduct the funeral of Anita Bernier, 16 months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bernier. Burial was in the new St. John's cemetery.

Old Killingly pond, at East Killingly, has been yielding a few good pickerel to fishermen who have been there recently. This, by the way, is the last week of the season for those who enjoy th sport of fishing through the ice.

Delor A. Fountain, of Spencer, was a visitor with friends in Danielson over Sunday.

Mrs. Mabel Leavens entertained the members of the Roundabout club Monday afternoon.

PUTNAM

A. NEWTON VAUGHN AGAIN LEADS INSURANCE FIELD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 25—For the second time A. Newton Vaughn has finished ahead of anyone in the United States or Canada in the amount of insurance wrote in a given period. The Protective Record, a periodical published by one of the Hartford insurance companies has the following concerning one of the leading citizens of Putnam:

A. Newton Vaughn of Putnam, Ct., first man to qualify for our 60th anniversary convention at Quebec in 1924, again distinguishes himself by being the first man reported to have qualified for any of the 1926 producers clubs. He wrote and paid for 15 FAAX policies and four automobile fire policies, a total of $2,016.43 in premiums.

If Mr. Vaughn was located in a big prosperous city, it would still be a splendid record, but taking into consideration the fact that he is located in Putnam, Conn., a town of only 9,000 people, which is snaring the depression that certain New England textile towns are laboring under, it makes his accomplishments even greater.

After qualifying for Quebec in 1924 Mr. Vaughn was not content to rest on his honors. He forged ahead and qualified Mrs. Vaughn. So this year it is extremely unlikely that he will consider the distinction of being the first man to qualify for the Automobile producers club sufficient, but will push on and earn the right to wear some of the other club pins.

Joseph Belair has been arrested by the local police, charged with breaking into the office of the Bradley theatre after the performance Saturday night. The date of his hearing has no theen set.

In effecting an entrance the panes of glass in two doors were broken and there were numerous blood spots in the corridor and office, indicating that whoever broke the glass had done it with his hand and been severely cut as the result. Sunday night the police rounded up a number of local men who have not been working of late, among them Belair, who had several cuts on his hands. He denied any knowledge of or complicity in the act and says that he can prove that he was elsewhere when the break was made. He has secured council and will contest the charge.

HEAVY FINES GIVEN IN JEWETT CITY COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 25—The town court room was crowded Monday morning, when the liquor cases, resultant from Saturday evenings raids, were brought to trial, before Judge John T. Barry.

The great audience was much interested in the "evidence" exhibited, which included everything in the booze line from synthetic gin to third rail hooch. There were also a number of bottles of home brew, which was declared to be "good stuff".

John Parzych of the Polish club received a fine of $500 and costs. Mary Nigrelli and Mary Plentzk got away with a $100 fine. Lukasz Luka was found not guilty, insufficient evidence.

Attorney Thomas Kelly of Norwich and Attorney Charles L. Steward, also of Norwich represented certain of the defendants. The remaining four cases will come up for trial later. Dick Delmar, one of the state's witnesses, failed to appear.

FIVE PER CENT VOTE CAST IN JEWETT CITY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 25—The least number of votes ever poled in the borough of Jewett City was cast in Monday's election. Out of nearly 900 qualified voters only 47 visited the polls, and included in that number were ten women. The borough went democratic by four votes. Some one republican voted for him alone, Alfred J. Bacon, democratic, defeated Sebilleaud for bailiff by the narrow margin of three votes. The list of officers elected for 1926 follows: Warden Matthew J. Geary, democrat on both tickets, burgesses, republican, Ernest L. French, democrat, Edmond J. Jodoin, clerk and treasurer, Edwin M. Gray, democrat, on both tickets, assessor, republican, John H. Tracey, democrat, Edward L. Blanchard, bailiff, democrat, Alfred J. Palmer of Griswold on Saturday, Jan. 30.

All the contestants will be over 40 years of age and play by ear only. The entry list is nearing completion, and among the names are to be noted several old time local masters of the bow, every one of whom, seemed to be confident that they could give Uncle Joe Shippee, the present champion fiddler of New England a close rub for his title.

This section, once famous for fancy fiddlers, finds several today who have not forgotten the art. The winner in the local contest will issue a challenge to Uncle Joe Shippee.

A recent letter from Gurleyville to the editor of The Bulletin, is of much interest to local bird lovers, in that it gives information to substantiate the claim that robins migrate to the south each winter season in less numbers. Forty years ago, at this date, a single robin could hardly be found in this section. Today, although it is true that the winter has been less severe than those of a few years ago, there ar plenty of robins to be found if the observer knows of a cedar swamp.

At Dorrville, a half mile above the town, is a cedar swamp of unusual density. It comprises a good, part of the eastern boundary of Tadpole pond and altogether if its rambling extent were bunched up square, its area would be close to 10 acres. Impenetrable in summer a visit to its dense interior in winter is well worth while. Today robins in plenty are to be found comfortably enjoying a temperature that they never used to attempt to brave.

There is one fact worthy of notice, it being the change in diet which a local robin must accomplish to winter in the Dorrville swamp. All summer bugs and insects with an occasional angle worm which he has pulled out by the head from a newly mown lawn have made up his daily food.

Today, up in the swamp, Mr. Robin has juniper berries, with acorns on the side for breakfast, with seed picking all day, to make up an entirely changed menu.

LEDYARD

The Ledyard Get Together club presented a three act comedy "Getting Acquainted with Madge," in Ledyard grange hall on Friday evening. The Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church furnished a roast pork supper in the vestry of the church from 6 to 8 p. m., when the play commenced. The following characters presented the play. Students attending Braxton University: Arthur Tilden, Leslie Holdridge; Sam Forbush, Frederick Allyn; Randall Graham, Arthur Goodenough; Frank Garner, Archie Holdridge; Harry Neville, Richard Geer; Burton, Arthur servant, Paul Holdridge; Dr. Ormesby Ridgeway, Carl Holdridge Mrs. Alice Ridgeway, his wife, Mrs. Carl Holdridge; Madge, his daughter, Marian Geer; Jerry Saunders, Louise Clark; Aunt Minnie, Arthur's aunt from Montana, Mrs. Earl Geer; Lizzie, the Ridgeway maid, Frieda Goodenough.

The scenes were as follows: Act. 1, Arthur's rooms near the university, Braxton, Pa., 8 o'clock Friday night.

Act. 2, dining room of the Ridgeway home, Kingsdale, Pa., 4 o'clock the next afternoon.

Act. 3, the same, about one hour later, time the present.

The story of the play deals with the five students of Braxton university who are determined to form an acquaintance with Madge by strategy or otherwise. Many obstacles are met but all turns out well.

Much credit should be given the young people in putting on such a fine play, which excelled some other plays that have been given in grange hall. There was an appreciative audience present which was highly amused by some of the characters. The actors were highly complimented at the close of the play. They are expected to put this comedy on again in various localities.

CURBING OBSTRUCTIONISTS

No one can be regarded as responsible for the putting into operation of the cloture rule in the United States senate except those members of that body who have been doing their utmost to prevent that body from taking a vote on the proposal for adherence to the world court.

It has been evident for a long time that the great majority of that body has been desirous of bringing the matter to a vote, such sentiment being in keeping with the attitude of the country in general. Whatever has been done in the way of trying to prevent a vote has been mere obstruction. There has been no desire and no attempt to deny those who wanted to be heard in opposition. They have been given full opportunity to set forth their reasons, but that was not satisfactory. They knew they were in the small minority and yet they persisted in occupying the time of the senate simply to obstruct. It was the old practice that has caused so much disgust and it is to the credit of the senate that it decided to take the bull by the horns and put an end to it.

It was, of course, a non-partisan move and it is well that it was. It is to be hoped that it will prove a sufficient lesson to prevent such obstructive tactics in the future, but that doesn't necessarily follow. The uselessness of such obstruction when the means to end it was at hand should, however, have had its appeal, but the senate and the country have reasons for congratulations that there was good sense enough to make use of the cloture rule under the circumstances.

With a limit placed on the debate over the world court resolution little time should be required in bringing it to a vote. There will be a raft of amendments to be dealt with but they should be quickly acted upon. The cloture vote may not indicate the vote of the respective senators on the world court but there is no reason to suspect that those favoring adherence to the world court will be any fewer than those favoring the use of the cloture rule.

HIGHWAY SAFETY

When the president calls upon the different states to send representatives to the national conference on street and highway safety it is a time when those who are connected with such efforts in the various states should be sent to the gathering. Every state has an interest in this problem and by the interchange of ideas, such as will take place there, much valuable information will be obtained.

Groups of states have pushed forward the idea of uniformity in connection with automobile regulations. It was a much desired change and may yet be extended with equally good results. Instead of having every state adopt different methods of reaching the same end, the wisdom of moving along similar lines so that any who happen to be in a neighboring state will have a full knowledge of the requirements is self evident. If that works well in regard to automobile regulations it likewise has its possibilities concerning street and highway safety and particularly so concerning the movement of traffic.

It is a problem that rests with the states, and in view of the increase in accidents and fatalities each year it cannot get too close attention. All states do not stand in the same position, and yet there are many problems in common and the interchange of ideas is bound to be of great assistance. From the experiences and methods adopted to correct conditions, the conference is going to have something of value for each one that attends. When it is realized that there were 100,000 injured in highway accidents last year and nearly a quarter as many were killed there is no question about the need of putting forth every possible effort in behalf of greater safety. Greater safety will be obtained though greater care, but in too many instances that care has to be forced upon the individual and it is the methods of doing this the most effectively that are desired. A national conference makes a wonderful clearing house for them.

AMUNDSEN'S BAD BREAK

Have we got to go all through the Dr. Cook case again, just because he was recently visited by Raold Amundsen and the latter was spurred into giving expression to the feeling that Dr. Cook was right?

Amundsen has recently been into the polar regions by airplane and had a very fortunate escape. He is telling about it on a lecture course through the country and in the course of his wanderings and publicity efforts he got where he could make a call on Dr. Cook. They are old friends and Amundsen fell for the Cook story as it was first told in Copenhagen. It was perfectly proper for him to visit Dr. Cook in prison, but he seems to have gone entirely out of his way in reviving the old controversy and at this time to put forth the claim that Cook had just as good claim to reaching the pole as did Peary. This is not only indicating his confidence in Cook, whose claims have failed to meet the test applied by scientists, but it undertakes to discredit the man who is recognized as having reached the north pole.

It puts Amundsen in the position of taking sides with Cook against Peary, of upsetting the judgment of those who have impartially probed into the facts of the case and of trying to bring back for review once more the long drawn out controversy over the discovery of the pole which has long since been settled. With out any new evidence his effort must be regarded as hopeless.

At the same time Amundsen is bringing upon himself needless criticism. There was no call for his rushing to the support of one who is doing time and regarded as a deceiver at this time, and much less to try to separate Peary from the honors that have been conferred upon him. It doesn't appear to have been even a good advertising stunt but rather to reflect badly upon an active explorer who is depending upon public credence being given to whatever reports he hopes to bring back from the far north in the future. Amundsen doesn't help himself by his support of Dr. Cook.

TODAY'S CONFERENCE

According to the attitude of the leaders of the respective sides in the coal strike there is nothing to indicate that any progress will be made as the result of the conference which has been called for this afternoon.

There is a new proposition offered, which calls for an early resumption of coal mining under the rate of pay that was in effect at the time of the strike. This is of course what the operators agreed to in one of their offers and it was to continue until next September. In addition the new plan would permit a conference for wage adjustments, but if it was impossible for the two sides to agree on changes the wages would remain the same. That indicates already, if such a plan should be put into effect, that there would never be an agreement to increase or lower wages and therefore they would remain the same for the next five years, that being the term provided for. There is no provision for arbitration of any of the questions over which a dispute might arise.

Thus there is nothing to indicate the possibility of getting down to any more satisfying discussion in Philadelphia than prevailed at the recent conference at New York, and if the same attitude is maintained by the respective sides there is no prospect that anything will be advanced in the conference that will make it possible for them to come to terms. Several conferences have been held but the miners and the operators are no nearer an understanding now than they were last August because the miners will not accept arbitration and because the operators will not concede direct out and out advantages to the miners.

STOLEN AND WASTED BOTTLES

Those who have had experience can appreciate the wisdom of milk dealers in organizing for the purpose of protecting themselves against those who steal milk bottles. It can be readily appreciated that such a fight in the city of Chicago alone means the saving of $750,000 a year. Even the breakage of milk bottles in the ordinary run of business runs into large figures in the course of a twelve month period, but when there are those who steal the bottles either for their own use or for the price which they can get for them it means serious inroads into the milk business, and if permitted to continue would sooner or later be reflected in the price of the milk.

But while there is a justified desire on the part of the milk dealers to regain their milk containers for further use, it is surprising that a similar desire does not prevail among others who put up their products in bottles. There are certain soft drink manufacturers who make no effort to get back the bottles and others whose products in one form or another are put in similar containers who make no attempt at using the containers again the same as the milkmen do. It is entirely possible that due to the size and the amount of work that would be involved in recovering and cleaning them that new containers are cheaper and less bother, but it would appear that there was an opportunity for some enterprising individual to make a business of this reclamation and get rich in the doing of it. Reclamation work has paid handsomely in certain lines, and the results obtained have caused many others to follow in the footsteps of the pioneers.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 26—Such cities and towns as feel they are in urgent need of additional post office facilities need not be discouraged if their names do not appear in the preferred list submitted by the house committee on public buildings, and so appear to be eliminated, if the need is genuine they are in a fair way to get necessary additions or new buildings under the emergency authorization for the expenditure of $100,000,000 to be set aside to meet emergencies. One hundred and forty cities are named in the emergency list of the committee on public buildings as shown by reports of recent hearings. The fund in the bill is passed by congress as it now stands would extend over a period of approximately seven years during which time emergency cases could be considered by the treasury and post office departments, with a strong probability that buildings coming under that class in the state of Connecticut would get the necessary appropriation to carry out the work of improvement or erection of new buildings.

On what may be unofficially termed the preferred list are buildings for which appropriations had already been authorized. In the state of Connecticut the buildings already partially provided for include Branford and Putnam; in the emergency list are Bridgeport, Hartford, New London, Torrington, and Waterbury.

Just after entertaining President and Mrs. Coolidge at dinner at the magnificent Dawes residence, Tuesday night, the vice president sent out a radio broadcast which not only told the nation just what he thought of the senate but almost broke "Mike" as the transmitter is nicknamed here, into smithereens. Mike had to stand not only a verbal onslaught but got many a whack of the fist that threatened to put it out of commission. Dawes vociferousness was technically called "causing a blast," and the fact that he shouted so loud that some of the words ran together is the only consolation left for the opponents of the world court who, by their long debate, have roused the ire of the vice president, and brought again to the front his attack on men who oppose a proposed gag rule for the senate.

The difference between Dawes at rest and Dawes in action is beyond comprehension or description. When the average "how dy' do" acquaintance, whether of the press gallery or otherwise, meets Dawes in the course of the day's work, Dawes is cordial, quiet, smiling and affable. His turn down pipe is always in his mouth, whether or not it is lighted; his handshake is firm, and he talks freely in a moderate conversational tone. The Dawes in action, when offended or indignant is merely a mass of gestures, high kicks and jumps, loud words, violent smashes with his fist of whatever is in front of him, accompanying a tirade of words uttered in a loud voice that is high pitched and seldom descends from a shout. Dawes may be praised, condemned and criticized by persons who agree or disagree with him, but its a safe guess he will never be commented on as too dignified or too well poised.

Secretary Hoover this week gave his approval, and promised the fullest cooperation with the New England council in its efforts to solve the economic and industrial problems that confront it. This assurance was given John Lawrence, president of the council, when he visited the secretary and put the matter before him. Mr. Lawrence lunched with President Coolidge who is said to have expressed sympathy with the effort New England is making in that direction.

It is proposed to make a marketing survey of New England by the department of commerce and Mr. Hoover assured Mr. Lawrence there would be no delaying so doing. The topics most freely discussed were power control, and development of agriculture and the question of marketing. In the survey it is proposed to take into consideration the purchasing power of cities and towns.

At a hearing this week before a sub committee of the military affairs committee, of the senate, Lieut. Teta of New Haven appeared as representing the Military Band association of the country, regarding the so-called band bill introduced recently by Senator Bingham. Lieut. Teta strongly favors the bill, which would not only standardize the pay of army musicians, and increase it, but would commission band leaders, the same as chaplains are commissioned. Letters of approval of the bill were read from Col. Lewis L. Field, commanding officer of the 102 Connecticut infantry. Senator Bingham conducted the hearing.

The Weeks Forestry act will get a boom in congress through the introduction of an amendment by Senator McNary of Oregon, who asked that the measure should not only be continued, but should receive larger appropriations and be extended to protection of navigable streams and forestry at their watersheds, in other localities than the White mountains and Appalachian ranges to which it is now confined.

The McNary measure will win support of western states now somewhat uninterested in the Weeks bill, and is said to have in mind protection of the Great Lake region and certain western streams where indiscriminate timber cutting has imperiled the watersheds. The proposed amendment would appropriate $40,000,000, dividing it into annual payments ranging from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 until July 1935. Hearings are being held before the sub committee on agriculture, of which Senator Keyes of New Hampshire is chairman. Keyes is also a member of the forestry commission created under the original Weeks act.

The ladies of the Connecticut delegation have taken an active part in recent social affairs. Among them was a tea given by Mrs. Penn, who was assisted by Mrs. Freeman, Mrs. Tilson and Mrs. Glynn. Mrs. Tilson was also honor guest at a large reception given this week by Mrs. Sanders wife of the secretary to the president.

Mrs Tilson, as wife of the floor leader of the house, will give her last At Home on Tuesday the 26th of January. It is understood that Gov. and Mrs. Trumbull will attend the white house reception to be given Thursday on the special invitation of President and Mrs. Coolidge. The reception is in honor of congress.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Edward Dean Adams, the latest recipient of the John Fritz gold medal for engineering achievement, is a New Yorker who is known chiefly for his great constructive and organizing work in finance and railroading. His reputation as a scientist is somewhat overshadowed by his fame as a financier and banker, but it is brilliant enough independently to make him a man of note. Some of his scientific achievements are considered quite as remarkable in their way as are many of his accomplishments in the way of railroad organization and financing. Among other things, he contributed in large measure to the solution of the great engineering problems involved in the development of the waterpower of Niagara Falls. He created the American Cotton Oil company, led in establishing the All-America cables, and has had an important share in many other industrial undertakings.

WORK FOR IDLE HANDS

It was the third time Cassie Cullen had found Jack, her husband, sitting with his head in his hands. Twice she had ignored this strong symptom of mental distress, but now she knelt down beside his chair and put her arms about his shoulders.

"Jack, dearest, I've a plan," she whispered.

He lifted his head, looked at her and smiled doubtfully.

"Say, isn't it tough, Cass?" he said. "I never dreamed things were going like this. They told me that Waymart was the greatest place for steady work that you ever saw. That's why I wanted to come here so bad. Now I've put every cent I've got into this little home—and it's only half paid for at that—and I haven't done a stroke of work all the two months we've been here. I'm getting to the end of my money, Cass. If I don't get a job pretty soon we'll have to give up and go back to Lennox."

Cassie caught her breath. She was determined not to go back to Lennox. She disliked the big, noisy, rough town, and Waymart was so beautiful and quiet. She loved Waymart. But of course if Jack did not get work they would have to do something different. The situation was troublesome, to say the least.

"Jack, you're a dandy carpenter," she said. "I don't see why you can't get work."

"Well, for one thing, I'm butting in against town men, and then everything is so still here in Waymart, Cass. I haven't heard the sound of a hammer since I've been here."

"A firm that has goods to sell creates a demand for them," Cassie said thoughtfully. "You are a carpenter, you want employment. Create a demand for carpenter work, dear."

Jack actually laughed.

"But how?"

Cassie jumped up and stood opposite him, her dark eyes flashing hope to his waiting blue ones. "We've got a little money left. How much?"

"Oh, a hundred, I guess. About enough to carry us along for a month."

"Jack," excitedly, "have you got the courage to take a sporting chance?"

"What do you mean, Cass?"

"This house needs a lot of work done on it. The porch needs building over, the roof needs fixing. Get materials and go to work. Let's take that hundred dollars and fix up this house so that it will put all the other houses on this street to shame. I've been looking them over. Every one of them needs work done on it. Start something, Jack! Create a demand for your work!" Jack sprang up, too, and catching hold of her hands swung them back and forth. "Cass, I can see what you mean. But if I use that hundred dollars, where will I get another? I'm doubtful."

"If you lose that hundred, Jack, we'll give up the house and get back the money we've put into it, and return to Lennox."

"All right, Cass," he said. "It's a bargain. But, mind, I've little faith in your project. Still, you never can tell."

Next day Jack began work on his own house. He began with lack of spirit, but gradually he warmed to his effort. Besides Cassie seemed brimful of enthusiasm. Altogether, Jack was carried along. He began to whistle as he plied saw and hammer.

One noon Jack was downhearted at lunch. "I'm not going to work, Cass," he said. "I've whistled every tune I know, I've told everybody everything I know about the best grade of shingles and gutter strips and quarter rounds, but they don't take hold."

"The house is going to look fine," said Cassie.

"Yes, for some other fellow."

Cassie's lips trembled. "Don't say that, Jack, please don't."

Jack sighed. An hour later as he was at work on the new porch with Cassie beside him passing him nails, as he needed them, a big black limousine came rolling down the street. Old Mrs. MacMullen was taking her daily airing, and today the way led through that particular street.

But Mrs. MacMullen might have come and gone scarcely aware of the Cullen's new porch, had not something just then happened. The car stopped. The young chauffeur sprang out and began to apply first aids. He grew red in the face and sweated while Mrs. MacMullen's impatience gathered volume.

"Jack," Cassie said, "that boy hasn't an idea. Can't you do something? You used to be able to do all sorts of things with that old car we had at Lennox."

Jack jumped off the ladder and went forward. In two minutes he had found the trouble and remedied it.

"What do you mean, Cass?"

"This house needs a lot of work done on it. The porch needs building over, the roof needs fixing. Get materials and go to work. Let's take that hundred dollars and fix up this house so that it will put all the other houses on this street to shame. I've been looking them over. Every one of them needs work done on it. Start

"I guess she'll do all right now, my boy," he said to the grateful young chauffeur, who was rather a small-sized chauffeur for all his imposing livery.

Mrs. MacMullen leaned through the open window.

"You seem to be a clever young man," she said. "I've been studying that porch you're building. Where did you get the design?"

"I made it up," Jack said. "Do you like it?"

"I do. I'm looking for a man to put up a string of houses for me on some new land I'm opening up on the other side of town. If you'll call at my house after 7 tonight, I'd like to talk to you. I am Mrs. MacMullen."

Jack flushed.

"Thank you, Mrs. MacMullen. I will be there promptly," he said.

Before the limousine was out of sight, Jack grabbed Cassie and kissed her in the sight of the whole neighborhood.

"It's come, Cass," he cried, and he told her what Mrs. MacMullen had said, although that was not necessary, for Cassie had listened eagerly to every word.

Jack was gone until 9 o'clock that evening, and the two hours were perhaps the longest that Cassie had ever passed. At last she heard him coming whistling. She ran to open the door. The instant she saw him she knew.

"Oh, Jack! You got the job!"

"Yes." He came in, shut the door, and leaned against it, his eyes shining. "She's a very decided old lady, loves her own way, but she knows what's what. It seems she's quarreled with every carpenter in town and was on the point of sending away for a man. If her car hadn't stopped and given her time to see that porch—and if you hadn't insisted on my building that porch in the first place!"—Detroit News.

From Small Beginnings

Baldassare Galuppi, Italian Composer.

"Oh, Galuppi, Baldassare, here you come with your old music, and here's all the good it brings. What, they lived once thus at Venice, where the merchants were the kings, where St. Mark's is, where the Doges used to wed the sea with rings? • • • Did young people take their pleasure when the sea was warm in May? Balls and masks begun at midnight • • • So Robert Browning wrote about Baldassare Galuppi, the great Italian composer, who lived some hundred years ago in the happy island city of Venice. In his poem "A Toccata of Galuppi" Browning brings vividly to mind the gay, pleasure-loving life of the Italy of Galuppi's day, and speaks of Galuppi as being a part of it all. It was he who wrote the comic operas that delighted the fashionable people of the time, and the cheerful, light-hearted music that fitted in with the people's moods.

But Baldassare Galuppi did not attain his position as chief purveyor of pleasure in a pleasure-loving city without making a long, hard struggle. He had been born in one of the most humble homes in Venice, where money was just sufficient to provide food. The father loved music, and in the hours when he was free from work in his barber shop he sat and played the violin. When plays were enacted at the theatre he played in the orchestra. It amused the barber to see his little son listen eagerly to his music, and so he put the violin into the boy's hands and showed him how to draw the bow. Thus he brought it about that the boy, when still only a child, could play well enough to make the passersby stop and listen.

Baldassare had to help his father in work as well as in pleasure, but he was willing to work is he could get a chance to learn more about music. He was only a boy when he conceived the idea that he could write a musical play, and had the stick-to-itiveness to carry out the idea. Through some of his father's musical and theatrical friends he succeeded in having his play put on the stage. The audience laughed and booed and catcalled their disappointment of the immature music. Another boy might have surrendered and gone back to the barber shop. Not Galuppi. He admitted that he was ignorant, and set to work to study. As a result, he made himself the first musician of the city that had hissed him. By the time he was 23 he was a success, and he wrote opera after opera, providing music and pleasure in abundance, until his death at 78.

Stories That Recall Others

Changing of Picture

What picture was formed in the mind of Howard, aged two, when told his aunt and uncle were parents of twins, is still a mystery. However, a week later, he stood beside his mother looking for the first time at the new twins, he exclaimed in an important tone:

"'Em's no twins, 'em's babies."

A Penny for Your Thoughs

Elmo, likely named for St. Elmo of novel fame, though not much larger than a mamma doll, is six years old and entered school last fall as a beginner. His small size makes his actions appear more amusing and he soon became the center of attraction. He would do some fancy steps which he called dancing and for which he demanded a penny for each performance.

One day the teacher called on him to recite and back came the usual answer to requests, "Gimme a penny, then." The teacher and pupils had a hearty laugh without paying for it.

The official daily weather records, which in Sweden go back 200 years, reveal for the last season a number of astonishing facts. On several occasions in the summer, Sweden was warmer, than Egypt, and the average temperature for July was higher in Stockholm than in Paris. The rainfall was also three times more abundant than usual and yet the number of hours with sunshine came close to the record, held by the tragic year of 1914. The Swedish crop has been remarkably abundant this year and the weather conditions for the harvest favorable.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

The Nation's Laxative

Danny and Nanny make up their minds

Your mind made up to go, why go!
Uncertainty you'll banish so.
—Old Mother Nature.

Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse were probably as badly frightened little folks as ever lived. They had been having such a happy, comfortable winter in Farmer Brown's big barn that they had almost forgotten that there was such a thing as real danger. So, when they caught that glimpse of Shadow the Weasel hunting Robber the Rat or one of the members of his family, the shock was so great that they could hardly believe that their eyes had not deceived them.

"Di-di-did you see him?" chattered Danny when they were once more back in their nest.

"Of course, I di-di-did," chattered Nanny. "D-d-do you suppose he is going to stay here?"

But Danny wasn't supposing anything. It was enough for him that Shadow the Weasel was in the same barn with him. Robber the Rat couldn't get them in their own nest, but Shadow the Weasel could go wherever Danny or Nanny could go, and both knew it. This lovely home (probably you wouldn't have thought it lovely, but they did) was no longer a place of safety. Nanny was for leaving the big barn right away.

"We'd better get out. We'd better get out right now, while Shadow is chasing those Rats," said she.

"But wh-wh-wh-where will we go?" chattered Danny, his little teeth clicking together.

"I don't know, but we'll get right out of here," replied Nanny. "Anywhere else is better than here with Shadow the Weasel about."

But, badly scared as he was, Danny wasn't quite ready to give up that nice home and the comfort of living in that big barn. "We'll wait a while," said he. "We'll first make sure that Shadow is staying here. It may be that he has just run in here and that he doesn't intend to stay. In that case we might run right into him outside. We ought to know what he is going to do before we will decide what we will do."

This was common sense, and Nanny admitted it. So they decided to stay until they could be quite certain that Shadow the Weasel really meant to make the big barn his hunting ground. But you may be sure they didn't go running about as they had been in the habit of doing. They left their snug nest only far enough to be able to keep watch for a glimpse of Shadow. They didn't intend to leave any scent for Shadow's keen little nose to find and follow up. For two days and nights they slept little and ate less. Instead, they spent most of their time worrying and watching. They caught one or two glimpses of Shadow.

But if their eyes told them little, their ears told them much. The Rats in that barn were having a terrible time. They heard the Rats squealing with fear by night and by day. They heard the frightened scampering of little feet, and Danny and Nanny knew just what it meant. They knew that Shadow the Weasel had not left that barn, but was staying there to hunt Rats. So it was that at last Danny and Nanny made up their minds.

"We'd better get out right now, while Shadow is chasing those Rats," said she.

"The sooner we go the better," said Nanny. "Shadow will stay here until there are no Rats left. He will look into every possible hiding place to make sure that not a Rat is left. If we are here he'll find us. The time to go is while the going is good, and it never will be better than right now."

"Yes, my dear," squeaked Danny meekly. "I guess you are right. When shall we start?"

"Didn't I say right now?" said Nanny.

"Yes, my dear," replied Danny. And they started.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

COBB SET NEW RECORD EACH TIME HE ENTERED 1925 GAME

CHICAGO, Jan. 26 (AP)—Every time Ty Cobb participated in a ball game during the 1925 season he established a new record.

He began by besting his own record of the greatest number of games played in by a major leaguer and, as he went along, added others for times at bat, runs scored, and highest lifetime batting average.

When the season started, Cobb held the record for highest lifetime batting average in the American League, with his percentage of .361 for 19 years. At the end of the twentieth year he had gained a trifle by hitting .378.

Cobb did not maintain the average he had set for himself in runs scored, bases stolen, etc., per season. But if not adding to percentages, he was always adding to totals. He has tied Cap Anson's record for batting .300 or better for 20 seasons, but he has this on Anson—Anson hit his three hundreds for 20 years all told, missing two seasons, while Tyrus, 20 seasons have been consecutive.

Cobb began his .300 hitting in 1906. Anson began in 1876 and for fourteen years hit .300 or better, dropped out of the .300 class in '91 and '92, resumed in 1893 and ended his string in 1897.

Other records held by Cobb when the last season opened included total runs scored and total hits made. He held the record for 200 hits per season for nine straight years. He did not add to that, nor to his record of 100 runs a season for nine consecutive years. He did not break the base stealing records during 1925, but he managed to add to his all-time total.

All things come to him who waits—bad luck included.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned; although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 239 M Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

SUSIE AND HER BOY FRIEND TRY THEIR HAND AT LEARNING BRIDGE

Susie is still recuperating from her skating trip of last week and has been initiated into the mysteries of bridge as an indoor sport. She and the boy friend also dined out the other night and she writes regarding her experiences as follows:

Dear Spots Editor:

I has thrown away them pillars but I ain't able to do the Charleston yet with any ease. Theys still a whole flock of blacken blue spots all over my body where me and that Mohegan Park ice had our battle. I guess I can chalk up a victory for them ices all right.

Well seein' how's I ain't able to get out me bein' recooperatin' from iceitis the boy friend has been sharin' my misery with me about all the week. Say didja ever play bridge? If you ever did come on to my house some night with the wife and teach me. I tried to learn the dam game but I guess I must be dumber than I look if sucha thing is possible.

The boy friend comes up the other night with Mamie and her boy friend and as the evening was draggin' along kinda slow Mamie, what knows all them society games 'cause she works for some of them rich folks, says lets play bridge. Well I says I is game providing they ain't no ice under them bridges what I can fall onta. Mamie says, gosh, Susie your igerance is refreshin' and I says you ain't no infant prodigal either, I don't see no medals hangin' on you. Well she gets a deck o' cards and then starts telling me something about honors but I says they ain't no honor in no card game. When I starts playin' with them pasteboards then I ceases bein' friends with everybody and I tend strictly to my knittin'

I thinks I gotta glimmer of how the game goes so we starts playin'. Me and the boy friend is on one side and Mamie and her boso is playin' agin us. Well Mamie bids one in clubs and the boy friend says two hearts an' I ain't goin' to be no piker so I says three dimons and then the boy friend says something else and I is out of it. Four the dummy says Mamie to me and I says so's your old man and whats more you ain't no more of a lady then him. Don't get peeved says Mamie I ain't callin' you names I'se only tellin' you what you is. That sounds like a dirty slap too but I lets it pass without no come back. Then I has to put my cards down on the table all face up so's everybody kin see 'em which ain't fair acordin' to the way I was teached to play cards.

Well I sets back watchin' the boy friend manhandle them pasteboards an' I sure does have a lotta admirance for anybody what can play that game. Then the boy friend says I gotta a slam and I tells him to be careful who he slams 'cause I ain't in no frame a mind to take no sock from nobody. Don't be so dumb says he like he always does. On the next hand I keeps still and dont say nothin' and the boy friend buys the hand and I'm a dummy again. I'se having a fine evening until somebody asks me ain't I got no honors. Right there they over steps and intrudes upon my good nature. Well, that card party broke up right there

They ain't nobody goin' to ask me no personal questions bout my honor 'cause my honors my honor and thats that. I guess I got as much honor as any of them what was playin' cards an' makin' me the dummy all the time. Well I has decided that bridge ain't no game for me yet but I ain't gonna let them have the laff on me 'cause I gonna learn that game if I hafta keep at it all winter. It's bettern skatin anyway.

Say what's all this I hear about some feller or fellers tryin' to have that lunch room up by the station put outa business? The boy friend says he heard that some feller don't like the looks of it so's he complained to them railroad people about it. Gosh he must be kinda narra and I bet he ain't never et in that place or he wouldn't want 'em to move it. Well I hope they don't make that Mr. Hayes get outa there 'cause I like to eat there myself.

Me and the boy friend was down town one night an' he says lets go up to Hayes pullman for supper so I says all right but I ain't perticular. That was before I had et there. Well we goes up and we goes in. Well when I gets inside I sure is surprised. Believe me this ain't no greasy spoon what you finds in some other cities, it's a regular place all nice and clean with a lotta nickel trimming's an' marble counters and everythin'. Well, we ordens up and we seen the food cooked right before our eyes and we knows what goes into it. They aint no chance of givin' us somebody's old left overs or nothin'. Gee, that feed was sure good and believe me if I lived nearer it I eat there moftener. The pie was home made so the feller said and I believe him, 'cause it tasted like them pies what ma makes.

They says they is a petition being signed by folks what wants keep the place going, believe me I looked around till I found one and I put my name on it. They wasn't room enough on the paper, so's I pastes some more on 'cause I sure wanted them railroad folks sees all the folks what signed that paper is in favor of the place they ain't goin' to pay attention to what one feller wants.

That place ain't bad lookin' on the outside at all and it ain't half so bad as some of the buildin's what we have in Norwich what auta be tore down but you don't hear nobody hollerin' about them. Then lookit at Christmas time Mr. Hayes has all colered lights in the trees what stand near his place and them is pretty too. If that feller whats kickin' about that place wants to eat there once and see for himself I'll pay for his dinner any time he wants.

Well I gotta stop now I got that off my bean.

Yours as ever,

SUSIE.

TWO DIVISIONS TO COME UNDER EYE OF COMMISSION

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP)—The bantamweight and light heavyweight title divisions will be reviewed by the state athletic commission tomorrow when challengers will appear asking for recognition under "logical" classifications.

Paul Berlenbach, world's 175 pound champion, and his manager, Dan Hickey, arrived in New York today and immediately sought a conference with Tex Rickard relative to the proposed match with Mike McTigue former light heavyweight champion.

Hickey was not in a mood to accept the former titleholder's challenge. He told Rickard that he would not sign for a match unless other opponents could not be obtained.

"Let McTigue go out and fight Jack Delaney or Eddie Huffman and win and then we'll give him a match," said Hickey.

"I don't figure we can gain any prestige in defeating McTigue but I would like to match Paul with Eddie Huffman."

Rickard and Hickey said, after the conference, that they would seek permission to shelve the proposed McTigue match at the commission meeting tomorrow, and substitute a bout with Huffman.

Jess McMahon, matchmaker at the garden, said today that Bushey Grahan, of Utica, N. Y., has signed a contract for a title match with Charlie (Phil) Rosenberg, world's bantamweight champion, but Rosenberg has not signed. Frankie Genaro inserted himself into the bantamweight picture today. The former American flyweight king, through his manager, said he would appear before the commission tomorrow and challenge Rosenberg through official channels, pointing to his two victories over Graham to strengthen his claims.

DAVIS CUP CONDITIONS GOVERN INDOOR MATCH

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Substantially the same conditions which governed their challenge round battle for the Davis cup last summer will prevail for the indoor team tennis match between France and the United States, February 25 to 27.

The series will include four singles matches and one doubles contest, with William T. Tilden, national champion, and Vincent Richards, Olympic champion, representing America in the singles against Jean Borotra and Rene Lacoste. The Frenchmen must again face both Tilden and Richards whom each extended to five gruelling sets in the Davis cup tourney last summer.

Richards probably will play in the doubles with Francis T. Hunter, third member of the American team, as his partner, while Borotra and Lacoste are likely to team up for France unless Jacques Brugnon, third member of the invading team, is given a chance to compete.

ADMITS BIG BASEBALL DEAL STILL PENDING

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 25.—(AP)—A big baseball deal involving well known players of the New York Yankees and St. Louis Browns is still pending, Miller Huggins, Yankee manager, admitted tonight before he left for the north to attend the annual schedule meetings of the major leagues.

Huggins has been in constant communication with George Sisler and recently spent several days at Miami talking with the manager of the Browns. It is said the trade involves a St. Louis infielder, but a hitch has developed which may result in negotiations being called off.

The deal for Marty McManus, second baseman of the Browns, has been definitely abandoned, Huggins declared.

Miss Ryan was not considered eligible to represent her native land in last season's series because of her long residence abroad but this obstacle has been removed by her place on the ranking list and apparent intention to stay in the United States for some time.

BUSCH FIGHTS FAST AND WINS 8 ROUND DECISION IN LYNN BOUT

Frankie Busch, the favorite Norwich fighter, added another wreath to his laurels Monday night when he won the referee's decision in an eight round bout with John L. Kelly at Lynn, Mass.

Busch went into the ring weighing 176, while his opponent tipped the scales at three pounds more. The Norwich boy lost no time but forced the fighting from the start and the crowd was with him. It was conceded that he had taken every round and when the referee gave Busch the decision, the ringside patrons demonstrated their agreement with the ruling of the official inside the ropes.

The two men were immediately signed for a return match on Feb. 8, which is to be in Boston.

KAPLAN WINS CLOSE BATTLE FROM MURPHY

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Kid Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn., world's featherweight champion, won the judges' decision from Billy Murphy, of Lowell in a ten round bout here tonight. Kaplan weighed 133 pounds and Murphy 135.

Both boxers came out in the first round ready to mix, Kaplan using his left and right and Murphy depending on a right jab followed by a left to the jaw. They followed the same tactics throughout the bout, with Kaplan forcing the fighting most of the way.

It was a close battle, although Kaplan apparently had the lead in five of the 10 rounds, while Murphy took three and two were even. Neither boxer was sent to the mat during the fight and their blows apparently did little damage. The crowd received the judges' verdict with applause.

In the six round semi-final, Eddie Lord of Waterbury, Conn., substituting for Red Cap Wilson of New York, won the judges' decision over Bobbie Mays of New Bedford.

Frank Merna of South Boston won the decision over Jeff Wilson of the U. S. S. Florida in four rounds; Larry Brignolia of Cambridge defeated John Scully of South Boston in four rounds; Harry Foley of Boston defeated Charlie Phippen of Newton in six rounds, and Charles Donovan of Dorchester won the decision over Buddy Jenkins of Lynn in six rounds, in the preliminaries.

CORBETT CLAIMS HE NEVER ISSUED CHALLENGE

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP)—James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion of the world, never issued a challenge that he would fight any man in the world sixty years of age when he himself reached that age.

Corbett revealed this today when asked concerning the challenge hurled at him by E. J. Rankin, seventy-three-year old farmer of Nampa, Idaho.

"I don't know Rankin, never met him and I never made such a foolish challenge," said Corbett, who is now appearing in vaudeville here.

"I have no desire to part the ropes again, even with a 73-year-old farmer. Of course I don't take this seriously, but the whole story is ridiculous and evidently broadcast by someone in search of publicity."

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Forty-four cities in the United States now have public golf courses.

In Australia every schoolboy is taught to swim before he takes up any other branch of sport.

The first dog show of any account, or of which there is any record, was held at Newcastle, England, in 1925.

Jack Dunn, owner and manager of the Baltimore Orioles, is reported to be one of the richest men in baseball.

Bill Tilden, the tennis champion, says he expects to be playing the net game for the next ten years or more.

Prof. Alonzo Stagg, famous coach of the University of Chicago, was a great baseball and football player when at Yale.

Seventeen baseball seasons have bloomed since "Babe" Adams appeared on the mound to pitch his first big league baseball game.

Johnny Coulon, when he held the world's championship bantamweight championship, was always willing to defend his title for a purse of $1,000.

Mike Murphy, the famous college trainer, worked in a New England shoe factory before he became a sprinter and later a coach.

Cyril Quinton is the real name of the boxer who does his fighting under the name of Prisama Joe Gans and he was born in Barbadoes.

Willie Hoppe usually trains for a championship billiard match just as faithfully as any athlete conditions himself for an important contest.

The victory of Ivan Poddubny over Stanislaus Zbyszko puts the giant Russian in line for a match with Joe Stecher for the world's heavyweight wrestling championship.

Mike ("King") Kelly, the famous baseball star of olden days, besides being a great catcher, also had a record of five assists when playing first base for the old Boston National League club.

Stanley Harris, who is reported to be holding out for a $50,000 annual stipend to continue as manager of the Washington American League club, is not yet thirty years of age, having been born at Fort Jervis, N. Y., Nov. 8, 1896. Harris started his professional career with the Pittston club of the Eastern Pennsylvania League in 1915. While he has never ranked among the great players of baseball history, his success as a manager is almost without parallel. During his two years as pilot of the Senators his club has won two league pennants and one world's championship.

WOMEN'S VOTERS LEAGUE HAS NATIONAL PROGRAMME

The proposed 1926-1927 study and legislative programme of the National League of Women Voters was announced Monday by the executive committee of which Miss Belle Sherwin is chairman. Copies of the committee's recommendations based on suggestions from the league's departments of efficiency in government, public welfare in government, and international co-operation to prevent war have been sent to state and local leagues for "comment and criticism, approval or disapproval." Adoption of the programme will be made at the annual convention in St. Louis, April 14-21.

No additions to the present federal legislative programme are recommended although extension of the period of operation of the Sheppard-Towner maternity and infancy act will command the efforts of the league. Support is recommended of measures permitting the United States to take part in international reduction of armaments, and to participate officially in conferences designed to promote international harmony whether called by the United States itself, the league of nations or individual nations.

The steadfast application of the merit system in the civil service, ratification of the child labor amendment and subsequent fixing by congress of minimum standards for the protection of children in industry, and measures looking to the outlawry of war and codification of international law are recommended for continued support. Opposition is declared "to proposals which would make amending the constitution of the United States more difficult than at present."

"Simplification of state administration," for three years a part of the study programme, is now recommended to the states for legislation. Significant additions to the study programme are "federal aid," and under the head of "living costs," the utilization of the hydro-electric resources of the country from the standpoint of public welfare" and of the production and distribution of the necessities of life.

The programme continues to stress removal of legal discriminations against women by specific, not "blanket" legislation, protective legislation for women in industry, the equalization of educational opportunity, preventive measures in the field of social hygiene and delinquency, the direct primary, the shorter ballot and other measures designed to make government at once more efficient and representative.

136 CASES GIVE NORWICH THE LEAD IN MEASLES

HARTFORD, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Exceeding all previous high marks during the present epidemic, measles cases in the state last week reached a total of 775, according to reports to the state department of health. This was 300 more than during the previous week. Norwich now leads the cities of the state in the number of cases, 136 being reported from there. The total is still high at Bridgeport, where the prevalency had been greatest, the new cases there being 112.

Hartford reported fifty four cases last week. Other cities and towns reporting more than ten cases were: Fairfield 49, Greenwich 28, Norwalk 23, Stamford 66 Glastonbury 16, Manchester 22, Wethersfield 16, Windsor 18, Middletown 38, East Haven 18, Meriden 20, Milford 16, New Haven 19, Waterbury 39, Colchester 20. The epidemic still retains a mild form, no deaths from the disease having been reported thus far.

ROTARIANS FATHER GIRL WHO IS PROSPECTIVE OPERA STAR

WITCHITA, Kan. Jan. 25. (AP)—Three years ago a fourteen-year-old girl singing in the choir of a Wichita church, Kathleen Kersting today is hailed one of the "discoveries" of modern opera. She is completing her musical education in Europe, with Mme. Emma Calve, under the guardianship of the Wichita Rotary Club.

Calve heard Kathleen sing while the She consented to a newspaperman's request to introduce the girl and was so charmed by the impromptu recital that she insisted Kathleen should accompany her on her return to France.

Kathleen's father is a farmer, but the family invested all their humble holdings in the training which Calve said the girl should have abroad. Two years of study in France and Italy, where a new world opened out before the little Kansas girl under the motherly care of Madame, and the little fortune was gone. The Kerstings had opened a rooming house to help obtain funds. Kathleen came home last winter to sing in concert but only a few hundred dollars were gotten together.

Then the Wichita Rotary Club learned of the situation and came to Kathleen's aid. In the twinkling, $5,000 was raised, and Kathleen went back to France and to the jealous care of her internationally known tutor. With the other of Calve's youthful proteges, the girl has studied the music and art of the continent.

Recently she appeared in informal recitals where her voice was acclaimed by several of the great French critics as that of Calve, at the height of her career. The critical audience said one of those present, little anticipated what was in store for them. But as Kathleen sang, the attitude changed from one of carer interest to one of frank and charmed amazement. Calve stood below her watching every movement. Kathleen responded to encores until Calve refused to let her sing more.

Calve, herself, says that within five years, Kathleen will be known as one of "the great voices."

FERTILE VALLEY OF WEST MAY REVERT TO A DESERT

BISHOP, Cal., Jan. 25—(AP)—Owens Valley, cradled on the eastern slope of the high Sierras, once a fertile, productive region where cattle roamed its grassy floor and fruits and grains grew in abundance, is threatened with a return to the desert wastes from which hardy pioneers reclaimed it more than half a century ago.

Water, the perennial point of controversy in the west, formerly flowed through Owens Valley between the banks of Owens river and into canals and ditches dug by the early settlers to irrigate the fields and orchards. Now it has been diverted into the Los Angeles aqueduct to supply the needs of the city, 225 miles southward.

Citizens of the valley declare the city used arbitrary methods to get the water, when, in 1905, an agent, alleged to have been disguised as a federal official, entered the region and made filings along the Owens river for some 40 miles. His filings included storage rights which the valley people had given back to the government in exchange for what they understood to be a project to reclaim 150,000 acres of the desert stretches.

The agent, they say, later proved to be employed by the city of Los Angeles. Instead of the reclamation project, the city announced plans to build an aqueduct and carry the water southward.

During the four years of drought that followed the first land acquisition the city negotiated with ranchers for rights along canals and ditches, and soon obtained virtual control of one of the larger canal systems. Its waters were diverted into the aqueduct, leaving adjoining ranches arid.

Resentment, generated through the years, found a climax the night of May 21, 1924, when 40 or 50 raiders dynamited the huge concrete headgates, near the first large reservoir at Haiwee. No arrests were made, however, and the explosive, deftly placed, failed to damage the aqueduct materially. Investigators believed it an act of warning rather than a move to cripple the water system.

Late in November of the same year an open demonstration of protest was made when scores of the ranchers seized the Alabama waste gates, 60 miles south of Bishop, and opened them, allowing the stream to flow into the parched bed of the Owens river.

Old Mills Electrified

The sentimental battle waged by old residents of Holland to have their historic windmills preserved, because modern machinery was making such inroads has won out. A number of old mills in Holland, instead of being torn down and replaced by modern machinery, will be retained in their present appearance, but electrified so that they may be made more efficient. The promoters of the electrification project gave in to the petitioners when it was brought to their attention that the windmills were beautiful relics of old Holland.

Norwich Athletic Club Dance

The Norwich Athletic club held a dance last Saturday evening at Fulaski hall with about 100 couples attending, music being furnished by Thumme orchestra. Mr. Mitchell sang some of the dance numbers, which scored a hit.

In his winning ways is found the proof of a good bluffer.

MLLE LENGLEN ONLY OBSTACLE NOW BETWEEN MISS WILLS AND THE TITLE

CANNES, France, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Suzanne Lenglen alone remains between Helen Wills and tennis championship of France. The California girl today, after a strenuous battle in the finals of the metropole tournament, defeated Mlle. Vlasto, who ranks No. 2 among the women tennis players of France, by a score of 6-3, 7-5. On Saturday she defeated Mlle. Contoslavos, ranking No. 3. She now has no other opponent worthy of her racquet until she meets the mighty Suzanne.

Miss Wills' victory was easier than the score indicates; she played well within her best form, letting the French girl lead the attack until threatened, then herself applying a little more skill and power and winning with plenty in reserve.

Miss Wills won the first two games; then her opponent evened matters, later bringing the score to 3-all, but the American champion ran out three games and won the set.

Things looked dark for the Californian in the second set, with Mlle Vlasto leading 5-2. Then again superior coolness and fighting spirit were revealed and Miss Wills took four games, the set and the match.

It was thought by experts that Miss Wills made a mistake in playing exclusively to her opponent's backhand, which she believed to be as weak as in 1924, when the American girl won over her in the Olympics. She showed her adaptable qualities, however, later by smashing every ball to the baseline corners and running Mlle Vlasto weary. The French player was so tired after the match that she was unable to go on with Mlle. Lenglen in the finals of the women's doubles, and she requested that this be postponed until tomorrow.

Jacques Brugnon, France, who had defeated G. H. Mayes in the finals of the men's singles, 3-6, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1, 6-1, also begged to be excused for the mixed doubles. The spectators, deprived of seeing the great Lenglen play, staged a miniature riot and demanded their money back.

The summary of the point score shows that Miss Wills played an extremely smart second set, beating Mlle. Vlasto time and time again with unreturnable placements. In spite of the close score, this is considered the best match Miss Wills has played on the Riviera.

Still nothing is heard from the Atlantic and fears are being held for the safety of the passengers. More hopeful people argue that the ship has probably put back to the Azores, but others believe she has run out of coal and is beating her course under sail.

The owners of Lady Suffolk purchased her 15 years ago for $342, out of a butcher's cart, and has netted $40,000 out of her racing. She is 18 years old and valued now at $5,000.

Thursday, January 22, 1851—The second annual ball of Hudson Engine company No. 1, came off Wednesday night at Uncas hall and was one of the most elegant and pleasant affairs of the kind that has ever been held in the city, claimed to equal even the Taylor ball, held some years ago.

Proposals are being made to construct a railroad across Canada from Halifax to the Pacific, using 20,000 convicts to do the ground work. It is estimated that this new road will shorten the distance from England to China, by 1,500 miles over the shortest route across the United States.

An effort is being made to raise the Maid of the Mist, the little steamer which sank a few days ago. It is alleged that she is little damaged and will be back on the run as usual next spring.

Saturday, January 25, 1851—No word comes from the steamer Atlantic and a list of her passengers has been secured in case accident has befallen her. She carried twenty-seven passengers besides her crew, no eastern Connecticut people being listed among them.

Business is beginning to pick up again in England but this country still feels the slump, nearly one third of our manufacturing plants still being closed down for lack of business.

An appeal has been made to the citizens of this country to put a stop to the importations from foreign countries, which now far exceed our own exports. It is figured that over $150,000,000 of United States money, state, city and corporation bonds are held in Europe as payment of balance of trade against us. This must immediately stop and every endeavor is to be made to swing the trade to the opposite side of the ledger.

SCHALL CASE SETTLED BY $10 FINE IN CITY COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 28—Charles E. Schall, a real estate speculator, was fined $10 in the police court this morning. This was his lucky day, in that he was not prosecuted on the charges made against him by Policeman Clarence Martin, who took Schall into custody a week ago, when the officer alleged Schall was operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. The policeman also charged that Schall resisted him in the performance of his duties. A contention followed in which Schall received a blow from the billy-jack that Officer Martin carried. Schall's head was opened up by the blow and he has not since been able to appear in court. When Schall was presented in court this morning he was accused of having passed the corner of Bank and State street and to have disregarded the signals given him by Policeman Martin. He was represented by an attorney and demurred to the complaint, the prosecutor making a statement to the court as to the case. He said that Drs. Feeney and Satti, who saw Schall in thirty and forty-five minutes after the arrest, respectively, declared that he was not under the influence of anything of more than one-half of one per cent. alcoholic content, so that a case could probably not be made out against the accused on that charge. As to the resistance of the officer, there was some doubt about the testimony due to that, so the prosecutor had decided to present Schall on the charge as was laid before the court. The prosecutor said the affair was most unfortunate and he gave his opinion that it would not be repeated. On that statement the defendant was overruled and Schall was released on the payment of a fine and the costs of his trial.

Vivian E. Quick was not slow when he drove from Crystal avenue to Main street. He was accused in court today of having crowded the car of F. W. Bingham, which was coming down Main street, and the result was a collision. State Policeman Skalowski and Georgas were at hand and Quick, who is a chief petty officer, was ordered into court. Quick was represented by counsel, was claimed to have been the operator of a car during twelve years and never to have had an accident. He is understood to have arranged for paying the damage to the Bingham car. He was fined $ dollar.

Sebastian Muscarella was to have answered for abuse of his wife, an offense he committed some weeks ago, but since then things have been so harmonious in the Muscarella home that the case did not get to a tryout today. It was continued till the 3rd of April, that it may be established that peace and good will are to prevail in the future.

Sheriff Sidney A. Brown took a couple of prisoners who were sentenced to the reformatory at Cheshire to that institution from the jail today. The convicts are Elmer Buddington, aged 17, of Groton, and Wilfred Porter, of Norwich. Each was sentenced for statutory burglary by the superior court at Norwich.

Mrs. B. Ferry, of Englehart, Ont., today requested the New London police to determine whether Mrs. F. F. uncle, Charles Hopkins Parsons, about 83, and a carpenter was residing in New London. Parsons, from whom his niece has not heard in many years, is not known to the police, neither does his name appear in the city directory.

The funeral of Ralph O. Bump, former employe of The F. H. & A. H. Channell Co., was held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at 63 Washington street, where services were conducted by Rev. Horatio J. Chase, pastor of the Montauk avenue Baptist church. The bearers were William Babcock, Herbert Lyons, George Latham, Richard Bingham, Richard McKiernan, and Elmer Olsen. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

A number of members of the Masonic fraternity went to Norwich this evening to attend the Consistory meeting.

A New London man who does not support his family has left here and located in Pennsylvania, but that will not keep him from prosecution to force him to support his wife and children.

Montauk avenue is showing the effects of wear upon the highway so that before the winter has passed repairs to the street surface will be imperative. That is one of the highways that needs to be cemented or laid with asphalt at the earliest chance to do the work.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the operators' licenses of John Bartolucci, 24 East street; Thomas Murphy, 29 Tilley street, and Rudolph Gulbe 71 Mill street, recently suspended following the cars they were driving being in collision, with other cars, to be returned to the owners.

Manuel Silva, this city, was arraigned before Deputy Judge Frederick W. Jacques in the Waterford town court this evening charged with violation of the automobile laws in parking his automobile alongside the highway without lights displayed, which is a practice much in vogue by the so-called petting parties that have become popular in Waterford. Silva pleaded guilty and a fine of $5 and costs was imposed. Silva, who had been warned twice for this practice was taken into custody Saturday night by Constable F. L. Peabody.

Edward J. Kelley, 221 Bank street, in walking to his home late Saturday night fell on the sidewalk when but a short distance from his abode and sustained a lacerated scalp and forehead. Instead of summoning a physician, Kelley walked to Lawrence hospital, where the wounds were dressed. The victim will be under treatment at the institution but a short time.

Antoni Grosskiewicz, 33, employed at the Plant estate on part time, as a watchman and teamster, died suddenly in his room, 1 Warner street, Groton, Sunday. He is survived by relatives in Poland. Death was caused by heart disease. Mr. Grosskiewicz was seized without warning and expired before a physician could be summoned.

The funeral of Frank E. Dahlberg, former employe of the New London Ship & Engine company, who died suddenly of heart disease at his home in Groton several days ago, was held at 15 Masonic street Saturday afternoon, the services being conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of the Groton Heights Baptist church, assisted by Herbert MacKenzie and John Rankin, former intimate acquaintances of Mr. Dahlberg. Interment was in Maplewood cemetery, Norwich.

Albert Baldwin, Bank street, underwent an operation this forenoon at the Lawrence hospital.

Charles H. Palmer, Mystic, was arraigned on continuance in the Groton town court this morning charged with passing a worthless check. In the absence of a witness of the state another continuance of a week was ordered by Judge Cornelius C. Costello. Edward A. Bliven, Mystic, who had qualified on Palmer's bond of $1,000 when the accused was arrested a week ago by State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh, today withdrew as bondsman. As a result Palmer was paroled in the custody of his attorney.

Palmer it is alleged, passed a worthless check in the sum of $49.46 last November with the Hartford Battery Mfg. Co., Milldale, this state. When the Milldale company could not secure payment of the amount represented by the face of the check, complaint was made to the Groton authorities and Palmer's arrest followed.

The case of Roy Abate, Groton, charged with violation of the automobile law in failing to grant right of way, resulted in Abate pleading guilty and a fine of $5 and costs was imposed, but Judge Costello ordered both the fine and costs, other than $5.75, the amount of officer's fees and record fee, remitted.

Cornelius P. Barry, superintendent of the Groton post office, who has been confined to his home, Pleasant street, New London, by illness several weeks, resumed his duties today. Another member of the post office staff, Carrier Lawrence Jordan, Thames street, Groton, is confined to his home by illness.

CITY COUNCIL VOTES MANY STREET CHANGES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 28—The city council held a meeting of an hour's duration this evening at which streets, sewers, lighting, the widening of highways and the extension of streets were the chief subjects, although the purchase of fire apparatus for the Pequot Hose company received consideration. In the latter matter the Pequot company sent in a request adopted by the company in meeting assembled, expressing a preference for the Ahrens-Fox apparatus when the city should buy new apparatus as proposed. The action taken in a similar matter when apparatus was bought for the Konomoc company was cited as a precedent for gratifying the wish of the Pequot company, as the Konomocs obtained the apparatus they desired in the purchase of a Seagraves machine. Councilor Streeter favored giving the Pequots what they desired in apparatus, and was particular to state that when bids are asked for that the Ahrens-Fox company shall not be excluded from bidding.

The council voted to go ahead and widen Church street from the west curbing on Main street to the east curbing on Huntington street, to establish storm drains, to remove trees, reset curbing and lay sewers and manholes and do all else that is desirable in the matter of widening the street. A hearing on the proposed widening, etc., is to be held on the 8th of February.

The council voted to enter into an agreement with the Connecticut Power company for the lighting of the city at a cost of $46,000 for the year. Councilor Scott announced that some changes had been made in the proposed contract, which was the suggestion of the power company, and, after provision had been made at the suggestion of the director of law, regarding rebates for failure to light, the contract was agreed upon. Councilor May moved for what he called a "white way" on Montauk avenue, from Bank street to Lawrence hospital. The city manager alluded to the plan as "boulevard lighting" and said that Montauk avenue would adapt itself to the plan nicely. He said there was probably some $800 appropriated, which could be used for the purpose. He also said that he desired to place some six or eight other lights and that, too, could be taken care of. The matter was referred to the city manager and the committee on public safety.

The council took up the matter of sewering the entire western section of the city at Broad street, Coleman, Learned, Cedar Grove avenue and contiguous streets and voted to have plans and surveys made for it. The plan will embrace some 8,000 to 9,000 feet of sewer.

Councilor Streeter held that the council had no right to lay storm drains unless the city could collect for the work done. He alone voted against the proposition.

The council voted to sewer Guthrie place for a distance of 570 feet. The Pequot Realty company property will be the only land affected and will pay the entire cost of construction.

The extension of Converse place, to Montauk avenue, was discussed, but not disposed of. The cost will be $2,400. Harry Beebe, Franklin Bailey and Silas Maxson, Jr., are the owners of the property affected. They made proposals as to exemption from expense for sidewalk laying, and street improvements and offered to deed land to the city conditionally. It was shown that while Mr. Maxson was entitled to some consideration in this respect, because a sewer assessment had been paid upon land he now owns, the other property owners did not appear to be in the same situation. So the matter was referred to committee on public works. Councilor Whiton asked that Harris court should also be reported on at the same time. The city manager stated that he had reported on that matter and he was not inclined to recommend the extension of that court. He is again to report on the subject now. Councilor Streeter reported that property owners complained to him that there was a partially finished garage on that court and they desired that it should be removed to the rear of the land of the owner. It was represented that the owner had a sort of wandering right to put the garage at different places on his land, but that was shown to be only a dream and that no such authority was ever given or could be given by the council. The mayor directed the complainants to take the matter up with the director at law.

A petition was received asking for restriction of auto parking on Meridian street to thirty minutes. That was referred to the city manager, who is authorized to regulate, by ordinance, the time of parking as he sees fit.

The number of building applications were few and included but one new building—a two-story cottage on Ocean avenue and Pacific street. The other applications were for alterations and for verandahs and windows.

A contract for painting the Ockford House house was awarded to Provost and Crystal at $218. The bids varied from that amount to $425.

Coming to the Palace Thursday

In her new Paramount starring picture, "A Woman of the World," which opens at the Rialto next Sunday, Pola Negri introduces Parisian styles that smartly dressed women will affect next fall.

She also sets the trend that fashion will decree in jewelry.

Very wide bracelets are the new order. Jewels are correct with anything in wear for women under the evolving style regime. Miss Negri wears seven bracelets on her left arm and one on her right arm with the satin evening gown. She also wears a pearl and diamond plaque suspended from a chain of marquis shaped diamonds, a marquis shaped diamond solitaire of fifty-nine carats, two other solitaires of forty and twenty-eight carats respectively, and two huge pearl solitaires. These are her own jewels and are valued at a great figure.

Palace Theatre

It's a fine program at the Palace the first half of the week. The four acts are all good. The Three Alante Bros., offer one of the neatest novelty acts seen at this theatre for some time. Wright and Detrick are on the same par with Vardo and Knoll who played last week. A great singing team, Moss and Moss are anything but mossy. A classy team with the woman causes many signs of envy from the feminine part of the audience with her canary gown. They're out there to get laughs and they do it. Billys Grohs and his company of four offer a howling skit in musical comedy fashion entitled Oh, You Flirt. It's a fast show with plenty of good singing and plenty of comedy. Rudolph Valentino in The Eagle is drawing capacity houses. It's the first good picture Valentino has been in for some time and the public every where is showing that they still admire the Sheik if he is given a story where he can display his talents.

Bread Theatre.

If you have a weak heart, stay away from the Breed theatre Wednesday and Thursday. Some of the thrills in the current picture are liable to overtax it, and, if they don't, you're apt to laugh yourself sick.

Side-splitting comedy combined with such pseudo dramatic situations as thousands of cattle stampeding through the downtown section of a large city and a gun battle between rival cowboy factions in a train holdup, go to make up Buster Keaton's latest and greatest picture, Go West.

The frozen-faced farceur romps through the reels of screeningly funny situations, revolving around a young man who starts out to see the world via the boxcar route, in the inimitable Keatonesque manner. Go West unquestionably is Buster's most hilarious photoplay.

Portraying the young drifter who makes up in nerve what he lacks in personality, the comedian blunders into all sorts of mirthful predicaments.

As a cowboy he does everything wrong, but finally saves the rich rancher's cattle, wins the girl and becomes the hero of the countryside. Unloading thousands of steers from a train all by himself and driving the rampageous beasts through a panic-stricken city to the stockyards is one of Keaton's stunts. Go West had yesterday's audience rocking with laughter from the first scene to the final fade-out.

Buster is supported by an able cast. Kathleen Myers makes a charming ranch queen. "Brown Eyes," the comedian's bovine companion, proves she is entitled to rank with the screen's outstanding animal stars.

Joseph M. Schenck produced Go West for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release.

John Barrymore

now playing at Warner's Theatre, Broadway and Fifty-second street, New York, in at prices ranging from fifty cents to two dollars, is the sensation of New York. The critics predict that it will play all through the summer.

THE SEA BEAST

IT'S COMING TO NORWICH SOON.

Women's Handicap

is ended this new way of solving oldest hygienic problem; gives true protection—discards like tissue

THERE is a new way in women's hygiene that ends the insecurity of old-time "sanitary pads" and their unhappy days.

Eight in 10 better-class women now use "KOTEX."

Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads.

Deodorizes, thus ending ALL danger of offending.

Obtainable at all drug and department stores simply by saying "KOTEX." You ask for it without hesitancy.

Costs only a few cents. Proves old way a needless risk. 12 in a package. In fairness to yourself, try it.

KOTEX

No laundry. Absorbs like cloth

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on any aching corn, callus or "pardner" on bottom of foot. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove very hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Relieve the pain and tightness by rubbing the chest freely with BAUME BENGUE (Bo-Gay). Its penetrating warmth will stimulate the circulation and quickly help to relieve the congestion. Bo-Gay is wonderful for every relieved pain of nerves or muscles. Every drop guaranteed. Keeps in any climate. Get the original

COMPENSATION AWARD FOR VOLUNTOWN MAN'S CHILDREN

An award of workmen's compensation has been made by Commissioner J. J. Donohue for the benefit of the two minor children of the late Alfred Gravelin of Voluntown, who died July 19, 1925. He was injured by a fall against machinery at the Briggs Manufacturing Co. mill at Voluntown and died at Uncas-on-Thames ten days after he had been removed from the Backus hospital to the sanatorium. A compromise agreement was reached on the claim on Nov. 30, 1925, but as Gravelin's widow, the mother of the children, had re-married on Oct. 12, her name now being Mrs. Charles Augustus Miller, the compensation claim is to be paid through the maternal grandmother of the children, Mrs. Amy Alice Dawley, their natural guardian.

A compensation award of $1,000 is made, $100 of which is to go towards funeral expenses and $900 to be placed in the bank by the grandmother for the benefit of the children. A doctor's bill which has not yet been presented is not included in this settlement.

The officers elected are: President, Mrs. Theresa O'Neill; vice president, Mrs. Moses Berthiaume; secretary, Miss Mary O'Neill, treasurer, Miss Mary Moran. The various committee were appointed for the year.

FOOD ISSUES WERE ACTIVE

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—(AP)—Pool operations in a few industrial specialties, particularly in the food group, featured today's stock market. The general list failed to make much progress in either direction and the volume of trading, which fell below 1,000,000 shares, was the smallest of any full session this year.

The day's news developments were mixed in character. Money rates were relatively easy and the recent drastic reduction in brokers' loans regarded as a favorable factor, some uneasiness was felt, however, because of the easing tendency of steel, iron and copper prices and the continued absence of public participation.

Buying of the food issues was based on unconfirmed rumors of capital splitups and higher dividends. United Fruit made a sensational gain of 19 points by touching 250, California Packing soared 13 3-4 points to 159 3-4, and Postum Cereal jumped 10 1-2 points to 119, the first two establishing the highest prices ever recorded. Sugar shares also continued to respond to reports that plans were under way for the stabilization of the industry, and to stiffening commodity prices.

Commodity markets were featureless. Wheat futures sold off at the opening on favorable weather reports from the winter wheat belt and increased supplies of the commodity afloat, but later rallied and closed a cent or more a bushel higher on short covering inspired by the reported reduction in the visible supply. Active cotton options showed little or no change. Raw sugar was slightly firmer and the coffee market was irregular.

In the stock market, professional traders showed a tendency to await the outcome of the meeting of United States Steel Corporation directors tomorrow, before extending their commitments. United States Steel closed fractionally lower at 134 1-4, after selling a point above that figure. Baldwin, American Can and many other standard industrials showed only fractional changes.

A jump of over five points in Jordan Motors, based on unconfirmed rumors of a merger of that company with Dodge Brothers or Hudson, brought about rather active short covering in some of the other motors. General Motors, Hudson and Mack Truck closing a point or so higher.

American Smelting soared over six points to 137 7-8 despite reports of a lessened demand for the red metal. Good buying also was noted in Beech-nut Packing, J. I. Case, International Cement, National Biscuit and Radio Corporation, all of which closed two or more points higher. United States Cast Iron Pipe broke 4 points on a few sales.

Speculative interest in the rails was divided between the eastern coalers, which improved on the announcement that the anthracite peace conference would be resumed in Philadelphia tomorrow, and some of the southwestern carrier which were strong on merger reports.

Call money held at four per cent., all day. Time money rates softened slightly, some of the shorter maturities being available as low as 4 5-8 as against 4 3-4 last week. Prime commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Demand sterling was slightly firmer around 4.85 11-16, but most of the other foreign currencies were only slightly reactionary. French francs sagged over three points to around 3.71 cents.

ANTI-SALOON SPEAKER TELLS OF PROHIBITION CONDITIONS IN STATE

Under the auspices of the Connecticut Anti-Saloon League a complimentary luncheon was served at the Wauregan hotel to about 70 Norwich people Monday at noon. The purpose of the gathering was to discuss prohibition conditions in the state.

Rev. Myron E. Genter, Norwich district superintendent of the Methodist church, presided and introduced the speaker who was Ernest Y. Claypool, superintendent of the Connecticut Anti-Saloon league. Dr. S. Turner Foster of New Haven, who was to have been a speaker was unable to be present.

Following the address by Mr. Claypool, he offered to answer questions from his audience and the meeting was continued for about an hour longer while he gave answers to many who remained to question him. No action was taken by the meeting.

In his address Superintendent Claypool said that while the legalized saloon is gone, there is no question but what there are saloons right in Norwich and vicinity. Dr. Claypool went on to say that the people put in jail may be presumed to have a somewhat serious crime charged against them. The number jailed will be a not unreasonable index of the increase or decrease of actual crime. According to the reports of the county commissioners of the state of Connecticut, there were in the year 1899, 87 people out of every ten thousand in the state put in jail. During the five years from 1900 to 1904, 446 out of every ten thousand people went to jail, 89 each year. During the five years between 1905 and 1909, 478, or 95 each year were put in jail. During the next five years from 1910 to 1914, the numbers were practically the same, 474 total. For each ten thousand population during the five years from 1915 to 1919, 480 people, or 96 each year were in jail. The years of the war are included in this group and in 1917, 15,553 people were put in jail. This is twice the number in jail in 1899, but with the increase of population it is not nearly twice in proportion. This group of five years also includes 1919 when the total number in jail dropped to 7,941. From 1920 to 1924 inclusive there were reported 32,519, as against 62,203 in the preceding five years. For this last five years the proportion is 322 for each ten thousand people, or 44 for each year. It will be noticed that from 1905 to 1919 the proportion of the total population of Connecticut put in jail was constant, being 95 or 96 for each ten thousand people, dropping to 44 for the prohibition years.

In Connecticut deaths from alcoholism run from 1910 for each 100,000 population, 7.7; 6.6; 7.7, 8.6, 4.9, 5.7, 8.3, 9.6, the last in 1918. The Connecticut average in pre-prohibition days was 7.4. Beginning with 1919 they are 1.8, 1, 1.6, 1.9, 2.9. The average is 2.04. This is a saving in Connecticut of 70 deaths from alcoholism. With 110,000,000 people in the country there are 110,000 groups of 100 each. By the figure above it will be seen that the reduction of deaths in the United States in the average of the first five years of prohibition as compared with the eight pre-prohibition years (14 minus 2.4 equals 1.6 per thousand) 176,000 each year or 880,000 in the five years. For Connecticut this means for each year a saving of 2400 lives or 12,000 in the five years.

I reiterate that this is not all due to prohibition, but the coincidence of the remarkable and country wide drop in the death rates at the time of the coming into force of prohibition entitles prohibition to credit as a direct and indirect cause of a large part of this saving of human life.

The speaker said he agreed with the giving of credit to the various organizations and laws which work for instruction in health preservation, but denied that the work of these organizations is sufficient to explain a sudden change in public health and a sudden decrease in deaths. The reduction of disease and death by these agencies would be gradual, while a sudden and continued reduction, coincident with an event which is universally acknowledged to have some relation to health argues that here somewhat of cause and effect.

"During eight years from 1910 to 1917 there were in the United States registration area an average of 14 deaths each year for each 1000 of population. The lowest rate was in 1915 when 13.5 deaths occurred for each 1000 and the highest in 1916 when the rate was 14.9. During the years from 1919 to 1923 the average was 12.4 with the highest 12.8 in 1919 and the lowest 11.6 in 1921. This is a reduction of one in nine. The reduction is co-incident with the coming of prohibition. This means for Connecticut the saving of 12,000 lives. Some part of this, he said, is undoubtedly due to prohibition.

"For each 100,000 thousand of Connecticut's population there were reported during the pre-prohibition years from 1910 to 1918 an average of 7.4 deaths from alcoholism. During the prohibition years from 1919 to 1923 the average was 2 per 100,000 population as deaths from alcoholism."

DISRAELI PICTURE WITH ADDRESS AT Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. gymnasium was filled Sunday afternoon at the 3:30 service. The opening exercises consisted of singing by the congregation, scripture reading, prayer and a vocal solo by Hugh Kinder, who also furnished music for the service. The feature, a moving picture, "George Arliss in Disraeli" was shown much to the satisfaction and profit of the large audience; it was a really historical picture and made its own good impression.

Disraeli the great premier of England, was portrayed interestingly as he grappled with the problems of state; particularly touching was the affection manifested between himself and his faithful wife, who was evidently a real helpmeet through all of the trials and troubles of his political life.

Between the reels Secretary Edwin Hill made a brief talk, and spoke in part as follows:

"However we may differ with this great statesman, we are all convinced that he did with all of his powers the things that he believed he should do and he was true to the injunction, "whatsoever ye do, do with thy might." Disraeli was perhaps the greatest Hebrew who ever sat in the British parliament. There are those who are too apt to say, "O he is only a Jew," but we do injustice to cast reflection, for many of the Hebrew race are most worthy citizens. There are Gentiles who have the commonly called Jew spirit. Disraeli and Gladstone were strong opponents in the English parliament, and the former at times won the victory over the latter in debate. Gladstone was one of the finest Christian statesman never known; he found time to worship his God, and at times between the sessions of parliament he visited the sick and ministered unto the.... He do well to emulate his example, and thus follow the leading of the great Christ who came "not to be ministered unto but to minister," and finally gave his life for humanity on the cross. There are many who need our help and sympathy, and may God help us to be of service to them.

Boy's Service at Y. M. C. A.

At the local Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon at 2:15 a good number of boys assembled to see uplifting moving pictures and listen to a timely talk by Emery H. Davis, the "Y" boys secretary. Both the pictures and the talk greatly interested the boys and the meeting was made attractive by the music furnished by Hugh Kindter. These meetings will probably be a weekly feature at the Y. M. C. A. for the coming months. They afford a real opportunity for the boys of the city to spend a profitable hour of genuine uplift.

NEW SCOUT EXECUTIVE COMING HERE SATURDAY

Frederick J. Bielefield, Jr., of Middletown has been appointed scout executive in this city as successor to Scout Executive Frederick A. Benton, resigned. According to an announcement made Monday by E. V. Roes, president of the Norwich Coundil of Boy Scouts, Mr. Bielefield will take charge of the scout work here Saturday, Mr. Benton's resignation was effective March 1st, but at his request, he has been given a month's leave of absence, and so will relinquish his duties here February 1st.

Mr. Bielefield is a native of Middletown, 26 years of age and single. A graduate of Middletown high school attended Wesleyan University for two years. He is a member of the Congregational church and has been secretary and treasurer of the Sunday school of his church. For three years he was a scout, four years an assistant scout master, two years a scout master and a medal badge examiner. He is a graduate of the Scout executive school in New York city. He comes to Norwich with the highest of recommendation and for the past year and a half has been associated with Scout Executive Fowler of Middletown as volunteer assistant. During this time the number of scouts in Middletown has been increased from 30 to a present enrollment actively working of over 500 scouts.

The National Scout headquarters rates Mr. Bielefield as very good as to character, unselfish service, loyalty, honesty, high standing in his community, splendid personality, high in cleanliness, very adaptable under all circumstances, initiative in his ideas, full of energy, has great perseverance, good judgment and tact, full of tolerance and very dependable.

Writing to President Ross, Scout Executive Fowler of Middletown says: "Fred is in the work because his heart is in it, is absolutely honest and sincere; a hard plugger, a good organizer and has a generous contribution to make to the future program of scouting in general."

Mr. Bielefield is an ex-service man, having served in the aviation corps and later in the infantry during the war. He is experienced in farming, fire warden work, scout camp conducting, swimming and in first aid. He is an enthusiast over fishing and canoeing and spends much of his time hunting animal life with a camera. He has organized and conducted his own camp for the past eight years. Norwich is indeed very fortunate in securing the services of a man the calibre of Mr. Bielefield. There is no doubt in the minds of those having scouting in Norwich in charge but that Scout Executive Bielefield will take hold of the local work with a vim. He will also be welcomed in other lines of work in this community and no doubt will be ready and willing to lend a helping hand wherever desired.

BOUNDARY LINE CASE TRIAL IN COMMON PLEAS

The case of Henry J. Howard of 26 Walden avenue, New London against Michael J. Murphy of that city, in which an injunction restraining the defendant from entering his property and also damages of $500, was on trial before Judge Charles B. Waller in the court of common pleas in New London Monday.

Attorney Thomas E. Troland appeared for the plaintiff, while Attorney Morris Lubchansky represented the defendant.

The suit arises over a boundary between Howard's property and that of Murphy, the plaintiff alleging that the defendant unlawfully entered upon his land and tore up the boundary posts and that Murphy erected posts upon the land of the plaintiff and extended a chicken coop from his own land to the land belonging to Howard.

The papers allege that on Dec. 5, 1924, the plaintiff had his land surveyed and caused markers to be placed, indicating the boundary and that on Dec. 6, these markers were removed by the defendant. The complaint also alleges that on Dec. 13, 1924, the defendant entered his land and tore down a boundary post and threw it upon the land of the plaintiff, breaking down shrubbery and that the defendant threw stones from a wall and shoveled dirt into the yard of the plaintiff and also trampled on the shrubbery in the plaintiff's premises.

The defendant leaves the allegations of the boundary lines to be proved by the plaintiff and denies the other allegations.

Among the witnesses summoned were Maj. Gen. Morris B. Payne, architect and engineer, George K. Crandall, civil engineer, who told of visiting the premises and of what they found. A map, designed by Major General Payne was displayed in court and deeds to property adjoining in the vicinity which might bear upon the case, were introduced.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any druggist.

DIVORCE AND PROBATE APPEAL BEFORE COURT

The superior court which has been holding the January additional session in this city will today (Tuesday) shift to New London for one day for the trial of two cases from the southern part of the country.

One is the contested divorce suit of Elizabeth P. Loper Babcock of Stonington against Horace H. Babcock of that place. They were married October 4, 1919 and the wife seeks divorce on the ground of intolerable cruelty since Sept. 1, 1923. She asks the custody of four minor children, aged 4 and 8 years, 17 and three months, and she asks alimony on the ground that her husband owns property worth $10,000. The defendant makes a general denial.

The other suit assigned for trial is the appeal from probate brought by George A. Garrett who was removed from the guardianship of his minor son, George Coates Garrett, by the Lyme probate court on December 14, 1925. The removal followed a finding by the probate court that the father had abandoned and neglected the education and support of his son. The probate court thereupon appointed Eleanor Coates Garrett as guardian under $500 bonds which she furnished.

The court will return to Norwich Wednesday for trial of a contested divorce suit.

NORWICH TOWN

L. D. Howe of Jewett City, delightfully entertained a large audience in the vestry of the Methodist church, Wednesday evening. A number of beautifully colored stereopticon slides were shown of the caves in the Shenandoah Valley, also many other views throughout the south where Mr. Howe had visited, the pictures having been made especially for him. Mr. Howe was assisted in showing the slides by George Thornton, of Jewett City. During the evening, Frank Mell, also of Jewett City gave several readings. The evenings entertainment was under the auspices of Miss Gertrude Tefft's class of boys in the M. E. Sunday school, of which Mark Aldrich is president. It was through him that the affair was held and it realized $18. This will be added to the class treasury.

A very successful sale and supper under the auspices of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society of the Norwich Town Methodist church, Mrs. Richard Carter, president was held Saturday afternoon from five to seven thirty o'clock, at Buckingham Memorial, netting $46.

The menu consisted of baked beans, salad, brown bread, pickles, cake and coffee. Mrs. Carter who was in general charge was assisted by the following: A. D. Zabriskie in charge of the kitchen, with Mrs. Everett Rogers, Mrs. Fremont Vergason and Mrs. Zabriskie, helpers; Miss Josephine Rogers looked after the cake; Miss Florence M. Bennett was cashier. Mrs. Carter was assisted in the dining room by Edward Howe and Mrs. Frank Hunter. The waitresses were Misses Doris Estelle Rose, Elizabeth Gifford, Augusta Miller, Gertrude Brown, Gladys Cruthers, Inez Edminston, Effie Ladd, Grace Mitchell, Beulah Rogers and Ruth Lathrop. The sale of aprons and fancy articles was in charge of Mrs. William Weaver and Mrs. Arthur Fulton.

The Good Will Class of the Methodist Sunday school, taught by Mrs. Richard Carter, which was recently organized, held a meeting recently at Mrs. Carters home on Pleasant street, following the afternoon session of school. Officers elected were: President, Arthur Bennett; vice president, Linwood Aldrich; treasurer, Clayton Rose, secretary, Robert Ringland. He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty, Psalms 91:1, was the text of Rev. James B. Aldrich's Sunday morning sermon, at the First M. E. church. The regular Sunday evening preaching service and the Young People's Christian Endeavor service were combined, Rev. Mr. Aldrich presiding. The theme was Why and How Should We Send Christianity to Latin America? Jeremiah 31:31-34. (Missionary meeting).

"The Sacred and the Secular," was the theme of Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey's Sunday morning sermon at the First Congregational church. Matthew 27:51 was the text. And, Behold, the Veil of the Temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom; and the earth did quake, and the rocks were rent.

In his introductory remarks, Rev. Mr. Bailey gave a discription of the way the temple was built with its outer courts and inner courts, also the Holy place and the Holy of holies, the last named visited only by the High Priest, and that but once a year.

At the time of the Crucifixion, the Veil between was rent in twain, making it possible for the sacred and the secular to come together.

The evening meeting of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society, was under the auspices of the missionary committee, the chairman, Miss Jessie E. Hyde and Miss Bessie Whaley and Irving Manning in charge. The topic was Why and How Should We Send Christianity to Latin America?

The society voted to unite with the Get-to-gether club of Ledyard, in putting on a play in the Norwich Town Congregational chapel.

The Reality of Converse With God, Psalms 139:17, will be the topic at the Congregational mid-week service for conference and prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan Rogers, (Dorothy Josephine Pendleton) returned Sunday evening after several days' wedding trip to New York, and are at the home of Mr. Rogers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Rogers, of Wauwecus street, where they are to reside.

Having spent several days with relatives in Providence, Mr. and Mrs. John Olsen and Master Donald Olsen, also Mrs. David M. Dean, who was their automobile guest, have returned to their respective homes on Town street.

Having left Norwich Town last Thursday afternoon, the Olsen family have been guests during their stay at the home of Mrs. Olsen's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Nichols; while Mrs. Dean visited Mr. and Mrs Allen Kinney, former Norwich Town residents. Mrs. Dean and Mrs. Kinney are sisters.

You will notice a film on your child's teeth. That's a frequent danger sign—an invitation for tooth and gum troubles. The same stubborn film that you can feel by running your tongue across your own teeth. You must combat it. Ordinary dentifrices don't fight it successfully.

Film is the greatest enemy of tooth health. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs breed in it and imperil both teeth and gums. The acid that leads to early decay forms. Old-type methods failed to combat it. Men of science undertook to discover an effective combatant.

Now in Pepsodent, two new combatants are embodied—combatants approved by highest dental authority. It curdles the film, gently removes it; then firms the gums. It keeps the teeth whiter, cleaner, more sparkling. It is the modern scientific method for better tooth protection. Insist upon it. Get a tube today. Mail the coupon.

POETRY

A Southern Whip-Poor-Will

Last night it was the whip-poor-will
Amid the palm trees by the lake,
With its old piercing, poignant thrill
That banished sleep and bade us wake.
As underneath some northern hill,
Last night it was the whip-poor-will.

Spirit, or bird, what do you here
Mid the palmettoes and the palms,
Flinging your voice so cool and clear
Across the southern midnight calms?
You are a memory that plays
About the dusk of other days.

A memory sweet as jasmine is;
On wings of dream you waft us wher
The hills uplift like harmonies
Athwart the blue ethereal air,
And there you sing, ecstatic still,
Enthralling us, oh whip-poor-will!
—Clinton Scollard in the New York Sun.

Alabama Violets

Alabama Violets,
I know that you are blowing now,
And far away my soul regrets
Your missing fragrance on my brow.
As I recall your blueness bright
That charmed my gaze 'neath Southern skies,
To memory comes the tender light
That shone of old in loving eyes.

Alabama Violets,
Your beauty haunts my weary heart;
For aching dull that age begets
There is no balm in any art;
And, Oh, ye Flowers, my spirit yearns
As Fancy limns your grace in vain,
Yet Memory to the past returns
To seek a joy that's half a pain.
—Samuel Minturn Peck in Boston Transcript.

FEAR FOR FATE OF 60 MEN ABOARD TWO STEAMSHIPS

Two Ships of British Registry Reported in Distress in Mid-Ocean in the Worst Storm of the Winter—Disabled Vessel Was Hidden From Rescue Ship in Blinding Snowstorm—All the Great Trans-Atlantic Liners at Sea Were Delayed by the Storm.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP)—The fate of 60 men aboard two steamships in distress at mid-ocean in the worst storm of the winter, was unknown tonight. The ships in trouble are both of British registry, the Antinoe, owned by the Egypt and Levant Steamship company, and which sailed from New York, Jan. 14, for Queenstown and the Laristan, which was on its way to New York with a cargo of coal. She left Swansea, January 9, a third vessel in trouble was the tug Roosevelt, about 900 miles from Balboa, canal zone.

The distress calls of the two ships were responded to by liners bound for Europe, the resident Roosevelt going to the assistance of the Antinoe and the Bremen to the Laristan. The President Roosevelt has been battling with mountainous seas since Sunday in an effort to rescue the men on the Antinoe. The United States liner first went to the aid of the crippled steamship Sunday, but lost the Antinoe in a blinding snowstorm.

Locating the cripple again yesterday, the President Roosevelt made a vain effort to rescue the crew and in its attempt lost two of her own men. Despite the heavy sea a life boat was launched, but was crushed against the side of the Antinoe. The two men who lost their lives were Ernest Heitman of New York and Uno Wirtanen of Finland. Details of the attempted rescue were contained in a message from Captain George Fried of the President Roosevelt. A wireless message today stated that the American liner was still standing by, waiting for the heavy waves to abate and an opportunity to transfer the men from the Antinoe.

The last word received concerning the Laristan was a message from the Bremen to the effect that it had located the Laristan to the north of the Antinoe's position and was speeding to her assistance.

The crew of the Antinoe number 35, while there were 25 aboard the Laristan. The latter was operated by J. H. Winchester and company of this city. No word had come to them from the Laristan. The company officials said that information that the vessel's radio was silent indicated that the wireless room had been flooded.

All the great trans-Atlantic liners at sea were delayed by the storm. Among the big vessels delayed was the Leviathan. A message from that ship to Boston today said it would not arrive there until Friday. The Leviathan was scheduled to go into drydock at Boston Thursday.

Among other ships delayed one to two days by the storm are the Aquinnia and the Columbus, and more than a score of freight ships which are from a few days to more than a week late.

A distress call from the canal zone last night was cleared up today when the tug Roosevelt with three barges and another tug in tow was reported in distress 900 miles from Balboa. The tug in tow had broken away, the report said, and was adrift in heavy seas, a Panama canal tug was dispatched to the rescue with orders to first seek the tug adrift. The Roosevelt left Seattle December 13, for Miami, Fla.

FEAR THAT SHIP WILL BE UNABLE TO KEEP AFLOAT

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—(AP)—A wireless message to the Associated Press tonight from Commander Fried of the United States liner President Roosevelt stated that signals aboard the British freighter Antinoe indicated that its ability to keep afloat was doubtful. The message stated:

"Stood by the Antinoe throughout the night, in snow, rain and sleet squalls and high seas. Manouvred at daylight for positions favorable for rescue, but the sea too rough to get life aboard. At four p. m. launched an empty lifeboat, which drifted along side Antinoe, but men could not reach it. The boat was later seen to capsize empty.

"Men are still visible aboard the hulk in the approaching darkness. She is riding sluggishly, with the lee rail rolling under, and engine room reported flooded. Weather continued rough with equally high seas. Standing close by to make further attempts at the earliest possible moment. Look for improvement in weather tonight.

"Her signals indicate her condition very serious and ability to keep afloat doubtful. She is unable to show any lights tonight. Hope to keep her in view with searchlight.

"FRIED, Commander."

The President Roosevelt has been standing by the Antinoe since Sunday and has already lost two men in futile rescue attempt.

SIX MEN SAVED FROM FREIGHTER LARISTON

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 26—(AP)—Six men were saved tonight from the disabled British freighter Lariston which since last night has been lying in a raging sea off this port. The men were saved by the German steamer Bremen.

The following message was received from the Bremen by the department of marine and fisheries: "picked up six men off S. S. Laristan. Twenty men still aboard. Bremen standing by unable to render assistance at present owing to heavy seas."

The S. O. S. from Laristad was sent out at seven o'clock last night but the identity of the vessel and its location were not learned until almost ten o'clock at which time messages were received that the Bremen was steaming to the rescue. To assist the Bremen the Halifax Reindeer was being held in readiness tonight to leave for the scene of the disabled vessel as soon as storm conditions permit.

GOV. TRUMBULL PROCLAIMS FEB. 15 MAINE MEMORIAL DAY

HARTFORD, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Pointing to the Spanish-American war as the beginning of a new era of international morality that raised the standards of responsibility among nations, Governor Trumbull, by proclamation, has designated Monday, February 15, as Maine Memorial day. "All of us," the proclamation says, "should have in mind that in honoring the dead of the Spanish war we commemorate also those great principles to which their sacrifices is a splendid and enduring monument. The proclamation follows:

"It is so small part of the honorable record of the United States that every war in which we have been engaged has been a struggle, not of greed and aggression, but of defense or deliverance. During the first century of our independence we fought for the life and integrity of the Union and of our own people. In 1898, for the first time, we were stirred to action in the interest of an oppressed people whose claim on us was only that of common humanity.

"The Spanish war marks the beginning of a new era of international morality. It sets new standards of responsibility. It gave new scope to that national conscience which responded so gloriously to an even greater wrong, twenty years afterwards.

"Pursuant to the statute which properly directs a day to be set aside in memory of the tragic event which precipitated the Spanish war, I designate Monday, February 15 next, as Maine Memorial day and I direct the observance of the occasion in all of the public schools of the state, by suitable exercises according to the law."

1,000 GARMENT WORKERS ON STRIKE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—(AP)—Three thousand members of Local 41 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers union went on strike today. Seventy per cent of the strikers were women. Four hundred shops in the city were affected.

The strike was called in protest against wage reductions and also to prolong the wage agreement under which they have been working for the last year. Negotiations for a settlement were started immediately after the walkout. Officials of the union said they probably will return to work Thursday under the old wage scale and general agreement to expire in January 1927. Those who walked out were hemstitchers, truckers and pleaters.

COAL OPERATORS HAVE REJECTED LYNETT PLAN

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26—(AP)—The joint conference of miners and operators, called into session again after breaking up in New York two weeks ago ,today rejected the Lynett plan for settling the anthracite strike and adjourned until tomorrow with a clean slate.

The conference was called at the request of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, to consider the proposal offered by E. J. Lynett, publisher of the Scranton Times. The offer was accepted in principle by the miners and rejected by the operators before today's conference met, but the leader of the miners insisted that the conference by reconvened for its formal consideration.

When the conference adjourned tonight it was learned that there was no program for consideration tomorrow unless either side should decide to bring up another proposition or a modification of some plan already thrown in to the discard.

ACCUSED MAN ALLOWED TO ATTEND FUNERAL OF MOTHER

BOSTON, Jan. 26.—(AP)—In order to obtain sufficient funds with which to bury his mother, Harold Coughlin today surrendered in superior court where hearing of his appeal from a three months' sentence is pending. His mother had pledged her bank book before she died as an indication that the son would be in court when wanted. Burial had been delayed, it was learned, because her husband had not sufficient funds for the purchase of a cemetery lot.

The bank book, representing $300, the family savings, was released. With the consent of the district attorney, Coughlin was allowed his liberty in custody of a probation officer. He had pleaded guilty to two drunkenness charges but appealed when found guilty, in addition, of assault and battery.

DISTANCE TRIAL IN THE INT'L BROADCASTING TEST

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP) — After two false starts the distance trials in the third international broadcasting tests began tonight featured by two American stations attempting to belt the globe and 30 others making efforts to reach Europe with their programmes.

Encouraged by reports that static conditions were fair and that abating storms on the Atlantic lessened chance of interference from S. O. S. calls which hindered the tests during the first two nights, the broadcasters began with high hopes. Their only fear was that the Aurora Borealis which affected telegraphic communications today might reappear.

The most ambitious programme was that of station WOC, Davenport, Iowa, and WGY, Schenectady in seeking to encircle the world with popular musical numbers. In efforts to reach into the jungles of Africa and touch remote cities like Cape Town, Melbourne, Australia, or other points in the Antipodes, it was arranged to broadcast on four wave lengths.

Two of these were used by WOC, the original broadcaster which planned to make announcements in 15 languages, while WGY picked up the programme to rebroadcast it on shorter wave lengths.

From all parts of the North American continent at 10 o'clock music began wringing through the air while listeners on the British Isles and the continent waited with handsets and loud speakers. Static WMAC began to tell the overseas listeners how American fans had heard European broadcasters last night.

When the American hour was ended North America was silent and the flow of music and conversation changed its course as Wales, Scotland, England, Spain and Buenos Aires went on the air. From Lima, Peru, Senor Carlos Jiminez Correa talked on the Tacna-Arica plebiscite.

Tomorrow perhaps the most ambitious programme of the entire test will be attempted when station WLW, Cincinnati, will broadcast for 24 hours with a single interruption during the silent hour when overseas stations are broadcasting. It will take the air at 7 a. m. and sign off at 8 a. m. on Thursday.

TO SUBMIT MARSHALL TO FURTHER GRILLING

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Convinced that Davil L. Marshall, Philadelphia chiropractor, confessed slayer of Miss Anna May Dietrich, 24 year old milliner, has, in effect, told the truth, but believing that he has not "told the whole truth yet," authorities tonight awaited a favorable opportunity to submi to him a further grilling.

"He is trying to give himself the better of it," one police official said, hinting tha the real motive for strangling the girl to death and dismembering her body has yet to be ascertained.

Relatives of Miss Dietrich today scouted that part of Marshall's second confession in which he claimed the girl was blackmailing him and threatening to tell his wife of their relations if he did not continue to entertain her in the manner she desired. This entertainment, he said, consisted of taking her to cabarets and roadhouses, and was beginning to prove too costly.

"The blackmail excuse is preposterous," Mrs. Alexander L. Schuhl, sister of Miss Dietrich, declared today.

POSSIBLE MURDER BY DROWNING IN CONN. RIVER

HARTFORD, Jan. 26—(AP)—Police are investigating a possible murder by drowning in the Connecticut river off the dock of the Hartford and New York Transportation company.

Snow on the dock gave evidence of a man and a woman walking to the wharf from the railroad trestle in the freight yard south of State street and there were signs of a struggle on the dock. No tracks were found leading away from the dock.

Frank Luckingham and William White, both of East Hartford, heard a woman who they believed was on the dock scream. Luckingham called to her to wait and with White rowed across the river. There was no one at the dock when they arrived. Luckingham who is a veteran riverman, announced his intention of dragging the river tomorrow morning.

Ponzi's Boston Agent Is Adjudged Guilty

Violated Massachusetts Blue Sky Law—Six Months in House of Correction.

BOSTON, Jan. 26.—(AP)—An echo of the days when Charles Ponzi rose and fell as a get-rich-quick international postal coupon financier came today when Celicedonio Alviti, Boston agent of Ponzi's Florida land syndicate was found guilty of violating the Massachusetts blue sky law.

In municipal court he appealed a sentence of six months in the house of correction, and was released in $1,000 bail.

Some three weeks ago Ponzi opened a local branch of his Charpon Land syndicate, which advertised a 200 per cent. profit in sixty days in Florida real estate investments. The syndicate was established by Ponzo ostensibly to enable those who had suffered from the collapse of his postal coupon scheme to recoup their losses.

An investigation of the Boston office was ordered by the state authorities. The charges that resulted alleged that Alviti engaged in the promotion of Ponzi's certificates of indebtedness which were not registered in the state and that he was not registered as a salesman of stock.

Kenneth B. Backman, manager of the Boston Better Business commission, Inc., told today of having invested $10 in the Charpon Land Syndicate's Jacksonville office. In return, he said, he received a certificate of indebtedness. This, he testified, he sent back for redemption either in land or in cash and in return received a deed for three lots of land with a stated value of $30. He admitted knowing that the deed was genuine and that the land was listed. He declared it his opinion that the profit to investors was not the advertised 200 per cent.

Backman explained that he went to Alviti and obtained through him circulars, information and a form. He was instructed to fill out the form, write Alviti's name on the back, and make his purchase through the Jacksonville office.

Willard Hirst, a Boston newspaper reporter, told of having interviewed Alviti, of receiving a prospectus and of seeing a pile of circulars and a book of blank certificates of indebtedness. Alviti, he said, had told him of selling a unit of indebtedness to an Orient Heights resident.

Alviti denied having met Backman, recalling meeting Hirst, but denied telling him that he had made any sale. He contended that he had never made any sale of land or units of indebtedness and denied that he ever intended to do so.

ADVENTURE ENDS IN $100,000 BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.(AP)—Protestations of love mingled today with admissions of misrepresentation and broken promises at the trial of the $100,000 breach of promise suit brought by Mrs. Clara Bola Shiaras against George Brinton Caldwell.

Mrs. Shiras admitted in testimony but she was not a widow, as she first told Caldwell, but the divorced wife of Dr. Ralph Shiras, of Kansas City. She said she was married to Dr. Shiras in 1905 in Chicago, and divorced from him in 1912 in Kansas City.

Mrs. Shiras related how she first met Caldwell on a train en route from Chicago to New York in 1923, she had told him that she was a widow, but that a week or so later she told him the truth. Caldwell she said, told her he was the president of the Sperry & Hutchinson company of this city, with a salary of $50,000 a year. While on the train Caldwell proposed that they get off the train at Cleveland and marry, she said, but she rejected his proposal.

Their engagement followed a brief courtship, and one night, she testified, Caldwell addressed her as "my darling wife." When she mentioned their brief acquaintance, she testified, he had said "love is spontaneous. You are the type of girl I want." Though they were engaged to be married in August, 1923, Mr. Caldwell married Marion Hales Andrews on July 14 of that year, she said.

Mr. Caldwell is now head of the Springfield Body Company of Massachusetts, and a director of several New York banks. The trial is before Justice Wasservogel.

Mrs. Shiras produced a letter signed with Caldwell's name in which she was told of his engagement to Miss Andrews.

"Dear Lady," the letter stated, "I hate to make you unhappy, but I was engaged to Miss Andrews before I met you. She is a school teacher, 35 years of age, and as a matter of fact, my mind was more in Maine where she was than with you in New York. I expect to marry Miss Andrews in July. However, we can still be very good friends."

Before writing the letter, according to Mrs. Shiras' testimony, Caldwell told her he was going to Maine to get a release from Mrs. Winship, his sister-in-law, whom he had promised his wife on her death bed he would marry. "I will be back to you," Mrs. Shiras said Caldwell told her.

Family of Four Was Asphyxiated

Man, Wife and Two Infant Children Found Dead at Their Home in Waterbury.

WATERBURY, Jan. 26—(AP)—Lying on one bed in a locked room with a gas heater burning, a father, mother, and two infant children were found dead at 10 Clifton avenue late today.

Raymond Francis Bovino, 31, his wife, Mrs. Florence Moore Bovino 19, a 22 months old son, Francis Raymond, and a four week's old daughter, Irene, some time early this morning died of asphyxia, from inhaling carbon dioxide.

The family had moved in to the third floor apartment at 10 Clifton avenue, Monday night. They had retired with the light and the gas heater both turned on. Officers John J. Costello and Frank Lahr found the bodies when they broke the lock of the door late today.

Mrs. Delia Chaput, who lives on the first floor and who rented the apartment to the couple, became suspicious of the odor and heat issuing from the room. She telephoned police headquarters.

Officers who responded forced the door after attempts to remove the key from the inside of the lock failed.

Heat from the room was stifling. On the bed were the four figures, lying like wax work models. They were all dead and the rigor of death had set in. An electric light was still lit and a gas burner was going.

Dr. Edward H. Kirschbaum, deputy medical examiner pronounced death due to asphyxia from inhaling carbon dioxide. He ordered the bodies removed pending the arrival of the coroner.

Mrs. Bovino is the sister of Johnny Moore an outfielder of the New Haven baseball club.

The couple had returned recently from New York, where Mr. Bovino had been employed as a barber.

Mrs. Bovino and the children had been staying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Moore, of 17 Driggs street, Waterville. Mr. Bovino had been staying with his father. He had secured a job with a Union City barber a week ago and had taken the rent at Clifton street, Monday.

PLUMBERS OBJECT TO A SATIRICAL CARTOON

WATERBURY, Jan. 26—(AP)—Asserting that the plumbing industry is the backbone of American building operations and is not to be spoken of irreverently the Waterbury Master Plumbers' association today protested the use by newspapers of cartoons which treated their profession in a jesting way.

The cartoon in question depicts two plumbers in a tool-strewn kitchen pausing to discuss the show they attended the previous night, while the house wife stands in the doorway bemoaning the fact that she must pay each a dollar an hour. The caption is "Time to Crab."

The spokesmen of the association, Jay E. Connellan, president and E. J. Maloney, secretary, declare that they are trying to raise their business to the level of a profession, and contend that cartoons such as those described tend to hinder their efforts.

Quigley of Chelsea and forty-three others for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law was completed in federal district court today, and one defendant, Emanuel Berger, of Chelsea, alone pleaded guilty. Adjournment was then taken until tomorrow afternoon.

The defendants, including the mayor's brother, Police Inspector Thomas Quigley, and nine other police officers and patrolmen, are charged with operating a rum ring in Chelsea under police protection and with the connivance of city hall.

It is charged that the defendants conspired in January, 1922, to possess, manufacture, sell, transport and import liquor of more than the legal alcoholic content; that one of the ring paid $100 a week to another member for the privilege of making liquor; and that in the fall of 1923 a total of 10,000 gallons of liquor was unloaded and transported. SENATE VOTES RESERVATIONS IN WORLD COURT RESOLUTION

Measures in the Swanson Resolution of American Adherence to the World Court Had Been Agreed Upon by the Administration Leaders—Reservations Proposed by Opponents Are Expected to Be Defeated—Final Vote on Ratification Probably Will Be Reached Today—Tax Reduction Bill to Be Given Right of Way.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—(AP)—The senate by almost unanimous vote approved today all reservations and declarations of policy in the Swanson resolution of American adherence to the world court.

Before the resolution finally is adopted tomorrow, an even score of additional reservations must be disposed of. Sponsored by the opponents of the court, they are designed to make American membership in the tribunal meaningless and no one expects any of them to be accepted.

The reservations endorsed today by the senate, with most of opponents of the court voting for them go much further than did the original Harding-Hughes-Coolidge reservations. The reservations in their order would provide;

That the United States is not to be involved in any legal relation to the league of nations.

That the United States shall pay a fair share of the court's expenses.

That the American government may at any time withdraw from the tribunal and that the statute of the court cannot be amended without the consent of the United States.

That all "advisory opinions" of the court shall be rendered publicly and after opportunity for the interested states to be heard; and that without the consent of the United States the tribunal shall not entertain any request for an "advisory opinion" touching any dispute or question in which the United States has or claims an interests.

Added to these reservations is the condition that the signature of the United States shall not be affixed to the court protocol and statute until the 48 member states shall have indicated through the exchange of notes their acceptance of the reservations and understandings set out in the resolution of adherence.

Unanimous approval then was given to two declarations of policy on the part of the American government.

That disputes to which the United States is a party cannot be referred to the court without an agreement through general or special treaties concluded by the parties to the dispute.

That adherence by the United States is not to be construed as a relinquishment by this country of its traditional policies against entangling alliances and toward purely American questions.

TAX REDUCTION BILL GIVEN RIGHT OF WAY IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—(AP)—The tax reduction bill will be given right of way in the senate, leaders agreed today, immediately after a final vote on the world court, which is expected tomorrow.

Conceding that serious opposition to some of its provisions was developing Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, in charge of the measure, said he would hold the bill constantly before the senate in the hope of obtaining a final vote within two weeks.

February 12 has been set by Chairman Smoot as the deadline for passage of the bill by the senate if tax reduction is to be assured by March 15 when first income tax installments are due.

The first definite opposition program to the measure was prepared today by Senator King, democrat, Utah, who disagreed with the compromise reached by the sixteen other republican and democratic members of the committee.

Senator King will ask a total reduction of $500,000,000 annually, proposing repeal of the levies on automobiles, trucks, admissions and dues and "further reductions in income surtax rates along the lines advanced by democratic members of the committee prior to the compromise.

The Utah senator also will fight the proposed repeal of the inheritance tax and of the law allowing publicity of income tax returns. In this he is expected to receive considerable support from western republicans.

FRENCH DEPUTIES BEGIN DEBATE OF FINANCIAL BILL

PARIS, Jan. 26—(AP)—A capital levy supported by the radical socialists against the government's plan for an increase of indirect taxation to balance the budget and provide a sinking fund for debts, seems after the first day's debate of the financial measures in the chamber of deputies to be the principal issue at stake.

The radicals and socialists, explaining the fact that their bills fail to provide for amortization of the debts, declared that they were opposed to any new taxes for this purpose; they contended that this matter could be settled later by a call upon capital.

They endeavored to turn the debate largely on M. Doumer's scheme for a stamp tax on business transactions, while the government supporters insisted that the question was not before the house and called on the leaders of the majority to defend their own measures.

The debate, which got a slow start, threatens to run into next week before the chamber can proceed to examine the articles of the different bills, and a final vote is deemed unlikely before a fortnight.

Net railway operating income for December was $1,337,557 and net income, $736,000.

STRONG AURORA BOREALIS OBSTRUCTED WIRE SERVICE

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—(AP)—The aurora borealis kept up a ghost dance or telegraph wires over the entire country today, and still was going strong tonight.

Constant interruptions from the arctic phenomenon were reported last night all wires out of New York as far west as San Francisco and south to New Orleans and into Texas, interruptions were sporadic, but not been coming without cessation since shortly after 11 o'clock this morning. Veteran wire chiefs in New York said the demonstration penetrated further into the south than had any other in the past 25 years.

The interruptions lasted from a few seconds to seven, and eight minutes, during which the sounders locked a jumble of flashes weird as spook messages from the unwelcome visitor.

The Associated Press wires in New York city and north to Albany and west to Toledo were constantly affected, while reports from other divisions said the same interruptions were being felt throughout the country.

The American Telephone and Telegraph company reported similar disturbances on its wires from Montreal into Texas, while the Western Union Telegraph company had suffered from it on wires as far west as New Mexico. Wires running east and west were apparently more affected than the north and south wires, as those from east to west run across the magnetic field and those from north to south parallel it.

Donahue and Gerard H. Loisell. President John F. Ahern, who had charge of the meeting, pronounced the nicknames by which the members being welcomed would be known in the club.

G. Everett Harrington, chairman of the fellowship committee, presented the program for the day. He introduced as the speaker, Rev. James F. English, member of the Putnam Rotary club, who gave a most inspirational talk on Rotary Fellowship, warning against the danger of misunderstanding the clasp and the nickname greeting, for clasp and the nickname greeting, for the real motive of fellowship in Rotary. He was accorded a rising vote of thanks.

Other guests in addition to the speaker of the day were Major Thomas C. Seaver of the divisional headquarters of the Salvation Army and a member of the Hartford Rotary club, Eldred J. McCabe, campaign director of the local Salvation Army drive and "Mel" Wylie, president of the Mt. Clair, N. J., Rotary club. The first song number was a quartet rendition by Harry Standish, John Pickett, Arthur Wheelock and Ellison Smith, with Dr. R. Bullock Jones leading. John T. Quinlan was at the piano. The next number was a feature one. The four new members joined in song, which was returned with a welcome song by the four club visitors. As they sang the visitors and the new Rotarians shook hands effectively carrying a good fellowship idea.

At the opening of the program Chairman Harrington called on past president Valentine L. Murphy, who in a most able manner, instructed the new comers in the Meaning of Rotary.

JEWETT CITY

MR. FANNING'S GIFTS TO JEWETT CITY OVER $125,000

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 26.—As the result of the grand munificence of David Hale Fanning, prompted solely by his love and regard for the place where he was born, Jewett City has come into a splendid legacy. The trustees of the Slater library will be formally notified within a few days, of the availability of $75,000 for the new David Hale Fanning annex.

When it is considered, how much and how many and to what extent Mr. Fanning's gifts have been, previous to the provisions of his will, it seems like the realization of a dream, that some Jewett City person might have had as he slept.

A number of Mr. Fanning's relatives are buried in the Jewett City cemetery. His gifts, and interested activity have acclaimed a weed grown, partly neglected burying ground, until today, its beauty is comparable with any. Resultant from his gifts, a wrought-iron fence was forged and set at a cost of $8,000, a large granite receiving vault was built, valuable new land was acquired, drive ways laid out, and memorial gates supplied. Together with the $5,000 mentioned in the will, the Jewett City cemetery will have benefited to the extent of $17,000.

Mr. Fanning became interested in the Riverside Grammar school, and gave that institution nearly $1,000 to be expended in gymnasium equipment.

The David Hale Fanning park, can first be said to have been brought to the attention of its donor, through the many friendly meetings which he enjoyed with the late George A. Haskell.

Money to the extent of $5,000 was almost available for the purchase of a soldiers and sailors' monument, as Haskell was deeply interested, as was also the whole borough. There was some difference as to where it could be erected. These matters were brought to the attention of Mr. Fanning, and, in common with other projects he was asked to sponsor, there was no inclination on his part to consider the plan other than with favor. Hence, again, as the result of his interested planning, the borough benefited by his love of home, for today on a beautiful park that cost approximately $15,000, stands the monument purchased by popular gifts, and all on a site but a few feet removed from where Mr. Fanning lived and where stood the little home from which, close to a century ago, he started out with little bundle of belongings, to seek his fortune in the open world.

The Slater library, justly the borough's pride, was built in 1884. The project was originated with the desire of John F. Slater, actuated by the influence of Rev. Thomas L. Shipman, to erect over the village of Jewett City a lasting memorial to his name. Mr. Slater died in that year, with the activities soon continued by his son, William A. Slater. At this time, the work in hand received much benefit by the tread minded and influential interest of the late A. A. Young, Jr. The original library, as it stands today, could not be duplicated for $50,000. It is at pleasing design, and constructed of heavy granite, hewn from the quarries of Vermont. Several years ago, Mr. Fanning gave $20,000, thus equalling in this amount, a like sum raised by subscription.

This story would be incomplete, if here it failed totell of the indomitable efforts of Dr. G. H. Jennings to reach the necessary goal. He would not think of defeat. A great thermometer was placed in the post office, where each day the amount of increase was noted, and after months of ceaseless endeavor, the golden mercury reached the top. Many final reason to believe that but for Dr. Jennings, the legacy just received would hardly have been considered in such splendid figures.

The interests of the Slater bequests are rapidly diminishing and in twelve years will cease. At present only $150 each quarter is received from the original amount made by the late hebts of the estate.

Strangely, the first librarian, the late Miss Mary Fanning, was a distant relative of him who by gifts and bequest has given $95,000 to this institution. Miss Jessie L. Swift was the first assistant. The librarians since Miss Fanning have been Miss Jessie Fanning, Miss Mary F. Brown, Miss Gale Chapman, Mrs. Nellie Hooper, Miss Martha Church. The present librarian is Miss Mabel Wilson and the assistant is Miss Jean Dickson. At such times as Miss Burleson finds it inconvenient to serve, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox acts in her stead.

There are today 8,240 volumes in the library and during 1925 the circulation included 2600, fiction, 10,003; junior books, 5,285; non-fiction, 327; periodicals, 304.

The present board of trustees is as follows: George H. Jennings, Arthur D. Tripp, Lewis M. Carpenter, Edward A. Faust, Alex McNicol.

THIRTY TON BOILER NOW LYING IN BROOK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 26.—A most unfortunate and costly accident has again halted the tremendous task of moving the big 30-ton boiler to its foundation in Glasgo.

After negotiating what seemed the worst problem of all, Crooked Hill, a fine advance was made Monday to a point near the Colligan farm, just below Hopeville, when a broken axle on the carrying gear caused a considerable delay.

Tuesday, after making a fine advance and at three o'clock in the afternoon, the little bridge was reached, below Edwin Colles' home, that spans the Noank Wilcox trout brook. The bridge was supposed to be sufficiently proped and reinforced to stand the tremendous weight. The horses and draft trucks had passed over all right when the rear right wheel cut through the planking, the great boiler tipped, hung poised for almost five minutes, then as the wheel settled further into the cross planks, the 60,000 pounds of steel rolled over into the brook beside the road. Fortunately neither men nor horses were caught in the wreckage. The draft whiffle-tree unhooked and freed the team. The new gear just procured from Hartford, was jammed in that the long reach rods, between the forward and rear axle twisted so that the front wheels went over with the boiler and were in the air when the boiler landed in the brook. Many went from the borough in automobiles to see the unusual sight.

On Monday evening, Everett Whipple at his home in Voluntown, gave a dinner party in honor of Thomas L. Barnett and his friends, of Jewett City. Those present were George H. Lucier, Louis Rakanowsky, Michael F. Shea, Tim Rojeskie. The dinner consisted of chowder, fancy crackers, fancy cakes, doughnuts, cream, cake, tea and coffee. The evening was spent in game and music. Mr. Barnett presided at the organ. His work came in for complimentary comment. The company departed wishing him many happy returns of the day.

The regular meeting of the Catholic Ladies' of Columbus was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Charles Charon on Railroad street. The regular business being transacted the presiding officer, Mrs. J. Woods, turned the meeting over to State President Mrs. Margaret Dutton, of Norwich, who spoke encouragingly to the members of what they had accomplished in the past few years and advised them of how much more they could accomplish in the future. This should be possible, she said, as they had gone on under difficulties which had been overcome and by all working together for the good of the assembly and the community. The state president predicted a banner year for Holy Assembly.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Woods who called on the members to elect their officers for the year 1926. Mrs. Gauthier filled the chair during electing the new president. Mrs. Madeline Drescher was elected president, Mrs. Woods' resigning the chair. Miss Louise Sweetland was elected vice president. Other officers are: Honorary president, Mrs. J. E. Cote, Miss Fred Gauthier, Mrs. M. Buteau; auditors, Rose Pappineau, Miss Bourque and Mrs. Kless.

The meeting being closed, whist was engaged, and refreshments served by Mrs. Charles Charon, assisted by Mrs. Woods, Miss Myrtle Lutean, and Miss Mayme Pappineau. A vote of thanks was given the retiring president, the state president and the organizer, Miss Maud Delaney, of Norwich. The whist prizes were awarded to Mrs. Annie Lemaine and Mrs. Blanche Case. They were donated by Miss Sweetland and Mrs. Woods.

The installation of officers will take place at a later date. The committee for the installation consists of Mrs. Woods, Mrs. Gauthier, Mrs. Drescher, Miss Kelly and Miss Sweetland.

How some women can even pretend to be proud of their husbands is a mystery to other women.

Graham Brothers Truck sales for 1925 were the largest in their history.

The previous record breaking year was surpassed by 123 per cent.

Such healthy increases in demand require proportionate increases in production.

Graham Brothers four factories are now equipped for larger output than ever before.

They are therefore able to give truck buyers the benefit of still further savings—

Savings that are now passed along in the form of another substantial price reduction—the third such reduction in eight months!

DANIELSON

BREAK OF ABOUT THREE MILES IN CEMENT HIGHWAY

DANIELSON, Jan. 26.—But 2.3 miles of cement highway remain to be built to give a complete concrete roadway between Danielson and Putnam. The break is between the bridge over Whitestone brook at Elmville and a point above Attawaugan. During the present year another section of concrete will be put in. It is anticipated that the Putnam and Danielson ends of the route will be linked up not later than 1927. In the meantime, there is good macadam to ride over between the concrete sections.

It is of interest to Killingly that Putnam approves as a town of building additions to the state trade school in that city. Killingly has no trade school, but has sent numbers of students to the Putnam institution. There is no charge for tuition. Students may enroll for courses of study there the same as pupils enter public schools of the state. It is generally regarded here as a matter of great and kindly importance that one of the few trade schools of the state is located so near to Danielson.

The Danielson Chamber of Commerce is co-operating with the Southern New England Telephone company in a demonstration of switchboard operation to be given this (Wednesday) evening at the auditorium of Killingly High school. There will be motion pictures and a demonstration by telephone operators, using a model switchboard, that will take you behind the scenes to show you how telephone calls are handled.

By many, this column has come to be regarded as a clearing house for complaints. This morning there are those who want to tell the world that there is a bad depression across the easterly width of the new and uncompleted bridge over the Assawaga river in Main street. "We will break springs on our cars down there if they do not fix it," they mourn. Very well. Matter referred to state highway department.

Walter Bromley, resident on Morin avenue, is the proud possessor of a Pomeranian dog that won four firsts in the recent dog show at Providence. Fashionable Stylo is his name. The dog is three years of age and weighs about 5 pounds, and is a perfect beauty. As the animal brings prestige to Danielson, he rates a great canine with the people of this community.

S. O. S. calls are becoming so regular during this week of international radio broadcasts as to be accepted as a matter of course. Reports from radio fans Tuesday were no better in this vicinity than on Monday. They did not get in touch with Europe excepting possibly in cases that have not been heard of, and the fan that gets Europe is apt to talk about it. Enthusiasm is unabated, however. The dial turners were on the job again Tuesday night, scores of them, trying their mightiest to get an overseas station.

Property at 21 Prospect Street, Danielson, Conn., for sale. Six room house with barn, and two building lots. Quick sale desired. First reasonable offer secures same. Telephone 358-2.—Adv.

Announcement was made Tuesday morning of the death during the night at his home in Elmville of Wilfred Brower, 60, after a long period of illness. Mr. Brower had been a resident of Elmville for a number of years and during his active life time had been engaged in mill work. He leaves his wife, who before their marriage was Miss Eliza McCormack of Elmville.

Speaking recently of the arrangement to establish, in April, air mail lines between Boston and New York, W. Irving Bullard an official of the operating company, said there are few sites suitable for landing airplanes between Boston and Hartford. The field that there is talk of developing on the borough farm is one of the few desirable places along the mail route, which is directly over Danielson. In any event, as plans now are, the field here would be used only for emergency landings.

With the sport making tremendous gains in popularity throughout the eastern states, it was remarked here Tuesday that it is passing strange that no ice hockey team has been developed in Danielson or any of the nearby towns. Hockey has been played at Pomfret school during the winter season for years, but this exhilirating and exciting winter sport never has gained a foothold in this town, where sports are in great favor and much indulged in.

Chief A. P. Woodward plans to visit Warren, R. I., in the near future to hear tests blows on a diaphone fire alarm, as will be recommended to the annual borough meeting be installed in Danielson. Such an alarm would be an auxiliary to the one now in use and would replace the bell on the central fire station. The diaphone, operated by compressed air, is said to be of such volume of voice as to make the deaf hear. It is meant to wake people up and it does the work.

The North Sterling bear appears to have gone into winter quarters again. Though diligent search has been made for the animal for a week past, no trace of the animal has been found. However, there are wide areas of wild country near North Sterling and it is not an easy thing to corner any given animal that may be found thereabouts.

The fact that Danielson is not entertaining vagrants this winter will effect a considerable saving for the town of Killingly. There knights of the road have come to know that the borough office look unfavorably on any program of housing and feeding them, so appiy for lodging only in diminishing numbers.

Sales of shares in the new series issued by the Danielson Building and Loan association is making available an increased amount of revenue for 1926, making it possible to loan more money to builders than ever before.

From Emporia, Kansas, to friends here, cards came Tuesday from William F. McDermott, who is with a househandling investment securities. Mr. McDermott writes of having an interview with William Allen White, famous publicist and an outstanding figure in the corn-belt. Mr. McDermott is enjoying excellent health.

Danielson, it appears, has during the current week lost an opportunity to obtain a new industry that, while small, would have been of value. The industry now seems destined to locate in another Windham county town. There are people who believe this happened because the property wanted here is held at such a highly exorbitant figure, but not so reported to the assessors for taxing purposes.

Papers published in larger cities in New England have been giving considerable space to a little affair of interest in eastern Windham county. It has to do with Miss Emma Noble, 18, and Arthur LaCount, 22, both of Lonsdale, R. I., who after being refused a license to wed in their home town, came to Moosup and were made man and wife. It is related that Town Clerk Joseph V. Broderick of the town of Cumberland, R. I., refused to issue the couple a certificate entitling them to wed when he learned that Miss Noble was under age and did not have the consent of her parents. The newspaper stories have it that LaCount represented himself as a resident of Plainfield and that the bride was an orphan, when he sought a marriage license in the nearby town—and got it. After being married by Rev. Leon Wells, a pastor at Moosup, the couple returned to Lonsdale and were welcomed by the groom's parents, with whom they will make their home.

All are not pleased with the prospect of a state highway being built through Broad street as part of the much talked of Green Hollow route. It is openly stated that some owners of homes on Broad street, one of the finest residential streets in Danielson, will go so far as to offer their homes for sale if the state road project is carried out. It seems highly probable that there will be no dearth of buyers if some of the properties mentioned as to be for sale come into the market. Dense and disturbing traffic such as would follow upon the opening of Broad street as a trunk line is given as sufficient cause to make a few residents up there inclined to sell and locate on some other street in the borough.

The absorbing of a number of additional ice cream manufacturing concerns, at a cost of $1,000,000, by the Eastern Dairies, Inc., was of interest to Danielson. This community has a distributing plant of Eastern Dairies, Inc., serving a large area of Windham county. The Dolby Ice Cream company of Providence a few years since established its eastern Connecticut distributing plant here. Last year it merged with various other concerns to form the Eastern Dairies, Inc., a $5,000,000 corporation. A new plant has since been built here, at the easterly end of Reynolds street.

Nothing yet has come of plans to have regular coach transportation between Danielson and East Killingly and Danielson and Goodyear, but the matter is in the works.

PUTNAM

EXPECT QUICK ACTION ON TAXATION PROBLEM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 26—Town officials and committees of semi-public organizations will hold a meeting Thursday evening, to consider the matter of revising the grand list of the town of Putnam, in order to correct the inequalities that now exist.

This committee is as representative a one as could be selected including as it does the following:

Town Assessors Ernest B. Kent, Arthur Tourtelotte, Ulric Beausoleil.

Members of Board of Relief, Frederick W. Seward, Frank Smith, Oscar Dugas.

Selectmen of town, Clarence E. Pierce, William P. Warren, Edward F. Girard.

Representing the city officials, Mayor Victor Chapdelaine, E. C. Rogers, Charles Richard.

Chamber of Commerce, Judge F. F. Russell, Chester E. Elliott, Leon N. Walker.

Rotary club, Samuel Reynolds, Judge M. H. Geissler, Walter J. Bartlett.

It would be difficult to select a body of men better fitted to consider this problem which is one of vital importance to the growth and prosperity of the community. Either as officials or leading business men, they are acquainted with the necessity of such a step; and they are large taxpayers. The consideration of the matter is voluntary on their part and whatever plan or plans that they may deem feasible will be presented to a citizens' meeting. The entire matter of procedure is wholly up to this committee.

When the proposition was first talked over at a meeting of the directors of the chamber of commerce a month ago an objection was made that the committee was too large, that it would be unwieldy. To this Mr. Richard replied that he thought that the committee, which consists of 18 persons, would probably name a small committee, possibly three of their own members, to outline a plan of action.

If the above named committee agree that a revision in tax valuations is desirable and necessary, they will so report to a general citizens meeting. As it should be done by home or outside people, or by a combination of both. It is expected that this committee will consider the different methods, the merits or demerits of each one and so report to the general meeting.

All of the above was presented to the meeting of the directors of the chamber of commerce at their meeting Monday evening at the Putnam Inn, by President T. H. deCoudres. To have seen all of the 18 men named above, to have secured the naming of committees of the council and the Rotary club, and to have agreed upon a night that would meet the wishes of at least a majority represents a stupendous amount of work, and Mr. deCoudres is entitled to a lot of credit regardless of the outcome of the movement.

Practically the entire meeting at which he named the chamber of commerce committee, was devoted to consideration of this matter. It was stated that everyone of the eighteen members of the committee believe in the project and that an tarly revaluation of taxable property is imperative.

At the annual meeting of the Arcanum club association Monday evening it E. Thurston was elected a trustee for five years. There are five trustees, the term of one expiring every year. They are George L. Padgett, Ralph C. Branford; George P. Miner, W. E. Moss and Ralph E. Thurston.

The by-laws were changed so as to provide that the property on South Main street is to be held by the Arcanum Club association for the use of the Putnam Masonic club.

There will be a meeting of the trustees, house committee and entertainment committee Thursday evening to arrange for a tournament for billiard players, pool players and whist players. Other forms of diversions, such as chess and checkers are to be provided and the views of the members of the club, which now numbers over one hundred, are to be ascertained on how to make the club as attractive as possible.

It was stated that the dance held at Odd Fellows hall last Friday evening had been a very enjoyable event socially, that all expenses had been met and something left over.

A large and interested audience "listened in" and "looked in" on the demonstration of how a telephone switchboard is worked given at the Putnam high school auditorium Monday evening. For the most part it was done by motion pictures, with Manager Ralph Booth giving the reason for the demonstration and explaining the various details.

Pictures were shown of the first telephone as invented by Dr. Graham Bell and the various improvements. One picture showed the various parts of a transmitter, then the assembling of them. A striking picture was that of New York city with its millions of telephone wires above ground and of the same city today with not a telephone wire in sight.

One reel purported to show two ordinary transmitters, at the close of a busy day, telling each other of what they had had to endure in the way of use and misuse, the many things that the subscriber could have saved himself by a little knowledge of a phone operator.

An interesting exhibit was the troubles of the trouble-man and what he had to contend with. Then there was the demonstration of how a local phone is operated, then a toll line phone.

GET BUSY ON TAX BILL

With the early disposition of the world court resolution it ought to be followed by action on the revenue bill. Here is a matter which needs to be disposed of as soon as possible in order to permit plenty of time in which to get the tax blanks out and to allow the taxpayers sufficient time in which to make up their returns before the 15th of March rolls around. It is entirely possible for the bill to be passed late and made retroactive so that a refund can be made to the taxpayers, but that involves added expense and work and makes for confusion.

The senate committee's tax bill differs somewhat from that quickly passed by the house. The senate should lose no time in determining what it is going to do with the measure recommended to it. There are points on which a different view is taken from the house and the senate measure proposes a somewhat larger cut than the house bill. This of course means in all probability that a conference will be necessary to adjust differences when the time comes and there remains only a little more than six weeks before the federal taxes are due.

In the senate bill it is proposed to eliminate the inheritance tax entirely. In the house bill there is a graduating levy running to 25 per cent with the provision that 80 per cent of it may be credited to states which lay inheritance taxes. This indicates quite a difference and from the attitude of the house chairman of the ways and means committee it will not be easy to adjust unless the house plan is adopted. There is no question but what the inheritance tax should go. It is a matter that should be left to the states, but it may be desirable that it should disappear gradually. The merits of that point deserve careful consideration, but that consideration will not be obtained through needless delay.

The point that needs to be kept clearly in mind is that tax reduction is desired by the country, that it should be decided a reasonable time in advance of March 15 and that there should be no toleration of obstructionists' tactics.

HIMSELF ALONE TO BLAME

"They finally got him," is the way in which Representative Reid comments on the upholding of the decision of the court martial in the case against Colonel Mitchell, or at least that much of the decision which was not modified by the president's restoration of part pay. Representative Reid was Colonel Mitchell's counsel during the trial, so of course the outcome was not a pleasing one to him, but it doesn't appear to be so much a case of "they" getting him as it does of Colonel Mitchell "getting" himself.

No one forced Colonel Mitchell to do what he did. No one demanded that he should indulge in the wild and unwarranted statements and claims. No one pushed him into the gross disregard for discipline. It was all a deliberate and determined act on his part with a full knowledge of the consequences and good reason to believe that he could expect to have them meted out to him quite the same as anyone else for such conduct.

Colonel Mitchell was given a full and free hearing. He was allowed to bring in much which had no special bearing on the offense charged against him and the sentence imposed was no more than the offense called for in view of the position which the accused officer held and the effect which his conduct was bound to have upon others. The modification which was made by the president at the suggestion of the war department head will make little or no difference to a man of means. There has been no change made in the five year suspension so that his activity in the army for the remainder of this decade is ended and a trouble maker eliminated.

If the upholding of the sentence results in his decision to resign from the army it may mean the dropping out of a capable flier and one who, if his efforts were directed within the right channels, would be missed, but whether he remains or resigns it is time for it to be thoroughly understood that no one is to blame for his predicament but Colonel Mitchell himself.

TAXING THE PARKERS

In looking about for a means of relieving the traffic congestion in Boston, the mayor of that city has made the suggestion that a tax of $5 to $10 a year be levied upon all parkers. That would mean that if you want to park your car in Boston streets, where parking would be permitted, it would be necessary to obtain a license to do so. It isn't known that there is any city where such a plan has been put in operation, but it may be that Boston is prepared to be the dog for a test. Certainly other cities, which may have a more or less fixed idea as to how such a scheme would work, will be interested in seeing how the automobile owners of Boston react in regard to it.

There isn't a community which hasn't its traffic problems. The large number of cars and the disposition to leave them at the curbstone long since made it necessary to establish one way streets, no parking streets, streets where parking is permitted for limited periods on one side and streets from which certain traffic is excluded.

It will be quite human if the mayor of Boston is told that the streets are for the use of all, that there will be no parking allowed for certain ones if all cannot park without being specially taxed and that permitting cars to park in the streets is not keeping the streets free for vehicular use.

There is no reason to believe that what the mayor of Boston is earnestly endeavoring to find a way to relieve the traffic situation in that city and to overcome the congested streets. Apparently he thinks the licensing plan will put a stop to the parking, and that may be its purpose, but there are reasons for believing that he will encounter still opposition even to the point of failure.

It is an old saying that nothing ventured nothing gained. Mayor Nichols has put out a feeler. Whether he does anything more with it will undoubtedly depend upon the kind of reception it gets.

HIGHWAY SIGNS

In its effort for the proper and uniform marking and signing of the highways the American Automobile association is engaged in a much needed work. This need has increased with the gain in the number of modern highways and the users thereof.

Though many do not, it is supposed, that those living within county limits know the location of the various towns and villages. But the users of the highways in a county are by no means restricted to the residents thereof. Large numbers are from elsewhere. They may be going through that county, looking for a village in that county or seeking a certain cross road therein by which to get to their destination.

Are they able to find their way unassisted? They might be if the villages and the cross roads were properly marked. Village and town limits if shown by signs are of much assistance. The association holds the belief that, "It is not enough that the motorist should be told when he reaches the limit on his way in. He should also know when he is outside the limit on the way out and operating again under state regulations."

There is this phase of the town and village marking that is bound to have its good effect upon the traffic and bring greater respect for regulations. In addition the signing of the roads by disclosing the point to which they lead and the distance thereto is a help that ought not to be neglected. There is a mutual benefit if all the towns do it, and it likewise has its good effects upon traffic by subjecting it to less delays through making inquiries or going long distances out of the way. Better marking and uniform marking deserve much more attention than they get.

FAR REACHING RADIO

Radio is comparatively modern. It has gone by leaps and bounds. It hasn't got where it is to be found in every household but at the rate of increase in the past few years it will soon reach such a goal.

There was the time when there were a few broadcasting stations, but that has so changed that there are now more desiring broadcasting licenses than there are wavelengths to assign them. The air is nightly filled with music, talks, addresses, instructions and entertainment. There is so much of it going through the air that the wonder is that anyone is able to tune in on the particular program that is desired.

It is a source of much pleasure for many radio fans to see how many stations can be picked up and especially those at a distance. They are scattered all over this continent from coast to coast and they all reach a large audience. But Europe and South America likewise have their far reaching broadcasting stations and through the cooperation of stations here this week an opportunity is being afforded for radio listeners to catch the music and communications from Spain, Italy, Germany and Argentina and other countries.

Not all are assured of the pleasure of hearing from such foreign stations but it is being demonstrated that it is not impossible and this shows what great strides have been made by science in this direction in the last decade. It may not be long before there will be a foreign program available to the radio fans whenever they want it, or whenever they fail to find sufficient interest in the entertainment that is being furnished at home.

EDITORIAL NOTES

January is itself once more. This year it is a month of extremes.

Mexico does its best to defend its land laws but it hasn't convinced Uncle Sam as yet.

The case of the Chicago gunman must be a bad one when Clarence Darrow refused to take it.

The man on the corner says: The way of the transgressors is still reded on for all the present day sensations.

Marriages in the movie world never seem to have accomplished all that was intended until the divorce court has taken action.

Cole Blease says he would be willing to talk for the next five years. Enough has already been heard from him to last that long.

There is no reason to expect a settlement of the coal strike until the signatures of the leaders of the respective sides are fixed to an agreement.

If a congressional committee thinks Colonel Mitchell can give it any information, it should by all means have a chance to hear him, discounting of course his weakness.

Vice President Dawes couldn't ask for any more convincing demonstration of the need of such changes as he has suggested than some in the senate are already providing.

BUSINESS AND FRIENDS

It was an odd thing that Marian's eyes should come to his mind right in the midst of his considering the matter of the lot. They were her chief beauty, those eyes, brown, warm and wonderfully honest and believing eyes. They were the keynote of her nature—she was the sort of girl who always believed you were a little finer and better than down in your heart you knew you really were.

Yet, after all, it was not so odd, because Marian was all mixed up in this lot proposition with herself and Tom, whose property it was.

Landon could not remember the time when Marian had not been the center of their world.

Landon, with family wealth behind him and native energy of his own, was riding on the top wave. Already his income would place the girl he married above all cares and worries. And Tom—plodding, hard-working Tom—who had perforce to begin at the bottom, was not the type ever to set the world afire. But he had a smile that might carry him far and there were moments when Landon worried over it.

Marian liked he good things of life which she had always had. Tom was not in evidence in many of the good times their crowd had simply because he could not afford the pace. He worked hard and tried to save. Landon felt he knew right well for what he was saving and he recalled his unusual exuberance when he had come to Landon about buying the lot.

"Nothing like land for an investment," Tom had said.

"Not likely to rise in that neighborhood," Landon had told him dubiously. "Safe enough, but don't build any hopes on a fortune, Tommy, old man!"

That had been two years back and he had known that the taxes and assessments had been a strain for Tom to meet. And a week ago Tom had said he wished to heaven he could get rid of it, that luck was against him. That was right after he had seen Marian drive by with Landon in his expensive roadster. Town owned a flivver.

There was no doubt in Landon's mind that he could buy the lot from Tom at a nominal figure and that Tom would be delighted to sell to him. And Landon knew, and Tom did not, of the big deal suddenly on foot to build one of the mammoth several million dollar theatres and business blocks which spring up now and then in outlying districts. Every lot in the square was necessary and the owner of Tom's vacant land, if he were wise, could get practically anything he was firm enough to ask for and stand by.

Landon figured that at least $20,000 could be made on the little deal—and it was perfectly legitimate for him to take Tom's lot off his hands without saying anything. Twenty thousand was just as good to him.

It was there that Marian's eyes had interfered. He was compelled to admit that it would mean indefinitely more to Tom. All the difference in the world, in fact, and perhaps all the difference to himself, too, for Marian had been seeing quite a great deal of Tom of late. Nothing but sickly sentimentality, he told himself, would lead a man to put such a weapon in the hands of his rival.

Landon sat as his desk staring out at the building across the street and not seeing it. Twenty thousand—a wedding trip around the world, pearls from the Paris jewelers for Marian. He wanted so desperately to hear her say yes and what girl could resist that lure when she already liked the man a lot? And if she did like Tom best she'd take him without the $20,000.

He was surprised to find a surge of something like hot hate through his veins at the notion of her marrying Tom.

Yet—Marian's clear eyes, Tom's honest, friendly smile, turned on him! The building across the street presented to his unfocussed stare a sudden blinding brightness in the late sunshine. Suddenly reaching for the phone he called Tom.

"Hello, old man!" Landon said in his resonant tones. "Come on over here can you? I've got good news for you about that lot; something I just heard that's important. Half an hour? O. K.!"

"You're gotta play fair," Landon told himself as he waited for Tom. And, strange to say, he felt stronger and happier—and, oddly enough, more sure of Marian.—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

Friedrich Drake, a Great cuiptor

Many a person turned his play into creative genius. Friedrich Drake was a German boy and his job was to learn how to make cabinets—how to use the saw and the plane, to make neat joints, to put on veneering, and to make presentable pieces of furniture. He had long hours and plenty of work. Still, he had spirit left for play.

And so he got hold of some clay and amused himself, in spare hours, modeling little figures. They were crude enough at first, the sort that any person can make. "That's a funny looking man!" said one who looked on. "Here's a better one," answered Friedrich, immediately making another. So he went on, until one day one of his friends came by and found that he did really worth while work. "Say, you ought to go to a regular professional and learn how to do that just right. You're great!"

With that, the good friend hunted up a professional, and said: "Say here's a fellow who really can model. You ought to see him!"

The professional did, and he at once took Friedrich Drake for his pupil. Now the young man improved by leaps and bounds. At 25 he found his way to Italy, where his smiling face and his energy and talent made him the friend of the great sculptor, Thorvaldsen. Then Friedrich Drake began to do something that made even Thorvaldsen sit up and take notice. He modeled such bits of sculpture as would have delighted any one, strong, realistic, virile, original, powerful pieces. Today in the great city of Berlin you will see the master monuments that a former cabinet maker made. They are among the greatest pieces of statuary in the world. Busts, nigh statues, enormous groups, figures on horseback, emblems of victory and power, representations of the thought of his people—all these that former cabinet maker made for his native land. It had paid him to amuse himself that day with the bit of clay. It always pays to create something no matter what that something is. The one who destroys is the one who is dangerous.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Graft.

Mr. Editor: What is graft in the business world?

Graft is money gotten by a grafter into his own pocket which belongs in the other fellow's pocket.

How can we determine how much graft a man is getting in his pay if he has a government job?

Find what the average pay is for the same work in the competition world of business. All over that is graft.

If a man is a grafter in the competitive world of business you can steer clear of him. But if he puts the game across at his city hall, state house or national capitol he has you at the tax office or rent office, or store office, or post office.

Graft is a very bad precedent to make for any class of governmental workers because if we allow graft for one class sooner or later other governmental workers will point to the established precedent by which they could enjoy the same consideration, for themselves on an equitable basis. Anyone but an American congressman could see where such a course would lead to eventually every farmer and city worker, not in an effective graft combine of his own, would be a slave to the governmental grafters of this great United States of America!

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Prince Charles Edward, the English-born grandson of the late Queen Victoria, who became Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha upon the death of his uncle, the former Duke of Edinburgh, his seats include the castle of Friedenstein in Gotha, and also a second ducal residence in Gotha, Schloss Reinhardsbrunn. The last-named is situated in the Thuringian forest, and the surrounding scenery is among the fairest in all Germany. It is in Thuringen that the Wartburg stands, a castle famous in German history as the scene of the literary triumphs of Wolfraw von Eschenbach in the Middle Ages, and afterwards as the temporary prison of Martin Luther. Visitors are still shown the window out of which the great Reformer sprang for liberty.

Stories That Recall Others

The Three Wild Men.

In illustration of the amusing misunderstandings during Christmas time may be mentioned the impressions of a little five year old boy who took part in a tableau at one of the churches depicting beautiful events commemorating the nativity.

On being asked by his mother next morning who it was who followed the star until it stood above the manger in Bethlehem, he replied: "The three wild men." Being further asked what kind of gifts they brought, he replied: "Gold, frankness and mercury."

Truth Stranger Than Fiction.

A plaintiff in a personal injury case was testifying about the injuries he had received. He said he had an X-ray photograph taken of his head.

"What did that picture disclose?" asked the attorney for the defense.

"It showed there was nothing there," the plaintiff naively replied.

It took the jury ten hours to reach a verdict for the defendant.

AMPLIFYING APPARATUS DOES ITS WORK TOO WELL

In the British house of lords the amplifying apparatus recently installed to improve audition has done its work too well. The lords had some amusing moments when parliament opened this week. Every one in the chamber could hear plainly every whisper uttered by any member or visitor. An extraordinary barrage of sibilant confidences flooded the room. The rustling of papers came through like the rattle of a machine gun, and when a noble peer demonstratively slapped his fist on the dispatch box the noise was like that of a bomb explosion. But what could least be borne was the sudden end of all crossbench whispering, muttered contradictions and pleasantly caustic undertones. They were no undertones by the time the amplifiers got them. They were shouts. Consequently the house of lords is going back to pre-radio days of muttered silences.

U. S. Feeds the World.

The United States supplies to the world each year about 77,000,000 cans of vegetables and 20,000,000 cans of fruit.

Spinach is the king of canned vegetables, having increased since 1909 over 1,000 per cent. Asparagus is second with a gain of 408 per cent. Beans and beets came next in popularity says the Thrift Magazine.

Berries have increased 200 per cent. in the fruit class. Cherries, however, hold the record with 445 per cent. increase since 1909. Peaches are second with a 380 per cent. gain.

On the whole vegetables increased 120 per cent. and fruit 268. During the period population increased only 22 per cent.

An officer was showing an old lady over the battleship. Pointing to an incribed plate, he said, "And this is where our gallant captain fell."

"No wonder," she replied. "I nearly tipped on it myself."—Georgia Cracker.

Out of the Frying Pan Into the Fire.

This saying is both old and terse; Though bad be bad, it might be worse. —Old Mother Nature.

That is, of course, the real meaning of the saying, "Out of the frying pan into the fire." When any one is in trouble and in trying to run away from it runs into even greater trouble, they are said to have "jumped from the frying pan into the fire." It means simply that they are worse off than they were before.

Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse having made up their minds to leave Farmer Brown's big barn because Shadow the Weasel was there, wasted no time. They started at once. Danny led the way.

"Where are we going?" whispered Nanny as they started.

"I don't know," Danny whispered back. "Anywhere is better than here with Shadow the Weasel about."

Now Danny had intended to make straight for the strawstack in the barnyard and, after he reached that, decide where to go next. But he didn't get to that strawstack. You see, he caught a glimpse of Shadow the Weasel and that was enough to make him turn in the opposite direction. My, my, my how he and Nanny did run! It was surprising how fast those short legs of theirs could go. They were so frightened that they didn't pay any attention to where they were going. They had but one thought and that was to get as far as possible from Shadow the Weasel. So it was that, instead of leaving the barn from the back as they had intended to, they came to the front door. It was open a crack. Danny slipped through with Nanny right at his heels. Danny looked around hastily. A short distance away was another great building. It was Farmer Brown's house. Danny didn't know this, but he did know that usually there were hiding places under any big building. He didn't dare sit still in broad daylight; so he led the way across the dooryard straight to the back porch of Farmer Brown's house. There was a hole under it. With a little sigh of relief he dived through the hole with Nanny at his heels. It was quite dark under that porch and it was dry and comfortable. "We'll stay here," whispered Danny, "until we have a chance to decide what it is best to do.

They started at once; Danny led the way

I don't believe Shadow will come over here. He will stay in that barn as long as there are any Rats there. My, but I'm glad to get away from there!"

Nanny was just about to reply in that funny, squeaky little voice of hers, but instead she gave the faintest of gasps. Peering in at that hole through which they had come were two greenish eyes. At least, that is the way they looked to Danny and Nanny. They had seen them many times in the big barn. But in the big barn those eyes didn't frighten them at all. Now it was different. Those were the eyes of Black Pussy the Cat. In the barn were plenty of places they could hid from Black Pussy. Here under the porch there might be no hiding place at all. You see, they never had been under there before. They were so frightened they didn't know what to do, so they did nothing. As it happens, this was the wisest thing possible. Black Pussy didn't see them and she didn't hear them, because, of course, they made no noise. But do you know what they wished? They actually wished that they were back in that big barn even with Shadow the Weasel there. They felt as if they were worse off than before.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

GIRL GAINED 7 POUNDS NINE YEARS AN INVALID

That's just what McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets did for the Babcock Girl—and is doing as much for tens of thousands of thin, underweight, weak and discouraged people all over America.

These sugar coated, pleasant to take tablets should be given to children instead of the vile stomach upsetting oil itself—they surely do help the frail, delicate little ones and 60 tablets cost but 60 cents at Lee & Osgood Co. or any druggists.

Read this letter if you have a child that needs to gain health and strength.

"My little girl was stricken with infantile paralysis when she was 5 months old and was an invalid for 9 years—when I saw an ad in the paper that McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets would build up wasted tissues. I bought a box and she gained very slowly at first and after taking eight boxes, she gained seven pounds. Thanks to McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, after trying almost everything else on the market. She is on the road to recovery and goes to school every day." Mrs. L. Babcock, Appleton, Wis.

Imitations of McCoy's may be offered but be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine and if after thirty days' treatment you are not delighted with results—why, get your money back.

FUNERALS.

John T. Clark

At 2.45 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the funeral of John T. Clark was held from the rooms of Undertaker C. A. Gager, No. 70 Franklin street. There was an attendance of friends including a delegation from the Arcanum club of which Mr. Clark had been a member for years. Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church, conducted the service and burial took place in Yantic cemetery where Rev. Mr. Ricketts conducted the committal service. The bearers were Richard S. Gernon, Henry H. Gallup, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, and Reuben S. Bartlett.

Lucy Jeannette Spencer

Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the funeral of Miss Lucy Jeannette Spencer was held, with a prayer service at the Elisa Huntington Memorial Home, 99 Washington street, for members of the household and intimate friends. At 3:30, in the Central Baptist church, public services for Miss Spencer were attended by a large number of church members, public school teachers of Norwich, former pupils of Miss Spencer and many acquaintances of the family during a long term of residence on Laurel Hill. The Broadway school grades were dismissed early, that the teachers might have an opportunity to be present at the service. Among the beautiful floral forms was one from the household at the Huntington Home, also a choice form of calla lilies from the teachers at Broadway.

The church quartet, Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., Mrs. Olive Adams Potter, Frank Helmke and Fred J. Maples sang "Lead, Kindly Light," following which the pastor, Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt read the Scriptures and offered prayer. Dr. Pitt paid a merited tribute to Miss Spencer's helpful and abiding interest in the church and its varied activities, referring also to her valued service in the Norwich schools and her influence on the lives of so many pupils now doing their work faithfully out in the great world, largely due to her conscientious and painstaking preparation of her classes.

After the quartet had given "Trusting in Jesus," Dr. Pitt called upon a former member of the church and a long-time friend of Miss Spencer, Rev. Dr. Clarence Mason Gallup, pastor of the Central Baptist church, Providence, who, in accordance with the special wish of Miss Spencer came to participate in her funeral services.

Dr. Gallup eulogized Miss Spencer as he had known her since his early boyhood, a woman of engaging personality, the most refined tastes, impressive in her dignity, inspiring friends and pupils by her worth and integrity, well-read and well informed, whose influence through precept and example had been far-reaching, incalculable in its force for good. Both clergymen stressed the firmness of her convictions and the steadfastness of her faith; how much the fine fibre of her character meant in church, educational and social circles in the town.

Rev. Dr. Pitt pronounced the benediction, after the quartet had given "Abide With Me." Miss Louise Fuller accompanying at the organ.

The ushers at the church were James L. Case and Charles W. Burton.

The bearers were Charles S. Storms, George A. Ashbey, Edward Y. Messenger, Frederick D. Vergason and Emery H. Davis, of Norwich and Frederick Moore, of Hartford.

Following cremation, burial is to be in the family plot in Yantic cemetery where Miss Spencer's mother and two sisters are buried. Her only living near relative, Mrs. Latham, of Mystic, was too feeble to attend the services.

The funeral arrangements were in charge of Charles A. Gager.

BIG HOUSE APPLAUDS LOCAL CAST IN LIONS' CLUB MUSICAL COMEDY

"That's That," bright and peppy two-act musical comedy, presented by the Lions club of Norwich, was enthusiastically greeted on its opening night at the Broadway theatre on Tuesday evening. Clever portrayal of the comedy parts by an excellent cast and the bright chorus numbers together with a number of specialities all contributed to make this production one of distinction. The leading character parts were exceptionally well taken and the solo numbers and comedy lines were admirably handled. It was a pleased audience that encored repeatedly the numbers through the entire performance and the members of the company gracefully responded.

MRS. WALTER M. BUCKINGHAM

It was without doubt one of the prettiest musical comedies shown in Norwich in some time, the music and lyrics being catchy and bright. A splendid array of vocal talent contributed to the success of putting across this sparkling comedy.

The story of That's That is light but appealing to the fancy. The opening scene is laid in the lobby of one of the fashionable Palm Beach hotels where northern guests have assembled for the winter season. It appears that Mrs. Archibald Suthweld and her niece Eloise Reswick are staying at the hotel and Eloise has fallen in love with a handsome life guard, Kenneth Jones. This love affair is very much against the wishes of Mrs. Suthweld who has other plans for her niece. Mrs. Suthweld hopes to fix a match between her niece and the son of a very dear friend but Eloise is so deeply in love with the life guard that she will hear nothing of it. As the plot unfolds it is found that Kenneth Jones is none other than the son of John Neilson, a bottle king, and the very one whom Mrs. Suthweld wishes her niece to marry. However neither Mrs. Suthweld nor her niece Eloise realize this until the closing act. Of course, as in all good love stories, everything turns out as expected.

Running along with the main plot of the story is another pretty little romance between, Nanette, daughter of John Neilson and brother of Kenneth, who falls violently in love with Martin Morris a college roommate of Kenneth. Another delightful bit of romance is furnished by Letitia, a little country girl, who has come to Palm Beach in an effort to climb into society, and Eddie, a humorous rustic who comes in search of Letitia. Then as a contrast is Mamie and Mickey, who "just blew in" from the East Side of New York.

Outstanding among these characters was Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham who portrayed the part of Eloise. Mrs. Buckingham in her characterization of this role brought into play her remarkable ability as an actress, singer and dancer, three qualities seldom found in one person and produced with such perfect understanding.

WALTER LA FONTAINE

Playing opposite Mrs. Buckingham was Lyle H. Fillmore, as Kenneth Jones, the life guard. Mr. Fillmore's work was worthy of mention as he proved himself an ideal lover and carried his part with notable realism. His song and dance numbers were exceptionally well rendered.

The portrayal of the role of Mrs. Suthweld, the society matron by Mrs. Myles E. Standish was one of the many bright spots in the production. Mrs. Standish portrayed the part with complete understanding and her acting in the various moods called for in her character was of such a nature as to do credit to a professional.

Another finely portrayed character was that of Martin Morris taken by Walter LaFontaine whose work was exceptionally well done. Mr. LaFontaine possessed a nice voice which he used to good advantage in his solo numbers. He was forced to respond to several encores.

Playing opposite Mr. LaFontaine was Mrs. Helen MacKenzie in the role of Nanette. Mrs. MacKenzie possesses a delightful voice and her speaking part was admirably done.

Billy Mitchell as Eddie Dewey, the rustic, scored instantly with his interpretation of his role. Mr. Mitchell has an attractive singing voice and his solo numbers were exceptionally well rendered. Billy was perfectly at home on the stage and his humorous lines were given in a way that he scored hit after hit. It would be hard to find anyone who could have equalled his interpretation of the part. Billy who is always popular with Norwich audiences has increased his popularity in this last local production.

Mamie and Mickey, the two East Siders, are inseparable roles and these were cleverly and brightly taken by Ruth Eaton and Tyler S. Stanton. These two comedy roles lent just enough of the humorous side to make their parts indispensable to the production. Their bowery dance was one of the brightest in the play.

Letitia was excellently taken by Mrs. Paul Chivers who made a very attractive appearance as the social climber. Mrs. Chivers has a sweet voice which she used to good advantage in her solos.

Herbert McNeely, as John Neilson, the bottle king, played opposite Mrs Standish and his portrayal of the staid business man was a real treat. His acting was exceptionally good and showed a perfect conception of the role.

Last but by no means the least was Willie the bellhop, cleverly and realistically played by Jimmy Brassill. Jimmy was exceptionally good.

The parts of Suzzette and Jane Bronson were portrayed by Miss Helen Owens and Miss Bertha Hahn.

Of the specialty numbers was the Charleston chorus featuring Meyer Rutchik in a Charleston solo number. Mr. Rutchik was exceptionally clever in this dancing number and was very ably supported by his group of eight Charleston girls. This number came in for insistent applause and several encores were given. As a dancer of the Charleston, Mr. Rutchik showed himself to be without an equal outside the professional stage. His dance was very well done and it was with reluctance that the audience permitted him to leave the stage.

Another pleasing as well as attractive number was the Old Mill Wheel chorus with its pretty setting and lighting effects. Lyle H. Fillmore sang the solo part very effectively.

The other chorus and song numbers were very effective and well executed.

Don't dose a Child's Cold

CHILDREN hate to be dosed with medicine. Vicks VapoRub relieves colds, without dosing, in two ways at once. When rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime:—

(1) It is vaporised by the body heat and inhaled right to the inflamed air passages and lungs;

(2) At the same time it acts through the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the pain, tightness and soreness.

Of course Vicks is just as good for the cold troubles of adults.

DONOVAN OF ENDICOTT WINS THE MILE SENIOR RACE SKATING CHAMPIONSHIP

ST. JOHN, N. B., Jan. 26.—(AP)—Charley Gorman, Canadian outdoor champion, led the field with 50 points at the end of the opening day event in the three-day world championship speed skating events. He won the 220 in 191-5 seconds and placed second in the mile.

Clas Thunberg of Finland, Olympic champion who had been defeated twice in indoor competition by Joe Moore and Gorman in New York this winter made a brave showing in the heats and semi-finals of the 220-yard and mile races but failed in the finals. In the mile final he took the lead at the crack of the gun and set the pace for four and one-half of the six laps. The Finn showed signs of distress at the end of the fourth and half way through the following round every man in the field passed him and beat him to the tape. He finished fifth in the 220.

Valentine Bialis of Lake Placid, N. Y., led to within a few inches to the tape in the sensation mile final but fell, and Richard (Duke) Donavon of Endicott, N. Y., shot over the line with Gorm and Willie Logan of St. John at his heels. Tonight there arose a dispute as to the eligibility of Donavan for the event, it being contended that he did not qualify in the semi-finals and was not eligible for the finals. His time was 2 minutes, 45 seconds.

Should Donovan's victory be thrown out Gorman would be a double winner, with 60 points already gathered and each of the other contestants would move up a place.

Lelia Brooks of Toronto captured the 440-yard senior race for women, with Elsie Muller of New York second and Sybil Beatty of St. John third. The time was 46 seconds.

With Donovan's victory still in dispute, the point score for the first day follows:

Charles Gorman, St. John, 50; Richard Donovan, Endicott, N. Y., 30; Eddie Murphy, Chicago, 20; William Logan, St. John, 10; O'Neill Farrell, Chicago 10.

Murphy and Farrell were second and third respectively in the 220-yard event.

C. A. C. EXPECTS TO WIN OVER SPRINGFIELD

STORRS, Conn., Jan. 26.—The Springfield College five, exponents of the western style of court play, will meet the Connecticut Aggies here tomorrow night.

After being defeated by Wesleyan and Union last week on their respective courts, Connecticut will make a strong attempt to return to the victory column in meeting Springfield. Two contrasting styles of basketball play will be seen in tomorrow night's contest; Springfield using the western game, and Connecticut the eastern style of play. The physical directors use short passes with much deception, and they follow a man for man type of defensive play. Last year, the Aggies solved this western game and defeated the "Y" team here and at Springfield.

Springfield comes to Storrs with a good record, having defeated Tufts, Norwich and Worcester Tech. The Tufts game was played at Medford, with Springfield finally winning in an extra five-minute overtime period by a 27-25 score. Connecticut had no difficulty in winning from Tufts here, but that means nothing at all as far as forecasting the result of tomorrow's game is concerned.

Springfield has two sophomore stars in James and Wagner, left forward and center respectively. Both have been consistently high scorers in their first season of varsity competition, and are expected to play a prominent part in the Physical Directors' game. Springfield is even better fortified, Springfield as even better fortified, as Captain Crawley and Banks are veterans of three seasons.

Coach Dole has found it necessary to shift the Aggie lineup because of the illness of Allard, left guard, who will not start tomorrow night. Schofield has been moved from left forward to Allard's place, and Watson will take Schofield's forecourt berth. Though not starting, and not in the best of physical condition, Allard may be sent into the game in case his services are badly needed.

HELEN WILLS SCORES EASY VICTORY AT CANNES

CANNES, France, Jan., 26.—(AP)—Miss Helen Wills, the American tennis champion, sailed serenely through the first round of the Gallia tournament today, defeating Miss Bendit, 6-1, 6-0. The California girl found repose from the strenuous days of the semi-finals and finals of the Metropole tournament in her play today, as her opponent was no match for her, scoring only six points in each set.

Miss Wills also won two matches in the mixed doubles with the English player Jack Hilliard, advancing to the third round.

Meanwhile Mlle Suzanne Lenglen in the finals of the Metropole tournament paired with Jacques Brugnon, won from Mlle Contoslavos and Mr. Fisher, 6-0, 6-1, and teamed with Mlle Vlasto in the womens doubles defeated Mrs. Satterthwaite and Mlle Contoslavos, 6-0, 6-2.

The French champion will take a week's rest while Miss Wills will continue to play through the Gallia tournament, in both singles and mixed doubles.

YALE HONORS MEMORY OF JOHN CAMPBELL GREENWAY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 26.—(AP)—A minute "honoring the memory and the significant service of John Campbell Greenway," '95, who died recently, was passed at a meeting of the executive committee of the board of control of the Yale university athletic association last night. It follows:

"On behalf of the board of control of the Yale athletic association and of that larger Yale community whose interests it is privileged to represent, the members of the executive committee unite in honoring the memory and the significant service of John Campbell Greenway, president of the class of 1895 in the Sheffield Scientific School, an honorable representative of undergraduate Yale, both on and off his earlier fields of contest. John Greenway found in the field of national service throughout the Spanish and World wars the fulfilment of a loyal life. Closely associated in the national regard with Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, under whom he served and won promotion for gallantry in action, he later won on the field of honor overseas the most signal and repeated honors of France and of America for distinguished service. On him was rightly conferred the knighthood of the legion of honor, for in him courage mated with Chivalry, and modesty matched merit. 'Interger Vitae, Scelerisque Purus.' 'John Greenway enriched the university traditions which he exemplified.'"

JEWETT CITY PROS CLASH WITH WEBSTER KACEYS

Tonight at Bijou hall, Jewett City the Kaceys of Webster, Mass. claimants of the Western Mass. professional championship will meet the Jewett City Pros in what should prove another whirlwind attraction. The Pros, after a streak of tough luck, are out to vanquish the Kaceys. Jewett City will use its strongest line-up, namely, Capt. Benjamin and Mondi Normindin at forwards, Harry Mills at center, Faber, Blake and Barry at the guard positions. Webster will use their regular team, the names of the players not being on hand at this writing. These teams include the greatest living celebrities in Jewett City. While on the floor they might look like an accident, they all know their oats and the game should resemble the battle of Bunker Hill.

BABE RUTH TALKED WITH NEW LONDON FANS

NEW LONDON, Jan. 26—Babe Ruth, the hard-hitting outfielder of the New York Yankees, was in New London for a brief time late this afternoon, being a passenger on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad train to arrive here at 4.04 o'clock en route from New York to Boston. During the stop at the Union station Ruth alighted and no sooner had he done so than he was seen by John Gibson, crossing tender and Danny Shea, yard brakeman. Both Gibson and Shea are baseball fans of the most rabid sort and they at once approached the big bambino and entered into a conversation with the star of the diamond. Ruth declared himself fit to start the season and he looked the part for he has lost much of his superfluous flesh.

AMERICAN YACHTS REMAIN IN THE LEAD

HAVANA, Jan. 26—(AP)—Three American yachts were again in the lead at the finish in the open races of the star class off Havana today, Irex III, a Long Island Sound boat, was first in 1 hour, 14 minutes, 10 seconds over the 5 kilometre course; Sonny, owned by W. L. Inslee, was second and Jane, third. Maia II broke her job and did not finish.

The contests for the Cuban trophy start tomorrow.

TENNIS STARS TO INVADE KINGSTON, B. W. I.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP)—America's invasion of foreign tennis courts opened in Southern France by Helen Wills, will spread to a new sector with the departure tomorrow of a party of United States players for Kingston, British West Indies, to participate in the Jamaica championships in February.

In the contingent will be A. H. Chapin, Jr., of Springfield, Mass., and Mrs. Chapin, the former Charlotte Hosmer of San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. S. Howard Voshell, of New York, Beals C. Wright of New York and Miss Molls D. Thayer of Philadelphia. The invading Americans will be joined by Takeiichi Harda, a Japanese Davis Cup star, now studying in Boston.

After the Jamaica tournament, the players expect to proceed to Cuba for a three day tournament at Havana.

Amherst-Aggie Game a Tie

AMHERST, Mass., Jan. 26.—(AP)—Amherst and Massachusetts Agricultural college played a scoreless hockey game through two overtime periods today, and the game was then called on account of darkness. Excellent work by each goalie accounted for the deadlock.

BOXING COMMISSIONERS RULE THAT BERLENBACK MUST FIGHT M'TIGUE

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Paul Berlenbach, world's light heavyweight champion, is morally bound to give Mike McTigue, former titleholder, a return match before he engages in another contest in this state. This ruling was made by the state athletic commission today, after reviewing the case following Berlenbach's refusal to sign for the match.

At the same time the board ruled that it had selected Bushy Graham of Utica, N. Y., as the outstanding challenger for the bantamweight title and that Charlie (Phil) Rosenberg, titleholder, must fight Graham on or before March 19, the date selected for the match by Jess McMahon, matchmaker at Madison Square Garden.

The board intimated that Berlenbach will not be forced into the match with McTigue immediately, as, under the law, he has six months in which to accept the challenge. Berlenbach's six months, in this case, expires June 11. But, Commissioner James A. Farley said, if Berlenbach elects to fight in this state before June 11 McTigue must be his opponent. The commission ruled, however, that the champion can go outside of the state and engage in any matches he wishes without fear of suspension from the New York board.

In commenting on the match, Chairman Farley said:

"We find that when Berlenbach signed to fight McTigue for the Title last May, he made a verbal promise to give McTigue a return contest in the event he succeeded in lifting the crown. As the champion has failed to live up to this agreement, we are forcing him into the match.

Dan Hickey, manager of Berlenbach, said after the hearing that he would consider the matter and give his decision later in the week but he intimated that he would accept the match for Madison Square Garden, February 19, the date selected by Matchmaker McMahon. Hickey has endeavored to obtain official permission to fight Ernie Owens or Eddie Huffman of California and Young Stribling of Georgia but these matches will have to be sidetracked until after the the McTigue fight, the commission said.

The managers of Johnny Brown of England and Frankie Genaro, former American flyweight champion, appeared at the commission with certified checks of $2,500 to post with challenges against Rosenberg but the board refused to accept them and named Graham as the logical challenger. At the same time, the commission said, Rosenberg will have to sign his own contract for the match as Harry Seigel, his manager, is on the board's ineligible list.

Rosenberg did not appear but when he heard of the edict he said any matches he appeared in would be contracted by his manager. He also said he was considering an offer of $35,000 to fight Carl Tremaine at Cleveland in a title match. He intimated that he would accept the offer.

The board gave permission to the promoters of a hospital charity affair at Madison Square Garden, March 1, to stage 42 rounds of boxing and at the same time to contract fighters on a guarantee instead of the usual percentage basis. However, the commission said, 50 per cent. of the gross receipts must be turned over to the hospital.

Bobby Garcia of Camp Holabird, Md., and Honeyboy Finnegan of Boston were reinstated following 30 days' suspensions. Garcia was suspended for fouling Finnegan while the latter was placed under a ban at the request of the Pennsylvania commission.

MISS WILLS HAS NO CHANCE SAYS TILDEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—(AP)—Helen Wills "hasn't any chance to beat Mlle. Langlen on the Riviera," in the opinion of William T. Tilden, expressed today in an interview with the Brooklyn Eagle.

The national tennis champion, who has had opportunities to study the play of both feminine stars, believes Miss Wills would have some chance to win at Wimbledon and an even chance on her home courts but discounts her prospects of victory in France because of unfamiliar environment.

"If I were coaching Helen for this coming match," Tilden is quoted as saying, "I would send her on the courts with instructions to 'hit the cover off the ball.' Place plus speed is the one thing that may break up Suzanne's uncanny control. It is just possible that a terrific burst of savage slugging might demoralize the French girl. Helen must get the jump to win."

"Mlle. Lenglen is a genius and, as such, subject to flights of artistic temperament. Miss Wills hasn't the guile or the court craft to beat Suzanne at her own game. As a strategist Miss Wills is not in Lenglen's class. Helen may have a poker face but Suzanne has a chess brain.

"Psychology is half the battle and you can say this for Helen—she won't be frightened by a reputation. Suzanne will have to beat Helen on the tennis court."

MLLE. LENGLEN SAYS THAT SHE WILL PLAY MISS WILLS

CANNES, France, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the French tennis champion, after winning two finals (doubles), in the metropole tournament, has authorized the Associated Press to make the following statement:

"I will decide on Saturday, January 30, in what tournament I will play the single. I would like to play at Nice, but circumstances over which I will be delighted to meet Miss Wills, but cannot risk injuring my health, and if my physical condition does not warrant my playing in my dear home town of Nice on February 1, then I must meet her in the Carleton hotel tournament at Cannes, February 8."

Miss Wills, when informed of this, merely said: "I am entered in both tournaments' singles."

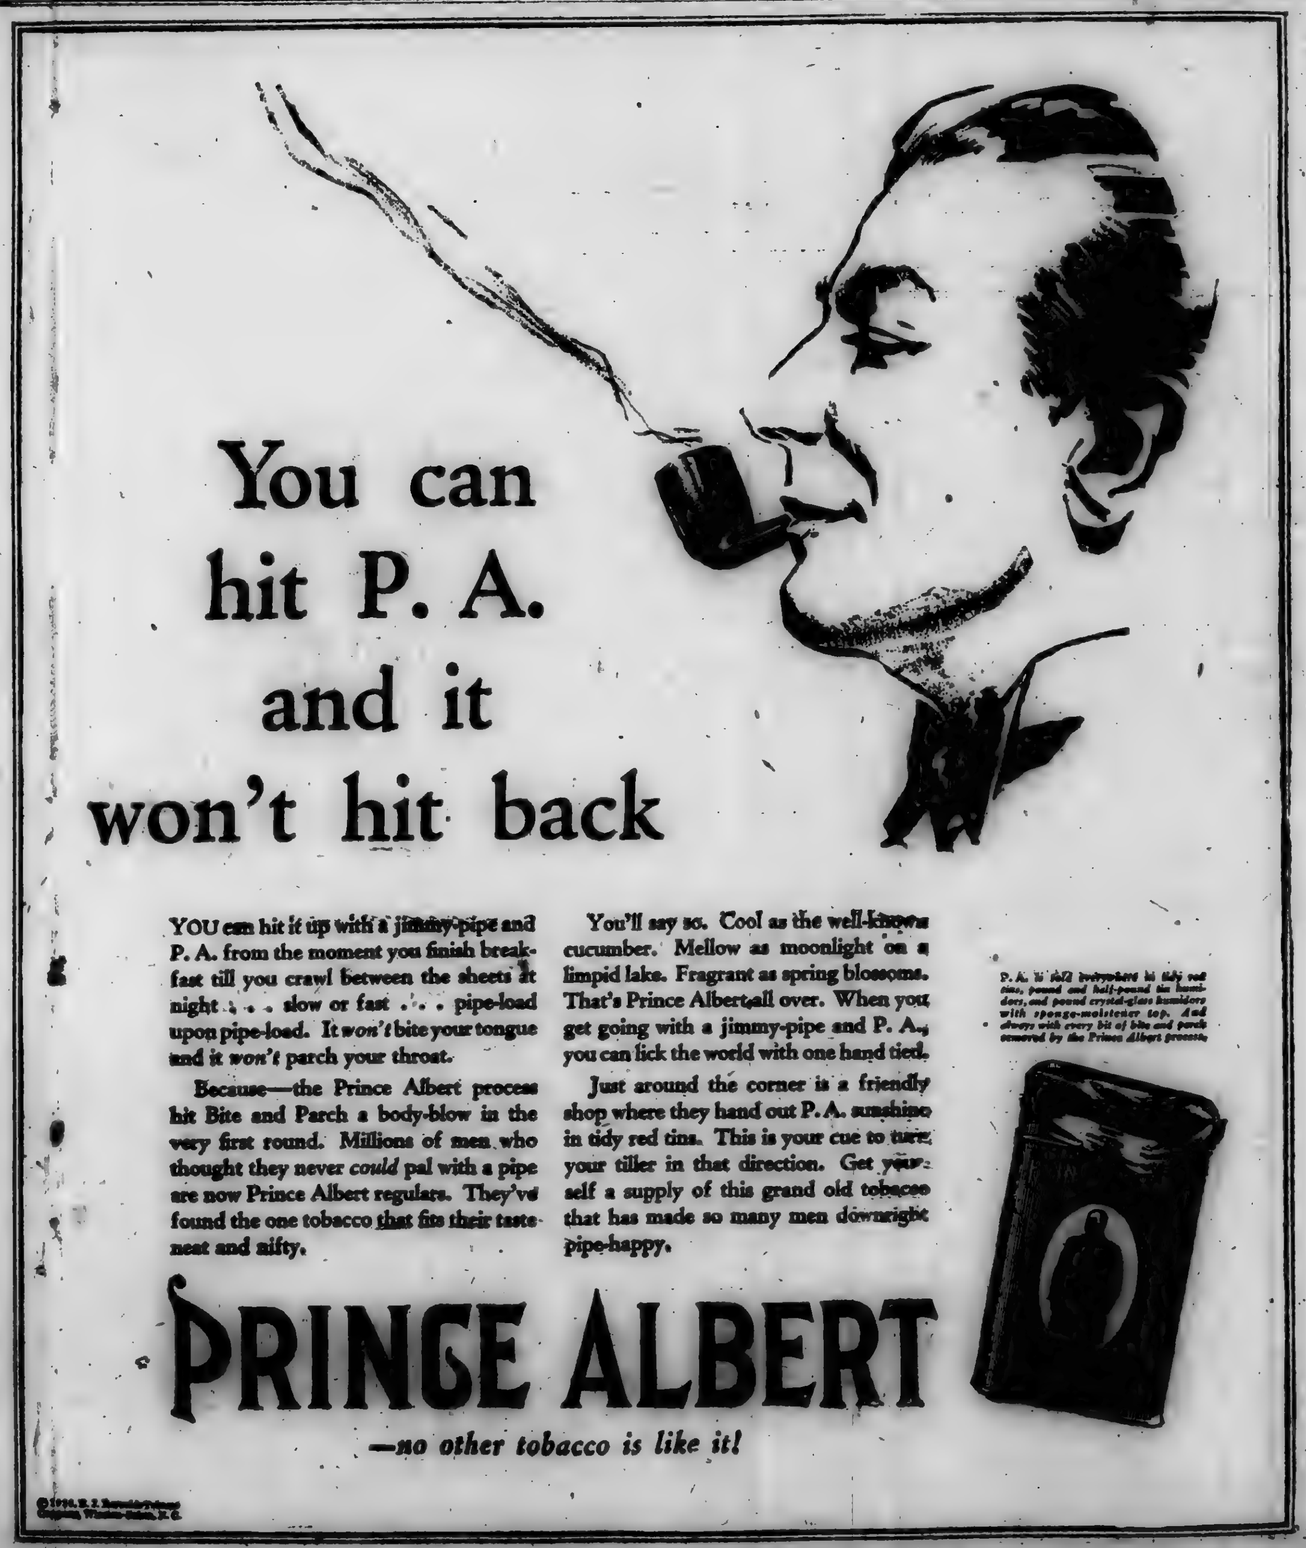
Increases Capital.

The Willimantic Industrial company of Windham has increased its capital from $200,000 to $300,000.



You can hit P. A. and it won't hit back

YOU can hit it up with a jimmy-pipe and P. A. from the moment you finish breakfast till you crawl between the sheets at night . . . slow or fast . . . pipe-load upon pipe-load. It won't bite your tongue and it won't parch your throat.

Because—the Prince Albert process hit Bite and Parch a body-blow in the very first round. Millions of men who thought they never could pal with a pipe are now Prince Albert regulars. They've found the one tobacco that fits their taste neat and nifty.

You'll say so. Cool as the well-known cucumber. Mellow as moonlight on a limpid lake. Fragrant as spring blossoms. That's Prince Albert all over. When you get going with a jimmy-pipe and P. A., you can lick the world with one hand tied.

Just around the corner is a friendly shop where they hand out P. A. sunshine in tidy red tins. This is your cue to turn your tiller in that direction. Get yourself a supply of this grand old tobacco that has made so many men downright pipe-happy.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

FIRE DISCLOSES INLAND TOWN ONCE HAD BIG NAVY YARD

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Jan 26—(AP)—This inland city was once the possessor of an extensive navy yard.

Down in the railroad section, a few blocks off Tryon street, a thoroughfare named after General Tryon, one-time governor of His Majesty's colony of North Carolina, a heap of blackened ashes marks the spot where 60 years ago the confederate government rushed the Norfolk navy yard supplies to save them from capture by the Northern army.

Thus came about the erection of what has been claimed here as "the far inland navy yard in modern history."

The incident that is credited with having thrown the southern executives into fright over the safety of their Norfolk station, was the battle in Hampton Roads between the Monitor and Merrimac. Tools and machinery from Virginia yards were hastily loaded aboard flat cars and sent southward to Charlotte.

Frame structures were hurriedly constructed on acquired property and included a gun carriage shop, a laboratory, and a torpedo shop. Next a forge shop was built in which was made the largest steam hammer turned in the south up to that period. Here also shafting was forged for all the Confederate "iron clads." Rifles, solid shot, shells and torpedoes were manufactured, as well as batteries for all vessels.

Insomnia of the midnight cat is infectious.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

Last week with its changing temperatures and its rains was a very unfavorable week as far as local building operations were concerned. The warmer weather was welcomed by the contractors that had cement work to do on interior jobs but the rain was unwelcome to those who were engaged on the exterior jobs.

However, fairly good progress was made on local building and the contractors are much encouraged over the prospects for 1926. The majority of builders anticipate an exceptionally good building season. The past year was a good one and all building trade publications predict another banner year in 1926. They are quoted in saying that building material will probably remain at the same prices and there is a possibility that the prices may drop during the present year.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 7 sales of real estate, five less than for the same week in 1925. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $12,700 and $67,425.

There were 10 sales of real estate in New London during the past week an increase of three sales over the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $52,080 and $30,875.

Better Building Ethics

The Hartford Chapter, Associated General Contractors, have expressed their intention to continue a campaign for a "better code of ethics in industry." They want to foster the establishment of a consistent policy that would apply in the building industry from the contractor right down the line to all connected with the erection of a new structure. In this desire, the Associated General Contractors in Hartford are to be heartily commended as it is clear that if would be better for all there were more co-operation between the contractors and those with whom they are associated. That there is a real need for less "throatcutting" tactics is generally agreed among the leading contractors who are practically all behind this "better ethics" movement. The members of Hartford Chapter, in a recent letter to the leading business men in that city have also expressed themselves as opposed to a five-day week schedule, which they declare to be economically unsound.

AUSTRALIANS ROUGH IT. AS NEW CAPITAL BUILT

MELBOURNE, Jan 26—(AP)—Within the next few months the capital of Australia will be a long town of wooden buildings hastily erected to become the center of political and social life of a large country.

The jealousies of the larger cities of Australia, Melbourne, the present capital, Sydney, Adelaide, and Brisbane have led to the vast undertaking of founding a new government center far from any of them.

The fight for the capital was carried on by the large cities for many years until just before the war, when it was decided to build the city of Canberra in New South Wales as the future capital of the country. Temporary wooden buildings have been erected to house the parliament, the governor general, the Prime Minister and most of the government offices. Officials will have to "rough" it at Canberra for several years while the permanent city is being built.

The prospective capital has been planned with great care. The site selected is the best on the continent for a healthy and beautiful city. It will be laid in a natural green basin, some of the surrounding heights reaching 6,000 feet. The basin itself is 22,000 feet above sea level, cool and windswept. It is 204 miles from Sydney, 429 miles from Melbourne and 912 miles from Brisbane, far enough from the nearest city to maintain an individuality.

The streets have been laid out scientifically and even the trees and plants have been selected with care. Government experts worked many years testing the hardihood of various exotic plans and eliminating those unable to live. There have been exhaustive tests as to wind, climate and soil. When the construction of permanent buildings begins, each building will face the correct way, and be placed in the best site for convenience and beauty.

The present Canberra, however, is far from this ideal. Officials will find it rather an ordeal—after the luxuries of Melbourne. Canberra will have a population of about 7,000 at once, with rooms and facilities for only about half of this number.

"I'll tell you why they wouldn't insure you—

"You allowed constipation to become chronic—until finally it resulted in organic disease.

"People don't realize how insidious constipation is. Its first effects are hardly more than annoyances—headaches, loss of appetite, sleeplessness and the like. But in time, as the body is subjected to continued intestinal poisoning, it may lead to high blood pressure, rheumatism, diabetes or even Bright's disease.

"Stop constipation if you wish to live long. Take a little Nujol every day—that will keep you regular."

Nujol relieves constipation in Nature's way

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, gentle and natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency—temporary or chronic—in the supply of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular elimination without overtaxing the intestinal muscles.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. To insure internal cleanliness, it should be taken regularly in accordance with the directions on each bottle. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit and can be discontinued at any time.

Ask your druggist for Nujol today and begin to enjoy the perfect health that is possible only when elimination is normal and regular.

THE HALIFAX SCHOONER AMERICA, RUM-RUNNER, BROUGHT TO NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.

NEW LONDON, Jan. 26—The first seizure of a rum laden craft to be made by the local United States Coast Guard forces since Christmas, occurred during last night when the destroyer 129, in charge of Boatswain W. B. Brown, captured the British schooner America, heavily laden, for she carried 1,400 cases of alcohol.

The America was sighted several miles off Montauk Point by the destroyer's crew. The schooner was then well within the 12-mile limit. The destroyer put chase after the slower moving craft and in left than a half hour the America had been overhauled and members of the crew of the destroyer were aboard the foreign vessel making a search of her hold. When the nature of the cargo was revealed, the boat was placed at anchor for the night and this morning she was brought into port and tied up at the United States Coast Guard academy pier. The master of the schooner was not brought to port with his vessel, for the destroyer left for New York during the morning with the master abroad, Boatswain Brown having been advised to bring the prisoner to New York instead of New London by the New York base officials. This action, it is understood, was taken because of its being desired to try the master in a state other than Connecticut, owing to Judge Edwin S. Thomas of the United States district court for this state having given two adverse decisions, when cases of the crews of foreign rum-running craft were heard in his court. The America is listed as hailing from Halifax.

MEN WHO BEAT UP GERTZ ARE STILL AT LARGE

NEW LONDON, Jan. 26—The police today made an unsuccessful search in their endeavor to ascertain the identity of two holdup men, who beat Joseph Gertz, 440 Williams street, after having held him up at the point of a revolver and failing to obtain any plunder from him.

Gertz had been visiting and upon his return art when but a short distance from his home, observed two men standing near a tree, but he did not consider the presence of the men in that location strange. As he was about to pass the men, one of them stepped in front of him and leveled the revolver at his body at the same time ordering him to turn over his money. When Gerts refused to and displayed signs of resisting, the second holdup man began to beat Gerts and when he was knocked down the crooks started on a run and disappeared in the darkness. Gertz made his way home, where he related his experience to his niece, Helen Barkowski and the latter communicated with the police. Patrolman Augustus Ray and Clarence Martin were assigned to conduct an investigation, but were unable to obtain any clues to the gunmen. Sergeant John Cavanaugh during today took up the investigation, but he was no more successful in obtaining a clue than were the other officers. The only clue that Gerts could furnish was a meagre description of the men, Gerts declaring that one was tall and the other was short.

BYSTANDER BUTTED IN, WILL HAVE TO PAY COURT $100

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 26—James E. O'Brien owes the city of New London about $110 which he will be obliged to pay during the year 1926. That is an expense that James should never have been called upon to pay if he had not been very injudicious and interfered with Officer John Clifford when the latter was arresting a youth who insulted women on Bank street and who seized them in front of the Odd Fellows' building. Officer Clifford was passing along the street in civilian clothes when the women invoked his protection. Mr. Clifford sought an explanation from the offender, but was greeted with abuse and vulgar language. The fellow had a bottle of liquor in his pocket and a portion of one in his stomach, so that he was very brave. While the conversation was on between Clifford and the accused man, O'Brien crossed the street and took part in the controversy, demanding that the policeman should allow the accused man to go with him to his home. He even attempted to interfere with the policeman and prevent the arrest of the woman-chaser. Officer Clifford's hands were occupied—one with the bottle of liquor and the other with a grip on the man complained of, so that when O'Brien interfered Clifford released his hold on his prisoner. Then the fellow made haste to get away. O'Brien didn't fare so well. He was yanked off to the police station where he gave a bond for appearance in court. This morning he told Judge Prince that he did not know the name of the man he had interfered for, except that he knew he was called Howard. That statement didn't help the case against O'Brien. He represented that he drank two glasses of wine and said he was not addicted to the use of alcoholic beverages. "You cannot afford to use the stuff at all," Judge Prince told O'Brien, "and I am disposed to send you to jail beside fining you, but you seem to be penitent so I will only fine you $100. That fine and the costs you must pay during the year or go to jail."

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the operator's license of Harold Winslow, 50 West street, suspended. The suspension is the result of the automobile Winslow was driving last Christmas eve crashing against a New York car in Branford, while Winslow and his wife were en route to New Haven to visit relatives over the holiday. Winslow's car was wrecked and the owner and his wife were injured, the latter seriously. They were taken to New Haven hospital, where Winslow was discharged a few days later, but his wife is still a patient at the institution.

Mrs. Annie Brown Gilpin, wife of Alfred Gilpin, died yesterday at her residence, 9 Blackhall street, after an illness of a week from heart trouble. Besides her husband, Mrs. Gilpin is survived by a son, Charles Brown, of Middletown and by a daughter, Mrs. Millie K. Patterson, of Waterford.

The funeral of Frank A. Bragg, former employe of the New London Ship & Engine whose death occurred at his home in Minor Lane, Waterford Saturday, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home and was attended by many mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. George H. Strouse, pastor of Waterford Baptist church. The bearers were John, Christopher and Roger Davidson; Hoffman Bailey, Spencer L. Brown and Leander F. Wordell. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral of Patrick Shea, formerly of New London, but for several years employed at the New London line pier, whose death from pneumonia occurred Saturday at Bellevue hospital, New York, took place at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger. The bearers were Patrick Murphy, John Foley, James Butler, James Kennedy, Michael Foley and Hugh Shannon. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Automobiles owned and driven by F. Gordon Farrell, 58 Jay street, and Forrest C. Bowers, Union street, were in collision last night on Montauk avenue, near Bank street. Both cars were damaged.

Thieves gained entrance to the small grocery store of John Mondelci, 220 Colman street, last night, but the method they pursued to pilfer is a most strange one and one that is causing the police no little difficulty to solve, because the crook opened a cash register, where $100 had been placed, but instead of taking all the money, only $20 was taken, if Mondelci's story is correct. Mondelci closed his store early in the evening to go to Home Memorial hospital to make a visit to a friend. During his absence a temporary door of a garage, which is located in the rear of the store and from which entrance to the store can be easily made, was forced. The crook then entered the store and going to the cash register, removed a part of the money, but for some strange reason, failed to take all the cash. Patrolman Augustus Ray and Clarence Martin were assigned to investigate the break, but were unsuccessful in obtaining any clues and neither was Sergeant John Cavanaugh today.

John Heffernan was taken in charge by the police this forenoon because he was without funds and because he was crippled as a result of rheumatism. The man was taken to the police station and was examined by City Physician George P. Cheney, who ordered him transferred to Hillside home.

The funeral of Antoni Grosskiewics, late of Groton, where he was employed by the Plant estate, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at the church of St. Peter and St. Paul, this city. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Theophile Czarkowski. Interment was in the Polish national cemetery, Norwich.

Paul Hazucha, United States Coast Guard destroyer Cassin, state pier, and Jerry Dianello, United States Coast Guard, local section base, 4, state pier, were patients dismissed today at Lawrence hospital.

Patients dismissed today at Home Memorial hospital were: Mrs. James Wallace, Gales Ferry; Mrs. Robert Baum and infant daughter, 237 Montauk avenue; Paul Postic, 5 Hempsted street; Mrs. Stephen Ushkievath, 20 Potter street, and Mrs. Morris Mogulsky and infant daughter, 63 Truman street.

Mrs. Anna Winthrop Colby, 73, wife of Edward A. Colby, of New London, where he is well known as a printer and musician, died Monday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Charles S. Burdett, Detroit, Mich. Besides her ausband and daughter, Mrs. Colby is survived by two brothers, Letter Carrier Henry Winthrop, this city, and Fred Winthrop, Golden Spur, and by two sisters, Mrs. Mary Smith and Mrs. Isabelle Beebe, both of this city.

Clan Cameron, Order of Scottish Clans, celebrated its 25th anniversary this evening in its lodge rooms, Bacon block, State street, the event being attended by a representative number of members together with members of the Clan in Norwich, Westerly and Groton. The celebration was an informal one and tended to provide sociability for those present.

The police received several complaints and from residents in various parts of the city this forenoon that men were going about from house to house soliciting orders for toilet articles and representing that by the sale of the various articles that the Day Nursery would derive a benefit. As the Community Chest drive, which is now in progress, will provide for aid of the local nursery some of the men and women approached for the purpose of selling the articles, notified the police. Officers were dispatched to several points in the city with a view to locating the solicitors. Night Desk Sergeant Frank Howard had knowledge of the search being in progress and he apprehended all six of the solicitors in two sections of the city. The men gave their names as Murray Cowan, Joseph Kirwin, Michael Fepper, Fred Fournier and Samuel and Joseph Richtman, all of New York. They declared that they were not seeking to sell articles for the benefit of the local nursery, but that they were the authorized agents of the Madison Products company, New York, and that by the sale of the articles the Hebrew Kindergarten and Infants' Home, Inc., 87 Montgomery street, New York, an institution for homeless children, would derive a benefit. The men also declared that they accepted no funds for the articles sold, but that payment was made only when the goods were delivered. Inquiry of the New York police brought the information that the men detained here were duly authorized to take orders for the products company, so the sextette was released.

W. D. Faris, a lodger at a local hotel complained to the police this evening that last night a balloon tire, rim and tire cover were stolen from his car while the machine was parked for the night at a garage.

An automobile truck owned by the New London Furniture company, Bank street, and a trolley car of the Connecticut company, were in collision late this afternoon on Bank street, near Pearl street. The truck was considerably damaged.

Cornelius McCarthy, 14, residing with his parents, 48 Hempstead street, is a patient at Lawrence hospital, having been admitted to the institution late this afternoon for treatment to an accidently self-inflicted revolver wound. His condition this evening was comfortable.

The youth obtained possession of the weapon shortly after 4 o'clock and while examining it in the yard of his home, the revolver was suddenly discharged, the bullet entering the right leg at the thigh. Medical assistance was summoned and after the wound had received emergency treatment the victim was taken to the hospital.

Patrolman Henry Sylvia was unable to perform patrol duty today being indisposed at his home, Montauk avenue.

Abraham Shasha, Hill street, complained to the police this evening because of damage and of a malicious nature having been perpetrated at his home. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

"Go West," Buster Keaton's laugh riot of the great open spaces, heads a double feature bill at the Breed Theatre today and Thursday. This is the big comedy that took more than six months to make and in which thousands of cattle and many real cowboys take part. The frozen-faced comedian and his company spent a month on location in Arizona, working in a desert temperature of 120 degrees, to "shoot" some of the big scenes.

Following Greeley's advice to "Go West," Buster, the tenderest tenderfoot alive, hops a freight train, and eventually lands out in the wide-open spaces where cows are cows. Finding a discarded pair of chaps and spurs, he gets a job tending a thousand head of cattle, although he knows nothing about cows and less about horses.

Buster takes a stone out of a cow's foot, and the bovine, Brown Eyes, becomes his best pal. Buster has troubles of his own, and his efforts to ride the range, play nursemaid to the steers and milk the cows, form one hilarious adventure after another.

How he recaptures the stampeded animals single handed, and leads them back in triumph, while Brown Eyes is saved, makes a riotously funny and exciting climax to Keaton's great comedy.

The second feature on this excellent program is "The Outlaw's Daughter," a Universal blue streak western, starring Josie Sedgwick, a picture with a novel western atmosphere. Daredevil riding and feats of almost impossible human daring make this a thrilling yet logical story of the west.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BEST YEAR FOR GRAHAM BROTHERS

The recent absorption by Dodge Brothers, Inc., of Graham Brothers, the largest exclusive manufacturers of motor trucks, lends special interest to the new business record achieved by Graham Brothers during 1925.

Shipments by the truck industry as a whole for the first eleven months of 1925, according to official figures recently released, totaled 424,487 units, an increase of 76,835 or 21.9% over the record of 349,802 for the corresponding months of 1924.

Compared with this production increase by the industry of 21.9% Graham Brothers' increase for 1925 seems remarkable. Graham Brothers' total shipments during the first eleven months from their four plants, Detroit, Evansville, Stockton and Toronto, showed an increase over shipments for the corresponding eleven months of last year of 123%.

A Dodge Brothers executive is quoted as follows regarding these figures:

"An annual business growth of well over 100% is what would be expected by those who are familiar with Graham Brothers' rapid rise from a start less than five years ago to their present position in the truck industry.

"Graham Brothers' 1922 sales exceeded their 1921 by 154%; 1923 exceeded 1922 by 105%; 1924 exceeded 1923 by 54%; and now 1925 sales have beaten those of 1924 more than 123%.

"Month by month this year sales have surpassed the preceding month. In fact, production for the first six months of this year equalled the entire production for 1924.

"At no time during the year, nor at any time during Graham Brothers' history, has there been any overstocking of trucks by dealers. Our problem has constantly been one of increasing manufacturing facilities to supply the demand for our product.

"The number of trucks on hand at the end of November, compared with the number at the end of the same month last year, shows a substantially smaller increase than the rate at which production has been advanced.

"This is because the big volume of retail sales has cleared the stocks of the dealers so rapidly."

"To produce sufficient trucks to supply the constantly growing demand," states Mr. Jordan, of Jordan Auto Co., local Dodge Brothers dealers, "Graham Brothers have been engaged in an almost continuous program of expanding manufacturing facilities. When they moved their Detroit plant into new quarters July 1 this year their 265,000 square feet of floor space represented an increase in space in Detroit of nineteen fold in a little over four years. Their plants at Evansville Ind., which now occupy 301,000 square feet, have made a similar growth during the same period.

"The new plant opened this summer in Stockton, Cal., for manufacturing trucks required by dealers in the Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain states has an area of 40,000 square feet and the new Canadian plant at Toronto, Ont., 20,000. This gives Graham Brothers a total floor area of nearly 15 acres.

"The excellent business record made by Graham Brothers last year and their record of having risen in five years to leadership in the industry is unquestionable evidence." Mr. Jordan continued, "of public recognition of the merit of their product. Now that Graham Brothers' business has been purchased outright and become an integral part of Dodge Brothers, Inc., the outlook for even greater achievement in 1926 is exceedingly bright."

This is the last day of Rudolph Valentino in The Eagle. The vaudeville the first half of this week has received a favorable report from the local critics. The contest will be divided into two classes—juvenile and adult. The juvenile limit will be 16. All over 16 will go into the adult class. Two hundred dollars in cash will be paid to the winners. A winner will be picked by the audience in each class and will be eligible to enter the finals. Barnyard night will be Thursday night.

Forty of the most beautiful gowns ever worn in Hollywood—the style center of America—appear in Mannequin, James Cruze's production for Paramount of Fannie Hurst's $50,000 prize-winning story.

Each of the gowns is a distinctive conception by Howard Greer, creator of film fashions for Paramount. They range from beautiful evening gowns to negligee wraps of painted silk, afternoon party frocks, sport suits and street dresses.

The walls of the inner rooms of the dressmaking establishment were unique in that they were decorated with the actual sketches from which the gowns displayed before the spectators were made. These sketches were the original ones made by Greer in designing the stunning creations.

Mannequin, a human interest story of dramatic events brought by destiny into the lives of average folks Sunday at the Palace, features Alice Joyce, Warner Baxter, Dolores Costello and ZaSu Pitts.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Coming to the Palace.

The feature act of the vaudeville bill coming to the Palace Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be the Swiss Bell Ringers, famous players of musical novelties. The company is composed of talented artists and a splendid varied program will be given from grand opera to the latest popular successes of the day. This famous family of artists play 25 different instruments. Some of the instruments are piano, violin, cello, banjo, piano-accordion, dulcimer, xylophone, mandolin, steel guitar and the Swiss hand bells. The act is known as the Georgette Famous Players. Other acts of the bill will be announced later. The feature picture of the program will be Pola Negri in A Woman of the World.

Picturegoers may expect something markedly different in the way of a Pola Negri production when A Woman of the World begins its local engagement at the Palace theatre next Thursday. This new Negri vehicle is a dramatic romance of today in which most of the action takes place in a small, mid-western American community.

Advance interest in the picture is further heightened by the fact that the pic. has a strong vein of humor, which allows Pola in several scenes to step out of her usual emotional character and essay a little light comedy.

The story centers around Pola, who is a European countess, and has its beginning in Paris where she discovers that her lover has been unfaithful to her. Broken-hearted, she sails for America to forget her love sorrows, and in time arrives at Maple Valley, Iowa, to visit her cousins. Needless to say, her presence in this small town gives the men something to think about and the women something to talk about.

NORWICH TOWN

FRANK G. HALE DESIGNS RAREST OF JEWELRY

A former Norwich Town young man, Frank Gardner Hale, has returned to Boston, after spending the week end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albie L. Hale, of Lathrop avenue, Norwich Town. Mr. Hale who is an expert craftsman in hand-wrought jewelry and enamels in original designs returned to Boston recently from a several weeks' exhibition trip. His jewelry which is unlike much modern specimens, is truly jewel-like. In his line of work all of which has restraint and dignity and firmness of execution, he has the characteristics of the genuine masters of the craft, and is considered one of the most accomplished craftsmen in this country. It has been said of Mr. Hale that he does not take a precious or semi-precious stone and surround it with lumps of metal; he frames it appropriately. Still further he plays with reflections of stones enriching the color with enamels so placed to catch reflection. With amber, he uses both gold and silver and the amber holds both the cool and the warm lights.

Tuesday, February first, Mr. Hale is to leave again on a lecture trip, not expecting to return to Boston until about the middle of April. The following are the places he expects to visit covering his lectures for the early part of 1926: February 4-6, Albany Institute of History and Art, Albany N. Y.; Feb. 9, Woman's Town club, Springfield, Ohio; Feb. 11-13, The Cincinnati Art Museum, Cincinnati, Ohio; Feb. 14, Cleveland Museum of Art, Cleveland, Ohio; Feb. 15-21, Milwaukee Art Institute, Milwaukee, Wis.; Feb. 23, Chicago Art Institute, Chicago; Feb. 25-27, The Society of Arts and Crafts, Detroit, Mich.; March 1-4, The Rockford Art association, Rockford Ill.; March 7-9, Bloomington Art association, Bloomington, Ill.; March 11-12, Springfield Art association, Springfield, Ill.; March 15-18, The Omaha Society of Fine Arts Omaha, Neb.; March 20-24, The Saint Louis City Art Museum, St. Louis, Missouri; March 26-27, Professor Berger Sandzen, Lindsborg, Kansas; March 29-30, Wichita Art association, Wichita, Kansas. The Progressive Club Peterborough, New Hampshire, April 17, will be Mr. Hale's concluding lecture on this tour.

In a recent letter he observes that when he is through with his travels he will have seen something of the world.

Mr. Hale's brilliant career covering a number of years' experience, is especially gratifying to Norwich Town people, who have watched him since a student acquiring his first instruction and proficiency at Norwich Art school. When graduating from this school, he won a scholarship to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts where he took a special course. Mr. Hale was graduated from Norwich Free Academy in 1894, having studied about two years at the Art school, when he took up his profession in the Boston school.

His education along these lines also took him abroad. He studied under the Guild of Handicrafters of Chipping Campden; also with Frederick Partridge in London England, having produced many noteworthy articles.

Before opening his studio, several years ago, Mr. Hale was a designer for the Oliver Ditson Co., when first locating in Boston.

SUES FOR FALL INTO ELEVATOR SIDEWALK OPENING

For injuries which she received on July 20, 1925, when she fell down a sidewalk elevator shaft in front of the Liggett drug store in the Shannon building in this city, Hilma Aarnio of Brooklyn, N. Y., has brought suit for $10,000 damages against the Louis K. Liggett Co., a Massachusetts corporation.

She alleges that while she stood looking into the show window of the drug store, the elevator shaft in the sidewalk, behind her was opened, that it had no guards around it and that she was not given warning, so that when she stepped back she stepped into the shaft and fell to the bottom. Her injuries, it is alleged, were bruises and contusions about the hips, legs and arms, her spine and the muscles of her back were wrenched and sprained and permanently injured, her nervous system was shocked and she will suffer from her injuries for a long time.

The suit is returnable to the superior court in this county in February.

Principal Arthur Gregory of Bacon Academy, Colchester, has tendered his resignation to take effect March 1st. Mr. Gregory is a graduate of Colby college and has been teaching at the academy for three years. He goes to Farmington as principal of the high school.

In Loving Memory
JOSEPHINE WITTER HOLLOWELL

Safe and lonely, softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we love so dearly
In her lonely, silent grave.

More and more each day we miss her;
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within our hearts concealed.

MARKET WAS DEPRESSED

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—(AP)—Uncertainty over developments at the meeting of directors of the United States Steel Corporation cast a damper over today's stock market, which drifted lower despite occasional attempts to rally the list by bidding up special issues. Total sales, which fell below 1,200,000 shares, were the smallest of any full session since September 4, 1925.

After the market closed, steel directors announced the declaration of the usual dividends, $1.75 regular and 50 cents extra—thus settling at rest widespread rumors of a special distribution. Total earnings of $42,280,468 in the fourth quarter of 1925 were $118,947 below those of the preceding three months, but about what Wall street expected. United States Steel closed 3-4 lower at 133 7-8 after fluctuating between 132 3-4 and 134 1-4.

Commodity markets again lacked a uniform trend. Wheat futures advanced about 1 1-2 to 2 cents a bushel in reflection of a downward revision of the Canadian government crop estimate. Cotton prices lost ground under moderate foreign and southern selling. The sugar market was firm but coffee prices turned reactionary in sympathy with easier Brazilian exchange.

Motors were bid up in the early afternoon on reports that General Motors would declare another extra cash dividend at the next meeting, but the rally failed to hold. General Motors closed 1-4 lower at 113 3-4, after having touched 121 1-4, Hudson sold as high as 111, and then dropped back to 108 1-2, off 1 1-4 and Chrysler, Mack Truck and the Pierce Arrow issues showed net declines of 1 to 3 1-2 points. Hayes Wheel moved up 1 5-8 to 43 7-8 on the declaration of an extra dividend of 25 cents.

Official denial of merger reports brought about sharp recessions in some of the food stocks, which were strong yesterday. California Packing broke over 8 points to 151 1-2. United Fruit fell six points to 251 and Postum Cereal recorded a net loss of 2 1-2 to 116. Marked heaviness also was shown by Allied Chemical, American Safety Razor, American Smelting, Century Ribbon, International Telephone, Railway Spring Steel, Savage Arms, Sears Roebuck, Tobacco Products and Woolworth, all off two points or more.

Foundation company, selling "ex" the forty per cent dividend payable in the stock of the new foreign company, closed at 166, which is equivalent to a net gain of nearly 4 points on the day. National Canners was run up nearly four points to 79 7-8 in the late trading and good buying was apparent in Colorado Fuel and Standard Oil of New Jersey preferred.

Rails yielded with the industrials, but the net losses were not so large considerable interest was aroused by the spirited demand for Chesapeake & Ohio, which advanced from a low of 116 1-8 to 121 in the early afternoon and then slipped back to 118 1-2, up 1 1-2 on the day.

Call money held steady at four per cent, which rate has been maintained since last Tuesday. Time money rates ruled at 4 1-8 to 4 5-8, with plenty of funds available and prime commercial paper held firm at 4 1-4 to 4 1-2 per cent.

Foreign exchanges held steady in quiet trading. Demand sterling was quoted just below $4.86 and French francs around 3.71 cents.

TAFTVILLE

Oscar E. Mathewson, Jr. of Manchester spent Monday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. Eugene Mathewson, of South A street.

The regular weekly meeting of the A-o-wa-ki-ya Camp Girls was held Friday evening at the home of Miss Mary Martin on Norwich avenue.

The social evening and supper for the men of the parish of the Taftville Congregational Church which is to be held Thursday evening is in charge of Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis, Victor H. Davis, Gustave Hedler and E. Tracy Clark.

Mrs. George Helmboldt entertained the Thimble club at her home in Lisbon Tuesday evening. After the sewing hour there was a social period with refreshments served by the hostess.

Although all the radio fans of the town attempted to get Europe these past few nights, none of them reported success, although many got stations in Cuba and Mexico.

The Taftville Business Mens' association held an interesting meeting Monday evening at the Fire Company hall, with President Frank Beique presiding. A board of directors was elected and these in turn will elect the officers. Those elected were Frank Beique, Stanislas Benac, William H. Whitehead, Napoleon Parent, Earle M. Wood, Hector Belisle, Edward Adams, Dr. George M. Thompson, and Edward Lafreniere. Upon motion of Joseph C. Marsan, the new officers will be elected on February 22nd, at which time there will be a social and smoker.

John Urick of Lisbon, who has been spending the past two months in Florida, left Miami, Monday on his way home.

The extensive work of the year was shown in the reports given by the standing committee.

The report of the house committee was by Mrs. W. S. Alling, who described the various use of the United Workers house on Washington street, including sewing classes, family welfare department, thrift shop, and in the late summer one room as a hospital where through the cooperation of the local throat specialists, public school nurses and the United Workers' house, 33 children whose parents could not afford the regular hospital charges, were operated on for deceased tonsils and adenoids, at a small fraction of the usual hospital expense.

Sheltering Arms

The report for the Sheltering Arms committee of which Mrs. F. W. Cary is chairman and Mrs. W. Russell Baird secretary, gave a description of the new Sheltering Arms building, which it is expected, will be completed and ready for occupancy by the first of June, and also told of what had been done in the past year for the present family. The report mentioned among other things the following:

A total of 16 patients have been cared for two of whom came to us during the past twelve months. There have been three deaths during this period. When it is considered that the youngest patient is 75 and the oldest 90, much credit for the general good health and happiness of the members must be attributed to the care and thought exercised by the matron, Mrs. Beckwith, and the other members of the working staff at the home.

The committee is very grateful to the Needlework Guild of Norwich for 145 articles of wearing apparel, sheets, pillow cases, towels and so forth which they so generously donated. These gifts have been coming from the Guild for the past several years and are greatly appreciated both by the committee and by the members of the family.

With the new building the splendid work of this branch of the United Workers can be extended and the name "Sheltering Arms" will enhance a constantly growing sphere of endeavor. It is not necessary to look very far backward to realize the growth and scope of this branch of an organization of which this community is justly proud, and this new building presents a visible result to all those present workers and to all those contributions which have made it possible and a monument to those who are no longer with us but whose loving thoughts and generous deeds will remain always.

Rock Nook Children's Home

For the Rock Nook Children's home the report was made by Mrs. Willis Austin, secretary of the committee, of which Mrs. Edward D. Fuller, is chairman. There has been a family of from 35 to 40 children at the home, whose actual care was under the direction of Mrs. Murray, the capable matron.

Mrs. Austin closed her report as follows:

The past year brought some large expenditures, two Frigidaires and a new washing machine being installed. The washing machine at the Home is in use every day and suffers from such constant and heavy demands.

Illness among our helpers added to our financial problems and the end of the year brought us face to face with the fact that however much we may desire to extend the work among the children of Norwich through other departments of the United Workers, our present income not only will not permit further expansion but forces us to withdraw some of the assistance already given. Men and women of the past have provided for the Rock Nook children of today. Will not the men and women of today make possible a further expansion and broader application of care?

Almshouse Committee

The report of the almshouse committee was given by Mrs. Howard L. Stanton, chairman, in which she stated that the family of twenty-seven men and fourteen women at the almshouse are very comfortable and happy and everything is done for their comfort by the very efficient superintendent and matron, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis. The general health of the family has been very good, with three deaths occurring the past years. Acknowledgments were made of gifts and assistance from several Kings' Daughters' Circles, the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women, the Junior Council of Catholic Women, the Leffingwell church, Central Baptist church and Needlework guild.

Club Committee

Miss Alice W. Cogswell, supervisor, made the report for the club committee, stating that 192 names had appeared on the lists in the year, some of these being registered in both cooking and sewing classes. Three sewing schools and one in cooking have been carried on a United Workers house, and a sewing school and the cooking school in the small building on Oneco street, which has been rented by the United Workers for several years, and called The Falls Club.

The death of Miss Kate A. Rudd for six years a beloved teacher at the Fall's club, was mentioned with much regret and Miss Cogswell closed her report as follows:

In all work supported by public funds, it is natural to raise the question: Do the results justify the time, effort and money expended? I will try to answer that question in regard to the club department, in three ways.

1. Does the demand for this work continue? In reply to that, I would say that more girls applied last fall for admission to most of our classes than could be accommodated for lack of available space and a sufficient number of teachers, and others are constantly applying now.

2. What has been the quality of the work accomplished? The best answer to that question could have been made after an examination of the exhibition of the sewing classes last April, which I think reflected credit on both teachers and pupils.

3. Is the instruction given appreciated by the parents? The supervisor, in her visits to the homes of the pupils, receives many unsolicited expressions of appreciation from the mothers, which are very encouraging. I wish very often that the faithful teachers could hear them also. The best test of the interest of the mother lies in the fact that they continue to send their girls to us as they reach the age to enter our classes.

MORE TO KUM

Family Welfare Department

The report of the family welfare department of which Miss Nancy E. Lucas is chairman, was given by Miss Edith M. Bliss, the secretary.

The department has handled 220 cases, 112 major and 108 minor. Miss Julia C. Corcoran, executive secretary, has made 1173 calls to the home of clients and has received 1749 office calls.

In all cases referred to the town the department has been able to keep in close touch with the first selectman, to the great advantage of all concerned.

A Social Service exchange for recording all cases known to every worker engaged in social work in the county was urgently needed. The total registrations thus far are 3761.

Our department packed Thanksgiving baskets that were sent to 120 families representing 644 persons. The donations of the school children to which were added meat, tea, coffee and sugar, were most helpful. At Christmas gifts were made to 289 children in 75 families. Twenty four prettily trimmed baskets containing fruit and delicacies were also distributed to our old people.

Public Health Nursing

The report of the public health nursing department was given by Mrs. A. H. Chase. The department has just completed the tenth year of its existence.

In part her report said: During the entire year this department has enjoyed the close cooperation of all departments of the United Workers, the Advisory Board, the Norwich physicians, the selectmen, the W. W. Backus hospital, the board of health, the school nurses and the health and welfare departments of the state. The work has been materially aided by numerous donations of baby clothes and toys for which there is always a need.

By a careful reading of the statistical report it is evident that the time has been well spent in giving nursing care and instruction to those most in need of the same, not to any one section but to the people of the town of Norwich. Bedside nursing, instructive nursing, clinical nursing and friendly contacts have given the nurses excellent opportunities for finding the weakest spots in the health and housing conditions of the town.

One of the hopes for the future is a full time health officer, a full time milk and food inspector and a revision of the housing regulations.

It has been deemed wise by health experts that nurses going out into a community have a special message for the year, in teaching positive health. This department has been stressing the drinking of milk by the entire family. Coffee and tea still continue in favor but milk has become better known as a health food. Safe milk is needed for Norwich. May we ask for the further cooperation of every voter in this matter so that all the milk sold in the town will be equally clean and free from disease germs.

Nurses Gave Sketch

Following the reading of the report, a skit entitled "Presentation of Birth Certificate," was given by three of the public health nurses, Miss Maher, Miss Reid and Miss Murphy. This was especially well done and made an interesting illustration of the work of the department.

District Visitation

Giving the report on district visitation, Mrs. John H. Barnes said that there were engaged in this work during the year 1925, eight district chairmen and over 60 visitors who gave unsparingly of their time and labor for this department. Considering the fact that there have been many and various drives during the year for this cause or that, they are entitled to great praise for the glorious work they have done. The amount raised was $1,521.34. The good people of Norwich have once again shown that they are still willing to aid in any worthy cause.

Neuropsychiatric Clinic

The neuropsychiatric clinic which was opened to the public in 1922, was reported by Mrs. Helen Lee Gilbert. Since March 16th a second clinic day has been added so that patients may get medical attention on Monday and Thursday from 2-5 p. m. Dr. Frederick P. Shenk attends the first two Mondays in the month, Dr. Katheryn M. E. Bryan the last two Mondays. Dr. Elijah S. Burdsall attends the Thursday clinics. On March 9th, the state department of health opened a social hygiene station with Dr. Robert R. Agnew in medical attendance from 5-6 p. m. on Mondays. A small fee is charged and the clinic staff cooperates with Dr. Agnew in giving clerical service and social supervision. Social hygiene ranks second only to child training in the conservation of mental health of the community.

The statistical report of the department is as follows:

Total number of cases referred to Dec. 31, 1925		344
Number of cases referred during 1925		171
Number of first examinations	124
Not in clinic	37
To be examined	10	171
Adults	68
Children	103	171
Number of returns to clinic		270
Total number of active cases in 1925		272
Recovered		80
Improved		54
Died		2
Moved away		12
Committed to institutions		28
Referred to other agencies and closed		41
Total number who have been under social and medical supervision		216
Requests for advice and information other than patients and family		66
Number of visits and interviews		3025
Number of cases continued under treatment Jan. 1, 1926		122

The interest and cooperation shown by officers of the state and town has been most gratifying. William S. Murray, first selectman, Senator Adams, parole officer of the Connecticut School for Boys in Meriden, Frederick H. Wyant, Connecticut Humane Society agent and Archibald Buchanan, State Truant officer, have contributed valuable help in handling difficult situations.

Miss Rosalie A. Bennett began full time work as office secretary on Feb. 1, 1925. Miss Dorothy Brinker, formerly connected with the Laura Spellman Child Guidance Demonstration clinic in Monmouth county, New Jersey, joined the staff Feb. 15, 1925, and has taken over the clinic work with problem children in the public schools.

Musical Selections

During the meeting, the duet, Greeting (Mendelssohn) was sung sweetly and in fine harmony by Mrs. William C. Burgy and Mrs. Edwin A. Harris with Mrs. Charles A. Saxton at the piano. Later in the program Mrs. Burgy and Mrs. Harris sang another duet again much to the pleasure of the audience. This number was The Lord is My Shepherd (Henry Smart).

The Rockville Christian Endeavor society is to commemorate its 44th anniversary Friday evening, February 4, with a banquet, which will be served in the church parlors by the Friend Class of the Union Congregational church.

SUES PAPER MILL CO. FOR BALANCE ON OIL

To collect a claimed balance of $11,052.09 on a total bill of $32,897.60 for fuel oil furnished to the Inland Paper Board Co., operating a paper mill in Versailles, suit in the superior court has been brought against the paper mill company by the New England Oil Refining Co., of Boston.

In the complaint in the suit is claimed that a contract was entered into for the plaintiff company to furnish the mill with its fuel oil requirements for $1.55 per barrel for the year commencing Sept. 15, 1924, the maximum to be 110,000 barrels. Fuel oil was furnished under this contract up to Dec. 8, 1925, when through the failure of Mexican wells and other causes beyond the control of the oil company it had no crude oil from which to make fuel oil for delivery. A provision of the contract is quoted wherein it was stated that the seller should not be liable in damages or otherwise when deliveries are delayed for various reasons, including failure of the seller's accustomed sources of supply, and any cause whatsoever beyond the control of the seller and which by the exercise of due diligence the seller is unable to overcome.

In order that the paper mill should not be obliged to shut down for lack of fuel oil, it is claimed that an agreement was made for the plaintiff company to buy fuel oil in the market and sell it to the mill at the market price. Under this agreement it is claimed that oil to the value of $32,897.60 was sold to the paper mill company on which the paper mill has paid $71,845.51 and refuses to pay the balance. Oil was furnished from Dec. 1924 to August 1925 inclusive. The price varied from $1.70, $1.80, $1.90 and $2 per barrel, but in the last month was $1.55 per barrel.

The suit is returnable before the superior court in February.

STATE MEETING DEMAND FOR WIDER HIGHWAYS

Where a fourteen-foot roadway a few years ago was considered adequate for all traffic conditions, today Connecticut is building twenty-foot road and some thirty-six foot highways and probably within a short space of time will be forced to construct even wider roads, a statement made public by the state highway department Tuesday says.

It is also pointed out that where a six-inch concrete road, unreinforced could satisfy traffic ten years ago, the same roads today are being built nine inches deep with heavy reinforcement. This widening and thickening of roads has increased the cost of highway building nearly one-half without counting the cost of labor or additional cost of equipment and materials.

In the thirty years of the existence of the Connecticut department, it is shown that expenditures on roads in the state have totalled nearly $71,000,000. Of this sum, about $40,000,000 has been appropriated directly from the civil list funds by the general assembly, and the remainder, about $31,000,000, has been raised by automobile fees and court fines for motor vehicle violations, in addition to the recently added gasoline tax. The fees for motor vehicle registration have been received only since 1908.

These facts, the department says, disprove the claim that the automobile has been standing more than its just proportion of the costs of construction and maintenance of the highways, although within a few years, it is expected that the two proportions will about balance.

Receipts and appropriations of the highway department since 1895 are as follows:

Total auto fees, (1908 to June 30 1925)	$28,750,153.14
Gasoline Tax (1923-1925)	2,092,734.98
Direct appropriations:
Construction	23,621,000.00
Repairs and Reconstruction	7,775,000.00
Bridges	5,404,000.00
Administration	3,290,167.44

25 MEMBERS OF CREW LOST WITH FREIGHTER LARISTAN

Steamer Went to Pieces After Two Day Battle With Wind and Snow—Steamship President Roosevelt Lost Four Lifeboats in Last Attempt to Rescue Crew of Crippled Freighter Antinoe in Mid-Ocean—The Disabled Ship Without Lights and With Engines Helpless Wallowed in Waves 60 Feet High.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—(AP)—The worst storm to rake the Atlantic in years continued in full force tonight and reaped a human harvest.

Bits of wreckage bobbing in a gale-frenzied sea gave tragic evidence that the British freighter Laristan, with a crew of twenty-five men, has been pounded to pieces in the heavy seas which have held her helpless and at bay off the coast of Halifax for two days.

The British tramp steamer Antinoe, which has been tottering on the edge of a similar fate since Sunday, still was afloat in mid-ocean tonight but the only rescue ship in sight was unable to reach her today through the blinding snow and tempestuous waves.

All hope for the Laristan and her crew was abandoned this afternoon, when the North German Lloyd offices in New York received a wireless from its steamer Bremen, saying:

"In a storm with heavy seas and blizzard, saw Laristan last Tuesday, 12 midnight, Wednesday at 9 a. m. Some wreckage was found floating in water, and as nothing more was found of Laristan, it is assumed steamer sank."

The message was signed by Captain Wurpts of the Bremen, who has stood by the broken Laristan since the storm swept down on her. Yesterday the Bremen held the driven snow and 70-mile gale at bay long enough to pick up six of the Laristan's crew, and was prepared to make another effort today.

The message to the steamship offices indicated the task was hopeless, and another wireless from the Bremen received at Halifax said she had abandoned the search.

While the wireless operator aboard the Bremen was tapping out the final chapter of the Laristan's losing fight, another on the United States liner President Roosevelt was writing in staccato code the story of that vessel's efforts to aid the crippled Antinoe.

The sea forced both the Bremen and the President Roosevelt to play waiting games in their attempts at rescue. Lifeboats sent to the Antinoe, and to the Laristan before she disappeared, were smashed or capsized. Lines could not reach them. The President Roosevelt lost two men sent out in a lifeboat the day before yesterday.

Both the Antinoe and the Laristan were without lights, their engines helpless, wallowing in waves 40, 50 and 60 feet high. Their wireless voices were stilled. At night, and during the darker hours of the storm, the rescue ships kept in touch with them with search-light fingers, assured that there was life aboard only when the lights picked up figures of men clinging to the decks that had become a four-day story when it became light enough for the President Roosevelt to take up the dreary task again this morning.

"We are still standing by Antinoe," said her first terse message.

"Have lost fourth boat in the last attempt to take off crew," she added. Though the messages did not say so, it was assumed ashore that after the first rescue attempt in which two lives were lost the other boats had been sent out unmanned. Other messages said they capsized before those aboard the Antinoe could reach them.

"We except to launch fifth boat, manned immediately," came next. "Hope to have crew off Antinoe soon."

At the offices of the United States Lines, earlier messages were received from Captain George Fried, of the President Roosevelt, saying the ability of the Antinoe to stay afloat another day was "very doubtful." Captain Fried has been standing by her more than three days. At his home office it was said he will stay there until all are saved or the ship sinks.

The Antinoe is further handicapped by her cargo, which is of wheat, subject to swelling when wet. She was bound from New York to Queenstown when the storm caught her. The now lost Laristan was bound from Swansea to New York with a cargo of coal.

Meanwhile, four other ships, buffeted by the gale, struggled into port today, two days late. One was the Leviathan, the crack ship of the United States Line.

The adjectives which Captain Wurpts of the Bremen, and Captain Fried of the President Roosevelt, have been too busy to broadcast. The Leviathan's commander Captain Herbert Hartley hollow-eyed after his worst battle in thirty-three years, supplied for them.

"It is one hell of a storm," he said "The worst in my time."

It was the Leviathan's thirty-fifth voyage, and her slowest,—seven days, ten hours and nine minutes. Captain Hartley, his officers said, was off the bridge for only two hours sleep during the trip. Sunday, when the storm was most fierce, she made only seventy-eight miles. The day before she made 438. The passengers did not suffer over-much, however, and the only damage was a twisted rail. A baby was born on ship during the storm.

The other ships which came in today were the Columbus, of the North German Lloyd, the Zeeland, of the Red Star, and the Regina, of the White Star. A giant wave tore away twelve feet of the Regina's bulwarks amidships Saturday and flooded three staterooms.

Thirty ships, from New York or bound to New York from other ports were still in the storm area tonight. The Aquitania is due here tomorrow, two days late, and the Caledonia, due Friday, wirelessed today she could not make it before Saturday.

12 MEN RESCUED FROM STEAMSHIP ANTINOE

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Twelve men in "very weaken condition" were rescued tonight from the helpless British freighter Antinoe in mid Atlantic during a brief lull in the storm. Commander Fried, of the President Roosevelt, sent a radio message to the Lupine, later lines that he would make further attempts to save the rest of the Antinoe's crew as soon as weather permitted.

The rescue tonight, Captain Fried said, was made by a manned life boat from the President Roosevelt. He listed his casualties to date due to rescue attempts as two men, lost in the first trial to reach the Antinoe and five boats, three of which were sent floating toward the disabled vessel unmanned and were capsized.

TESTIMONY BEGUN IN CHELSEA LIQUOR CASE

BOSTON, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Pleas of guilty by three defendants and testimony concerning a $100-a-week permit to manufacture "moonshine" featured the beginning of the trial in federal court today of Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea and 31 others on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law. Originally 44 persons, including Police Inspector Thomas Quigley, brother of the mayor, and nine other police officers, were indicted as members of a rum ring operating under police protection.

Sam Geracovitz, Joseph Henry and Louis Barlow retracted earlier pleas and pleaded guilty before the government opened its case before the jury today. One defendant pleaded guilty yesterday, one defaulted and several were listed to be nol prossed, leaving 29 persons on trial tonight.

The first sensation came late today when Joseph Alpert, second government witness, told of going to mayor Quigley and asking if he would let him "make a little liquor." He informed the mayor, Alpert said, that he desired to make "moonshine." The mayor said he would "send a young man to talk to me," Alpert testified.

On the following Friday, Alpert said, a man known to him as Eddie Carlon, one of the defendants, called at his home.

"You want to do some liquor business?" was his greeting, according to Alpert.

Alpert replied he would and that, after some conversation was informed by Carlon that an arrangement could be made in consideration of the Payment of $100 a week. He was to be allowed two weeks before the initial payment, he added. Alpert's testimony will be resumed tomorrow.

SUED FOR DIVORCE AFTER CUTTING UP BODY OF WIFE

NEW PHILADELPHIA, Ohio, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Harvey Haver, 46, mail carrier of Newcomerstown, near here, filed suit for divorce from his wife, Katherine, six weeks after he said he cut her body down from the rafters of their home and stuffed it into an abandoned well.

Two weeks later, he said he paid a premium on her life insurance.

That was part of the story Haver told officials today after almost 24 hours of uninterrupted questioning in connection with the woman's death.

He has stolcally maintained she committed suicide December 1, but an affidavit charging him with first degree murder has been sworn to by Coroner J. S. Lewis and will be filed tomorrow, County Prosecutor James Patrick said.

Haver said he took all the steps he outlined because he was fearful he would be blamed for his wife's death. He declared he wanted to fortify the impression she deserted him.

Lewis held an inquest today and said he found the woman's body badly beaten, with what he thought was a fire poker.

Haver was in the county jail tonight, while officials were trying to unravel the skeins of mystery. He was arrested last night on a charge of tampering with the mails, a charge which has been dropped pending the outcome of the investigation.

WARRANT FOR ARREST OSBORNE C. WOOD

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Sheriff R. G. Baker tonight has in his possession a warrant for the arrest of Osborne C. Wood, son of Major General Leonard Wood, Governor-General of the Philippines, on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

The warrant sworn out before County Solicitor W. E. Roebuck today charged Wood with obtaining money under false pretenses from a Palm Beach bank.

According to the information in the hands of the county solicitor, Wood presented a check for $250 to the cashier of the bank saying the account could be verified by calling the Esperitas Santo Savings Bank at Safety Harbor, Fla. The latter bank, it is said, stated Wood had funds to cover the check, but when it was presented later it was returned marked "no funds."

Although only one warrant had been sworn out against Wood today, the county solicitor said he had in his possession eight other alleged worthless checks, that the Palm Beach National Detective Agency claimed Wood had written. The total is given at $3,400.

TORRINGTON YOUTH WAS AWARDED CARNEGIE MEDAL

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Among the awards of the Carnegie hero fund commission made here today, was one of a bronze medal to Irving E. Alcott, Torrington, Conn., whose son, Elmar L. 12, lost his life in that city on July 21, 1923, while attempting to save Battista Negretti, 17, factory hand, from drowning.

"While wading in a swimming hole, Negretti, who could not swim, got into water fifteen feet deep and threshed violently," the commission sets forth in a resume of the act for which the medal is given. "Elmar, who was much smaller than Negretti swam fourteen feet to him. As he reached to take hold of Negretti, Negretti seized him around the waist, rendering him helpless. They sank and rose twice and then sank and were drowned."

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Debate in Reichstag.

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Chancellor Luther's new government programme came up for debate in the reichstag today. Herr Fehrenbach, centrist, expressed the government parties' approval of the government's proposals. Herr Mueller voiced socialist approval. Count Westarp, nationalist leader, in a bitter speech declared that the Stresemann policy was leading from illusions to disappointments and from disappointments to new illusions. He appealed to the government not to apply for membership in the League of Nations until the occupation forces in the Rhineland had been reduced as promised and until the period of occupation had been shortened.

FORMER KAISER CELEBRATES 67TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

DOORN, Holland, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The former German emperor, now plain William Hohenzollern, today celebrated his 67th birthday. The Hohenzollern banner was flung to the breezes, and gala uniforms were in order.

Congratulations flooded in from everywhere, and more than three hundred telegrams arrived. There were simple ceremonies in the morning, and about 4 o'clock in the afternoon the whole household of the chateau, with the special guests in resplendent array, each with a rosebud in his buttonhole, grouped themselves before the conservatory and listened to the ex-kaiser's speech, pronounced with energy and in a high voice, which at the close was greeted with vociferous "hochs" and "hurrahs."

Dinner was served in the evening in the Frederick the Great salon, which had been newly furnished for the occasion with beautiful bronzes, brocaded hangings with gold-worked flowers and other embellishments, all newly arrived from Germany. There were two separate tables, the ex-kaiser's table being decorated with roses; the other reserved for the young princes and princesses, with white lilies. All the flowers had been sent directly from the Italian Riviera.

A splendid bouquet came from a member of the Dutch royal family, believed to be the queen mother, who was a princess of Waldeck and Pyrmont. Special entertainers came from Germany, and it was said that the former emperor's banker in Amsterdam recently remitted 40,000 florins (about $16,000) to pay for the fetes.

COOLIDGE FOR PRESIDENT; SMITH FOR VICE PRESIDENT?

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—(AP)—Republicans and democrats marching arm in arm to the polls in 1928 and voting a non-partisan ticket, with Calvin Coolidge for president and Governor Al Smith for vice president, was pictured as a possibility by Chauncey M. Depew in an address today before the Pilgrims of Non-Partisanship in his seventy years of experience.

"I was born in a day of party politics," Mr. Depew said, "and as a lad I learned to shout for my party, march for my party, fight for my party and starve for my party if necessary. What do we find today?

"A tax bill, always the subject for acute controversy and party feeling, being passed unanimously by the house of representatives and slated to pass the senate with comparatively little agitation. I think Cal Coolidge must have studied old Ben Franklin, for he has had decided not to go up in an airplane and view the affairs of the nation from some God-like position on high, but to come down to earth and meet the responsibilities of the people for economy and thrift.

"And if the present general prosperity continues, if the people continue to devote themselves to business, if employment continues plentiful, there will be another miracle in 1928."

VISCOUNT T. KATO, PREMIER OF JAPAN, DIED YESTERDAY

TOKYO, Jan. 26—(AP)—Viscount T. Kato, the premier, is dead.

Viscount Kato was taken ill last Saturday with influenza. While his physicians said his condition was not serious they were watching him closely and would and would not permit him to attend sessions of the diet. On Tuesday in view of the likelihood of his prolonged absence from the diet, the cabinet appointed R. Wakatsuki, minister of home affairs, to act as premier temporarily. The latter is leader of the Kensekai party.

Y., by way of Hartford and New London, he became furious and threatened travelers. He was overpowered by railroad police. The former soldier, whose home is believed to be in Rome, was given over to the veterans' bureau.

Judge George W. Klett

NEW BRITAIN, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Judge George W. Klett, for more than eight years a member of the republican state central committee and recognized as the leader of the party in this city, died at the New Britain hospital tonight.

Judge Klett, who would have been 53 years old on Washington's birthday next month was first taken ill on October 28, with kidney trouble. The day following he went to the Hartford hospital for an operation returning to his home, apparently recovered from the operation on November 25.

A few days later blood poisoning developed and on December 11, he was taken to the New Britain hospital. In a desperate attempt to save his life six blood transfusions were resorted to. John C. Loomis, president of the Commercial Trust company, twice giving blood for his friend. His condition gradually became weaker and weaker and tonight he passed away at 9:30 o'clock.

Italy Settles Debt With Great Britain

Terms Are Regarded More Generous Than Those Italy Obtained in Washington.

LONDON, Jan. 27—(AP)—Italy has settled her war debt to Great Britain by agreeing to pay roughly 4,000,000 pounds annually for sixty-two years, a total of 273,250,000 pounds ($1,323,000,000). This was revealed today by publication of the terms of the agreement signed by Count Volpi, Italian minister of finance and Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer.

The agreement provides also for Great Britain's concurrent repayment of the gold deposited by Italy in the Bank of England in 1925, amounting to 22,000,000 pounds, as security for war loans.

The total Italy must pay is in effect less than half her admitted debt of 592,000,000 pounds ($2,877,000,000) and the terms accorded by England therefore are regarded more generous than those Italy obtained at Washington.

The first payment, 2,000,000 pounds, is to be made on February 15, next. Thereafter installments are to be paid according to the following schedules: 4,000,000 pounds annually for two years; 4,250,000 annually for four years and thenforth 2,250,000 will close the account.

Italy's 22,000,000 pound gold deposit against the war loans will be repaid beginning in the fiscal year 1924-29 in eight installments of 1,250,000 pounds each and after the eight years in annual installments of 191,000 pounds until September 15, 1987. Great Britain will pay no interest on the Italian gold. Italy's payments to Britain will be made semi-annually, on March 15th and September 15th.

Only in obtaining immediate payments has Great Britain obtained an advantage over America's settlement with Italy, since the United States has to wait several years for the installments to begin and the grade of rising payments is lower.

The agreement, which was signed today, the fruit of two weeks of negotiation, promises very little benefit for the British taxpayer, for the creditor has agreed to terms almost 50 per cent. under its original demand, and the payments receivable from Italy will make very little difference in the Englishman's income tax rate.

The settlement was made with the approval of the cabinets of both signatories and will be ratified almost immediately by the governments.

On the face of today's agreement Great Britain is living up to the offer contained in the famous Balfour note, that she would only ask her creditors to repay an amount equal to the $3,000,000 pounds a year she must pay the United States. According to the suggested proparations of the Balfour note Italy would have to pay 1,000,000 pounds a year more than she has just agreed to pay. If the French government honors M. Caillaux's tentative agreement to pay 12,500,000 pounds a year on account of France's debt to Great Britain, even with the reparations payments of 10,000,000 pounds a year from Germany and with another 4,000,000 pounds annually which the minor war debtors are expected to pay, the British tax payer still will have to pay about 2,000,000 pounds each year out of his own pocket during the next sixty two years.

It is pointed out that even if Great Britain is able to receive approximately 30,000,000 pounds from these sources to meet her American annuities of 33,000,000 pounds she will have sacrificed half the capital owed her and interest on her debts for many years.

FRENCH DEPUTIES CONTINUE THEIR FINANCIAL DEBATE

PARIS, Jan. 27—(AP)—The debate in the chamber of deputies today on French conditions was characterized by a vigorous offensive by the left bloc against capital and capitalists. M. Doumer, official speaker for the radical and socialists made a rigorous attack on bond and stock brokers and capitalists generally and on taxpayers in arrears.

He declared that if the Brokers' threat that stock exchange operations would be reduced by the proposed increase in taxes proved to be true it would not be so bad for the country. As for delinquent taxpayers, they should be posted officially at the mayor's office and in the newspapers, and notices should be tacked on their houses nailing them as taxdodgers and holders of securities who receive a total revenue of about 23,000,000,000 francs annually and declare only 6,000,000,000.

M. Dumesnil asserted that the left block would never vote for new taxes to provide a sinking fund for debts.

A deputy, interrupting, reminded the speaker that most of those bonds were held by small investors, servants, mechanics and laborers.

The intention of the radicals and socialists, M. Dumesnil went on, was to insist on a capital levy for the purpose of sinking fund.

The debate made little headway today, only three of the twenty-nine speakers on the list having been heard. It will therefore take about two weeks to dispose of the general discussion, and the debate on the various articles of the plan of the left cartel will occupy another week. Thus a final vote is not likely before the end of February unless some of the orators abstain.

Premier Briand, who seemed to have the chamber well in control today, will take the floor early next week.

SENTENCED FOR ATTEMPTING TO BRIBE A COASTGUARDSMAN

BOSTON, Jan. 27—(AP)—Attempts to bribe a coastguardsman to permit them to land liquor from a rum row schooner, cost Ralph Bentley and Abel Doucette of Gloucester each $500 and a year and a day in the Plymouth jail in the federal district court today.

A jury verdict of guilty was returned after evidence was introduced to show that $10 in cash was handed a coastguardsman and later a $100 bill was inserted in the strands of a two rope and hauled aboard a coast guard craft.

Solid Wave of Static Halts Broadcasting

Great Obstacle in the Way of Success of International Radio Tests.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—(AP)—A seemingly solid wall of static that reared itself today along the Atlantic coast was the latest obstacle to stand in the way of success of the third international broadcasting tests as North American stations resumed their efforts tonight to exchange programs with Europe.

Since 7 o'clock this morning station WLW, Cincinnati, beat in vain against this wall with a barrage of music in a broadcasting "endurance test" which will end tomorrow at 8 a. m.

Although 300 telegrams from the central part of the United States, the southwest and as far west as Montana reported clear reception, eastern observers asserted that only static noise filtered into their sets.

After broadcasting all day, Station WLW only stopped once for a fresh breath. That was during the overseas hour when South American and all European stations, except those of the British came on the air, but in order that it might have a complete 24-hour record, an extra hour was added to its program.

Because of the "jinx" that has pursued the radio tests in the form of interruptions by S. O. S. calls, earthquakes, storms and static caused either by sun spots or aurora borealis, the hopes of the radio week committee are now centered on Friday's tests when "zone broadcasting" will be featured, L. A. Nixon executive secretary of the committee said.

During these tests each quarter of the north American continent will broadcast in turn while the remainder is silent. Stations in the eastern time zone will be on the first five minutes; next, the central time zone stations after this the mountain time stations and finally the Pacific coast stations.

Under this plan, it was pointed out many listeners in the east will be able to hear and log middle west and Pacific coast stations for the first time.

COLONEL MITCHELL HAS RESIGNED FROM THE ARMY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27—(AP)—Colonel William Mitchell resigned from the army today, and unless the first impulses of war department officials are overturned the resignation will be accepted.

Some technicalities may stand in the way, but those under whom the air service officer has served seem disposed to let no minor consideration interfere with his expressed desire to terminate on Feb. 1, his stormy career as a military man.

He probably will go on the lecture platform to continue his campaign for greater development of aviation. It was as a part of this campaign that he made the public charges of maladministration which led to his court martial conviction on charges of infringing military discipline.

The sentence of five years suspension pronounced by the court martial had been approved but two days ago by President Coolidge. The resolution was sent early today to Brigadier General Samuel D. Rockenbach, commanding the District of Washington, who referred it without comment to the adjutant general of the army. The latter transmitted it to the war secretary's office. It merely said:

"I hereby tender my resignation as an officer of the United States army to take effect Feb. 1, 1926."

SENATOR GREENE FAINTED IN THE SENATE CHAMBER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27—(AP)—Senator Frank L. Greene of Vermont had a fainting spell late today in the senate chamber. He suffered a stroke of paralysis two years ago after being shot by a prohibition agent who was firing at a bootlegger.

The senator was taken from the chamber to the lobby after the attack today and was attended by Senator Copeland, of New York, who is a physician, who was hastily summoned from a committee meeting. Later Mr. Greene was moved to his home. Senator Copeland said there was no evidence of another stroke of paralysis and that Senator Gresne's conditions was not serious.

Senator Copeland subsequently issued this bulletin:

"As a result of a slight attack of indigestion, Senator Greene had a trifling fainting spell. He did not lose consciousness and in ten minutes was fully recovered."

REV. PAUL F. M'ALENNEY HAS TURN FOR THE WORSE

HARTFORD, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Rev. Paul F. McAlenney, venerable pastor of St Peter's church, whose condition suddenly took a tur for the worse Tuesday night, was reported tonight as "much weaker" and to be "in a coma," with little hope of him living more than "forty-eight hours."

Father McAlenney was given the last rites of the church Tuesday by Rev. John J. Downey, pastor of St. Michael's church. Father McAlenney's two sisters and several nieces and nephews were at his bedside today. These included his two sisters, Mr. John Kennedy, of Derby, and Mrs. Alice Kennedy, of Southington; his niece, Mrs. Samuel Walsh, of Hartford; his nephews, Rev. John Kennedy pastor of the Blessed Sacrament church, Bridgeport; Rev. John Kennedy assistant pastor of Sacred Heart church, New Haven; and Rev. William Kennedy, pastor of St. Rose's church, Newtown, as, well as the priests of the parish.

CONVENTION OF RETAIL MILLINERS' ASSOCIATION

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—(AP)—Women who wear brimless hats squint, said Dr. Charles Collins Francis, speaking today at the convention of the Retail Milliners' association of America. Squinting, he explained, wrinkles the face and hardens the muscles, therefore if she is to save her face milady must don the broad brimmed bonnet. He predicted a revolution in women's millinery, the small hat yielding to the large.

Expressing his ideas on the harmful effects of the universally popular small hat, Dr. Francis said:

"It exerts pressure on the delicate circulatory structure of the head. This interferes with the circulation around the forehead and results unquestionably in skin starvation and coarseness of the skin."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27—(AP)—Adherence of the United States to the world court with reservations was approved tonight, by the senate, 76 to 17.

The vote brought to an end one of the bitterest fights the senate has had since the memorable struggle over the league of nations.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the war president sat in the crowded galleries with rapt attention as the senate cast thev ote giving its "advice and consent" to American membership in the court set up under the covenant of the league which her husband brought back from Paris and which the senate rejected on March 19, 1920.

Operating under the drastic cloture rule limiting debate the senate worked far past its usual hour of adjournment in order to reach the final vote. There were five hours of debate and then a rapid fire of roll calls on which every reservation pressed by the opponents of the court was rejected by overwhelming majorities.

The final roll call came suddenly after Senator Johnson, republican, California, had made a dramatic last minute appeal for rejection of the resolution of adhesion. Forty lines disappeared in the voting. Forty republicans and 36 democrats casting their ballots for adhesion and 14 republicans, 2 democrats, and the one farmer-labor member voting the negative.

The ratification resolution as adopted contained the reservations drafted by the court's supporters, re-asserting the nation's sovereign rights and declaring it accepted by legal connection with the league of nations.

These reservations apparently are acceptable to President Coolidge, but they must be accepted also by the forty-eight nations already members of the court before American membership becomes effections.

A score of other qualifications, offered by the court's opponents were voted down by overwhelming majorities.

While many of the reservations were considered of minor importance, at least three of those rejected were given outstanding recognition.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27—(AP)—The tax reduction bill was given the right of way by the senate tonight immediately after it had completed action on the world court.

After a wait of more than a week on the senate calendar, the revenue measure was unanimously made the order of business on the motion of Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, in charge of the bill. He expects to hold the measure constantly before the senate in the hope of obtaining final action early in February. Debate will start tomorrow.

Assault on the bill was formally opened today by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, with the introduction of an amendment proposing to open income tax returns to public inspection, a provision repealed in the pending bill.

This was the first of several amendments which will be proposed by the group opposing the compromise reached by republican and democratic members of the finance committee on the house bill.

Informal conferences among the group also have developed serious opposition to the proposed repeal of the inheritance tax and to reductions in the surtax rates as now provided by the bill.

The Norris amendment would give wider publicity than is now permitted through publication of the amounts of income tax paid. The amendment now in force was adopted two years ago through a coalition of democrats and republican insurgents, but senate democrats have indicated they would make no fight at this time as a party for retention of publicity.

Senator King of Utah, one of the democratic members of the committee, also has served notice he will fight for changes in the bill, opposing also the repeal of the inheritance tax and publicity of income tax returns.

Despite the organized fight against the bill which now appears certain, republican and democratic leaders had declared they will make every effort to bring about final action on the measure early in February to insure tax reduction by March 15, when the first installments are due.

BODY OF CARDINAL MERCIER HAS BEEN PLACED IN COFFIN

MALINES, Belgium, Jan. 27.—(AP)—With solemn ceremonies the body of Cardinal Mercier wash taken today from the catadalque where it lay, while all Belgium paid homage. It was placed gently in a triple coffin of lead, zinc and oak, in which on Friday it will be interred in the crypt of St. Rombaut's Cathedral in Malines.

After the ceremony vesper services were held in the cardinal's little bare room in the archepiscopal palace, while church dignitaries chanted the funeral mass for the dead. Just at the hour of the services all the bells in Malines and in most of the churches of Belgium tolled, and in every church funeral masses were said. Earlier in the day, the students of the Univesity of Louvain celebrated a similar service.

It was announced today that the king would adhere to his original desire to follow the body from the station to the cathedral, prior to tomorrow's national funeral service. The king will be accompanied by the crown prince and other royalties, as well as members of the diplomatic corps, most of whom have been specially charged by their governments to participate in the services officially.

The course in Brussels and Antwerp will be closed as a token of respect, and most of the stores throughout the country will likewise shut their doors until after the ceremony.

SARANAC LAKE WAS SHAKEN BY EARTHQUAKE

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Earth tremors, lasting several seconds, shook this village today.

The shocks were particularly severe along the Saranac river and Lake Flower. One resident reported that a grinding noise accompanied the tremors.

In the last ten years several slight quakes have been felt here.

The earthquake, which occurred at 4:26 A. M., frightened many residents who hurried into cellars in the belief that heaters had exploded. As far as could be learned, no one was injured and no damage resulted.

PASSENGER TRAIN DERAILED ON THE PENNSYLVANIA ROAD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The engine and six coaches of a Philadelphia to Washington passenger train on the Pennsylvania Railroad were derailed here tonight after the train had crossed a viaduct near the Union station. First reports were that the engineer had been seriously hurt, but that no passengers were injured.

BOSTON COMPOSER GETS MORE KISSES THAN MONEY

BOSTON, Jan. 27.—(AP)—"Forty-five dollars and about two hundred kisses," is the way W. Franke Harling, Boston composer, described his share of the royalties from "A Light From St. Agnes," the "jazz opera," which brought him tumultous applause and nation wide attention when produced in Chicago last month. The composer is visiting his parents here.

An expert statistician, taking into consideration the fact that he worked two years on the opera, could figure that his royalties would amount to 44 cents a week, he admitted. He pointed out, however, that money was coming in from other sources during the conception of "A Light From St. Agnes" and considering it was produced only once, his share of "the gate" was perfectly fair.

It was announced today that the Chicago Opera company (which produced the opera) pays $100 a performance," he pointed out. "Half of that hundred had to go to my sponsors and 10 per cent. to my musical director. That's how I got my $45."

His new opera "Deep River" which will be produced on Broadway soon, will be "grand opera along theatrical lines, however," he said. Present plans call for a long run in a New York theatre rather than a "one night opera performance," he said.

Should returns from operatic performances will not deter him from further compositions, Harling declared. He has already received numerous offers to stage "A Light From St. Agnes" including one for a European tour. The last was received today, but whether it was accepted he declined to say.

THREE NURSE ASSOCIATIONS DECIDE TO AMALGAMATE

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 27.—(AP)—After much discussion and contrary to popular opinion before the meeting, the amalgamation of the graduate nurse association of the state, the Connecticut organization for public health nursing and the Connecticut League of Nursing Education, was decided upon at the business meeting of the first named associations here this afternoon.

The three organizations are state branches of the national associations, which, in turn, are striving to form one nation-wide society for nurses. The central organization plan has been followed in several other states with much success, but its establishment in Connecticut was not assured until the decisive move at the meeting. A name for the new organization has not been chosen.

In the new state association there will be a membership of over 2,300 nurses, engaged in public health nursing, Red Cross work, private duty, and supervising, training schools and health organizations. A headquarters will be established soon in Connecticut with an executive secretary in charge.

On the final afternoon youthful dancers under the direction of Mrs. Eileen Racicot will entertain and in the evening Miss Eleanor Connors, M. J. Farrell and Arthur Roy will render vocal selections.

Averting disaster and possible death by less than two feet, Raymond and Robert Barrows of Mansfield Center, brothers, engaged in the retail milk business were thanking good fortune after their milk truck skidded almost into a speeding passenger train at the Ash street grade crossing of the New Haven Railroad in this city recently. As the truck was descending the sharp grade on Ash street some 60 feet from the crossing, the brothers heard the warning whistle of an approaching train. Raymond, who was driving, applied the brakes, but due to the icy condition of the road the truck skidded on toward the tracks. The machine had practically reached the crossing when to the horror of the occupants the train loomed into view from behind the high embankment which had hidden its approach. Raymond gave the steering wheel a sharp turn and the truck skidded around on the west-bound tracks allowing less than two feet of clearance between the machine and the train.

This particular crossing has been a dangerous spot and a common hazard. To the east of the crossing traffic coming down the Ash street hill from the north is hidden from the railroad tracks and vice versa by a high bank a bell signal giving the warning of trains approaching from either side but there are two faults with this type of signal. One is that the bell has been known to be out of condition at times and the other is that anyone in an enclosed automobile, especially a noisy truck, cannot hear the bell until so close to the tracks that a little skidding, as was the case with the Barrows brothers, might easily lead to a fatality. The matter of remedying this danger has been taken into consideration previously by the common council. During the past administration Alderman James J. Lee urged the improvement of the crossing signal or approaches, but the machinery was gummed up in some manner, and no action was taken.

Louis F. Schweickert, manager of a sand blasting company doing work in this city was shaken up and somewhat injured when a staging on which he was standing fell to the sidewalk some twelve feet below, causing Mr. Schweikert to land heavily on the pavement and sustain minor bruises. The staging was set against the Willimantic Savings Institute building, a brick structure which was being cleaned by the blasting process. It was hung from the chimney and when several bricks loosened the rope attachment unfastened.

Nathan Shilberg, local junk dealer, called at the police station Wednesday afternoon and reported to Chief of Police Allan McArthur that sometime Monday a barn which he leases on Willowbrook street had been broken into. The lock had been demolished and Mr. Shelberg said that there was evidence that some of the contends had been handled but he did not know whether or no anything had been stolen. An investigation is being conducted.

Miss Jean A. Howie, of the faculty of the Natchaug Grammar school, in the kindergarten department, and daughter of Mrs. T. Frank Howie of Prospect street was rushed to St. Joseph's hospital Tuesday morning and operated on for acute appendicitis. Miss Howie was resting quite comfortable Wednesday.

William J. Malone, 52, and brother of Mrs. Frank H. Gallup and Mrs. C. E. Macfarlane of this city, resumed his ring career last week when he met a coming youngster in a lively boxing bout staged in Providence, R. I. Bill displayed much of his old speed and punch. Years ago he performed and boxed in the old hempen rope circle of the Windham Athletic club.

The new storm which started Tuesday and which lasted until early Wednesday morning was the seventh to visit Willimantic this season according to citizens who keep "tabs" on such matters. Three of the seven were nothing more than flurries. With the most recent storm of two inches added on, a total of ten inches of snow have fallen here thus far this winter. Outside of very few cold snaps the weather has been mild throughout and people are asking what has become of the many predictions of a hard winter. Perhaps, as others say, the optimists should not be too hasty because February and windy March remain just ahead.

Mr. and Mrs. Omer Brindamour of New York city are visiting friends in this city, prior to returning to New York at the close of a honeymoon trip, following their marriage one week ago.

The loss of the brick dwelling on Holbrook avenue, belonging to David Mannick which was badly gutted by fire Sunday afternoon, was adjusted Wednesday for $3,400.

The teacher in the Franklin (N. H.) kindergarten asked one of her young pupils what the eyes were for and was promptly answered "To see with." Another was asked what the nose was for and the answer was correctly given. Then she asked the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Watts, "What are your ears for?" the child replied, "To keep clean." She got a 100 mark.

WILLIMANTICS GRAND LIST IS $17,877,416

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 27—The assessors of the town of Windham comprising John R. Pickett, Lawrence S. Casey, and Arthur J. Dubreuil completed their assessment and filed the grand list of 1925 with Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton Wednesday afternoon. The grand list this year amounts to $17,877,416, an increase over last year of $165,757. This increase is all in the west division for city property and is accounted for by new property being added to the list such as the Capitol theater, the Elks home, and an assessment to the Natchaug Industrial company, the 10 year exemption for that concern having expired. There was also a small increase in automobile values. The east division or country property assessment remained practically the same as last year. A 13 mill tax was raised on the 1925 grand list more than $230,000 after all exemption had been taken. It is the opinion of the selectmen, the town clerk and those first in public affairs and economy that one mill extra, or 14 mills, should be levied so that the additional mill revenue could be applied to the current debt. A town meeting will be held Monday night to levy the tax rate.

URGES REVALUATION OF PROPERTY IN CITY

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 27—"The most important problem confronting the city of Willimantic and the town of Windham at the present is a revaluation and readjustment and equalization of the grand list of the town," said Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, in a talk at the weekly meeting of the Willimantic Exchange club held Wednesday evening. This was the second address on town government and finances given by Capt. Fenton before the club. The meeting was largely attended and was in charge of President Egbert A. Case. Attorney Arthur T. Kelly was elected to membership.

Town Clerk Fenton submitted a table of figures, which showed that the grand list had increased since 1911 to the amount of $14,000,000. He showed the exact amount of increases in houses, lands, blocks, and manufacturing. Automobiles have increased since 1911 to the amount of $742,000 according to the assessment figures during that period.

Figures which the speaker produced, proved that a proper revaluation and equalization of the tax list would give the town of Windham a grand list of $25,000,000 or more, as compared with approximately $18,000,000 at present. A list of transfers of property and the price they sold for and also the assessed valuation on these showed at this time the assessment is very low. The property is assessed on an average of 47 per cent of the real value and the assessed value varies from 22 to 96.4 per cent of the actual valuation.

The list of transfers which was taken for the years 1924 and 1925 was given as a fair estimate of all the assessments in the town, not being confined to any particular locality or street and showed conclusively that the tax payers are really paying a tax of about 6 mills in the town and city or total of 12 mills. The tax rate on the grand list of 1924 was 12 mills each for the town and city, a total of 24 mills, which is in reality, but 12 mills on the actual sales value.

Mr. Fenton pointed out that although the expenses of the town of Windham had increased more than $220,000 in the past few years the revenue from taxation had not increased in proportion. The town of Windham is among the lowest taxed towns in the state according to a study of the tax rates in other towns in proportion to the grand list. Last year, although the grand list increased, the town dropped from a 13 mill to a 12 mill tax, failing to allow an increase of revenue. The last and only revaluation of town property was in 1913 and this brought about an increase of $8,000,000 for that year, with an addition $2,000,000 increase brought about previously through the efforts of Dr. Gaurus E. Wilcox, upon his election to the board of assessors at that time. The list of 1909 was less than $6,000,000. In round numbers the increase of the grand list in the last 15 years has been $12,500,000. The real value of automobiles in the city at present is approximately $1,500,000. Town Clerk Fenton's highly instructive talk was received with much applause. He was accorded a rising vote of thanks after which a brief forum was held.

He also stressed the need of a club for the boys in South Windham and the girls in Windham. The delegates to the state and county conventions are: Rev. W. M. Brown, Charles Backus, South Windham; alternates, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. F. E. Guild. H. C. Lathrop offered to pay one-quarter of the expense of painting the church and the Ladies' Aid society had previously voted $100. About 40 responded to the roll call, which closed the meeting. Charles Backus and Rev. J. F. Cobb reported the work for the South Windham branch church.

HAS NEARLY 600 LIVE CHICKS ON HIS FARM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 27—This early in the year, E. G. Shauffleur, whose farm adjoins is on the Killingly-West Killingly road, in the northeastern section of the town, has 565 live chicks obtained from 1,200 eggs. This is an exceptional high record of hatching for this period of the year and Mr. Shauffleur is very proud of his accomplishment. White Leghorns are the strain at his farm. Mr. Shauffleur recently gave up his insurance business and his dry goods business to devote all of his time to farming and raising chickens. He declares the opportunity for making money on his farm is greater than in either of the lines he is abandoning, if one specializes in certain revenue producing lines. That's good news for those who would remain on the farm or heed the call of "back to the farm."

POLICE INVESTIGATING SERIES OF AUTO WRECKS

DANIELSON, Jan. 27—Another wrecked automobile at the foot of what is known as State Line hill, or Little Rest hill, five miles to the east of Danielson, arouses the suspicion that cars are brought there purposely to be wrecked. It would be possible to abandon the car at the top of the hill on the Connecticut-Rhode Island, give it a spill and let it race down the steep incline to be wrecked on the curve below. In such an event collection of insurance on the machine would be the object.

State officers were investigating on Wednesday the circumstances surrounding the wrecking of a car over there under suspicious conditions. The accident was not reported, as the law requires. The registration plates are missing from the machine. There is no evidence that anyone was injured in the accident, something that would appear highly improbable all angles of the case considered. During the day, through the motor number and other marking, the ownership of the machine was established. It is owned by a Rhode Island concern and had been sold to a customer on a time payment plan.

About a year ago another car was wrecked in the same place and afterwards destroyed as far as further use was concerned by fire. The ownership of this car or as to who had been operating it was never established. There was no evidence of anyone having been injured in this wreck.

From his home on Carter street Wednesday morning the funeral of Wilfred Bolreau, who died Saturday, was held with a solemn high mass of requiem at St. James' church at 10:30. Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S., Rev. Oscar Norman of Moosup, Rev. James McCarthy, M. S., and Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., were the officers of the mass. The body was entombed at Holy Cross cemetery. At South Killingly Wednesday afternoon at one o'clock the funeral of Mrs. Angie Whipper, wife of Fred Shippee, was held with services at the church in that place. Rev. E. M. Baker of the Knotty Oak church in Washington, R. I., a former pastor in territory east of here, conducted the service. The body was placed in the receiving vault at the Oneco cemetery. The bearers were C. E. Hall, Eben Phillips, A. A. Jacques and Olney Knight. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

A call Wednesday morning at 6:30 o'clock brought out the fire department to handle a chimney fire in a tenement house on Water street. There was no damage by the fire, which aroused interest because the call for it came from Box 3, dread number, in the heart of the business section. Box 34 failed to function, when an attempt was made to pull in an alarm, so the call was transferred to No. 23, in A. Warren, in charge of the fire alarm telegraph system, worked during the forenoon on the non-functioning box to put it in working order again.

Mrs. Susie G. Williams, secretary of Quinebaug Pomona grange, was in Hartford Wednesday, engaged with the effort of preparing the annual Pomona Handbook for issue. This book contains each year much statistical information about Pomona and the subordinate granges, lists of officers and other matters of interest and value to Grangers. Mrs. Williams hopes this year to make the book more complete and inclusive than ever before.

A committee of the Service Battery that handles such matters regretfully announced Wednesday morning that they were obliged to cancel plans for a dance to have been held at the state armory Friday evening of this week. Progress of the renovation work that has been going on their for weeks makes it out of the question to hold the dance as scheduled. It is believed at this time that the big drill shed will again be available for dancing in about two weeks, but this cannot be definitely foretold.

The first meeting of Killingly grange in charge of the newly installed officers is to be held here next Monday evening. The literary programs have all been planned for the year. There is every indication that Killingly grange will have a prosperous year. While the local grange has grown in membership in a marked manner during the past year, the effort to further increase the membership is active and effective. Killingly grange gives promise of rising to still greater influence and value.

In compiling lists of early operators who served in the New England field, the telephone companies list Mrs. Ashley P. Mills, who as Miss Ella Chapman, was an operator here 40 years ago. At that time there were but 65 subscribers in the Danielson division and the switchboard was in a rear room at Dowe's store.

A snappy basketball game was played after the drill period between officers and non-commissioned officers, on one side, and privates on the other, Tuesday night. The privates lost, 28 to 25. The game aroused great interest among the battery members.

Landlord-Owner W. S. Brown of the Attawaugan hotel will formally file with the warden and court of burgesses a request that their recent ruling relative to removing certain no-parking regulations in Main street be modified to exclude the frontage of the hotel. Mr. Brown desires the restriction prevailing there to remain in force.

Brooms sufficed to remove Wednesday morning the light snow that came during the preceding night. The little storm made good tracking conditions for those who like to go for hunting and numbers of sportsmen were out during the day.

Judge W. Fenner Woodward was greeted by many friends when he came down town Wednesday morning for the first time, after an illness of about a fortnight.

It was revealed Wednesday that there remains a possibility of a little industry that seemed lost to this town, Tuesday, locating in Danielson. The concern would employ about ten hands.

Radio fans, comparing notes Wednesday, agreed that bad reception conditions prevailing Tuesday night again ruined their chances of hearing European or South American stations. The present week has been the most unfortunate from the standpoint of atmospheric conditions that could have been selected out of the entire fall and winter to date for long distance broadcast trials.

Those are busy days for the physicians of Killingly. Numerous cases of grip, laryngitis, pneumonia and other such ailments have swelled the number of patients to about the peak for the present cold weather season.

Eugene Williams, an employe of the gas and electric company, has a badly torn finger, an injury sustained while engaged in his regular routine of work.

Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Andrews of Riverview are leaving this week end to make their home in Cambridge, Mass. Mr. Andrews is one of the special police officers of the borough of Danielson.

A three-days' run of the motion picture feature, The Iron Horse, was completed Wednesday at the Orpheum theater, having played to an unusually large number of patrons.

Three of Danielson textiles plants are operating on a day and night schedule, evidence of good business in the lines they manufacture.

The last few days of the ice fishing season are at hand and numbers of sportsmen are planning week end trips.

There was an interested attendance at the assembly hall of the high school Wednesday to witness the telephone switchboard demonstration, previously described in this column.

In furtherance of its aims of the year, Leo J. L'Homme post, American legion, has a whist planned for the near future.

Further complaints are heard relative to a Buffalo firm trying to collect money for goods returned to them by Danielson people, who never ordered the merchandise, but were made victims of the mailing list nuisance.

One hears of plans for motor coach excursions by big operating concerns to beaches and cities off the regular runs during the coming summer season.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM'S GRAND LIST TOTALS TO $6,507,874

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 27—According to the assessors' report the total valuation of taxable property in the town of Putnam is $6,507,874. This is a decrease over last year of $304,770, the grand list of 1925 totaling $6,812,644. Nearly all of the decrease is represented in lesser valuations of mill property.

As the board of relief last year took off $90,000 from the assessors' valuations it may be that one-third of the decrease will be accounted for in this way, or, in other words, if the board of relief does not make any material change in the assessors' valuations this year the decrease will be about $200,000 instead of $300,000.

Non-taxable property amounts to $674,800 including soldiers' exemptions of $78,041, so that the total net grand list is $5,755,033.

Last year there were 1,073 automobiles with a valuation of $407,567; this year there are 1,164 automobiles, (this includes passenger cars and trucks) valued at $387,441. This is an increase of 91 in the number of cars and a decrease in their estimated worth of $20,226.

Ten per cent. penalty added to those who failed to hand in their lists on time amounted to $34,684. There are five concerns taxed for more than $100,000—the Bloom Silk company, $105,100; Hemingway Silk company, $184,900; Putnam Woolen company, $201,250; Putnam Light and Power company, $132,180; Putnam Land and Mills corporation $376,000.

At the Bradley theater next week eight old time fiddlers will contend for the championship of Windham county. This number may be enlarged as entrants will be booked up until six o'clock on the opening night. Those who have agreed to take part are:

Henry Pray, 62 years of age, of Baltouville; Joseph Shippee, 60, Putnam; Joseph Suprenant, 60, Putnam; George Oscar Ross, 65, Putnam; Gus Tetreault, 77, Putnam; George T. Whittemore, 66, Putnam; Jonathan Whitford, 62 Eastford; Wallace Aldrich, 65, Putnam.

Mr. Aldrich plays with his left hand, so far as known the only old fiddler in the state in the south-paw class. Mr. Tetreault is ten years older than any of the others but he expects to be among the first to cross the wire.

Each contestant will be required to play three numbers, one of which is Turkey in the Straw; the other two can be of his own selection. Three prizes are to be awarded. The first is a handsome silver loving cup, and $15 in gold, the second will receive $10 in gold, and the third will get a $5 gold piece.

The judges are Postmaster Archie MacDonald, John H. Morse and James H. Rafferty, which means that the awards will be made on merit only.

At the most Putnam will not less more than eighteen residents as the result of the recent change in the schedule of freight trains of the New Haven road, and probably not more than fifteen.

This statement is on information furnished by a responsible official of the road who lives in Putnam and who is thoroughly familiar with every detail in connection with the running of the trains, and the changes resulting from the new order.

He declared that the number of New Haven employes who are affected by this order does not exceed 25 or 28. Of these, twelve are non-residents; and on the completion of their "runs" here, would "deadhead" back to their homes at New London, Norwich, Worcester or elsewhere. They were in no sense residents of Putnam and their expenditures here, he said, were limited to the purchase of newspapers or cigarettes. The loss of income to local merchants as far as they were concerned is negligible, he said.

Of the eighteen who cannot complete their "runs" and then return to Putnam for the night at least three, declared, would keep their residence here. Two of these, both engineers, he mentioned by name.

"You are justified in making the statement," he repeated, "that eighteen is the largest number that will have to leave and in my judgment fifteen is nearer the correct figure."

It is of course a matter of regret that this city will lose fifteen of eighteen well-paid residents, but this is far better than losing 75 or 80 as was given out at first as the number that Putnam would lose because of the change in schedules.

Miss Margaret Boehm, of San Francisco, is the youngest of four sister. The other three are married to three Brothers. The three brothers have a fourth brother. And it was taken for granted that in due time the fourth of the four sisters would be married to the fourth of the four brothers. Then came along Herbert Trautner, a reporter, and wrecked a perfect story by marrying Miss Margaret.

WORLD COURT ACTION

After a long and fruitless fight against it the adherence of this country to the world court has been adopted by the United States senate with only 13 members of that body standing in opposition, one not voting because he was paired. This reveals what has been insisted upon from the beginning that a small group of senators was endeavoring by their tactics to prevent the more than two thirds majority from giving expression to their desires and expressing, as it is believed, the sentiment of the country upon this question.

The action on the world court has been anticipated. It is accompanied by certain reservations which are added for the protection of this country's interests. The resolution as adopted by the senate must be submitted to the president for his enforcement or rejection, though the latter seems improbable, and then will follow the action of the various other countries upon the reservations which we have made. They will determine whether they are acceptable or not, or whether they are willing to accept anything of the kind in order to have the United States a signatory to the court protocol.

The vote of 76 to 17, taken two days after cloture was decided upon, shows how unwarranted were the efforts put forth by the obstructionists. They were entitled to their views concerning the court, and it was to be expected they would vote in accordance therewith, but when they undertook to say that there could be no vote on the resolution because there were enough who thought differently to insure adoption it was too much for a senate to stand. Cloture is not frequently adopted. It is opposed by many. Some even opposed it who did not oppose the world court. It can be rated as drastic action but there are times when it is needed and good use has been made of it this week.

Now let the obstructionists be given to understand that they will be quite as ruthlessly handled upon other non-partisan questions and their activity will dwindle. The senate by its action has declared for the adjustment of international questions by a tribunal which is ready for business. It is a step in behalf of peace rather than war.

RADIO FOR PLEASURE AND RELIEF

With the nations on both sides of the Atlantic engaged in a test of radio apparatus for their entertainment, it is impressive that such demonstrations should be halted by the cries for help from humanity located on vessels in distress somewhere in the mid-Atlantic.

For America to be entertained by musical and other programs from Europe is something new. It provides a decided contrast to the days that are gone. But so does the position of shipwrecked vessels. It is was not so many years ago that when a vessel became helpless in mid-ocean, sprung a leak and was in danger of sinking there was slight prospect of rescue. It was possible to put off in small boats and trust to luck and it was possible to send up signals of distress. But it was all a matter of chance whether they were picked up, whether they stayed afloat long enough to be picked up or whether the signals were seen.

Today it is far different. By means of the wireless it is not only possible to summons help and give the location of the vessel in distress but there is invariably the added satisfaction of learning that the call has been heard and that help is on the way. Terrific storms make the task of rescue decidedly difficult but the presence of those willing and ready to give all possible assistance indicates the great value which wireless is to those who travel in ships.

The tests which are being made concerning international radio broadcasting are regarded as important but they must of necessity take second place when life is in danger on the high seas and the unobstructed air is needed to carry the S. O. S. appeals. Pleasure must give way for such efforts as can be made to prevent a sea tragedy, and there cannot be too great an appreciation of the facilities that are available these days for meeting just such distressing situations.

Why any ships should be operated without the protection of a wireless outfit in these days is hard to understand.

DEPORTING UNDESIRABLES

What must be regarded as an excellent plan for getting rid of the undesirable aliens is that adopted by all the New England states for the deportation of such individuals.

Under the immigration laws the undesirables are supposed to be kept out. If there is anything in their careers up to that time which warrants exclusion they are not admitted. It can be readily seen that some may squeeze by under such scrutiny and of course it is entirely possible that the undesirability may develop after they get located in this country. In either case that does not mean that they must be or should be allowed to remain. If it is established that they have evaded the law in getting in they can be sent back and if they prove by their conduct that they are undesirable they can be deported.

It is upon this latter point that the New England states are now a unit through the recent swinging into line of Rhode Island. This cooperation with the government is what is called for by conditions. There is no reason why the country or the individual states should be burdened by the criminal aliens for any longer period than it requires to get them out of the country. They have demonstrated their lack of appreciation of the advantages furnished here and their disrespect for the laws of this country. They deserve such punishment as is meted out to them in the courts but following that they should go back whence they came. There are criminals enough in the country who cannot be deported without tolerating the presence of those from abroad. They should be denied admission, but when that is impossible the prompt ousting of them is to be commended. We want neither the responsibility nor the expense of trying to reform them. Already the cost of taking care of aliens runs into too large sums whether they are sent to penal institutions or hospitals. Having once demonstrated that they can be expected to continue to be a liability upon the commonwealth, prompt deportation means that further offenses will be forestalled.

LET IT BE ACCEPTED

In the submission of his resignation from the United States army Colonel Mitchell has done what he should have done months ago before he launched out in a tirade against incompetency of others, concerning matters of which he knew nothing and regarding which he could not pose as an expert.

His resignation does not come as a surprise and in view of the fact that he has displayed this particular side of his make up and the apparent inability on his part to suppress it in the future it must be regarded as desirable. He has waited to see whether he was going to experience a satisfactory modification of the sentence. By the terms he would be without influence for the next five years but still subject to army discipline, and it is discipline which he, whether as officer in full standing or under sentence, always chafes under. It is something which he demands from others but is unwilling to submit to.

That the resignation will be accepted seems not improbable. He hasn't been fired from the army and neither has he become a martyr. If he elects to get out under the fact that he has brought punishment upon himself by his acts there will be little cause for regret. He is simply doing what should have been done a long time ago. At that time, before he burst forth into unwarranted statements, there might have been an unwillingness to accept his resignation. Such, however, cannot be said to exist today. His sentence wasn't imposed with that in mind, but if he chooses to go there is no reason to try to stop him. Even if the resignation isn't accepted for the "good of the service" it will be generally regarded as such.

ENFORCEMENT

From the very beginning of prohibition, and before, it has been realized that if it was going to be successful there must be enforcement. Since the dry law went into effect that fact has been on. There are varying results. Those who maintained that enforcement was impossible are pointing to the arrests, raids and violations to support their contention that there is not enforcement and that there cannot be. Those who lean toward the dry side are reluctant to admit that prohibition isn't prohibiting and that real enforcement cannot be accomplished. One side is pointing to the large amount of liquor which is to be obtained throughout the country, 99 per cent of which is claimed to be poison, and the other directs attention to the amount of good that is being accomplished.

Under these conditions it is interesting to note what Lincoln C. Andrews, charged with the enforcement of prohibition has to say. He points not only to the difficulties in bringing about enforcement, but the breakdown in the morale of the prohibition forces and then declares that a serious handicap to enforcement is the failure of the courts to function adequately.

In this expression concerning the tremendous task which he has undertaken to discharge, Mr. Andrews is backed up by United States District Attorney Buckner of New York. They are not overemphasizing the difficulties of enforcement but are pointing out experiences and the great opposition that is being encountered. Enforcement is certainly no mere trifle. Is the answer going to be that "there ain't no sich animile"?

EDITORIAL NOTES

How many of the lessons of Thrift week will be carried over with the present week?

The man on the corner says: Many an imaginary halo gets upset on the slippery places.

There are always those who think that it is only the sidewalk of the other fellow that needs to be cleaned.

When midwest bandits fled in a buggy they probably figured that no one would ever suspect them in such a disguise.

We don't hear much about mosquitoes but it is about time to get some advance information concerning the killing of the peach crop.

You might make your prediction now about the date of the first appearance of marbles and tops and see how close you get to it.

That barkentine which has upset and blockaded a Florida harbor isn't the only upset that has occurred in that southern state this winter.

It is all right to talk about the mildness of the Mexican laws, but perhaps Mexicans would refer to the recent holdup and slaughter on a railroad train as mild lawlessness.

MORE BLESSED TO GIVE

The girl who had just had a birthday was exhibiting her gifts to her visitor. She sighed ruefully as her eye lighted upon a large traveling bag.

"I suppose I shouldn't look a gift horse in the mouth," she laughed. "It's really such a beautiful bag, too. If I were going for a trip around the world I wouldn't want a classier looking bag. Only," casting another glance at the gift, "I'm not going anywhere for the next ten years, and there's a million things I'd sooner have. Phyllis gave it to me, you know."

The visitor laughed dryly. "Might've known it was Phyllis.

"Last month Phyllis and I went to see an old school chum who's been ill for weeks. She's had a nervous breakdown and the doctor forbade excitement of any kind for the next year at least. Can't go to dances or parties or anything. And what does Phyllis do but bring her a gorgeous Spanish shawl that nobody would dare wear outside of a real formal affair! Phyllis knew all along that poor Amy would have as much use for that shawl as a flapper has for a petticoat."

"Why, how funny!" exclaimed the girl who had just had a birthday.

"Oh, just one of Phyl's bright little ideas. The worst of it is that Amy is the last person on earth to wear a way Spanish shawl. She's typically opposite from Phyllis herself, Amy's short and plump and pale, and if she ever put that thing on she'd look like a Quaker masquerading as a vamp."

"It would look wonderful on Phyllis, though," mused the girl with the bag.

"It did. Real Spanish. Phyllis borrowed the shawl a number of times and she made a big hit with it," commented the visitor. "And then," she went on, "Phyl's mother had a wedding anniversary a couple of weeks ago. Phyl spent a month's income on some bright coral beads and earrings for her. The long droopy kind, you know. And her mother is one of those nice, conservative ladies who still say 'limb' when they mean 'leg.' She wouldn't be seen with beads or earrings like that for all the dough in the world."

The girl who had just celebrated her birthday sat up with a jerk.

"Was that the outfit Phyl had on last night—those flashy earrings?"

"Exactly. And that dream of a shawl with the deep red roses embroidered on the white silk background was Amy's. Not only that my dear, Perhaps you were aware of a gorgeous white lace fan with little black plumes that Phyllis used to such admirable advantage. That was Phyl's gift to yours truly."

"My sainted uncle!"

"Yes. As for Phyllis' dad—! Well, being his anniversary, too, she had to get him something. I got up enough nerve to suggest that she buy him some of those classy shirts. A lot of the girls wear 'em with stiff collars, you know. You should've seen the look she gave me!"

"Why? I think they're real mannish. I'd wear them myself."

"So would Phyl. But her dad weighs about 200 and take a size 18, I guess. So the old gentleman had to be content with some fancy cigarettes, although he'd sooner smoke a pipe?"

"And I suppose Phyllis hasn't got around to the joys of a pipe yet, so it's cigarettes for dad. I—"

The telephone interrupted and the girl with the gift bag answered.

"It's Phyllis," she whispered to her visitor. "She says she's going on a trip and wants to borrow the bag she just gave me." A gleam of fun shot into her eyes. "This is one time she gets stung. I'll tell her that though I did mention something about not traveling, that bag is such a peach that I've decided to take a trip to the coast just so I can use it. The smarty!"—Exchange.

Stories That Recall Others

Arms Too Short

Phillip came home from school all excited over his first lesson in physical training.

"Mother," he said, "the teacher had us stoop over and touch the floor without bending our knees. I could do it all right. I could do it just fine, only my arms aren't long enough to reach."

Making a Mistake

Dan and his wife, newlyweds, drove up to a filling station for gas. Dan had been subjected to an unusual amount of good natured joshing on the subject of his marriage and had come to expect it as a matter of course.

The filling station attendant was talkative, and in the course of the conversation Dan forgot all about paying for the gas.

As he started to drive off the attendant shouted, "Aren't you making a mistake this time?"

Dan winked at his wife and replied. "Yes, guess I am." But he continued to drive on.

"I say," yelled the filling station attendant still louder, "Aren't you making a mistake?"

Dan turned his head and grinned broadly to show he understood the joke.

"Yes, guess I am,' he shouted back as he turned the corner.

The attendant asserts he didn't know Dan was married.

From Small Beginnings

John Clare, an English Poet.

Something prompted John Clare, who had scarcely a penny to his name to buy a book of poems. It was Thompson's "Seasons." In it he had found the glowing pictures of country life—the sunlit skies, the yellowing fields, the songs of reapers, the horses drawing loads of grain, the leaves changing their color into varied hues.

It was a strange thing for John Clare to do. He had been kicked and cuffed about since he could remember. He had seldom had enough to eat and to wear, and he had to work almost since he could walk. He was a mere child when he was set to watch flock of gabbling geese; he was still a child when he was put out on a farm and ordered to work as hard as the men worked. He had grown up among tough men and had served out ale in a low inn, had done almost everything that an ignorant worker with calloused hands can do. His father was only an ignorant laborer, and John Clare was expected to earn his living as best he could. Whence came that something that made the young man delight in poetry? He sat down and began to write poetry himself—he the ignorant laborer, the ale boy, the worker. He wrote pictures of country life; he wrote songs of country life; he wrote poem-stories of country life.

He had only bits of waste paper on which to write, and he wrote merely for the joy of writing. One of these scraps of paper, bearing one of his songs, fell into the hands of a lover of literature. He made inquiries, and some months later brought together a whole volume of the ignorant man's poems. At once John Clare became famous. In the next half dozen years he produced some three volumes of poetry that revealed his joy in country life. Money poured in upon him, houses and livings were given to him, and he was heralded as a nine days wonder.

Unfortunately, in the struggling years when he had served out ale, or gone wandering off on vagabond journeys with bands of gypsies, or associated with rough men in rough work, he had accumulated no reserve fund of resistance. Sudden prosperity was too much for John Clare. He yielded to the press of temptations and wore out his health and his mind alike. Long before this, in the days when he was only a starving workman, he had been driven from the farmer's daughter, who was ready to marry him. He had brooded on this. Now, in spite of money, fame and marriage to another woman than the one he had loved so ardently, he went from bad to worse, and finally spent the last 27 years of his life in an asylum. Even there he continued to write occasional poems. The story of John Clare is one of the strangest and saddest in the history of English poetry.

In going from Columbia to Centralia, Mo., one is struck by the large number of farmhouses which have one bright blue gate or door, or window, somewhere about. No matter what the color scheme may otherwise be there is always this distinguishing color. This is the "trade-mark" of the Tucker family, which came to Missouri nearly 100 years ago and established the custom.

Dogs in Church Parade

Owners of pedigreed dogs in London are using the famous Sunday morning church parade in Hyde Park for the purpose of showing them off. For every bona fide churchgoer who strolls through the park on Sunday morning there are scores of dog owners anxious to have their pets seen and admired. Many dog fanciers motor in from remote towns merely to stroll through the park in order that the thousands of curious may see the product of their kennels and perhaps make inquiry regarding the ownership and sale price of the dogs.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Separation

Fright makes selfishness appear
In those we love and hold most dear.
—Nannie Meadow Mouse.

Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse were crouching motionless side by side under the back porch of Farmer Brown's house. Just outside sat Black Pussy the Cat. She was looking in under the porch through the hole that had been left for her to go in and out. You see, Black Pussy spent a good deal of time under that back porch. She regarded it as belonging to her. Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse hadn't known this or never in the world would they have run under there. Now they were so frightened that they wouldn't even have breathed if they could have helped themselves. All they could see was a pair of greenish eyes staring in through that hole. It was terrible! Of course, Danny and Nanny thought that Black Pussy saw them, but Black Pussy didn't see them. No, sir, Black Pussy didn't see them. She just happened to crouch there, trying to make up her mind whether or not to go under the porch. To Danny and Nanny it seemed an endless length, of time before Black Pussy moved. Of course, they themselves didn't move. At last those greenish eyes began to come nearer. Black Pussy was coming in under the porch. Now it wasn't until she was well inside that Black Pussy even suspected that any one else was there. It was her nose that told her. Black Pussy paused and sniffed.

"I smell Mouse," muttered Black Pussy, and her eyes began to glow.

"I smell mouse," muttered Black Pussy, and her eyes began to glow

She began to steal forward softly, a step at a time, and how her eyes did glow! As yet she hadn't seen Danny and Nanny; she had only smelled them. But Danny and Nanny knew that if she kept on she soon would see them. They kept their eyes fixed on those greenish eyes of Black Pussy's. Presently they saw a change in them and they saw Black Pussy crouch to spring. They knew then that they were discovered.

As Black Pussy sprang Danny darted one way and Nanny darted another way. It was this that saved them. You see, Black Pussy hesitated. She didn't know which to go after first. By the time she had decided Danny and Nanny were outside. Danny had run straight out the hole by which they had entered. Nanny had discovered a little, small hole just big enough for her to squeeze through and she had gone out that. Danny had come out at the end of the porch. Nanny had come out at the side of the porch. So it was that neither could see the other. There was no time to look for each other. Of course, Black Pussy hadn't been able to follow Nanny because that hole was so tiny; so she had gone after Danny. Danny naturally had no time to think of anything but his own safety. He headed right straight for Farmer Brown's henyard.

Now the legs of Danny Meadow Mouse are short; but they can move very fast for a short distance. They moved now. Never had they moved faster. But fast as they moved I fear they would not have taken Danny to safety had it not been that Bowser the Hound just happened to get in Black Pussy's way. This stopped her for a moment or two and Danny reached the henyard. Of course, he had no trouble at all in slipping through the wire netting. But Black Pussy couldn't do that. Of course not. Danny darted across the henyard and popped right in at the little door left open for the hens to go in and out. Once more Danny Meadow Mouse had been lucky. But he and Nanny were separated.

Y. M. C. A. SOON TO EXTEND PHYSICAL DEPARTMENT PRIVILEGES TO WOMEN

A plan long under contemplation by the directors of the Norwich Young Men's Christian association was given final sanction Wednesday evening when the directors' meeting voted to extend to women the privileges of the physical department of the association building on one day of the week.

The practical operation of such a plan was explained to the directors' meeting by General Secretary C. E. A. Heywood of the Ansonia association, who was present at the meeting by the invitation of the special committee which has had this matter in charge.

General Secretary Heywood was introduced by President J. C. Macpherson. The Ansonia secretary explained that the association has for several years past extended privileges to the girls and women but that the association now has a new building and since Nov. 1 there has been an enlargement and development of the plan. There are now over 100 girls and women taking advantage of the privileges that are offered. The ages range from 11 years to adults and there are four classes, all being held on the same day, which is Wednesday. The grammar school class is held immediately after school closes in the afternoon, the high school class immediately after high school closes, the business girls class at 6 o'clock immediately after work, and the professional women at 8 in the evening.

There is a special woman instructor for the gymnasium classes and also for the swimming classes. The privileges extended to the girls and women include the gymnasium, swimming pool and bowling alleys.

It is announced that the Norwich association plans to proceed along the same lines as are followed at Ansonia. The work will be under the supervision of a ladies committee and physical department committee and Wednesday will probably be the day selected for the women's classes. It is expected that there will be at least three classes to start with, the grammar school, high school and adults.

The schedule is yet to be worked out, but this will be done as soon as possible in order to get the work started soon, which may be within two weeks. It is expected that there will be two women instructors, one for the gymnasium work and the other for the swimming pool. The use of the physical department by the women and girls will naturally preclude the use of the department by the men and boys at the same hours as are given over to the women.

The directors have been considering for a long time how they might extend to women and girls the splendid privileges of the gymnasium and Osgood swimming pool and are much gratified that they can now announce a plan which will make this possible.

The liberal spirit they have shown marks an important extension of the usefulness of the association building to those in the community who would not be able to enjoy these opportunities otherwise.

DENIES DIVORCE AND CENSURES PETITIONER

Olga Radiciona Galli of Noank is denied a divorce from Angelo Galli of New Haven, according to judgment handed down Wednesday by Judge Allyn L. Brown, who includes in his memorandum of decision scathing censure for the plaintiff in the attempt which she has made to secure a divorce.

Mr. and Mrs. Galli were married July 29, 1917. She brought the suit for divorce on the ground of misconduct by her husband since Jan. 1, 1921. In his memorandum of decision, Judge Brown says:

At the date of the hearing, October 20, 1925, the defendant had paid nothing in pursuance of the court's order of June 26, 1925 that he pay the plaintiff $12 per week as alimony pendente lite, and thus provide for the keep of the two minor children. Since the defendant has now purged himself of this contempt by paying to the plaintiff the amount so due to the date of the hearing, as suggested by the court at that time, judgment may now properly be rendered.

The plaintiff seeks a divorce upon the ground of adultery, and to prove it relies upon the uncorroborated testimony of herself and of her sixteen year old sister. The charge is emphatically denied by the defendant.

The plaintiff and defendant were married in 1917 and lived together in Groton until Feb. 12, 1925, when the defendant left upon being ordered out of the house by the plaintiff's mother. The unsupported story of the plaintiff and her sister to the effect that during that year the latter was nine years of age the defendant had improper relations with her repeatedly and at frequent intervals, and that the fact was first disclosed to the plaintiff and her mother some six years later when last February the defendant was told to get out, is one the court would find it difficult to believe though told by witnesses who appeared to be credible. In this case even such support for the tale is lacking.

From all of the evidence I am satisfied that the above story is a pure fabrication, devised by the plaintiff in an effort to use the court as a tool to free her from her husband that she may pursue her matrimonial career further with one Tom Noble of Bridgeport, who by her own testimony has become a weekly visitor in her home at least since the defendant was driven out. The plaintiff is entitled to nothing but the court's censure for the attempt so made, and that she has it full measure.

Her petition is dismissed.

ILLNESS HITS CAST IN LIONS' CLUB PLAY

Although one member of the cast was confined to her home by illness and another got out of a sick bed to "carry on," the final performance of That's That, given under the auspices of the Norwich Lions' club, was very successfully staged Wednesday evening at the Broadway theater. A serious problem confronted the committee in charge of the show when they were notified Wednesday that Mrs. Blythe M. Standish, who so successfully carried the role of Mrs. Archibald Stilwell, a society matron was confined to her home by illness and would not be able to appear Wednesday evening. The committee immediately set to work to surmount the difficulty and was very fortunate in securing the consent of Mrs. Myra F. Ward to substitute for Mrs. Standish. On very short notice and with no opportunity to rehearse with the cast, Mrs. Ward carried off the part to perfection. She fitted right into the role, entered into the spirit of the show in her usual very efficient manner, and made a most favorable impression on the audience.

Fighting a serious cold that held him in its grip, Tyler S. Stanton got out of a sick bed to take his place in the cast Wednesday evening. He appeared as Mickey Sullivan, the New York tough, and the absence of Mickey would have greatly handicapped the show committee. Tyler, in spite of his illness, insisted on "carrying on" and resumed his place in the cast, acting under difficulty he carried his role very successfully and with Mamie, his sweetie (Ruth Eaton) made a hit with the audience. Illness seemed to have made deep inroads on the show people, for a third member of the troupe, Miss Winifred Paunch, one of the bathing beauties, was confined to the house by illness Wednesday evening.

The theatre was well filled for the final performance, which went off like clock work. The cast did themselves credit and were heartily applauded in their earnest efforts to please. The groups and choruses carried their parts with vim and were well received by the audience.

EASTERN CONN. BOYS FEATURE AS AGGIES WIN OVER SPRINGFIELD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Jan. 27—Connecticut Aggies returned to the victory column here tonight defeating the Springfield college five in a fast and hard fought game by a 37 to 23 score. It was a triumph of eastern over western style basketball, as Springfield plays the western game.

Springfield came to Storrs with a record of four straight victories and their defeat at the hands of the Aggies was the first they have suffered this season. They fought hard to win, but the fast offense and the greater accuracy of the Aggies enabled them to come out ahead. So far as scoring from the floor was concerned the teams were even with 16 baskets apiece. Connecticut made five from the foul line to one by Springfield, however, and this was enough to win the game.

Springfield jumped into a four point lead in the first minute of play on baskets by Wagner. Their lead was shortlived, however, for baskets shortly after by Schoifield. Eddy and Bitgood sent the Aggies to the front. At half time Connecticut was leading 22 to 18.

The Aggies were ahead by a safe margin in the second half and it looked as though the Aggies had the battle well in hand. Capt. Makofski was lost to the Aggies because of four personal fouls, when there was yet ten minutes to play and then the situation took a turn for the worse as far as Connecticut was concerned. Springfield rallied, baskets by Burr, Berry and Parkhurst cutting down Connecticut's lead until the score stood 31 to 29 in the Aggies favor and with six minutes of play to go.

Acting Capt. Allard of Putnam then took time out. On resuming play the Aggies held the ball in the back court until the Springfield closed in on them. Then Schoifield dribbled the length of the floor through the physical directors, passing it under the basket to Eddy, who connected for two points. Once more the Aggies performed the same stunt, though Schoifield buried the play this time by dropping an overhand shot from the side court. Using the same passing again the Aggies dropped their 2nd basket in a row, Eddy again cutting the strings. Springfield tried long shots in a desperate effort to come from behind and although Erickson and Parkhurst made baskets the physical directors were trailing four points as the final whistle blew. The summary:

MISS WILLS TOASTED BY ADMIRERS AT IMPERIAL CLUB

CANNES, France, Jan. 27—(AP)—Chaperoned officially by Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, Miss Helen Wills today visited the courts of the Imperial club at Nice. Suzanne showed the California girl over the center court, where she defeated Mrs. Mallory in 1922. There were toasts in each other's honor, and to one another's health, but all topics in the world were reviewed in the short thirty minutes of their companionship excepting tennis.

While officially Mlle. Lenglen acted as sponsor for Miss Wills, there was no lunch, and no tea, just one plain glass of Champagne, which in France amounts to drinking one cup of coffee in South America.

The tennis rivals were attired in rigid tailor-made suits of the simplest models, Miss Wills in lavender and blue, which have been Mlle. Lenglen's special colors on the Riviera, while the French girl wore a plain dark.

Miss Wills is certain to play at Nice on February 1, and the French champion will probably also play, but whether they will meet in the singles in that tournament is not yet decided. The American girl is paired with C. F. Aeschlimann in the mixed doubles, while the French champion is paired with Henri Cochet. On Saturday next Suzanne will make up her mind whether she will play in the singles.

When asked to tell frankly whether she intended to meet the Californian, Mlle. Lenglen replied: "My programme is unchanged since I made my statement of December 10. I will play in the singles in three tournaments as I planned previous to Miss Wills' arrival."

The American champion will continue her play in the Gallia tournament at Cannes tomorrow, when she will meet Rosine Vlasto, cousin of Didi Vlasto, finalist in the Metropole; then later in the day she will play Miss Cadle, who defeated Mrs. Mallory at Mentone in 1923, 6-0, 7-5.

Miss Wills should weather both rounds without difficulty. Speaking without bitterness, but with great earnestness, today, Miss Wills remarked: "I do not understand all this publicity about my activities. How I do wish you would let me have my vacation undisturbed."

JEWETT CITY PROS EASILY OVERWHELM WEBSTER KACYS IN ONE-SIDED GAME

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 27—Launching a whirlwind attack led by Harry Mills the Jewett City Pros completely swamped the Webster Kacys, 49 to 25 here tonight in what proved to be a somewhat one-sided game. The entire Jewett City team played brilliant basketball and their baffling passwork left the visitors powerless. The Webster team was clearly outclassed throughout the contest and at half time the score stood at 26 to 7 in favor of the home town boys.

In the second half the locals did not play their close guarding game of the first half with the result that the visitors were able to score 18 points in this period. The outstanding star of the game was Harry Mills who played a hard fast game and it was his sterling basket-shooting that materially piled up the score. Mondi Normandin, working in one of the forward berths played a brilliant game, LaChance starred for the visitors.

The preliminary game was one that appealed to the local fans as two local fives were thrown together as opponents, the Clerks completely outclassing the favorites, the Post Office Square team, and winning 46 to 21.

Berlenbach's announcement follows a decision by the New York state athletic commission that the champion must accept the McTigue challenge before meeting any other boxer in this state. O'FARRELL AND GORMAN ARE TIED FOR FIRST IN WORLD'S SKATING EVENT

ST. JOHN, N. B., Jan. 27—O'Neil Farrell, of Chicago, and Charley Gorman, of St. John, with 50 points each, were tied for first place in the world speed skating championship meet at Lily Lake at the end of today's racing. The meet ends tomorrow.

Farrell's showing was the feature of the day. The sensational youngster, in his first year in senior company, closed the point difference between himself and Gorman by winning the half and three-quarter mile events while the best Gorman could do was second in the three-quarters.

Duke Donovan, of Endicott, N. Y., won the two-mile race with Willie Logan, of St. John, a close second and Clas Thunberg, of Finland third. The ten points obtained in the two-mile are the only ones the Finn who won the Olympic championship in 1924, has gathered so far in the meet.

During the early part of the day's programme the judges announced that Gorman had been awarded first place in the mile skated yesterday and protested after Donovan who did not quality for the final, entered the race and crossed the line first. This decision added ten points to the totals of both Gorman and Farrell.

Summaries of today's events follow:

Half mile—Won by O'neil Farrell, Chicago; second, Eddie Murphy, Chicago; third, Leslie Boyd, New York. Time 1:23.

Three-quarter mile—Won by O'Neil Farrell, Chicago; second, Charles Gorman, St. John; third, Eddie Murphy, Chicago. Time 3:26 4-5.

Two-mile—Won by Richard (Duke) Donovan, Endicott, N. Y.; second Willie Logan, St. John; third, Clas Thunberg, Finland. Time 5:50 3-5.

22-yard (women)—Won by Ruth Muheimyer, Chicago; second, Sybil Beatty, St. John; third, Mary Seaton, St. John. Time 24 2-5 seconds.

The point standing in the men's championship follows:

Charles Gorman, St. John, 50; O'Neil Farrell, Chicago, 50; Eddie Murphy, Chicago, 50; Willie Logan, St. John, 40; Richard Donovan, Endicott, N. Y., 30; Leslie Boyd, New York, 10; Clas Thunberg, Finland, 10.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Quincy of the Three-I league has traded Pitcher Bert Grimm to Decatur for Outfielder Vic Ruedy and Pitcher Guy Morrison.

The Augusta club of the South Atlantic league has obtained Hal Fisher, a first baseman, from the Texas association. He bats left-handed and throws right.

Wayland Dean, recently traded to Philadelphia by the Giants in the Jimmy Ring deal, did not waste much time after receiving a contract from the Phils, putting his O. K. on it and getting it back.

Bill Speas, manager of the champion Cedar Rapids team of the Mississippi Valley league in 1925, has been made manager of the Dubuque team of the same league. He led the league in hitting last season.

The Toledo club of the American association has announced that Jackson, Tenn., will be the training site of the team this spring. Games with the Chicago White Sox will be played in Toledo April 10 and 11.

Officials of the Macon club of the South Atlantic league have announced that Ernie Burke will be back as manager of the Peaches. Because of delay in signing him, there had been rumors that he would not return.

The New York Giants will report to the Sarasota, Fla., camp on Feb. 16, according to present plans. John McGraw is spending his winter at Sarasota, where he is promoting Pennant park, a real estate addition, near by.

Tom Halligan, president of the Michigan-Ontario league, announces that the club owners are beginning to come in with belated cash to make up deficits, indicating that the old Mint loop has a spark of life in it, after all.

Charles Lockhard, president of the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast league is assisting the promoters in the organization of the proposed Class B league which will have a team in Seattle if plans go through. Lockard already has the consent of the Coast league for the little fellows to play in Seattle when the regular team is away. The new league will be farming grounds for Coast league youngsters. If everything goes O. K., Tacoma, Victoria, Vancouver, Everett, Bellingham and Seattle will have clubs in the circuit.

With the prospect of a new and modern ball park for Durham of the Piedmont league, there is also prospect of a tough financial siege for the stockholders. It is said the men behind the club will probably have to raise $30,000 to see everything through for Durham and its baseball.

Goose Goslin, Dutch Ruether and Bennett Tate are reported to be Washington holdouts. Goslin has admitted that there is quite a difference between what he wants for his 1926 work and what Clark Griffith wants to pay him.

Rube Marquard, president-manager of the Providence club of the Eastern league, which is controlled by the Boston Braves, has been in Cuba seeking baseball material. Emilio Palmero and Merito Acosta gave Rube safe conduct in Havana and also gave him some "leads" on prospects.

Charles A. Davids, president of the Newark club of the International league, on Jan. 12 turned the first shovel of dirt on the site of Newark's new $300,000 ball park. The structure is to be of steel and concrete and will seat 15,000 persons. It is to be completed by April 4, according to the plans.

Ray Schalk, veteran catcher of the Chicago White Sox, has accepted a job helping coach the University of Wisconsin baseball squad. He is already down to work and plans to remain in Madison, Wis., until Feb. 27, when he will be required to go to the Shreveport, La., camp of the Sox.

Glenn McNally, captain and hard-hitting second baseman of the Oklahoma City team of the Western league, has been sold to Oakland of the Pacific Coast league. The price was given out as $6,000 and a player not yet named. McNally went to Oklahoma City from the Joplin team of the Southwestern league four years ago.

DENIES NEW YORK A. C. IS IN FINANCIAL STRAITS

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—(AP)—William Kennelly, newly elected president of the New York Athletic club, today denied that the club was in financial difficulties.

"It is ridiculous to think that the club is in anything but a strong financial condition," he said. "We are able to meet our present and future obligations, as our equity is close to $3,000,000 in the New York city club house and the club house at Travers Island."

The denial was occasioned by reports that the club faced financial difficulties and that there was internal dissention over plans for a new club house.

Mr. Kennelly stated that the new administration is trying to give the membership an adequate clubhouse at a cost of $7,000,000, rather than at a cost of $15,000,000, and added that the officers were receiving the "hearty cooperation of the entire membership."

LONGWOOD BOWL PLAY TO BE INVITATION EVENT

BROOKLINE, Mass., Jan. 27—(AP)—For the first time in history the annual Longwood Bowl tennis singles tournament will be an invitation affair, it became known today. The decision of the Longwood Cricket club board of governors to restrict the entry list is believed to have been forced, partly because of the continual growth of the entry list and partly because of the belief that it is unfair to ask the noted American and foreign stars to wade through larger and larger numbers of mediocre competitors each year.

Combat Vs. Rosedales Tonight

The First Combat Train indoor baseball team with a record of being undefeated so far this season will clash with the Greeneville Rosedales this (Thursday) evening. The Rosedales include practically the entire Academy baseball team and a real treat may be anticipated by local fans.

When the most glamourous picture is over—and you come outside to the bright lights and the brighter laughter of friends—have a Camel!

WHEN the exciting scenes are over. And you leave the great theatre thrilled at what you've seen. When, as the organ peals forth its rolling music, you come outside with jovial, laughing friends—have a Camel!

For nothing else on earth could be so refreshing among the great white lights as Camel. Camel adds of its own bright goodness to the enjoyment of every pleasing scene. Camel is the hale friend and companion for eventful days and carefree evenings. Here is something worth writing in words of gold: "Camels never tire the taste, or leave a cigaretty after-taste, no matter how freely you smoke them." And what's more, you can't buy choicer tobaccos or more perfect blending, no matter how much you pay.

So, this night as you leave for the brilliant scenes. And when the big show is finished and you've seen life in its tense and purposeful moments—know then the mellowest fragrance that ever came from a cigarette.

Have a Camel!

No other cigarette in the world is like Camels. Camels contain the choicest Turkish and domestic tobaccos. The Camel blend is the triumph of expert blenders. Even the Camel cigarette paper is the finest—made especially in France. Into this one brand of cigarettes is concentrated the experience and skill of the largest tobacco organization in the world.

Our highest wish, if you do not yet know Camel quality, is that you try them. We invite you to compare Camels with any cigarette made at any price.

AGENT FOR A VACUUM CLEANER GETS INTO NEW LONDON CITY COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 27—Cambridge C. Hutchings, in introducing a standard sweeper into New London, made the acquaintance of the prosecuting authorities because he neglected to make returns of the money he collected when he disposed of sweepers. The price of the implement was $65 and for each sale Hutchings received a commission of $13 according to the prosecutor in stating the facts on which the complaint was issued, that brought Hutchings to the police court this morning. Hutchings sold a sweeper to Mrs. Frederick Randall and got his $65 and he also disposed of a sweeper to Mrs. Mary Gulman, 60 Garfield avenue. Hutchings entered into a bond with an indemnity insurance company as a guaranty of his honesty, so that corporation looked for him when the sweeper company complained as to difficulty in getting the cash that belongs to it. Hutchins promised, but his promises were merely scraps of paper and when he did not "come across" with the funds he owed he was taken into custody. The alleged acts of dishonesty were committed in February, 1924, and in March of the same year. That's a long time to expect a creditor to wait for a little more than $100, and the sweeper company exhausted its patience and its faith in Hutchings as the proceedings to collect were taken. Hutchings was represented by an attorney and that lawyer was not familiar enough with the case in all its details to go ahead with it today. He asked for and was granted a continuance till the 2nd of February. He had the confidence of an acquaintance who gave a bond of $50 to insure the appearance of Hutchings in the police court next Monday. The period between now and then will determine whether Hutchings can raise the money he owes to settle the claim of the sweeper company, which is located in Ohio, at North Canton.

Daniel Stahler, Jr., was to have answered in the court on an adjourned complaint for a breach of the peace, but that matter was continued three months.

Charles E. Turner, 68, died late yesterday at his home, 452 Williams street, after a lingering illness. Mr. Turner was a boiler-maker by occupation, but had not followed that vocation for a long time because of his impaired health. He was a member of Konomoc Hose company. He is survived by his wife and three brothers, Edward, William and Robert Turner, all of this city.

The funeral of Mrs. Annie Brown Gilpin, wife of Alfred Gilpin, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock, at 43 Shapley street, the services being conducted by Rev. Joseph A. Elder, pastor of Huntington street Baptist church. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral of Antonio Cano Faga, waiter employed aboard the New London line steamer New Hampshire, who died suddenly aboard the steamer several days ago from heart trouble, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan. The bearers were employes of the steamer. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Archibald S. MacFarlane has sold a house and lot on the southerly side of Willetta avenue, to Gertrude E. Cone.

Emma L. Erickson has sold to Levi J. Raymond, a building lot on Ocean avenue.

William M. Jones and wife have sold a house and lot on Alger place, to Harold E. Leavitt.

Antone Sumbuatara has sold a house and lot on Willetta avenue, to Nelson Korchinsky.

Charles A. Rathbun, of Norwich, who yesterday reported to the New London police that he had lost his pocketbook containing $30 and several checks and valuable papers, while walking from the Union Bank and Trust company on State street, to Main street, today informed the police that he had recovered his property, but did not state how he found the money and checks and papers.

John Sideritz, proprietor of a tailoring establishment, 29 Main street, also reported to the police yesterday that his place of business was broken into the night before and three and one-half yards of woolen cloth stolen. He today requested the police to refrain from making any further investigation, at least for the present.

Growley, escaped with minor bruises, as the result of the Spooner car being in a head-on collision with one of the big motor busses plying between the Submarine Base and this city.

The roadster was enroute from New London to the base and when a short distance west of the military reservation, the bus was seen to be approaching. Spooner evidently lost control of the car and as the bus was about to pass, the roadster plunged in front of the heavier vehicle and in another instant the cars were in a head-on crash. Spooner's knee was so extensively lacerated that he was brought to the Lawrence hospital, where Dr. George F. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Coming to the Breed

Lillian Gish will be seen at the Breed theater next week in her latest picture, Romola, a film version of the famous novel by George Eliot. It is a Henry King production for inspiration, and is released through Metro-Goldwyn.

Dorothy Gish plays one of the principal roles, it being the first picture in which the two sisters have appeared together since Orphans of the Storm. Others in the cast include Ronald Colman, who played opposite the star in The White Sister, William H. Powell, Charles Lane, and Herbert Grimwood, besides a number of distinguished Italian actors. The picture was made at Florence, Italy, the actual locale of the story.

Joe Roman's Pennsylvanians at Willimantic

They sing, they dance, they entertain and boy how they can play. That, briefly, would be a fitting barker's call in introducing Joe Roman's Pennsylvanians. This delightful orchestra bearing a Quaker name certainly conveys nothing of the staid Quaker atmosphere when heard and seen in action. The Pennsylvanians are playing a return engagement at the Al-Pierre Tabarin, Willimantic, next Saturday evening. The management feels assured that at least those who heard him play here a few weeks ago will be among those present Saturday night. Incidentally that crowd was a large one, in fact one of the largest despite the fact that the dance was held on an "odd" night. Edward E. Gordon, manager, will accompany his versatile musicians and artists here after filling an engagement at the Butterfly ballroom in Springfield, Mass. Albert J. Piche of the Al-Pierre management announced Wednesday taht there would be dancing from eight to midnight.

"Bill" Tasillo's Cinderella Ballroom Orchestra of Hartford played to a large and delighted audience at the Al-Pierre Tabarin Wednesday evening.

Finn Opera House-Jewett City

Manager Barnett has booked Don Q, Son of Zorro, one of the leading pictures of the year which will be shown for the benefit of the Jewett City post of the American Legion.

The new Douglas Fairbanks screen feature "Don Q, Son of Zorro" is a supreme melodrama.

It is a modern story, laid in Spain, with most of the action taking place in Madrid.

Action-plus, with lightning swordplay, stunts, athletic achievement, humor and romance merge ceaselessly.

The scenic background is the most elaborate and pretentious imaginable for the period. Fairbanks leaps as it were from castle to castle.

The plot is founded on "Don Q's Love Story," by K. and Hesketh Prichard, adapted for the screen by Jack Cunningham. The story positively has nothing to do with the Cervantes hero, "Don Quixote" or his windmill troubles. Mary Astor, young, beautiful and accomplished, has the leading feminine role.

This picture is one which will please everyone from seven to seventy with no bar for anybody under or over those ages and one which stands in a class by itself as the most marvelous romantic melodrama ever produced, first and last a picture of supreme entertainment.

Coming to Palace Sunday.

The days of corsets, long dresses, high necks, petticoats and picture hats—the days of the Gibson girl—came back to the Paramount studio recently during the filming by James Cruze of "Mannequin," an adaptation of Fannie Hurst's $50,000 prize-winning story in the Liberty Magazine.

The story starts in 1907 and Cruze kept everything strictly in 1907 style. Alice Joyce's clothing is all from the fashion plates of that period and Warner Baxter's derby, four-button coat and bump-toed shoes are likewise in period.

"I don't see how the women of that day ever stood the clothing," said Alice Joyce after several days in the old-fashioned clothing.

"The corsets are terrible, the dresses are heavy and hot and tight. They allow no freedom of movement whatsoever. Everything was apparently designed to lend dignity and stiffness to the wearer, rather than to give freedom, charm and youth.

"After wearing these clothes, I'll never sigh in sympathize with anyone who sighs for the good old days, at least as far as clothes go."

"Mannequin" features Miss Joyce, Warner Baxter, Zasu Pitts and Dolores Costello. Walter Woods wrote the screen adaptation.

Palace.

The bill which opens at the Palace today consists of everything that goes to make for 100 per cent. entertainment. First there is Georgette's Famous Players of Musical Novelties and Swiss Bell Ringers. Their programme ranges from classical to popular jazz on a great variety of instruments. Here is a company of high class musicians, who will be sure to please the most critical, as well as who favor the lighter and popular music, in fact nobody should miss seeing and hearing this versatile and talented organization.

Dover and Salten are a very fast dancing team. Marian Claire, the girl with the Golden Voice. Thornton and Carlton, are a very clever comedy team, who will keep you laughing every minute. Ausse and Czeck have a beautiful and Novel Whip Cracking and Dancing Act, together with "Pola Negri," in "A Woman of the World," and the third episode of the Scarlet Streak, will make a perfect bill which everybody in Norwich will be crowding to see.

Detectives Guard Pola During Making of Film.

The jewels are insured for several hundred thousand dollars and because of this the insurance company detailed two detectives as guards at the Famous Players-Lasky studio.

Among the valuables she wears in the picture are two bracelets of diamonds and emeralds, a rope of beautifully matched pearls and a necklace of one hundred matched blue white diamonds.

Malcolm St. Clair directed the star's new vehicle which was written by Pierre Collings and suggested by a novel by Carl Van Vechten.

In the distinguished cast are Chas. Emmett Mack, Holmes Herbert, Blanche Mehaffey and Chester Conklin.

Broadway Theater

A new show opens at the Broadway theater starting today matinee.

B. F. Keith-Albee vaudeville will be presented as the stage attraction in which five big time favorite acts take part. It might be called an all comedy bill but for a little variety which lends the finishing touches to this predominating combination of stars.

Go Straight! Ewart Adamson's most successful literary effort, will open today at the Broadway theater as a E. P. Schulberg Production, directed by Frank O'Connor. Gladys Hulette, Owen Carr, George Fawcett and Francis McDonald are the featured players. By way of novelty, the producer has introduced some views of the interior of Hollywood's movie studios in which Anita Stewart, Larry Semon, Donald Keith and other screen notables appear. The story is a melodrama full of thrills lightened by humorous touches.

A new Kinograms showing the visual news of all the world is also a feature of note.

LOST GOODS LAW IS HONORED IN THE BREACH

"Findings is keepings" may be a custom of school days, but it is not the law of Connecticut which requires persons who find things of a value less than $5 to report them to the town clerk, and if the thing is worth more than $5 the finder must advertise it in the newspapers; and if the finded does not fulfill these requirements he is liable for the value of the goods found; half to go to the town and half to the owner.

The letter of the law has practically fallen into disuse. If one reads the lost and found column in the advertising pages of the newspapers he will find one found adv. to ten for lost articles. Few town clerk's offices can recall that found articles were ever reported there. But the community is not as lawless as this condition would indicate, and the grown-ups are not all of them satisfying their consciences with the playground theory of "findings is keepings."

The police station is more likely to be the haven of lost articles.

It is a curious fact that while there seems to be a common impulse to use the police station in reporting articles found; on the other hand persons who have lost a purse or some other article appear to consider it hardly worth while to call up the police station. But in many instances that is the place to find a lost article.

Undoubtedly many more things which are found would find their way back to the owners if people would realize there is a law requiring the advertising of found articles and would observe the law.

The Law

The law is Section 5288 of the general statutes and reads as follows:

"When any person shall find any stray beast in a suffering condition; or any lost goods of the value of one dollar, he may take the same into his possession, and shall immediately inform the owner thereof, if known; but if the owner is not known, and the value of the beast or goods is not greater than five dollors, the finder thereof shall, within fourteen days thereafter, cause a particular description of them, and the place where they were found, and his name, to be registered by the town clerk of the town in which they shall have been found; and if their value is greater than five dollars, he shall, within said time, cause said description, place and name to be advertised in a newspaper published in the town in or nearest to the place where they were found. If any person who shall find or take into his possession such beast or goods, shall not inform the owner thereof, or cause such registry or advertisement to be made as aforesaid, he shall forfeit the value of such beast or goods, half to him who shall see therefor and half to said town."

WANT RECEIVERSHIP FOR STONINGTON CHURCH SOCIETY

Appointment of a receiver and the winding up of the affairs of the Third Baptist Society of Stonington is sought in a suit brought to the superior court by Stiles F. H. Ross, Benjamin F. Ross and Alice E. Ross, all of Stonington and members of the society. Stiles Ross is clerk and treasurer.

It is represented that the society now has only eight members, the others besides those already named being John S. Harrison, M. Louise Harrison, both of Stonington, Katie L. Ross of Chicago, Herman C. Ross of Worcester and Olga Page of Corona, N. Y. The society was organized more than 75 years ago by the colored residents of Stonington when there were many colored people in the borough, but the number has now dwindled so much, that for two years past the society has failed to hold religious services or keep up its organization. In November, 1925, a meeting attended by six members, voted to proceed to dissolve the society and to sell its real estate. This consists of two parcels of land, on one of which is the church building and on the other a building once used as a parsonage but more recently rented for tenement purposes. The first has been owned since October 1, 1846 and the other since Sept. 1, 1856. The society has approximately $475.26 in deposit in the First National Bank of Stonington and owns under the will of Joseph N. Hancock one-sixteenth share in his estate, the total appraisal of the estate by the trustees on Jan. 1, 1926 being $44,812.45. The legacy becomes effective upon the death of Bessie Hancock Ludwig, present life tenant.

STATE FARM SENTENCE FOR FREQUENT OFFENDER

Although he was given five minutes to get out of town, at his own request, by Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Monday morning, John Foley, 55, transient, was again before the judge in the city court Tuesday morning. Foley did not get out of town as he said he wanted to. On the contrary he proceeded to "liquor up" and was arrested Monday night by Officer Hugh McAvoy. He got out of jail last Friday, got arrested Saturday, was in court Monday morning, let go on his promise to leave town and then he showed up again Tuesday morning.

Judge Libby, answered Foley's request to be sent to the state farm and sent him there for the next six months. A Groton man drew a fine of $5 and costs for intoxication and paid $14.50.

NORWICH TOWN

A party from Norwich visited East Beach, Quonochontaug, Jan. 4, and found cottages on this beach safe, while Middle Beach, where are a number of new cottages on what was until its recent purchase, Lucas property, the wind had blown over a new building and had done other damage. At East Beach the ocean had receded, leaving a wider, smooth stretch of shore than has been seen for years—and revealing, opposite the Fuller cottage, huge embedded rocks far out where had been sea. Five of the cottages on East Beach, less than twenty in number, are located on what is known as Big Salt Pond, an inlet from the ocean at right angles to the coast line.

In driving over short stretches of gravel roads which occur in the suburbs at intervals on macadam roads, motorists encounter deep almost impassable ruts made by heavily loaded trucks passing after rain, the roads later freezing.

MARKET WAS SPECULATIVE

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—(AP)—Speculative activity on the upside was resumed in today's stock market after an unsuccessful attempt of bear traders to unsettle the market at the opening by hammering United States Steel common, because of widespread disappointment over the failure of the directors to increase the amount of the extra dividend. Steel closed 7-8 lower at 133 after fluctuating between 132 1-4 and 134.

Resistance shown by the market to this early selling, prompted active short covering in other quarters, particularly in the motors, several of which scored extreme gains of 1 to 7 points. Trading showed a substantial increase in volume, the day's sales running over 1,700,000 shares.

Commodity markets moved within rather narrow and irregular limits. Wheat prices lost ground, May options closing at $1.73 3-4. Cotton rallied 5 to 11 points on short covering. Raw sugar continued firm but coffees eased slightly on near month liquidation.

Trade and financial news was mixed in character. Money rates continued relatively easy with an abundance of funds available. Freight car loadings in the week ended Jan. 6 were slightly above the corresponding week last year, and there was another sharp reduction in crude oil production last week. The weekly steel trade reviews stressed the easing price tendency but the copper trade heard predictions of substantially higher prices before summer.

The rally in stocks was led by General Motors which was heavily bought on reports of unusually heavy automobile deals and predictions of another large extra cash dividend at the next meeting. General motors showed a net gain of 6 5-8 points at 125 3-8 after having touched 125 3-4; Hudson touched 114 and then sagged to 113, where it was up 4 1-2 points, and Chrysler Fisher Body, Mack Truck, Moon, Murray Body, Paige-Detroit, Pierce-Arrow common and preferred; Stewart-Warner, Studebaker, the Willys Overland issue and Yellow Truck all showed net gains of 1 to 3 1-4 points. Du Pont, which owns a large block of General Motors, soared 9 points to 231 1-2.

The recovery in the general industrial list was the most impressive that has taken place this year. South Porto Rican sugar soared over 3 points to 132, the highest price on record, in reflection of the reported improvement in the sugar trade. American Brake Shoe, United States Cast Iron Pipe, West Penn Power and Woolworth all sold six points above their previous closing quotations, and American Can, J. I. Case, Commercial Solvents B, Famous Players Freeport, Texas, National Biscuit, National Lead, New York Dock, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Union Bag and Paper, United Drug, and United Fruit, all showed net gains of three points or more.

Speculative activity in the rails was confined to a few issues with Rock Island and Pittsburgh and West Virginia, each of which advanced over three points, standing out.

Foreign exchanges held steady in quiet trading. Demand sterling ruled slightly lower around $4.85 7-8, but French francs were firmer around 3.73 cents. Other changes were largely nominal, Japanese yen in which there has been world-wide speculation in anticipation of that country's return to the gold standard, ruling around 45 cents.

TAFTVILLE

With an unusually large crowd attending, the second night of the joint carnival being given at Parish hall by the Sacred Heart church and the Army & Navy club, was a big success Tuesday night. Many from out of town came to see the decorations, which are very attractive, and are adding to the popularity of the carnival. The Army and Navy club orchestra played for the dancing, dance tickets being sold by Emile Gauthier, Alfred Roberts, Isaac Lurette, Homer Pepin and William Pepin. The booths along the midway appeared to be doing a good business, and there were heavy sales at the quick lunch counter and good patronage of the fishpond, where comedy hats were distributed to the "fishermen." The entertainment was above par. Lou Gagnon's Hollywood Four, well known local harmonizers and melody broadcasters, appearing in several numbers which were heartily encored by the crowd. Hooker and Cassano, Spanish and Mexican dancers in costume, scored a big hit, and contributed greatly to the enjoyable evening. The door was in charge of Ferdinand Brodeur, James Nolan and Henry Pepin and Eugene Lambert and Ernest Phaneuf looked after the coat room.

The first meeting of the newly elected standing committee of the Taftville Congregational church was held Tuesday evening. Allan Bogle was temporary chairman until the election of George H. Young as chairman, to replace George J. Meyer, whose term had expired and who refused to consider re-election. Robert B. Schmidt was elected secretary of the committee. The members of the standing committee for the year 1926 are Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis, pastor; Allan Bogle, clerk of the church; George N. Beardow, church treasurer; Robert B. Schmidt, collector; John W. Brieley, Herbert F. Hoyle, Earle M. Wood, Martin Wohlleben, Albert J. Aberg, and George H. Young.

Armand Bousquet has resigned his position with the carding department of the Ponemah mills.

The Forty Hours devotion which began at the high mass Sunday morning at Sacred Heart church, came to a close Tuesday. During this period, hundreds of the parishioners received the Sacraments of the church, over 1,400 receiving the Holy Eucharist at the first two masses of the day on Sunday. A number of visiting priests have been in attendance assisting Rev. U. O. Bellerose, the pastor, and his assistants, Rev. Henri F. Chagnon and Rev. John Mailey, in hearing confessions. During the forty hours when the Sacred Host was displayed in the ostensorium, the altar was decorated with pink and white carnations, palms, ferns and baskets of cut flowers and was flooded in candle light.

Mr. and Mrs. George Roberts and family have taken a house on Norwich avenue.

Among the local ladies attending the Eastern Star gathering at Hartford today (Thursday) are Mrs. Edmund Hindle of North Third avenue, Mrs. Samuel L. Armitage of Norwich avenue and Miss Barbara McInnis of South Second avenue.

SPEAKERS ADVISE COOPERATION AND WORK FOR HOME TOWN COMMUNITIES

Addresses by Hon. Ernest E. Rogers of New London, state treasurer and president of the Connecticut state chamber of commerce, and George B. Chandler of Rocky Hill, executive secretary of the Connecticut chamber of commerce, featured the January membership meeting of the Norwich chamber of commerce at the Wauregan hotel Wednesday evening. There were about 100 men and women present at the meeting which opened about 6.30 o'clock with a supper served in the large dining hall. Suspended on the wall in the rear of the speaker's table was a large sign: The World Uses What Norwich Produces, the slogan adopted by the directors of the chamber last month. During the menu a splendid concert programme was given by Swahn's orchestra. Secretary John J. O'Rourke of the chamber acted as song leader. A feature of the song programme was the singing of Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag, and It's a Long, Long Trail, by those seated at the two long tables, the songs being sung at the same time, while those seated at the speakers' table acted as judges. The vote resulted in the announcement that it was a draw but unofficial opinion was that the honors went to those who sang Pack Up Your Troubles. All the Rotarians in the dining room were called on for a song and they sang Golden Gate. Another feature of the song programme was the singing of a number by those seated at the speakers table and the small table in the center of the dining room.

Adopts Slogan

After the song programme President James L. Case called the meeting to order. Joseph E. French was called on by President Case for a report of the recent New England conference held at Worcester. Mr. French gave a very interesting report of the activities of the conference which lasted two days. Following Mr. French's report of the conference the meeting by a unanimous vote adopted the slogan, The World Uses What Norwich Produces, which was chosen for Norwich by the chamber directors at a meeting last month.

State President Speaks

President Case presented Mr. Rogers as the first speaker. Mr. Rogers congratulated the Norwich Chamber on bringing out so many members to its monthly meetings and also congratulated the chamber on having an energetic president in the chair. There are many ways in which you can be helpful to the state chamber and there are many ways in which the state chamber can be helpful to you, said Mr. Rogers. The speaker said there were two things he wanted to talk about and they were eastern Connecticut and the annual meeting of the state chamber of commerce to be held in New London in June. It is for us to get in touch with the state chamber, he said, and see that if by cooperation we can't build up our localities. Unless a locality is growing and progressing it is hard work to ge people to locate in that locality. If you can get together in these chambers of commerce you can get things coming your way and you will accomplish a great deal.

Mr. Rogers said that the New London chamber has invited the state chamber to hold its annual meeting in New London next June. He also stated that Governor Trumbull has been invited to act as toastmaster at the chamber banquet and that Mrs. Trumbull will head the women's section. U. S. Senator Hiram Bingham will be present, he said, and we have promise of another speaker from Washington.

New London chamber of commerce wishes me to extend to you an invitation to appoint a committee to help us in our plans for the convention. New London and Norwich are twin cities. In closing Mr. Rogers said that the Connecticut chamber of commerce extends a spirit of cooperation to Norwich.

Mr. Chandler Speaks

After referring to the fact that the directors of the Norwich chamber have voted to cooperate in any way with the New London chamber, President Case introduced Mr. Chandler as the second speaker.

After his preliminary remarks Mr. Chandler said that the presence of the ladies at the banquet was significant of the trend of the time. The ladies are the power behind the throne, he said. This drew applause from both ladies and men. Picking up a pamphlet which the chamber officials had placed at each cover and detailing the accomplishments of the chamber, together with a programme of activities for the future, Mr. Chandler said that he was surprised at the many accomplishments of the local chamber. He said that he had counted up about 50 accomplishments of the chamber and that there were in the pamphlet about a dozen activities on the chamber programme for the future.

You have never had an investment that returned you as big dividends for your money as the small sum you pay yearly for the maintenance of these organizations (chambers of commerce). You can't do any one thing for Norwich that will be of greater value than to hammer incessantly to make the Thames river a world port so that New London and Norwich will not be "twin cities" but one continuous city up and down the banks of the Thames. That may be a dream but it is by "willing" that dreams come true.

Mr. Chandler told of some of the activities of the state chamber during the past years. I will name one or two major activities of the state chamber of comparative recent histroy, he said. The speaker then told of how by persistent effort the state chamber finally got a law through the legislature and signed by the governor on the gradual cessation of pollution of streams. This pollution problem had always been a bone of contention in the legislature. One other accomplishment which he claimed was wholly the child of the state chamber was the medical practice law in this state which he stated is the best medical practice law on the statute books of any state in the country. With reference to the banishing of fake doctors and "quacks" from this state, Mr. Chandler said: Our insurance interests want good doctors and our manufacturing interests want good doctors. The cleaning out of fake doctors and "quacks" could not be accomplished by the medical profession because whenever they started anything along this line the cry of "medical trust" went up. It was a business man's proposition.

These activities are typical of what the state chamber can accomplish, said the speaker. The nation budget system was the child of the chamber of commerce of the United States. In closing Mr. Chandler extended "sincere congratulations and well wishes in the future for Norwich, New London and eastern Connecticut, in spite of the fact that they are not near the influence of the great cities, New York and Boston. Build up your own metropolis.

The meeting adjourned about 8.30 o'clock.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine has been successful in the treatment of Catarrh for over forty years. Also as a Blood Purifier it gives wonderful results. All Druggists.

BETTER FREIGHT SERVICE HERE FROM NEW YORK

Important changes in the New York freight service effective February 1st are announced in the January membership letter of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce which was placed in the mails Wednesday evening. After February 1st shipments from New York will be delivered in Norwich the next day. This will give Norwich less than 24 hour delivery of freight from New York. The letter is as follows:

Telephone Exhibition—Tuesday, February 9th, in the Community House on Church street at 8 p. m., the Southern New England Telephone company will give an educational exhibition under the auspices of the Chamber. The purpose is to stimulate closer relationship between the telephone company and the public.

Motion pictures will be shown portraying the conception and the establishment of the first telephone by its inventor, Alexander Graham Bell, in 1875. The development and growth of this public utility from then to the present will be depicted.

A switch board operated by young ladies will be shown so that the public will have an opportunity to visualize what operations are performed by employees when a call is put into the office for telephone communication.

This exhibit is being placed in every city and town throughout the state and has proven such a great attraction that invariably the halls are filled to capacity. The public is invited to this demonstration which we know will prove entertaining and instructive.

Industrial Matters—The outcome of the sale of the factory of the Uncas Paperboard company on Monday, February 1st, is being awaited with intense interest by the officers of the Chamber.

This plant has employed approximately two hundred men. Its weekly payroll is between $4,000 and $5,000. The cessation of its operations would be a distinct loss to the community. The officers of the Chamber have been informed that an effort will be made to purchase this plant by a group of paper manufacturers for the sole purpose of dismantling the factory in order that its competition can be destroyed.

The Chamber has investigated some prospective buyers who have shown an interest in securing the factory and every possible co-operation by the Chamber will be extended to the purchaser to keep the factory in operation and preserve the payroll for Norwich. This subject has been discussed at several meetings of the Industries committe and of the directors. A conference was held sometime ago with the Water Board attended by a representative of a paper making concern that, at one time, showed interest in the purchase of the plant.

The Chamber not only endeavors to secure new industries, but must give every co-operation that can possibly be rendered to assist local industries.

Recently a conference was held with a representative of a concern looking for a factory location. This particular concern would employ skilled mechanics. During the discussion the prospective manufacturer inquired as to the tax rate. He showed genuine surprise at the high tax rate and when informed that Norwich had no revaluation since 1880 and that consequently properties were assessed on a very low valuation basis, he wondered why the people of Norwich had permitted this state of affairs to continue so long.

It is not the question of the high tax rate that hurts Norwich in securing new industries, but the apparent inequalities in valuation, indicating poor business methods, that offer the real objection to prospective manufacturers. The sooner Norwich rectifies this evil, the better are the chances for industrial growth.

Thames River—The 1925 Extract of the Providence district of the United States Board of Army Engineers regarding water-borne tonnages to and from Norwich has recently been received. The comparative statement in the report is as follows:

Year	Tons	Value
1920	249,205	$14,589,377
1921	218,713	18,107,034
1922	295,955	17,680,726
1923	437,164	22,648,804
1924	413,139	22,177,720

The report further states:—"The principal items of freight, for the calendar year were coal, petroleum products, lumber, wood pulp, and general package freight carried in steamers, schooners, and barges drawing from nine to twenty-two feet."

It is evident that the Thames river plays an important part in the transportation phase of our industrial life. The report must prove the justification of the efforts of the Chamber for a deeper channel, to continue and maintain this artery of our commerce.

Congressman Freeman on January 6th introduced to congress the following bill for the improvement of the Thames river:—

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the existing project for the improvement of Thames river, Connecticut, be and the same is hereby modified so as to provide for a channel two hundred feet wide, with increased width at bends, and eighteen feet deep at mean low water, between Allyn's Point and Norwich, at an estimated cost of $350,000 for new work, with $20,000 annually for maintenance in accordance with the report submitted in House Document Numbered 108, Sixty-ninth Congress, first session, and that the project recommended in said report, be, and the same is hereby, adopted."

Community Advertising—On the back cover of the current New Haven timetable "Lines West" is a large picture of the Wauregan Corner and some facts concerning Norwich which were supplied by the Chamber. The New Haven officials have given this space free to all the cities and towns which the railroad serves. It is valuable publicity.

The directors requested the state highway department to erect direction road signs to Norwich at the junction of the Salem-Hadlyme roads on the New London-Hartford cement road. The state department agreed to erect a sign and also one at Hadlyme.

Industrial Census—Every manufacturing establishment in Norwich doing an annual business of $5,000 and over will be included in the bi-ennial census of manufacturers of the United States covering the calendar year 1925.

Questionnaires have been mailed to local manufacturers direct from the census bureau at Washington. The Chamber is anxious that the local manufactures fill out these questionnaires and return them promptly to Washington. As a matter of pride for Norwich, we want to uphold our reputation as a leader, for cities of our size, in the diversity of our industries.

We make a strong appeal to our manufacturers to show their pride in Norwich by making their prompt returns to the Census Bureau.

New York Freight—The traffic bureau of the Chamber has given considerable consideration to New York freight deliveries to Norwich during several of its past meetings.

Formerly it was possible to have shipments from New York to Norwich delivered here the next day. This was possible because of the schedule operated by the New England Steamship company. This boat formerly left New York at 5 p. m. arriving in New London at 3 a. m. During the past summer this schedule was changed—the boat now leaves New York at midnight and its time of arrival at New London is such that its freight cannot be carried to Norwich and delivered here that same day. The quesution was discussed on several occasions with the New Haven officials without results.

The bureau next took the matter up with officials of the Central Vermont railroad. This company operates a boat from New York to New London on a schedule that permits delivery of freight in Norwich the same day it arrives in New London.

As a result of conferences with the Central Vermont officials, shipments from New York will be delivered in Norwich the next day beginning Monday, February 1st. New York shipments received at Pier 29 East River not later than 4:30 p. m. will be delivered in Norwich at the Central Vermont station about 9 a. m. the next morning. This will give Norwich less than twenty-four hour delivery of freight from New York.

This service will depend upon the patronage it receives, and the traffic bureau of the Chamber urges our local shippers to support this new service.

Civic Pride—Don E. Mowry has well stated—"The personality of a city determines the development of that city in the future. The real personality of a city lies deeply imbedded in the civic consciousness that prevails in the minds of the individual citizens. Cities are affected by their natural surroundings and by the influence of strong virile men and women. The average city is the product of environment, natural growth, and ambition combined. The city that develops a personality stands out among the cities of its class and becomes a leader.

A city's personality is a reflection of the personality of its citizens taken collectively. If they are self-satisfied, selfish, or narrow visioned, the city shows it. If they are progressive, alert and broad visioned, the city likewise shows it."

We of Norwich can well take these statements to our hearts. The development of a strong civic spirit in any community is to be desired. Norwich is the average city—let's make it a leader, in its class by loyalty, faith, and vision for a greater and a better Norwich.

FAMOUS POLISH PRELATE TO VISIT HERE FRIDAY

Rev. S. A. Ickiek, pastor of St. Joseph's church, has received word that Archbishop John Cieplak, the Polish prelate who was imprisoned for sixteen months by the Bolshevicks and was condemned to death by them, is coming to Norwich at noon Friday of this week.

The distinguished churchman for many years before the war was the Archbishop of Petrograd, the capitol of Russia. His diocese comprised the greater part of Russia proper, some 400,000 Catholics, especially Poles being under his spiritual care. As the highest representative of the Catholic church in Russia he was often seen in the Russian imperial court.

After the Bolshevick revolution he, with many of his priests, was imprisoned by the bolshevick authorities for teaching religion and the Polish language. Archbishop Cieplak spent sixteen months in prison, undergoing great privations and was finally sentenced to death. The whole Christian world intervened in his behalf, some sixteen European governments and the United States of America through its representatives pleaded for his life.

One of his priests, Monsignor Butkiewicz, was executed and the Archbishop was finally exiled from Russia and returned to Poland, where he was given a royal welcome.

Archbishop Cieplak came to America to thank President Coolidge and the American government for their efforts in his behalf as well as the American people for the assistance they have rendered to Poland. He has spent two months in this country, visiting the larger cities and the Polish colonies, he was to leave for Poland, where he will be installed as the Archbishop of Vilno, this Saturday, but delayed his trip in order to visit the Poles in Norwich and a few other larger communities.

The Archbishop will arrive in New London about 11:30 on Friday and will travel by auto to Norwich. At noon he will address the Polish people in St. Joseph church, after that he will visit the new school and give a talk to the children. Dinner will be served at the rectory at 1:00. If time permits, he will be shown about the city, call on the Mayor, the City officials and other prominent citizens at a public reception in the City Hall, and then return to New York that afternoon. The details of the program will be announced on Friday morning.

Many of the Poles in Norwich come from the Vilna district, the see of Archbishop Cieplak. Father Ickiek expects a large crowd at the church, as many of the people working in the factories will come during the noon hour to hear the Archbishop and to receive his blessing.

ACCLAIM UNITED STATES APPROVAL OF WORLD COURT

Premier Briand of France and British Foreign Secretary Chamberlain Regard It as an Important Development—Diplomats at Geneva Expressed Satisfaction When Senate Vote For American Adherence Became Known.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The action of the United States senate in voting approval of American adherence to the international court of justice was received in Paris as good news by the friends of the league, whose enthusiasm, however, is modified by the reservations attached to the decision.

"I am glad to hear it," was Premier Briand's comment, in which Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary, who was with him, concurred. "It is a most important development," added the premier, "and let us hope that it is only the first step."

Sir Austen again agreed smilingly but suggested "perhaps it is best not to talk about that angle of it too much or too loudly."

League people here are loath to discuss whether the league council and assembly are likely to accept the reservations, on which American participation in the world court depends, but all declare that everything possible will be done to facilitate actual adhesion to the court by the United States.

PLEASED WITH U. S. SENATE APPROVAL OF WORLD COURT

GENEVA, Jan. 28—(AP)—As the news of American adherence to the permanent court of international justice, known as the world court, spread through Geneva, which is now the scene of the sessions of various technical commissions, expressions of satisfaction were heard on all sides today.

The American ratification of the court protocol must under the rules be deposited with the league of nations, and interest has been aroused as to whether, when the next vacancy on the court bench occurs, the United States will send a representative to sit with the league council and assembly, which elect the judges concurrently, or will send in its votes by courier or mail. In the meantime the court itself has been convoked in extraordinary session at the Hague for February 2 to consider the dispute between Germany and Poland.

This dispute concerns the responsibility of Poland for the payment of social insurance contracted with German companies by German residents of Upper Silesia and Poland Germany maintains that she is unable to pay, as she must meet the Dawes reparations obligations.

Discussing the United States senate's reservation that the world court shall not render advisory opinions involving the United States without the consent of that country, league of nations political experts said tonight that in point of fact the court has not rendered any decision involving the interests of the various states when the states affected were opposed to the taking of such opinions.

It is also pointed out that the only exception to this custom—which is only a custom and not a binding regulation—was the recent Mosul conflict, when the league council, despite the opposition of Turkey asked the court to define the nation of the council's function in settling the Mosul affair. However, as emphasized, this was merely a request for guidance as to the council's competency.

In line with the Swiss move, the assembly is urging all the states to renew their signatures to the compulsory arbitration clause of the court as soon as possible. Denmark recently announced that she had renewed her adhesion for ten years.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

PRINCE OF WALES HAS BROKEN COLLARBONE

LONDON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—While riding to hounds today in Leicestershire the Prince of Wales came to a bad cropper and fractured his left collarbone. It was the second accident he has sustained in the last two days, for yesterday at Melton Mowbray his horse fell dead under him, though the prince was not hurt.

Wales took a formidable hedge today with a ditch on either side. His horse cleared the obstacle, but stumbled and fell. The prince tumbled on his shoulder, and his fellow hunters ran to his aid, gave him what assistance they could and took him to a nearby cottage.

TWO RUM SHIPS RIDE OUT CYCLNIC STORM

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The storms which in the last few days has wrecked three merchant ships and taken the lives of twenty-eight honest seamen dealt gently with those latterday pirates, the rum smugglers.

Rum Row, or rather the two ships anchored about forty miles off Amborse Lightship where Rum Row flourished a year ago, rode out the storm chaperoned by a group of 75-foot patrol boats without apparent discomfort.

When visited by a representative of The Associated Press on the United States Coast Guard cutter Seminole, during the height of the gale, the vessels seemed undamaged by the buffeting of wind and wave. Not only that but their crews were as insistently debonair as ever, secure in the treaties which bind the coast guard to watchful waiting.

One of the "rummies," the black four-masted British schooner, W. H. Eastwood, commanded by a "hard-boiled" skipper with a Liverpool accent has gained the reputation of being the most persistent of the rum smugglers. Off and on for more than a year, it has had a regular anchorage on Rum Row. Storms come and go but the Eastwood remains calmly on with all hatches battened down the plenty of anchor chain out.

"There're darned good sailors," a coast guardsman said in one breath, and in the next, "we'd like to blow them out of the water."

BERLIN WEDDING CAKE HAS NOT BEEN CUT

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Berlin's large wedding cake, still uncut, was believed today to Berlin's Broadway office by Robert Sweetlove, stewart of the S. S. Leviathan, to be kept there until the return of the couple in the spring.

Sweetlove said that during the honeymoon voyage to Europe, Berlin proposed cutting the cake, but Mrs. Berlin had objected saying:

"No, Irving. Let us save this for our first party when we get back. Maybe by that time, papa—"

The steward said that he had been given a large tip for conveying the cake back and for keeping intruders from the Berlin's suite.

It was learned today that Berlin sent back the lyric of his latest song by radio from the Leviathan. It is titled "Always," and is said to be a commentary on his marriage to Ellin MacKay, daughter of the president of the Postal Telegraph Co., without whose "knowledge or consent" the marriage was solemnized. Beginning with the line "I'll be loving you always," it ends as follows:

"Not for just an hour,
Nor for just a day,
Not for just a year,
But always."

SEVEN PERSONS WERE INJURED BY GALE IN BOSTON

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Bitter cold and a westerly gale tonight followed a 10 minute blizzard which swept the city today, injuring seven persons and crippled street car telephone and light service in several sections.

In Revere a miniature hurricane which preceded a few minutes of blinding snow levelled a score of poles carrying light telephone and trolley wires. Traffic through one of the main thoroughfares was halted all day while wreckers removed the debris.

Two men were injured when the high winds shattered a plate glass window in a down town office building, showering them with flying glass. In the Dorchester district, John McLaughlin was struck by a wooden skylight cover and was taken to the hospital with a fractured skull.

In Charlestown two men were injured when the wind ripped down a staging on a house which was being razed and two ice cutters on a Peabody pond were blown into the water by the gale. Fellow workers rescued them.

TERRIFIC GALE DURING FIRE IN WATERBURY

WATERBURY, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Fanned by a terrific gale from the west, a conflagration which started in the Waterbury Fastener Company's factory at 140 Manhan street, shortly before 10 o'clock tonight, blew a shower of sparks over the surrounding district, setting fire to the wooden storehouse of the Apothecaries' Hall company and three houses on Fairview street.

The contents of the factory were utterly consumed, only the concrete frame remaining. George F. Fuller, manager of the Waterbury Fastener company, said tonight that the damages to the factory amounted to $150,000. It was partially covered by insurance. The second and third stories of the frame house at 88 Fairview street, valued at $10,000 occupied by three families and owned by Mrs. Anna Bagdon, were destroyed.

SNOW BLOCKS CENTRAL NEW YORK HIGHWAYS

WATERLOO, N. Y., Jan. 28—(AP)—Many central New York highways are blocked tonight with snow. Winds of high velocity have piled the snow in cuts and in paths previously made by snowplows and shovelers. Motor traffic on any highway in Seneca and Ontario counties is extremely dangerous. Constant operation of plows in keeping steam and electric lines open.

SEVEN SAILORS BLIZZARD BOUND IN LAKE MICHIGAN

MUSKEGON, Mich., Jan. 28—(AP)—After fighting his way for a mile over the floating ice field to reach shore, Theodore Grahame, Jr., of the tug Indian, notified the coast guard station today that the seven men aboard the Indian and the Helen M., blizzard-bound in Lake Michigan, "must have food and fuel to live out there in the gale."

SAYS BOOTLEGGERS PAID $100 WEEK FOR PROTECTION

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—"Protection" for persons engaged in bootlegging operations was offered at the rate of $100 a week by an alleged "bagman" representing Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of the Chelsea police, three witnesses told a jury in federal court today. The witnesses were called in the trial of Mayor Quigley and 26 others, including the police officers, who are charged with violation of the national prohibition law.

One of the witnesses was Joseph Alpert, a bootlegger who has twice paid fines in federal court. Another witness was Reverence Johnson of Chicago, who acted as a special investigator for the Boston Advertiser which in 1923, published a series of articles exposing alleged conditions in Chelsea. The third was Austin J. Scannell of Lowell, a former reporter for the Advertiser, and now employed by the Boston American.

Johnson and Scannell told about posing as representatives of a syndicate seeking a place to "split" liquor and seeking police protection. They declared that they had interviewed Eddie Carlon, of the defendants, that he guaranteed protection from intervention by the mayor and the police for $100 a week and that he explained he had to divide this money. In addition they said, Carlon had aided them in finding a shed in the junk yard of Frank Goldman.

Scannell said that Goldman had informed him that the shed "had been used by a bootlegger before, who had started in business before he was given word by Carlon, and that he had been knocked off." Scannell said that Carlon informed him that the protection money was divided between the mayor and the police.

Alpert said that he went to Mayor Quigley early in the year of 1922, and asked if he would be permitted to manufacture liquor. Quigley, he said, told him that he would send "a young man" to see him. Alpert said that Carlon subsequently called on him and that he paid $100 a week for seven or eight weeks.

During the summer he again went into "business," he admitted. He was never raided by the Chelsea police, the witness declared, but said that he was twice raided by federal officers. After an interruption caused by one raid, he said, he resumed operations and payments to Carlon in the fall of 1923 but stopped after a second federal raid.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF INTEREST TO GRADUATES OF YALE

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Invitations to suggest candidates for the office of alumni fellow have been sent by Yale university to all its graduates of five or more years' standing. Unless they withdraw those suggested by as many as 25 graduates will be considered nominated and will be voted upon by the alumni. The result will be announced on commencement day.

Six members of the Yale corporation are now chosen by the graduates. The alumni fellows succeeded the six senior senators of the state in 1872. Each trustee elected by the graduates holds office for six years, but is eligible for re-election. In addition there are ten prominent members of the corporation called the successors of the original trustees, who are a self-perpetuating body.

The alumni fellows now holding office are: Edwin M. Herr, '348, of New York city, whose term expires this year; Alfred L. Ripley, '78, of Boston; Otto T. Bannard, '76, of New York City; John V. Farwell, '79, of Chicago; Vance C. McCormick, '398, of Harrisburg, Pa.; and Clarence Blakeslee, '858, of New Haven, elected last June to succeed Chief Justice William Howard Taft, '78.

BILL TO CREATE SEPARATE AIR CORPS IN THE ARMY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—(AP)—Creation of a separate air corps in the army, analogous to the marine corps in the navy, was proposed today in a bill by Representative Wainright, republican, New York, a former assistant secretary of war, acting for the house military committee.

PREPARING FOR THIRD LEG OF TRANSATLANTIC FLIGHT

PORTO PRAYRA, Cape Verde islands, Jan. 28—(AP)—Commander Franco and his comrades were largely occupied today in selecting a likely spot for the take-off of their seaplane Plus Ultra on the third stage of the Trans-Atlantic air flight from Spain to Argentina. The commander hopes to make Fernambuco, 1,700 miles distant, his next stop. He may, however, be forced to land at the island of Fernando de Noronha, which is 1,442 miles from Cape Verde.

Both Franco and Captain Ruiz de Alda maintain a more or less stoical attitude, but have confidence in their machine and in their ability to negotiate the long jump to the South American mainland.

The destroyer Alcedo sailed last night from Pernambuco and the cruiser Blas de Lezo will sail tomorrow morning for the same destination with Lieutenant Juan Manuel Duran aboard. Duran accompanied Commander Franco on the flight up to this point, but left his comrades in order to lighten the weight.

Commander Franco, in thirty years of age, declines to be interviewed, and is most reticent about his flight. One newspaper correspondent, whose paper is reported to have asked for 5,000 words, approached the flier for a statement, and the commander replied: "I am sure that from the day I was born I have never spoken a total of five thousand words."

FORMER FOLLIES GIRL BECOMES OPERATIC STAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—(AP)—The Metropolitan Opera House, citadel of musical-dramatic art, rang today with the praise of an artswhile Follies girl when Mary Lewis joined Geraldine Farrar, Mary Garden and Rosa Ponselle in the ranks of American opera stars.

The American debut of the former Little Rock, Ark., choir singer in Puccini's "La Boheme" brought forth prolonged applause and showers of bouquets after the first, third and fourth acts.

Her voice, sweet and melodious but at times of inadequate volume to sound above the orchestra in its louder moments, was particularly effective in "They Call Me Mimi," the Aria of the first act which had been awaited as a test of her singing ability. The appreciative audience halted the action of the opera with its applause and at the end of the act called her before the curtain repeatedly.

Miss Lewis' theatrical training—the result of her experience in the motion pictures as bathing beauty and on Broadway as singer with the Greenwich Village Follies and the Ziegfeld Follies—gave her an assurance in her acting of Mimi that balanced the nervousness with which she approached the higher reaches of the score.

One of the first to congratulate Miss Lewis after today's performance was Miss Rosa Ponselle, former Connecticut girl who had scored a similar triumph in 1918, singing with Caruso, and who is now a prima donna of the company Miss Lewis has joined.

COAL CONFEREES FAIL TO FIND KEY TO DEADLOCK

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28—(AP)—Anthracite miners and operators, in joint conference trying to bring an end to the coal strike, having agreed to meet daily from 1:30 p. m. to 6 p. m., met out their alloted time today and adjourned until tomorrow without breaking the deadlock.

The daily announcement agreed upon to keep the public informed of the progress of negotiations was almost barren of information. It follows:

"The anthracite committee met today at 1:30 and continued its discussion of a possibility of reaching an agreement.

"There was a general discussion of numerous plans submitted to the conference. These plans were still under discussion at the time the committee adjourned at six o'clock.

"The committee will meet tomorrow at 1:30."

Under an agreement the six miners and six operators are not supposed to reveal what occurs in the joint conference, and for this reason each also was silent as to whether any progress is being made toward a settlement.

Conditions Good For Broadcasting Tests

Four American Stations Penetrated Russia and Eleven European Stations.

NEW YORK Jan. 28—(AP)—Aided by fair atmospheric conditions, radio fans on both sides of the Atlantic tried tonight to surpass yesterday's record in the third international radio broadcasting tests, when four American stations penetrated Russia and eleven European stations were known to have been heard in the United States.

During the overseas hour all the European and South American stations—a total of 20—were on the air simultaneously for the first time since the tests began. Among them are Brussels, Belgium, which slipped unheralded into the tests on Tuesday night and has been taking part ever since.

Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico and Canada began broadcasting as usual between 11 and 12 o'clock—the same hour allotted to the United States. Porto Rico came on the air with a special program of creole songs by Porto Rican troubadours and airs by a Spanish orchestra.

Hamburg, Germany, was heard more clearly in the United States, last night, than any other European station, the check-up of the radio week committee showed. Madrid, Brussels, Prague, Breslau, Manchester, Birmingham, Vienna and Moscow in Europe and Lima and Buenos Aires in South America were also received.

Reports were made from Russia that although unfavorable atmospheric conditions prevailed there fans heard stations WEAF New York, WOR Newark, WJZ New York and WJY New York. The committee could not learn what Russian stations were broadcasting.

Although tomorrow night's program calls only for "zone broadcasting" by stations in the United States and Canada, stations in Vienna, Prague, Munster, and Brussels in Europe and Buenos Aires have announced that they will be on the air also, three will broadcast from Buenos Aires.

PASSENGERS AND SEAMEN WERE INJURED IN STORM

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The White Star liner Olympic tonight continued her way across the stormy Atlantic, uninjured by the storm, and unaffected by an erroneous radio report that the liner was in distress.

At 10:45 a. m. today Captain William Marshall, of the Olympic, sent a message to the Associated Press, reporting his position as 106 miles west of the Scilly Islands, and at noon another message to the local offices of the White Star line, saying she was then 330 miles west of Cherbourg. In both messages Captain Marshall said "All well. Making 21 knots."

Two ships from the storm area reached New York today, the French liner France, 24 hours overdue from Havre, and the Cunard Line's Aquitania, two days late. On the France were injured passengers and three seamen hurt when the heavy seas crashed through two port storm doors.

It happened when the France left her course last Saturday night in response to the first S. O. S. from the Antinoe. The France resumed her course when the Roosevelt sent out a message that she already was standing by the freighter. The Aquitania suffered no damage although there was some excitement when a gust of wind as she was docking rammed the boat into the pier and splintered several beams.

WHOLE CREW OF THE ANTINOE WAS RESCUED

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The sea and human heroism have broken even in the latest renewal of their age-old battle.

The President Roosevelt, her funnels belching defiance of the gale she has fought four days, has resumed her way to Cherbourg tonight, with the whole crew of twenty-five men from the mangled and helpless British freighter Antinoe aboard.

Their rescue was the seamen's victory. A few hundred miles to the north and west, bits of wreckage on the still turbulent Atlantic gave evidence of the battle the sea won. They are all that is left of the Laristan, also a British freighter, which went down with her captain and twenty-five men.

The Roosevelt completed her victory early this morning, by the light of a moon which came out propitiously during a brief lull in the 90-mile gale. An open boat from the Roosevelt commanded by Chief Officer Miller, took the last thirteen men of the Antinoe.

They were exhausted from hunger and battered by the waves. Earlier, Captain George Fried, of the Roosevelt, had wirelessed of the rescue of the first twelve of the crew, but said the others had to be left aboard because they were too weak to risk jumping into the sea."

ALCOHOLISM AND MENTAL DEFECTS OF PRISONERS

BOSTON, Jan. 28—(AP)—Suggestions of mental difficulties or the effects of alcoholism were found in almost two thirds of the first 1500 prisoners examined by the state department of mental diseases under a requiring psychopathic examination of inmates of county jails in Massachusetts. This fact was made known today in a report of the prison committee of the Massachusetts Civic league made public through the state department.

The law requiring psychopathic examination of prisoners has been in force since September 1, 1924. One recommendation of the committee was that there should be indefinite confinement for alcoholism in many cases. Insummarizing its report, the committee said:

Greater safety of life and property is possible if the recommendations for psychopathic cases are heeded. Horrible crimes committed by irresponsible persons could be prevented if their condition were detected before instead of after the deeds have been done."

Stormy Debate on Tax Bill in Senate

Proposals to Defer Action Beyond March 15 Were Rejected by Leaders.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—(AP)—Proposals to postpone tax reduction beyond March 15, when first tax payments on 1925 incomes are due, were rejected today by both republican and democratic leaders as the senate began consideration of the revenue bill.

In the course of the stormy debate, which involved a fight against the proposed repeal of the inheritance tax and publicity provision during the debate. He was supported on the floor by Senators Howell, Nebraska, and Lenroot of Wisconsin, republicans.

Opening the debate in a speech defending provisions of the committee bill, Chairman Simmot set February 10 as the dead line for final passage if tax reduction is to be assured by March 15.

Senator Norris gave notice he would enter into no agreement along the line now and said that while he hoped it would be possible to permit tax reduction by March 15 he did not think this could be accomplished.

At the same time, Senator King, of Utah, a democratic member of the committee, filed a minority report disagreeing with the compromise reached by the other members of the committee. He proposed a total tax reduction of $500,000,000, declaring the $200,000,000 above the committee provisions could be attained by cutting down appropriations to that extent. He scored the administraiton's "failure to enforce economy."

Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, another democrat of the committee, introduced amendments proposing repeal of the automobile and all remaining stamp taxes.

GERMAN CABINET GIVEN A VOTE OF CONFERENCE

BERLIN, Jan. 28—(AP)—Chancellor's Luther's second cabinet weathered its first parliamentary squall this afternoon, receiving a majority of ten votes on a motion of confidence introduced by the parties comprising the present government. The vote was 180 to 150, and there were 130 attendants.

The socialists gave the government the benefit of neutrality by abstaining from voting, thus offsetting the oppositional vote of the German nationalists and communists.

The outcome of the ballot plainly reveals the frility of the parliamentary base on which the present cabinet rests and suggests a latent condition of internal political convulsions unless Dr. Luther succeeds in effecting a sound working alliance with the socialists.

The fact that Dr. Luther found himself in a tight corner forty-eight hours after entering upon his second chancellorship has caused a telling a deep depression in the ranks of the government parties, as well as in official quarters, where it was charged that had Pagce given only slight indication of her intention to meet the German hopes with respect to reduction of the French forces in the Rhineland, the new government would have been spared the humiliation of going before a hostile reichstag with a frantic appeal for toleranee.

There has been considerable sentiment in favor of dissolution of the reichstag in the event that the chancellor received an indifferent vote of confidence.

NEW HAVEN MAN WAS FRANTIC TO REJOIN WIFE

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—(AP)—Separated temporarily from his wife, aboard the liner Esquibo, which he left to purchase some magazines, P. G. Nicolari, sheriff of New Haven county, Conn., had to convince pier detectives today that he was not about to jump overboard, as he waved frantically toward the departing vessel. A taxicab race of several miles along the waterfront to the battery where he boarded a tug, enabled him to rejoin his wife.

Mr. Nicolari, miscalculating the sailing time, left the vessel returning in the time to see it departing. He raced to the end of the pier waving his arms frantically and with the pier detectives close behind, bent on preventing what they believed to be an impending tragedy, his predicament explained, they assisted him in beginning his race to overtake the vessel.

CARDINAL MERCIER FUNERAL ONE OF SOLEMN GRANDEUR

Royalty and Peasants Gave Vent to Their Love and Veneration For the Beloved Prelate—Two Hundred Thousand Belgium People Lined the Streets in Brussels Through Which the Cortege Moved to St. Gudule, Where a Great National Service Was Held—Today at Malines, With Last Rites of the Church, the Body Will Be Consigned to a Crypt in St. Rombaut Cathedral.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 28—(AP)—Belgium paid tribute today to Cardinal Mercier, primate of Belgium and archbishop of Malines. King and peasant marched humbly afoot in the cortege that carried all that was mortal of the beloved prelate through crape-darkened streets to the great Metropolitan cathedral of Ste. Gudule, where in a great national service they testified to the love and veneration they hold for him.

It was a ceremony of pomp and solemn grandeur, but one in which even the lowliest of the Belgians had a part. Two hundred thousand Belgian people lined the funeral route and bowed silently as the plain oaken coffin, surmounted with its simple mitre of gold, was carried to the cathedral And they still lined the way when a few hours later, without military circumstance, it was borne back to the North station to be taken to Malines where tomorrow the Catholic church will hold the last rites and consign the body to the crypt in St. Rombaut cathedral.

The scene of Ste. Gudule presented a vivid contrast, with the brilliant uniforms of the diplomatic corps and military officers, the violet cassocks of the bishops and the white gowns of the priests silhouetted against the dull black and silver in which the church was shrouded. As the cortege entered, it was met by the queen, pale and in deep mourning. She herself has risen from a sick bed to honor the memory of her friend.

The coffin rested on an immense catafalque at the entrances to the transept. It was surmounted by the cardinal's purple mantle, with three rows of candles. Immediately facing it was a black covered throne reserved for the king, and on the opposite side a throne for the papal nuncio. On either side were crape covered seats for eminent personages—high officers of state, members of the clergy, senators, deputies, judges, diplomatists, distinguished scholars and others.

With military bands and massed troops outside, the service within the church was one of great simplicity. In accordance with the cardinal's wish there were no flowers and no wreaths, and the service consisted only of a solemn requiem mass conducted by Monsignor Micara and chanted by the choir without accompaniment. The funeral oration was delivered by Monsignor Evrard, dean of Malines, and the papal nuncio gave general absolution.

After the services the body lay in state, and thousands of school children, the workers and the humble of Brussels, passed by in what seemed a never ending stream to bid their cardinal farewell. Then in the late afternoon the doors of the church were closed, and without ceremony the body was taken back to Malines.

COOLIDGE GOVERNED BY DEEP RELIGIOUS FEELING

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—(AP)—In both his official and private life President Coolidge is governed by a current of deep religious feelings, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal bishop of Washington, said today at a meeting of the New York committee of the National Cathedral association. Bishop Freeman is here to raise funds for the completion of the national cathedral of St. Peter and Paul, on Mount St. Albans, Washington.

"Silent as President Coolidge is," said Bishop Freeman, "he is voluble on the subject of religion. He believes that religion must be restored to its proper place in the life of the nation, and that in order to meet our national problems we must be true to our faith. He feels profoundly his responsibility, not only as president, but as a citizen of the kingdom of God."

TWO ELECTROCUTIONS AT SING SING LAST NIGHT

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 28—(AP)—Emil Klatt, one of two men who forfeited their lives in the electric chair tonight for breaking the laws of society, died clinging to the code of the underworld. He refused to shake hands with "squealers" in the death house before he was taken to the chair. Lugo Rapito was executed before Klatt.

The two executions were performed by the new Sing Sing executioner, who made his first appearance tonight since his appointment a week ago to succeed John Hulbert, resigned. The new man was on hand to perform an execution last Thursday, but the condemned man, Ambrose Ross, was reprieved at the last minute.

Contrary to predictions, the executioner was not robed or masked. Guards kept between him and the witnesses, but he appeared to be about 60 years old. He was flushed and walked with a quick nervous step.

When Klatt entered the room he asked Warden Lawes for permission to speak, and then declared: "I wish that McNamara (an accomplice who testified against him), would have to stay in Sing Sing until 1940. I believe that he has done me very wrong. That is all I have to say."

Klatt was placed in the chair at 11:10 o'clock and pronounced dead at 11:15 o'clock.

FINDS JURORS ARE NOT IN SYMPATHY WITH PROHIBITION

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Guilty verdicts in liquor cases are almost infeasible, "because the jurors aren't in sympathy with prohibition" District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien said today at a meeting of the Florence Crittenden League.

"Boston, you know is wet," he went on. "Then, too, there is corruption in the police force. You have seen charges of bribery against police officials from time to time in the papers. The prohibition law seems to have demoralized the morals of the force."

Massachusetts judges, Mr. O'Brien said, were incorruptible and demagogic talk of a crime wave was not to be heeded. Defending the probation and parole systems against recent attacks he said:

"You are not going to cure the situation by clapping everyone in jail. The jails aren't large enough. We have got to rely on the probation system and give it and the parole system adequate support."

TO BE TRIED ON CHARGES OF STEALING ANTIQUES

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 28—(AP)—Cuvier Grover Flint, scion of a well known Cambridge family, who failed to sell himself as a slave in 1924, must face trial on charges of stealing antiques. He was held for trial in superior court here today on bail of $2,000 after entering a plea of not guilty to three charges laid by owners of summer homes at Petersham.

State police who investigated the looting of the cottages said the thieves revealed an educated taste in the antiques. Chippendale mirrors, an Aaron Willard banjo clock, a John Rogers clock, a mahogany lyre clock, rare gilt mirrors and oil paintings were among the treasures taken from three Petersham homes after their owners locked them up last fall. The antiques, the police said, were sold to innocent purchasers in various parts of New England. Some have been recovered.

"I half expected that," Hummel said. "I didn't want this publicity. I was perfectly willing to let things go. But I will not stand being called a liar. I still repeat that I am the son, the only son, of Abraham Hummel, although for my only son, I know darn little about my father"

Tracy who presided at the opening said that charity was the keynote of the affair and he was pleased to find that the busy public had devoted so much time and effort to assisting its only hospital. In viewing the splendid array of attractions to be found at the carnival he complimented the committee and assistants on their work. At 7:30 o'clock in the evening the St. Joseph's Boy Scouts band appeared at Lincoln Square and rendered a concert under the direction of Charles N. C. Wheeler. A short street parade then led to the scene of the carnival. With the conclusion of the opening exercises dancing was enjoyed to music by the Lyric orchestra. The various booths were well patronized during the evening and according to the committee the initial night gave assurance of the success of the carnival.

Renditions by the popular Imperial Male Quartet, consisting of Arthur L. Clark, Ray B. Tallman, Claude W. Ide and Edwin C. Cross, brought the program to a close.

Arriving on Union street the animal went through a series of antics not unlike the Charleston. It continued to dance until about opposite Center street when it fell to the ground, fortunately not breaking any part of the wagon. Mr. Howard who is a cripple and gets about by the use of two crutches was [illegible] as to what should be done. Friends assisted him in getting the horse to its feet and by careful leading it was brought onto the less slippery sidewalk. The horse was forced to remain there in a marooned condition until the owner secured the services of a blacksmith to sharpen its shoes.

W. T. Maine and son have finished sawing timber on the Whittaker place in Ashford and are moving their teams to Groton (opposite New London) where they are having a lot of timber cut. Harold Gibbonson, who has had charge of the teams at the Whittaker lot, and his brother, George Gibbonson, also a teamster, are going to the lot in Groton. Stephen Velgaska, Jr., who has been employed at the lot in Ashford has returned to work at home for the present.

January seems to be rather temperamental, especially on last Sunday, and again on Thursday.

There was a small attendance at church Sunday, due more to illness than to rough weather, probably. The local pastor, Rev. H. A. Coolidge, goes to Westford Hill every Sunday afternoon, and reported a very good attendance at the church there, Sunday last.

ITINERANT VENDOR LAW VIOLATION ALLEGED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Jan. 28—Henry S. Hogan, of Southbridge, who has been conducting a sale of merchandise in the store recently vacated by F. J. Fitzpatrick, was fined $50 and costs of $9.50 in the borough court yesterday morning, on the charge of being an itinerant vendor and not having state and local licenses therefor. Judge Heald told Hogan he might have his choice of taking out a license as required by law, or giving a bond of $500 and if it was later ascertained that he was not an itinerant vendor the case would be dismissed, or he could pay the fine provided by law and get out. Hogan chose the latter course and will close his business here and move his stock of goods to some other place.

The real cause of bad breath

"You cannot 'cover up' unpleasant breath for any length of time. The only way to rid yourself permanently of it is by removing the cause.

"Sometimes poor teeth are responsible. But the commonest cause of a coated tongue and offensive breath is constipation. You may not realize that your intestines are slow in eliminating waste matter, or that your breath is objectionable. But others will notice it.

"Get rid of constipation, and your breath will become fresh and sweet. Even more important, you will notice an immediate improvement in your health and spirits."

Nujol relieves constipation in Nature's own way

DANIELSON

ROTORIANS PLANNING FOR CHARTER NIGHT

DANIELSON, Jan. 28—At Thursday evening's meeting of the Danielson Rotary club, there was a discussion, among other things, of plans for the presentation of the charter to the newly organized group of Rotarians here, on Thursday evening of next week. It is likely that this event will be held in the state armory. The Norwich, New London, Putnam and Willimantic Rotary clubs will be in attendance. A banquet will be a feature of the evening. Details of all the arrangements are well advanced and will be announced the first of the week.

Having tested out their nets early Thursday evening and found that Old Man Seattle, who all the week has played Bob with their efforts to hear foreign stations, was more or less off the job for the time being, radio fans planned another late session in the hope of getting better results than has been possible in the current series of international broadcasts. On this morning's reports of what was possible in the way of reception will depend fast lagging enthusiasm to hear what Europe or South America has to say over the air.

When the Chamber of Commerce holds its meeting next Tuesday evening it is understood that Attorney Henry P. Back will make a report on the subject of motor coach transportation for East Killingly and Goodyear. Definite progress has been made in the negotiations with the Connecticut company on this improtant matter to Danielson business interests, but the nature of it is not yet available for publication.

Line crews of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company are busy with construction operations these winter days. The activities include the extension of service lines out of Plainfield, along the state highway leading to Canterbury, construction having progressed as far as the Exley place. Work on the line out of Moosup, to bring electric light and other electrical service to Oneco, is also progressing. Poles for the new line have been set over a good part of the distance to Oneco.

The first collision between mote-coaches in Danielson happened Thursday afternoon, on Main street when one of the big machines of the Interstate line, operating between Hartford and Providence, was in a mix-up with one of the coaches of the New England Transportation company. No one was injured in the accident, of a minor sort, or were the coaches damaged in any great degree. The Interstate coach was coming down Main street and the New England coach out of Academy street. The Interstate coach had a damaged rear fender on the right side and some other marks of the collision, while the forward fender on the New England coach was jammed back against a tire. Chief John Gerrard checked up the accident after which the Interstate coach proceed on its way to Hartford and passengers in the New England coach were transferred to another coach kept here by the line.

From the home in Elmville, Thursday morning, the funeral of Wilfred Hunter was held with services at St. James' church here, at 9 o'clock. Rev. James McCarthy, M. S., was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Numbers of relatives and friends attended the services. The body was entombed at Holy Cross cemetery. Bearers were Patrick Fitzsimmons, Martin Fitzsimmons, Harry Caffery, Arthur Stockton, Charles Kibbe and Eugene Kibbe. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Slippery highways were a legacy on Thursday of the light snows and the alternate thawing and freezing of the preceding 48 hours. Tire chains, not in general use this winter, were a good trade-guard for motorists Thursday, when many a machine took to skidding and not a few accidents of minor nature were reported. East of here, on the heavy grades, particular precaution was necessary to avoid having a machine go out of control.

With published reports as to the new grand lists of Willimantic and Putnam available, Killingly has reason to be pleased, with a comparison of these cities with its own grand list, figures from which recently appeared in this column. However, there will be no jubilation here because Putnam's new grand list shows a shrinkage from the figures of last year, while Killingly's shows a substantial gain. Growth of all eastern Connecticut is what Killingly is enthusiastic for. The town, however, may be especially pleased over its comparative gain on Willimantic, a much larger community.

Old-time fiddlers are springing up in every nook and corner. Some of them are barely able to boast a gray hair. They are endeavoring to ride on the wave of publicity created by the real old-timers who were playing for dances when a dutiful mother was crooning lullabys for a considerable number of those who could not tell a "fiddle" from a ukelele back in those days, and yet are clamoring now to get into the old-timers' contests. It is to laugh. Only an old-timer is a real old-timer. The general public knows the difference and will wait to hear the real thing.

"Amsbury Inn." So reads the sign of a hostelry within the limits of the town of Killingly. It was established nearby 60 years ago. How many of the town's people ever heard of it, aside from those in the immediate vicinity of where it is located, or ever dined there? Not many, it is very certain. It is a bit off the beaten trails of these latter days. It does not seek publicity if idea not need it. Not to make too much of a mystery of too long a story about it, the place is up in Pineville, and for practically three score years has been what is known today as a "mill" boarding house. In the days when the Weatherheads operated a small manufacturing plant in what is now Pineville, where a mill of the Attawaugan company is located, Jabez and Mowry Amsbury were residents there and the inn they established was given the family name.

Judge Sabin S. Russell is a member of the committee of the Windham county bar that is arranging a dinner to be given in Putnam next Monday night in honor of Justice George A. Hinman, recently appointed a member of the supreme court of errors of Connecticut.

At Putnam, next Thursday evening, the Service battery basketball team will play a team representing the 43d Headquarters company team of that city. Both teams are made up of fast and capable players.

Run-overs into the "silent" hour of broadcasts, by station WNAC, of Boston, of the operas of the Chicago Civic Opera company, for a time have made numbers of radio fans here believe they were listening to a foreign station.

Winds of gale force that prevailed here during Thursday did some damage, including the blowing over a stack at a plant on Reynolds street.

A few telephone operators from the Danielson exchange joined others from the Putnam exchange, in journeying to Norwich Thursday evening, to attend a gathering of company representatives at the Wauregan hotel.

It appears likel that no great burden of duties will fall upon members of the board of relief when they begin their sessions with the opening of February. At least there appears to be very general satisfaction with the work of the assessors in complying the grand list.

The alleged comic valentine is going through the mails again, a bit early, but nevertheless being forwarded by those who like to have a bit of fun with some person or another.

Women of the Baptist church have presented Mrs. Christopher Andrews of Riverview, who is leaving to make her home in Cmbridge, Mass., a purse, suggestive of the appreciation of the valued activities of Mrs. Andrews in various lines of church work during the years of her residence here.

Mill men representing manufacturing concerns in Danielson and the immediate vicinity will be in Norwich next Wednesday evening to attend a meeting and banquet of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association.

Addition of machinery to the Main street plant of the Pace Manufacturing company will permit of doubling its bleachery output when the new equipment is in operation. Forty additional employes have been taken on at this plant recently.

Members of the Sewing society of St. Alban's are to meet at the parish house this (Friday) afternoon.

Mrs. Walter I. Chase, Mrs. Charles B. Hutchins, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney W. Hall, Mrs. Louis S. Ingalls and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Walter have been at Hartford the past two days attending the grand chapter meeting of the Order of the Eastern Star.

More Killingly fiddlers are expected to enter the old-timers' contest to be staged at the Bradley theatre in Putnam the coming week. There is only one entrant to date, from this town, Henry Pray, of Ballouville, winner of second place recently in the contest held in Providence.

The Windham County National bank announced that all deposits made in their savings department on or before February 6th., will draw interest from February 1st. This enables all those who depend upon going to the bank Saturdays to have their deposits drawing interest from February 1st.—adv.

Mrs. Ina Frost, of Cambridge, Mass., and at the mid-week services at the Baptist church Sunday evening. Mrs. Frost formerly was a soloist at this church.

Because of an impending journey to Florida, Governor J. H. Trumbull will not come to Danielson to make an address until some date late in February or thereabouts.

George A. Friedman, of Worcester, was a visitor with friends in Danielson, on Thursday.

The Deepest Desires of Youth Today will be the subject of an address before the Killingly Woman's club next Wednesday by Mrs. Lucy Jenkins Franklin, dean of women at Boston university.

South Killingly scores with announcement of a first sign of spring, something to think about on a winter morning like this. Everett Hall saw a blue bird over there a recent day.

Mrs. Harriet L. Wheatley, of Broad street, has gone to Florida for the remainder of the winter season.

PILL-SLAVE FREED FROM CONSTIPATION

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brought natural relief in a few weeks

"A remarkable, convincing tribute is paid Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in this letter from Mr. F. C. Aminsen, of Seattle:

"I suffered with chronic constipation for many years and was compelled to use pills every night, but since I got your Kellogg's ALL-BRAN it works fine. I would not be without it. I was so deathly sick of taking pills every night. Now it is so different. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN works so naturally and is pleasant to take."

F. C. AMINSEN,
Kenmohein, Seattle, Washington.

You can get permanent relief from constipation with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN if eaten regularly. Two tablespoonfuls daily—or in chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend it because it is ALL BRAN. It does a job only ALL-BRAN can do. Part-bran products may not do any good at all.

Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or cream. Use it in cooking. Try the recipes given on the package. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek, Michigan. Served by the leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by grocers.

PUTNAM

BUILDING AND LOAN ASSO. HAS ASSETS OF $271,687

PUTNAM, Jan. 28—Stockholders and officials of the Putnam Building and Loan association who attended the annual meeting of the association last evening expressed themselves as fully satisfied with the record of the past six months. Judge M. H. Geissler, as secretary, made the 20th semi-annual report. The total assets are $271,687.47 an increase in the past six months of $24,000. As he tersely expressed it, "There has been a steady, consistant growth and not one bad loan."

The sale of stock for the 51st series is now on and 130 shares have already been taken.

Judge Geissler has been the secretary and executive officer of the association since its formation, and for the first half of that period his services were given without remuneration. He is considered one of the ablest and best informed building and loan officials in the state, and from state inspectors and officials of similar organizations he has received highly complimentary letters. Officers were elected, as follows:

President, Alexander Gilma; vice presidents, John M. Dean, Ernest B. Kent, Walter J. Bartlett; secretary, Mahlon H. Geissler; treasurer, W. E. Moss; assistant secretary, Miss Elsie A. Gallant; assistant treasurer, Omer J. Milot; board of management, Omer J. Milot, A. Newton Vaughn, Silas M. Wheelock, Oscar Dugas, Chester M. Elliott, Ray C. Bosworth, Herbert J. Smith.

A change in the bylaws indicates that upon voting to authorize the issuing the issue of single payment shares in the association, the board of management shall include in such vote a provision as to whether such single payment shares shall be subject to a forfeiture to the association of any part of the dividends on such shares when withdrawn before maturity. The board of management is also empowered to authorize the issue of single payment shares which shall not be subject to such forfeiture of any portion of the dividen3 on the same when withdrawn before maturity.

As part of his report Secretary Geissler made the following statement:

"Our association is ten years old. We have grown from nothing to more than a quarter of a million dollars in assets. We have assisted about one hundred people of Putnam to build or buy homes. Practically all of the work of this association has been done by a few men who have served as your officers without pay. You have had the benefit of their labor. Do you appreciate what they have done? If you do let them know it; take an active interest in the affairs of the association. Sell a few shares of the stock to your friends get people interested in owning their own homes through the association by which a person can build or buy his home and pay for it in about 12 years at a net cost of less than three per cent. per year on the money borrowed."

There were no developments on Thursday in solving the mystery of the "break at the Bradley theatre office Saturday night. Members of the state police have been here making an investigation and pictures have been made of blood tinged finger prints on the desks and walls of the office.

William P. Warren one of the selectmen of the town and manager of the Putnam Coal and Wood company, was the speaker at the meeting of the Rotary club following the luncheon at the Putnam Inn, Wednesday afternoon. He talked about the use and merits of the different kinds of fuel, a timely subject in view of the coal strike and that not a ton of anthracite coal is obtainable here at present. He strongly advocated the use of bituminous, saying that if people would acquaint themselves with the proper way to handle it there need be no further worry about the strike of miners in the anthracite coal districts. He thinks that a building can be heated just as satisfactorily with bituminous coal; that in some ways it has advantages over anthracite, and that the cost is and always should be decidedly less.

However, he emphasized the importance of users familiarizing themselves with the approved methods of burning it before substituting it in a furnace that has heretofore been run only with anthracite. The objectionable features, he said, can all be done away with by a study of the subject.

It is not impropable that a bituminous "school" may be established here, at which the students will consist of furnace firemen, and that only one subject will be studied; how to use other fuel than anthracite in the heating of buildings that are equipped with a furnace. Some one familiar with all phases of the subject will be secured as teacher.

The committee composed of town and city officials and representatives of semi-public organizations held their first meeting Wednesday evening to consider the subject of revaluing and equalizing property values for taxation purposes. There are eighteen members of the committee; two of the number, Judge F. S. Russell and Earl C. Rogers, are in Florida temporarily, and Charence E. Pierce of Putnam Heights, one of the selectmen of the town, was unavoidably detained, although he is heartily in accord with the movement, so that there was practically an attendance of 100 per cent.

T. H. deCoudres, president of the chamber of commerce, who has been indefatigable in his efforts to get the movement started in a systematic way, was made chairman of the committee of eighteen and Judge M. H. Geissler, secretary. Every one present expressed themselves as being in favor of tax revision on an equitable basis but they want to be informed as to the best way in which it can be done, and they were all of one mind in agreeing that no one would know more about the subject than officials or active citizens of towns who have faced and solved the same problem that confronts Putnam.

It was decided that at the next meeting there would be one or more speakers from towns in the state where tax values have been revised, and who are familiar with the manner in which it was done.

AMERICAN ORATORIO HAS A THEME OF LOST CHILD

LAWRENCE, Kas., Jan. 28 (AP)—The legend of the child lost in the forest and protected from wild beasts as by a guardian angel is the theme of an oratorio, The Guardian Angel, written by Prof. Charles Sanford Skilton of the University of Kansas.

Its premier production will come this spring at the meeting of the Kansas Federation of Music Clubs.

Into the oratorio is woven much of the religious spirit of the Moravian settlement of 1765 at Salem, N. C. Many quaint customs of the Moravians are brought out. Professor Skilton learned the legend while teaching at the Women's College, Salem, soon after completing his musical education in Europe.

The Moravians had moved southward from their earlier settlement at Bethlehem, Pa., and had discovered to make homes in the hills of North Carolina. It was their custom to divide church congregations into "choirs" one of which was composed entirely of children. At stated seasons of the year each choir held a love feast. The children observed this custom on Christmas eve when they sang a song beginning, "Jesus makes my heart rejoice."

This song furnishes the central thread for the oratorio, which is divided into three sections. In the first section a group of children seeks permission to play in a meadow where men are working near a forest. The request is told in a dialogue of the child, with its mother. The mother demurs, but upon consulting the "text book" and finding the text for the day, "He shall give His angels charge concerning thee," consents to allow the child to go to the meadow but not into the forest. The child, however, is tempted by bright red blossoms at the edge of the woods, and wanders deeper into the timber, becoming lost and falling to sleep.

In the second section the child awakens, hears voices of its playmates and attempts to answer, their calls but can not. The child is held down as if by a great hand, the lips sealed by the fingers of the hand. Gradually the voices die away and the child is able to make its way to the edge of the clearing where it is found. The searchers discover the tracks of a panther and their pious belief is that an angel was sent from heaven to prevent the child crying out, and thus attracting the animal.

The third section takes up the recovery of the child, and the music returns to the colonial simplicity of the opening choruses. The middle sections, however, are developed along modern musical lines.

The production calls for five solo voices, a children's chorus of 500, a mixed chorus of 300 voices and symphony orchestra. The libretto is by Abbie Fadwell Brown of Boston, writer of children's stories and poems.

"The point of view of the oratorio," said Professor Skilton, "is to reproduce the piety of the founders of America, both as represented in the New England colonies and in some parts of the south. It is truly American in its production and in its characters. The writing of American themes by Americans, in their own way, is, I believe, the only way to develop a real American music."

NEGRO FARMERS WILL MEET TO STUDY IMPROVED METHODS

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala., Jan. 28 (AP)—Improved methods of farming and home-making for the negro will feature the Tuskegee Negro conference to be held at the Institute, January 27-28.

Men prominent in agricultural circles, farm demonstration agents and farmers themselves will make addresses and participate in the discussions, said Dr. Robert R. Moton, principal of the Institute. One day will be devoted to subjects of special interest to health and social workers and rural school teachers.

Dr. Booker T. Washington inaugurated the movement to help negro farmers improve their conditions and raise the standard of living of those in rural districts.

FINDS ABILITY WITH TOOLS AN ASSET FOR THE INDIANS

BISMARCK, N. D., Jan. 28 (AP)—Innate ability with machinery and tools may eventually lead the American Indian to a new place in the sun, believes Clark R. Dickinson, head of the government Indian school for girls here.

During his 16 years in the Indian service, Dickinson says, he has found that the Indian has an ingenuity and an ability with tools which most white men would envy. This is the result, he thinks, of long centuries in which the Indian was compelled to devise tools to meet his peculiar conditions.

Indian boys make excellent automobile mechanics, he declares, and many have displayed proficiency in other trades where steadiness of hand and accuracy of eye are assets.

New Yellowstone Planned

Plans for developing the system of parks in Denver, Colo., are so ambitious that if they are carried out, the city maintains it will have something on a par with the Yellowstone National Park. The board has at its disposal 10,400 acres of parks extending from the foothills of the continental divide and between the Platte river and Clear Creek to work with. The tract is 30 miles long and 25 miles wide, and includes mountains, game reserves, lakes and highways. The Federal government will be asked to aid in some respects. Herds of wild animals and large fish hatcheries will be included.

McCoy's Rinolin Greatest Help When Constipation Is Chronic

Why Purge Yourself Daily When This Modern Emulsion Will Establish Regular and Natural Bowel Movements In 10 Days or Money Back?

Seems too good to be true, but after you thoroughly remove the waste deposits and expel every particle of poisonous waste from the intestines, the active peristalsis that results will make you forget pills and salts and calomel and all purgatives and cathartics for weeks to come.

And when your bowels move regularly as nature intended they should move, what a difference it will make in you—and all for the better.

Your skin will be clearer and cleaner for one thing and your eyes will sparkle with healthy brightness; for constipation surely does cause dull eyes and sallow skin.

Yes; and your mind will be keener, too, and vigorous physical activity will take the place of lassitude, tiredness and lack of ambition.

For habitual constipation is a condition that is so unnatural that often the blood becomes polluted with the toxins that seep into every fibre of the system—often causing auto-intoxication.

But now McCoy's Rinolin, the new pleasant to take emulsion, tells millions of unfortunate victims of constipation that if they will follow directions for ten days—perhaps less—that bowels will become regular and natural and stay that way for many days to come.

McCoy's Rinolin is the new Emulsion that Lee & Osgood Co. and druggists everywhere are selling so much of. It is guaranteed to rid you of habitual constipation in 10 days or money back—just follow the directions. Rinolin tonight—Pep tomorrow.

NO TIME FOR DELAY

Those who are offering much the same sort of opposition to the tax bill that was put forward concerning the world court resolution are cognizant of how the country feels toward them if we are to judge by the proposal that the date for the filing of the income tax returns be extended from March 15 to May 1, a matter of six weeks.

This makes it evident that those who propose such a change understand that the country is calling for early action upon the revenue bill. They appreciate the fact that if there is a delay in its enactment they will be unable to shoulder the blame, and instead of getting down to an early disposition of the important piece of legislation they are planning to feather their own nests and provide for an extension of a needless debate.

The house of representatives has responded to the demands of the country. The same prompt action ought to come from the senate, but there are those who are bent upon doing their utmost to prevent it and think that the country will be made happy to think of being held in suspense for a period of six weeks longer for the sake of giving them a chance to talk the senate deaf, dumb and blind.

The taxpayer is entitled to have this bill disposed of without delay. He wants to know what to expect and to prepare for it. He has no sympathy with the obstructionist tactics or with those senators who demand that the upper house of congress accept their demands, though they speak only for themselves and a few others whose chief purpose is to handicap the administration rather than to provide constructive legislation.

Plans are being made by certain ...ns to treat the tax bill in the same way that a handful of senators tried to deal with the world court. Unless it is possible for those in the senate who are committed to the non partisan measure to bring it to a vote they will be justified in resorting to the same method that was employed regarding the world court resolution. Delay should by all means be frowned upon.

LYNCHING LEGISLATION

Without any doubt it is the duty of the states to deal with the violation of their laws by those who participate in lynchings. Each murder of that character indicates disrespect and defiance for the laws of the commonwealth that should be adequately dealt with from within.

It is because certain states have failed to meet their duty in this respect and because there has been more or less winking at lynching that there has been a demand for federal legislation that would correct the situation. All those who oppose such a law do not favor lynchings. It is a strong belief that prevails that the respective states should be as deeply concerned in dealing with such crime as with any other.

Because there has been so much sentiment displayed in behalf of an anti-lynching law for the country, and the effort put forth to pass such a federal law have aroused so much support, there is no question but what it is having its effects upon those states where lynchings have too long prevailed. They recognize that they can escape such a federal law if they look to the enforcement of their own penal laws. That means a radical change in some instances but there is, nevertheless, a noticeable desire in lynching states to deal with such matters themselves, a desire which has unquestionably been prompted by the fear of a federal law.

For such a change in attitude there has been reason for elation. It indicates that states which have been responsible for deplorable conditions are coming to realize and meet their responsibilities. Lynchings have never been so few until there was a serious effort in behalf of the anti-lynching legislation, and if the states are brought to the recognition of the fact that they must reform or expect to have reforms applied from without the agitation in behalf of federal law against lynching may even accomplish its purpose although no national law of that character is ever enacted.

PERILS OF THE DEEP

Particularly heavy wind storms have been experienced this month. Houses have roofed, trees have swayed and broke and damage of various kinds have resulted. Even without the snow or rain it means a trying time for many.

But bad as such storms are on land they furnish only a slight idea of the ...ocity of them on the high seas, especially when accompanied by snow and sleet and mountainous seas. It is bad enough under such conditions when ...ls of ...ments of a ship are ...ing ...ently, but the situation that ...ently ...s ...ships and ...

...ers ...

...perience of the Lafolan and the Antinoe, the former of which had foundered at last reports with 25 of its crew going down with it, while the Antinoe was still afloat though so badly battered that it was expected to sink most any time. From this latter vessel part of the crew had been rescued in spite of the blinding snow and tempestuous seas and Thursday the hopes of reaching the others were realized.

Because it is possible in these days of wireless to disclose the location and the helplessness of vessels on the high seas, it has been demonstrated in these instances that although ships quickly respond and big chances are taken in attempting rescues such is not always possible.

The heroic work done by the Roosevelt in attempting to take off the Antinoe's crew is indicated by the loss of two volunteer rescuers, four lifeboats and the spending of several days in the vicinity of the ship hoping for an abatement of the storm whereby rescue of the entire crew might be effected. Only those who have gone through such experiences can appreciate the sacrifices that are made in undertaking to save humanity in mid-ocean during such weather conditions as have prevailed this week. The experiences of these two vessels emphasize the perils of the deep in spite of modern methods of communication and life saving devices.

JUDGE KLETT

News of the death of Judge George W. Klett of New Britain will be learned with sincere regret, throughout the state. Through his political activity he had become widely known throughout the commonwealth. He was a leader in politics and the legal fraternity in his home city and Hartford county but his service in the legislature and as a member of the republican state central committee brought him in touch with all sections of the state.

His long struggle against the effects of blood poisoning has been watched with sincere hopes for his recovery by his wide circle of friends and his death comes as a distinct loss to his community and the state. Perhaps there was nothing in which Judge Klett was more interested than in politics. He was an effective leader and his labors were ceaseless, political plans for the future even having been getting much of his attention during his serious illness.

Judge Klett was a man of strong convictions but whose efforts were constantly being put forth in behalf of others. He was often and rightly referred to as a political dynamo and his work in this direction even won the recognition of those of the opposing party. He was a man among men, whose winsome disposition and genial manner made him many and lasting friendships in all walks of life and all shades of political belief. In his untimely death a distinct loss is experienced.

AS VIEWED FROM ABROAD

Much has been said concerning aviation in this country and the conditions which exist relative to the maintenance of the proper defense of the country in the air. Opinions are not all alike. There are those which can be regarded as extreme and those which indicate moderation. Measures have been introduced in congress looking to changes that will result in betterments. Those come as the result of investigations and recommendations. What congress will do remains for the present uncertain.

In the meantime it is interesting to note that others have been giving our air service the once over aside from those named to make inquiries, those who have been connected with it and those who are seeking to have their own views carried out. Captain Fonck, a distinguished French aviator, came here for the purpose of making a study of our aviation methods. He doesn't undertake to force his opinion and views upon us, but when he gets back to France he is in a position to talk and it is particularly interesting to note that he says the French "are very far behind the Americans. They have an enormous advantage over us because they have plenty of money at their disposal and do not begrudge spending it on aviation. The results they obtain from a mechanical point of view make them past masters of air technique."

It is to be noted that he doesn't accompany this by an abuse of the French officials and his superiors and he doesn't undertake to misrepresent the cause of aviation in France. He is to be regarded as an expert without reason for giving any false impressions at home or here concerning our aeronautical efforts. He has certainly not played into the hands of those in this country who have been telling what a horrible mess of things we have been making in the field of aviation. We cannot believe it is all due to the French sense of politeness.

FREE AND WILD

"I'm against this wild free life the women are leading nowadays," declared the girl who likes to talk. Just a little bit more and I shall be advocating harems gratings and black ground length kimonas in public. A mere brief five-minutes dash down State street—if you don't absolutely refuse to see the sights before you—is sufficient to explain divorce, wife beating, abandonment and some murder.

"I have just been viewing a fat girl with bow legs walking toward me wearing a pair of those figured hose that remind you nervously of diamond-back snakes or a weather chart with curved and wriggly lines running every which way. There were many other persons on the sidewalk, but she was the only one visible. She took up all the space there was. Hers were new stockings and she was proud of them and I suppose the fact that she was satisfied was really the main thing. That girl took anguished stares for pure admiration—nobody ever had looked at her seemingly before and she was entranced with the experience. And she added a pair of run-down heels to her ensemble.

"I cannot reach any satisfactory conclusions about the stout, middle-aged women one sees climbing in and out of touring cars clad in khaki knickers and jackets. A fair young slyph aged 16, posed on a mountain crag with the wind blowing wanly through her tresses is a cute thing in this garb in a summer-resort advertisement, but otherwise the clothes are a frost.

"The minute the Simms family decide to pack the picnic basket and spend the day on the beach or out at the forest preserve mommer sets hooray and grabs her khaki knickers, same as Mamie got when she last went on her vacation out at Denver. Mamie looked right cute in them and when mommer sighed wistfully, she said, Sure, you'd look all right in 'em: everybody wears 'em these days.

Danny Meadow Mouse Is Well Fixed

Of what you have pray make the best,
And trust to fortune for the rest.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

Danny Meadow Mouse had been lucky. He didn't know it at the time, but it didn't take him long to find it out. When he had darted out from under Farmer Brown's back porch it was just luck that he happened to be headed toward the henyard. It was luck, or good fortune, or whatever you please to call it, that Bowser happened to get between Danny and Black Pussy. But just how fortunate he was he hadn't realized until he had had a chance to look around in that henhouse. This he did as soon as he had recovered from his great fright.

There were nesting boxes in there, each with hay in it. That meant that if he could find just the right place he could build a comfortable nest and make himself quite at home. At first, not knowing what else to do, he hid in one of those nesting boxes. He chose the one highest up and in the darkest corner. There he crept in under the hay and waited to see what would happen.

Now it was afternoon when Danny reached the henhouse. It was only a little while after he had hidden in that nesting box that the hens came in. One by one they flew up to the roosts. Farmer Brown's boy came and closed the little slide that would keep any one else from getting into that henhouse through the opening which the hens used in the daytime. In a short time it became dark. For a while there was considerable moving about among the hens as they made themselves comfortable and talked in low voices. When it was quite dark all was still.

Danny explored that henhouse from end to end. He made up his mind that he was going to like it there. He found some stray grains of corn which the hens had missed. It was warm and there was everything to make it comfortable. The only thing was he was alone. He missed Nanny. He wondered what had become of her. He was quite sure that Black Pussy hadn't caught her because he knew that Black Pussy had chased him.

"I do hope she is as well off as I am," said Danny, to himself. "Yes, sir, I hope she is as well fixed as I am, if I can get enough to eat—and I rather think I can—this will be just as good a place to spend the winter as Farmer Brown's barn. I wonder which one of those places will be best for my bed. I wonder what they are for anyway." Of course, Danny meant those nesting boxes. He decided to stay for a while in that one highest up in the darkest corner. In the end he stayed there altogether. You see, he soon discovered what those nesting boxes were for. But no hen used that one he had chosen. So, when Farmer Brown's boy came around each day to look for eggs, he never looked in that particular box. He knew the hens were not using it.

The first morning that Farmer Brown's boy came there was a great commotion among the hens and Danny was frightened. You see, Farmer Brown's boy had brought breakfast for the hens, and it was this that excited them. Danny peeked out with his bright eyes and he didn't miss a thing. Just as soon as Farmer Brown's boy had gone Danny climbed down and, watching his chance, darted out and got some food to take back to his nest. He soon found that Farmer Brown's boy brought a variety of good things. Sometimes the food was spread in the henyard. Then Danny would watch until he was sure no one was about, then he would dart out of that little doorway, get what he wanted and dart back again.

"Oh, dear!" sighed Danny more than once, "if only Nanny Meadow Mouse were here to share things with me I would be perfectly happy. I hope she is as well fixed as I am."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Judson Harmon, in whose honor the Ohio State Bar association is to give a notable dinner in Cincinnati tonight, is a former president of the association and a former governor of the state. He is a graduate of Denison University, one of Ohio's many small colleges, and a lawyer by profession. Named to important judicial positions in the state, he stood out prominently in the days of President Cleveland's leadership of the democratic party, and, in due time, was invited to join his cabinet, serving as attorney-general from 1895 to 1897. From 1909 to 1913 Mr. Harmon was governor of Ohio, and during 1897-98, was president of the State Bar association. After his retirement from political activities he resumed the practice of his profession and taught law in the University of Cincinnati.

From Small Beginnings

John Eliot, First Missionary to the Indians

Among all America's early romances that beautify the history of the country none is more striking than the story of John Eliot, "The Apostle to the Indians."

"What wilt thou do in the new country, John?" asked Hannah Mulford, the young woman whom he worshipped. "I know not, Hannah, but this I know; in that new land some great work will be given me to do. What it is I shall know later. Now, there is naught to do but to go." So, in a little, tossing vessel that today one would hesitate to board for a trip down the coast, the couple set off.

John Eliot was then 27 years old. As a boy he had worked on his father's farmland in England. He was hardy and strong. A lover of books, he had studied, and had found his way into the university. Then, having to learn his way in life, as his father had had to do before him, he had become a teacher.

When he arrived he found where now are the busy manufacturing cities of Massachusetts only a few scattered settlements and a wild country. Alone of all the Puritans, John Eliot conceived the idea that he would teach the savages. At once he turned from his Latin and Greek to the study of the harsh Indian words. "assowesit," "wunneetupanatamwe," "quoshkinumuk" and hundreds of other barbarous sounds. Slowly, patiently, John Eliot mastered the Indian language. He went into the forest, called the redmen together and taught them in their own language. He lived with the Indians whom others feared; he made them his constant companions and he taught them all that he could of civilization. Night after night, by the aid of flickering lights, he worked with a quill pen writing down for the Indians the entire Bible.

The work was prodigious—but so was the spirit of the young man who had been only a farmer boy in England. From time to time John Eliot went back to the settlements and there taught the white people, but only once more to go back among the Indians. He interested many people in his great work, and he himself was more than tireless. For 45 years he worked without rest, built Indians towns and instituted civilized government. Hannah Mulford, whom he had married, helped him in all his work. When he died at 86 he was conscious that he had done a world of good in the new land. The aspiring farmer boy had become a real apostle.

Stories That Recall Others

Sure, He's a Man.

Things in the house were rather upset because of a new arrival. Father's duties were increased as a result, one of which was taking care of Harry, age five. Harry, of course, was greatly interested in his baby brother and could find any number of questions to ask his father.

One evening while the head of the household was performing some duties over the new son, Harry asked whether mother had to do the same things sometimes. Father carefully explained, that, according to the division of the hours, that mother took care of the baby later on in the night, and often had to get up to look after baby. After a serious pause, Harry looked at his father, and said: "Gee, daddy, ain't you and I glad we're men?"

"Six, and Another One."

Anne is the only child in the family which includes a doting grandmother. The parents have often said that she seemed to like the grandmother better than either of them. She is known to pass away the hours in play, which grandmother tries to turn into stimulating channels, if not at least sightly educational.

Recently grandmother was trying to get Anne to count. The numbers had been gone over several times as far as ten. When company came, and Anne was asked to show how far she could count for a little girl, she went to her grandmother, and using the buttons on her dress, began:

"One, two, five, six and another one."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

KELANTAN

American automobile owners unknowingly helped to pay the award of nearly $2,000,000 which the Malay state of Kelantan recently gave on court order to an Englishman. Kelantan is waxing financially fat on rubber so the treasury probably found no difficulty in compensating the winner of the case, which, among other things, revealed how English commerce penetrated Kelantan back in the 60's and how the state was incorporated into the British empire in 1909.

Kelantan's present prospects and the improvements effected in its government are related in a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

"Think of the Malay Peninsula as an elongated Florida tacked on southeast Asia. Singapore shall be Key West; then the southern boundary of Kelantan is approximately in the position of Orlando and the northern boundary is 150 miles above, that is, at Jacksonville, Florida. Kelatan is 60 miles deep, which is a trifle more than half the width of Florida. Since Kelantan lies 5 degrees from the Equator, it would be quite willing to trade mountains for a bit of Florida's latitude.

"Miami had a 14-inch fall of rain recently which seems to put it in the running with Kelantan where over 100 inches fall annually in the plains district. When the figures are all in Florida's average will be shown only one-third as great. Kelantan's steaming climate swathes its hills in the densest of tropical forests. The jungle is matted above ground and matted below. An American surveyor boring for a bridge pier cut through 100 feet of crushed and rotting leaves and branches to find the bottom obstructed by a rotting trunk of a forest monarch that may have fallen more than a century before.

"Green is a tyrant in Kelatan. A native will cut out a garden plot in the jungle. By dint of industry he can keep the jungle back for two years' crops of tapioca root. Two years abandonment results in a growth 10 feet high, impenetrable without an axe. Acres of Virginia farms abandoned during the Civil war support 30-foot pine trees, but one can still identify the old corn rows. Ten years later the Kelantan garden patch is surrendered, only the practiced eye can distinguish the spot from natural jungle.

"But not all of Kelantan is jungle. The plain in the northeast, one of the largest level regions in the whole peninsula, affords views where there are no trees to be seen for miles; only rice beds glistening like windows of an enormous hothouse and grass pastures for cattle. Even the disordered jungle is giving way to the ordered rows of rubber trees. Rubber is now the most valuable export of Kelantan. Two other tree products, cocoanuts and betel-nuts figure heavily in its trade. Betel-nuts are a chewing gum substitute of the Orient.

"Kelantan offers a handy example of the East Indies before and after European intervention. Kelantan has been made safer for the ordinary native citizen and his family and a greater share of the profits of the citizen's toil come to him.

"The native conception of municipal government can be understood best by imagining a parallel political system set up in an American corn-belt town. In the first place the mayor would regard the community solely as a source of wealth for himself although he would not live there but instead in Chicago. Neither would he take the responsibility for governing the town or collecting the taxes for himself since he could farm out that work to an exacting foreigner. In Kelantan the foreigner would be a Chinese.

"Anyone in the community who committed a crime would be haled before a court in another city, since the chief ends of justice, Kelantan style, are to support the judges, half the damages and costs, together with what terrorism, bribery and blackmail could exact, would go to these dignitaries. Once in jail the citizen's chance of getting out would be small indeed.

"It would be necessary to abandon the clean, well-kept jail or our hypothetical mid-west town to approach the old Kelantan standard. In a vacant lot there would be erected a high, solid planked palisade. Inside there would be a double row of stout wooden cages about 30 inches from the wall and 6 inches off the ground. The cage dimensions are 6 feet long, 2 feet wide and 5 feet high. If the jail is crowded two persons can be put in one cage. Slats of the cell allow little light and air and there are no sanitary facilities. White men who have entered such compounds in Malay states tell that the stench is overpowering. The jail warden would be permitted by law to feed his prisoners with a half bushel of corn taken from every wagon entering town. None of the prisoners would ever get the corn. Unless relatives and friends fed them, a fee being charged for this by the warden, the prisoners would starve. Indeed, in Kelantan many did starve to death.

"Continuing the parallel, the Mid-west citizen's tax bill would have to be greatly augumented. There would be the poll tax to raise a tribute to the capital. The mayor in addition would send a consignment of goods which the townsmen would have to buy whether they wished the goods or not and at an exhorbitant price. At command they would have to leave their cornfield to the weeds to cut timber in the wood lots, float it down the river, surrender it to the authorities and receive no compensation. In addition, if the farmer should try to resist tyranny by abandoning his farm he would be fined for that.

"British intervention in Kelantan has wiped away most evils of this medieval system, which was far worse in practice than anything Europe ever knew in the blackest centuries of the Dark Ages. Even the native ruler, who is still nominal head of the state, reigns in greater luxury, because he actually gets the taxes he levies although the British adviser has slashed the amount he may levy.

"Kelantan has railroad service with Bangkok and Singapore now. A branch line came in from the north as far as the capital, Kota Bharu. Another finger line stretched toward it from the south. The fingers have joined and Kelantan's prosperity is assured for where the railroad goes in Malay Peninsula rubber goes."

The lighter a man's head is the higher he is able to carry it.

When your child has Croup

IN cases of spasmodic croup or kiddies' colds, the child's suffering and your anxiety will find quick relief through the soothing, healing, medicated vapors of Vicks VapoRub.

When Vicks is rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime it acts in two ways at once:—

(1) It is vaporized by the body heat and inhaled direct to the inflamed air passages and lungs, loosening the phlegm and easing the cough; and

(2) At the same time it warms and stimulates the skin like a poultice, "drawing out" the soreness and pain.

Colds are usually better by morning and croup is often relieved with one application.

Sounds to Control Fires

The use of sound waves as fire extinguishers and a weapon in warfare is called a possibility by Howard Cooley, civilian director for the Chemical Warfare Service in the New England district.

"It is possible in time that the tone wave of every building in a great city would be ascertained and at a central fire station a tuning fork would be set up," Mr. Cooley says. "In case of fire the tuning fork would be vibrated and in a few minutes the fire would be extinguished.

"That sounds extravagant, but many of you will live to see it done."

Experiments, he said, had already been conducted on his own house. The reason why the vibrations would not shake the house into a mass of ruin was that the adjustment would be just enough out of tune.

HOUSE GUTTED BY FIRE OF MYSTERIOUS ORIGIN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 28—An unoccupied one and one-half story wooden cottage with basement, at 81 Willowbrook street, owned by Aaron Peck, of this city, was badly gutted by a fire, of unknown origin shortly before midnight Thursday. The owner, who is 90 years old, could not be reached at the time, but his son, Constable Joseph Peck, stated that the replacement value on the cottage would be about $4,000 and he considered the loss about $3,000. It could not be determined whether the building was covered by insurance.

A double bell alarm from Box 73 at the corner of Main and Ash streets, called out the pumper and hook and ladder truck of Engine Co., No. 1. The Montgomery Hose company, No. 2, truck was also at hand to give assistance. As the firemen arrived the blaze had enveloped the basement and ground floor of the building and a mass of flames licked out from the south side of the structure. The building appeared doomed but quick work by the firemen, who laid two lines of hose and used chemicals, brought the fire under control within 30 minutes. The rear wall and rooms were gutted. The building had not been occupied since last October according to Constable Peck.

Fire Chief Henry J. Kelley said that there was every indication that the fire had started from around the chimney but the strange part is that there was no stove found in the building. It is the opinion of the chief that some one gained entrance to the building earlier in the evening and started a fire in the chimney. Despite zero weather some two hundred people turned out to see the fire.

POLISH ARCHBISHOP IS UNABLE TO COME HERE

Rev. S. A. Ciolek, pastor of St. Joseph's church, at 11 o'clock Thursday evening received a telephone call from Bridgeport to the effect that Archbishop John Cieplak would be unable to come to Norwich today, Friday, as he was called back to New York on account of important business, and from there in a short time he will take passage on a steamer for Poland. Therefore the program, which had been arranged for the coming of the archbishop has been cancelled to the disappointment of the many Polish people, who had planned with much interest and enthusiasm the celebration.

It was planned to have Archbishop Cieplak address the Polish people in St. Joseph church at noon, Friday, after which he was to visit the new school and give a talk to the children. Dinner was to have been served at 1 o'clock and if time permitted, he was to have been shown about the city, call on the mayor, the city officials and other prominent citizens at a public reception in the city hall and then return to New York that afternoon.

When crediting a man with his good intentions it might be well to remember that in order to get them cashed they must be backed by deeds.

BANNER AND CUP PRESENTED TO TELEPHONE DISTRICT AT BANQUET

Telephone people of the New London district, which takes in the eastern end of Connecticut, packed up their troubles in their old kit bags for the evening Thursday and made merry at a banquet given them at the Wauregan hotel by the Southern New England Telephone company in token of the district winning the state championship in the accident prevention campaign for the past year.

Nearly a score of department heads from the New Haven office were here to join in the jubilation and tell the employes of the New London district of their fine spirit of cooperation with the officials of the company in several different lines of endeavor.

Over 225 were at the tables in the banquet hall, when all were seated shortly after 8 o'clock. Prominently displayed were the banner and the magnificent silver cup which were the trophies awarded to the district, the banner of blue silk, lettered in gold, "Accident Prevention Championship, New London District, 1925."

Mayor Milo R. Waters, with Mrs. Waters and Fire Chief Howard L. Stanton were guests of the evening and were seated at the head table with T. G. Fraser, district equipment superintendent in Hartford and New London who was toastmaster and the New London visitors who were the following: H. C. Knight, vice president and general manager; E. L. Simons, general superintendent of plant; R. P. Collins, R. S. Taylor, Robert Hunter, J. M. Kraft, Benjamin Baker, Frank Moore, Edward De Jon, J. D. Veach, H. J. Pond, R. S. Brust, L. S. Day, A. L. Robertson, J. M. Foley, Harry Conway and John Benetto.

Music by the Roamers orchestra, with Edward T. Connelly as the snappy song leader, filled the room with melody while the banquet was served.

Special musical numbers, which were accorded enthusiastic applause were given by Miss Coyle of New London, violin solos; Miss Anna Spicer of Norwich, piano solos; Miss Margaret O'Connell of Norwich, soprano solos; Warren Kane, tenor solos; and St. Mary's trio, consisting of Edward T. Connelly, baritone; Nicholas Spellman, tenor; Horace Corning, bass, who made a big hit.

A letter of congratulation to the district from President James T. Moran was read by Toastmaster Fraser in the early part of the evening and later a 20 year service button was presented to Louis Ely of New London, who began service with the company at Norwich in 1906, went to Willimantic in 1916, then to Stafford Springs and in 1923 to New London.

Mr. Ely accepted it with the hope that he might have twenty more years of service.

Toastmaster Fraser introduced as the first speaker E. L. Simons, general superintendent of plant, who expressed his appreciation of the cordial welcome and commended the Norwich district upon the fine spirit it had shown in the three objectives set by the company, viz: the health campaign, accident prevention and increased production. What had been done, he said had come about through the goodwill and interest shown by all the employes in the district, which had given the New London district first place in accident prevention and increased production and second place in the health campaign.

In the accident prevention the state record had been 35 off-time accidents and 368 lost days last year as compared with 65 accidents and 1,218 lost days the year before. The New London district had shown 1 off time accident and 40 lost days as contrasted with 14 accidents and 555 lost days in the preceding year.

He concluded his remarks by presenting the banner and cup, which were received by three of the council, President Mr. Callender of New London, Frank Stanton of Putnam and John B. Walsh of Norwich.

The banner is retained permanently by the district but the cup is held for a year and can be permanently won by the first district winning it two years in succession.

Mayor Waters spoke briefly but in warm praise of fine record of the Norwich district, which he said was a benefit to the whole community and he commended the courtesy of the employes and told them that they were doing a good job and doing it well in their service to the public.

Vice President Knight was the concluding speaker, endorsing all that Mayor Waters had said, congratulating the district employes and telling them that headquarters can always depend upon the Norwich district to back the company officials to the limit when they purpose to do fine things for the business. The Norwich district, he said, had a way of being either the winner or the runner-up in whatever was started, and he thanked them for the wonderfully fine evening which he had enjoyed.

Dancing closed the programme some time after midnight.

The arrangements which made the evening such a success were in the hands of an efficient local committee consisting of Henry Lord, John R. Walsh, Henry Freeman and Norman Shaffer.

MID-WESTERN STATE MAKES OFFER TO GEO. B. CHANDLER

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 28—(AP)—Summoned by telegram for an emergency meeting here today, 40 members of the board of directors of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce learned that George B. Chandler, executive vice president of the chamber, long a public figure in this state and chairman from Connecticut of the governors' joint committee which organized the New England conference, has been called to a conference with the business leaders of a mid-western industrial state with a view to taking charge of its state chamber of commerce.

Mr. Chandler left for the west late tonight. The state which seeks his services has a population and business activities several times as large as those of Connecticut.

The state chamber directors appointed a committee of five to make every effort to retain Mr. Chandler in Connecticut. They expressed their unanimous endorsement of his accomplishments with the chamber.

At the request of Ernest E. Rogers, of New London, treasurer of the state of Connecticut and president of the state chamber, Mr. Chandler outlined to the directors this afternoon the long list of activities which the state chamber has backed in the last six or eight years.

"We hope to keep Mr. Chandler here in Connecticut," said President Rogers after Mr. Chandler's departure tonight. "Connecticut will suffer a distinct loss if Mr. Chandler who has taken a leading part in so many public and state problems, goes to the middle-west. To my mind the real significance of his departure would be that it offers fresh evidence of the continuous pressure of the powerful competition that New England is today facing from other sections of the country."

A good resolution affords the maker great consolation, even though it lasts only five minutes.

PHYSICIAN GIVES TALK TO NORWICH LIONS' CLUB

With the usual large attendance the weekly meeting of the Norwich Lions' Club was held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel with President William A. Anderson in the chair. The usual club and group song numbers were conducted by Dr. Charles Seamon, song leader for the day. Pete Ethier was at the piano as usual.

George Madden, chairman of the show committee, gave a brief report on the production of That's That, given at the Broadway theatre Tuesday and Wednesday evenings for the benefit of the club's charity fund. Mr. Madden stated that a full report will be made at the meeting next week.

With reference to two members of the cast, President Anderson addressed the club as follows:

The Lions' club are grateful and proud of the great sacrifice made by Mrs. Myles Standish for the benefit of the club's charity fund for which purpose the show was presented. Mrs. Standish was seriously ill for several days and yet against the advice of her physician she played a leading part in the performance Tuesday evening when running a fever of 102, playing her part to perfection. The club feels greatly indebted and appreciative also toward Mrs. Myron Frink Ward who substituted for Mrs. Standish on Wednesday evening. Mrs. Ward had only one day to study her part and yet rendered a perfect and true portrayal of the role which was amazing. Tyler Stanton one of our members also left a sick bed on Wednesday evening to "carry on" with his part in the cast and made good. The highest praise is due every leading character in the musical comedy and the remainder of the cast who gave of their time and talent in putting across the show. The club is also indebted to Matthew Thune who donated the use of men's suits used in the performance. The club is also appreciative of the sincere and efficient work of the director, Billy Hummill, who so untiringly trained the entire cast.

Jean Keiffer called attention to the lecture to be given at the Community House next week under the auspices of the Norwich Radio club. The speaker is to be J. O. Smith of the Radio Corporation of America.

Dr. Gray spoke in an interesting manner on Prevention of Diphtheria in Children, explaining the use of toxin and anti-toxin. He was extended a rising vote of thanks for his talk. President Anderson announced that the meeting next week will be strictly a business meeting and urged a full attendance of members. The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

UNITED CHURCH HEARS REPORTS AND ELECTS

With a large attendance of the membership the annual meeting of the United Congregational church was held Thursday evening at the Community House on Church street. The meeting was preceded by a delicious supper served by the women of the church at 6:15 o'clock. The opening exercises were led by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the church. With Rev. Mr. Abbott as moderator, the church meeting was called to order following the supper. The reading of the records of the previous meetings of the year was followed by a statistical report by the church clerk, Dwight H. Allen. Then followed the reports of the treasury, John H. Gibbs, custodian, report of the Woman's Guild, given by Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, report of the Brotherhood given by the president, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, the church school by Rev. Mr. Abbott, the Community House committee, and the budget committee. All the reports were accepted as given. The reports of the custodian of the trust funds, the report of the church treasurer, and the report of the Community House committee and the budget committee were distributed in pamphlet form.

After one motion with several amendments had been passed and a committee appointed from the floor, the motion was rescinded and a new motion finally adopted whereby a committee of five was appointed to take under consideration the needed repairs and report back at a church meeting to be called by the moderator at a date not later than March 1st. The meeting appointed the same committee that had been named under the motion adopted and rescinded earlier in the meeting. Those on the committee are:

Mr. Van Passen is regarded as an authority on continental political questions. During the war he served in the field and was decorated by the French, British and Belgian governments for bravery. He has made a special study of the Jewish Homeland movement and has written on it extensively. He has come into touch with the leading personalities of the movement and has advocated it not only with the pen but on the platform.

CLAIMS HE WAS THEATENED BY POLICE COMMISSIONER

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 28.—(AP) — A threat to "knock your block off" was shouted by Samuel Dawe, president of the board of police commissioners at Dr. Jacob S. Hagobian, dentist, it was testified before Judge John J. Walsh in the civil court of common pleas this afternoon by Dr. Hagobian.

The occasion was last July and Commissioner Dawe, the dentist said, followed up his words by a threating gesture of a clenched fist and an advance toward him. Dr. Hagobian testified he was so upset by this incident he "lost all ambition to work that day."

The police commissioner and the dentist, neighbors on Mill Hill avenue, have quarrelled about various things. This particular quarrel concerned twenty-seven evergreen trees which formed a hedge between their properties.

Dr. Hagobian construed Commissioner Dawe's alleged action a technical assault and he brought a civil suit asking for $500 damages, alleging in addition that Mr. Dawe had unrightfully dug up trees on his property.

Commissioner Dawe admitted he said to Dr. Hagobian: "I'll knock your block off if you come near me." It was not a threat, he explained, but a warning, and was not meant to carry any hint of physical violence to follow nor was it punctuated by any profanity.

GORMAN COLLAPSES AS HE WINS FINAL EVENT GIVING HIM WORLD SKATING TITLE

ST. JOHN, N. B., Jan. 28—(AP)—Charley Gorman of St. John, outdoor ice skating champion of Canada, collapsed as he flashed across the finish line of the five-mile final event of the world outdoor speed championships at Lily Lake today, but he had won a sensational conquest in the three-day test with 140 points.

Gorman, tied with O'Neil Farrell, young Chicagoan, at the end of yesterday's program, gained his new title by winning both of today's events, at 440 yards and five miles. Farrell made a thrilling bid for the crown in the 440 but fell near the end and his claim of foul failed, although one judge is said to have agreed with him.

There was great disappointment over the showing of Clas Thunberg of Finland, champion of the 1924 Olympics. He gained only ten points, a third place yesterday.

Gorman gained four first places and one second in amassing his points. The two-mile event on opening day was awarded to him after Richard (Duke) Donovan of Endicott, N. Y., had been disqualified for non-appearance in the semi-finals.

Seven men equalled or bettered the showing of Thunberg, Farrell, racing in senior company for the first time, captured second position with 30 points, Eddie Murphy of Chicago had 70, Willie Logan of St. John, 60, Donovan, 40, Leslie Boydt of New York 10, Lew Morris of New York 10 and Thunberg 10.

Lelio Brooks of Toronto placed first in the events for women.

Summaries of today's major events follow:

440 yards—won by Charles Gorman, St. John; second, Eddie Murphy, Chicago; third, Lew Morris, New York. Time 38 2-5 seconds.

Five miles—won by Charles Gorman, St. John; second, Willie Logan, St. John; third, Richard Donovan, Endicott, N. Y. Time 15 minutes, 7 seconds.

One mile (women)—won by Leila Brooks, Toronton; second, Elsie Muller, New York; third, Lois Littlejohn, Chicago. Time 4 minutes 2 3-5 seconds.

Champions in classes other than the seniors are as follows: 18 year old, Thomas Tebo, St. John; 16 year old, C. H. Smythe, Moncton, N. B.; 14 year old, Chester Cole, Sackville, N. B.; 12 year old, John Landry, St. John; 10 year old, Gerald Fowler, Harry Hooper and James Equigg, all of St. John, tied.

LEGION TO BOOST JUNIOR ALL-AMERICAN BALL TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

HARTFORD, Jan. 28—Connecticut, through the state department of The American Legion, will participate in the contests to be held throughout the country to pick a junior all-American baseball championship team. This is the announcement of State Commander Harry C. Jackson of New Britain to the national headquarters of the Legion and committees are already at work throughout the statep reparing for such participation.

It is the plan of the Legion to hold in connection with its national convention at Philadelphia next fall a junior world's series in which sectional championship teams of boys between the ages of 14 and 16 will play for the national title. Teams representing Connecticut and the other New England states, previous to the Philadelphia convention, will play a series to determine sectional representation.

This means that hundreds of baseball games will be placed in this state before the state championship team is picked, for each Legion Post in Connecticut is expected to put at least one league schedules before local Legion team in the running, and in many communities it will be necessary to add off representation can be determined. In this state the Legion has seven districts and it will be the district champions who will compete for state honors.

And so, just as soon as the backlots and the playgrounds are in condition hundreds of boys throughout Connecticut will be practicing, with eyes on that trip to Philadelphia in the fall.

The junior world's series is planned by the Legion as part of its 1926 Americanism program. It is prompted by its desire to bring to the boys of the nation an appreciation of clean sport and it is felt that a nationwide contest in the national game will help greatly in the development of the spirit of wholesome Americanism for which the Legion stands and to the promotion of which the organization is committed. It is expected that Legion Baseball Day parades will be held in several cities of the state in connection with the plan.

The Connecticut plans for junior world's series participation will be directed by the State Legion Americanism committee of which Albert I. Prince of Hartford is chairman.

DUNDEE TO START HIS COMEBACK IN BOUT TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Johnny Dundee, who retired from the prize ring six months ago, starts his comeback campaign tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden in a 10-round match with a rugged and youthful opponent, Joe Glick.

When Dundee starts the ropes it will mark the start of the 16th year for the little Italian boxer who held two world's titles at one time during his picturesque ring career.

Glick, junior lightweight sensation is a two to one favorite among ring experts to beat Dundee. The latter found his long layoff a handicap when he came to condition himself for this battle and he said when he completed his training today that he found the grind more laborious than he ever before experienced.

In the semi-windup, Joe Simonich of Butte, Mont., will face Joe Dundee of Baltimore over the ten round route while in the first ten rounder Ray Miller, Chicago featherweight will box Johnny Drew of New England.

Although Pond "is critically ill," Dr. Hogan expects him "to pull through".

MISS WILLS PLAYS BRILLIANT TENNIS AGAINST TWO FOES

CANNES, France, Jan. 28—(AP)—Two one sided victories marked the progress of Helen Wills, America's woman tennis champion, toward the finals of the Gallia tournament today. Miss Wills defeated Mlle. Rosine Viasto in the morning 6-0, 6-2, and Miss Lily Cadle of England in the afternoon, 6-0, 6-3, thus reaching the quarter final round.

The two matches were as different as day and night. In her morning match against Mlle. Viasto, cousin of Mlle. Didi Viasto, France's second ranking player, the American waltzed through fourteen games apparently without caring whether she won or lost.

In the afternoon, however, she returned to the court, and opened up the most vicious attack against Miss Cadle that she has ever shown in Europe, not barring even her play at Wimbledon or in the 1924 Olympic games.

Miss Cadle is a steady player who in 1923 defeated Mrs. Molla Mallory, the former American champion, at Mentone, 6-0, 6-5, but Miss Wills said this victory had nothing to do with her. The day was cold and raw and the California girl declared she wanted to have it over quickly. Her vicious tennis onslaught against her English opponent was the result.

Miss Wills' play of this afternoon was a revelation to Riviera tennis followers and has considerably increased the hopes of those who believe she has a chance to stop the great Suzanne Lenglen in their expected meeting early next month.

Claude B. Davidson was elected president and secretary-treasurer, and a committee on organization and by-laws was formed, consisting of Fred Doe of Portland, William McDonough of Lawrence and Jean Dubuc of Manchester. This committee will select the two remaining clubs, probably within a week.

WESTERLY AND BALTIC FIVE IN CLASH THIS EVENING

The Baltic Five and the Westerly five clash in the second encounter of the season tonight at Baltic. This game will be one of the hardest fought of the season as the Westerly team is anxious to make up for a defeat suffered earlier in the year. Baltic has been going good during the season with the exception of two games earlier in the month but now they have struck their winning stride and it will take a good team to hand them a defeat.

RESIN MAY BE SECRET OF CICOTTE'S SAILOR BALL

CHICAGO, Jan. 28—(AP)—What is believed to have been the secret of Pitcher Eddie Cicotte's famous "sailor" ball while a member of the Chicago White Sox, was revealed today in a demonstration of the use of resin on a new baseball by Umpire George Moriarty of the American league. Instructed by President Johnson to experiment with the use of resin, Moriarty found that he was able to imitate the famous "sailor" and made the ball do almost everything he desired. Cicotte, when barred from organized baseball after the "black sox" scandal, took the secret of his "sailor ball with him."

Moriarty said after the demonstration that the use of resin will enable many pitchers who are on the verge of stepping out of the major leagues to regain their effectiveness and in some cases send them on their way to more effectiveness than they possessed in their heyday.

He submitted a report to his chief along with exhibits which include a number of baseballs, a small bag of resin and a glove. These have been forwarded by President Johnson to the members of the American league committee, which meets with a similar committee of the National league in New York next month.

While the National league approves the use of resin, President Johnson had the experiments conducted for the benefit of owners in his circuit, should they desire to take any action for or against the use of resin.

CENTRAL CONN. HIGH SCHOOL LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED

MERIDEN, Jan. 28—(AP)—The Central Connecticut interscholastic league, embracing the Meriden, South Manchester, East Hartford, West Hartford, Bristol and Middletown high schools, was formally organized with an election of officers for the year at a meeting here tonight.

The officers follow:

President, C. B. Quinby, principal of South Manchester high school; vice president, R. W. Harriman, principal of West Hartford high school; secretary, F. W. Shearer, principal of Middletown high school; treasurer, W. Gregory Coffin, athletic director of Meriden high school.

The league, which will govern the four major scholastic sports, football, basketball, baseball and track, will be set in motion officially with the baseball season.

CONN.-MASS. AGGIES GAME AT NEW MANCHESTER ARMORY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Conn., Jan. 28—The Connecticut Aggie-Massachusetts Aggies basketball game, originally scheduled to be played at Hartford Feb. 22, will be played instead at Manchester, according to the announcement here today of Coach Sumner A. Dole of Connecticut. Inability to secure a suitable playing surface in Hartford was given as the reason for the change. Manchester's new armory will be the scene of the game, which is expected to draw a record crowd.

Factors in the sensational Chrysler "70" performance which have revolutionized automobile design and manufacture, include—

70 miles and more, per hour.
5 to 25 miles in 6¼ seconds.
20 miles to the gallon of fuel.
68 horse-power.
Air-Cleaner.
Oil-Filter.
Radiometer.
Thermostatic heat control
Fumer for cold weather starting.
Manifold heat control.
Pivotal steering.

Hydraulic four-wheel brakes.
Watson Stabilators—front and rear.
Wide range of striking colors.

Chrysler "70" alone combines all these and scores of other attributes joined to a superiority of design and fineness of quality and workmanship, heretofore thought possible only in cars of twice the Chrysler price.

Discriminating men and women are refusing to accept less than Chrysler gives.

This extraordinary demand for Chrysler quality and value accounts for the ever-increasing production of the Chrysler "70"—a production which has steadily outgrown expanding factory capacity, and has established for the Chrysler "70" new popularity records for the industry.

We are eager to demonstrate each of these outstanding qualities to you.

DANIELSON TOWN TEAM TAKES CLOSE GAME FROM THE BALTIC FIVE, 32 TO 28

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 28—A margin of four points gave the Danielson town team a victory over the Baltic team here tonight, 32-28 in the second game of the series between these two clubs. Tonight's victory evened up the count between the teams, Baltic having won the first game played at Baltic last week.

Tonight's game was fast and hard and at no time during the game was it possible to choose the winner. Both teams played brilliant basketball but there were two stars, one on each team, Rabbit Gauthier starred for Baltic playing a fast and brilliant forward game and was ever a threat to the local team. He succeeded in caging 7 baskets and one foul shot for a total of 15 points. Sharing the individual honors with Gauthier was Blakeley of the town team who also played a smashing game at forward and he fell short by one basket of equalling Gauthier's score.

The summary:

PURPLE COLLEGIATES MEET PLAINFIELD TEAM TONIGHT

Another whirlwind battle is promised the basketball fans of eastern Connecticut when the Purple Collegians of Worcester meet the Plainfield Town team at the Plainfield Community house this evening. The Worcester team is composed mostly of former Holy Cross players who have at one time or another, been seen on the Plainfield floor with different teams. Several of the players were seen here with the Steam Rollers last week in what proved to be the fastest game ever witnessed on the home floor, a five-minute overtime period being required to decide the contest.

The Collegians will present a stronger aggregation than that which represented Jewett City last week. The team will be materially strengthened with the addition of "Hop" Riopel, Holy Cross basketball and football star, and possibly one other ex-Holy Cross star. "Hop" played two games for the Plainfield team two years ago against the Boston Whirlwinds. The Collegians will put the following players on the floor; Bruneau, Allen, Garvey, Riopel and Golembeski.

The Plainfield fans no doubt will be pleased to welcome the return of Capt. Bissell to the lineup of the home team. Capt. will alternate with Benson and Madden in the guard position. Plainfield will use its regular lineup which includes Normandin, Desslinger, Norris, Benson, Madden and Bissell.

FARRELL WINS CENTRAL FLORIDA GOLF TOURNEY

SANFORD, Fla., Jan. 28—(AP)—Johnny Farrell of Tampa, today won the central Florida 72 hole medal play golf championship, defeating Walter Hagen, Pasadena, by one stroke. Farrell turned in a score of 285 and Hagen 286, while Compston, British star, was third with 288.

Compston set a course record of 67 here today. Par is 70.

Eddie Loos, of Lakeland, also broke the former record of 69 sets yesterday by Massey, Hagen and Diegel, making the 18 in a 68.

Both Farrell and Hagen played excellent golf in the afternoon round, each sinking a number of long putts as features.

NAVY BILL INGRAM TO BE FIELD COACH AT ANNAPOLIS

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 28—(AP)—William A. (Navy Bill) Ingram, former star of middie football elevens, has been appointed field coach of the naval academy football team, authorities at the school announced today. Ingram resigned recently as coach of the University of Indiana eleven.

Formal announcement was also made of the appointment of Commander Jonas H. Ingram, an older brother of "Navy Bill" and himself a former navy gridiron star, as athletic director of the academy to replace Commander Byron L. McCandless, who has been assigned to sea duty. Commander Douglas L. Howard was named to replace Lieut. Commander Frank Silnliuff as football representative.

It is believed at the academy that Commander Ingram will himself take active charge of the football squad as head coach with "Navy Bill" acting as his assistant. The younger brother is expected here in a few days to prepare for spring practice while Commander Ingram will assume his new duties in June.

Jack Owsley, former Yale star, served as head coach of the middie team last season.

DEMPSEY OFFERED $600,000 TO MEET WILLS IN NEW YORK

HAVANA, Jan. 28—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, arriving here today with his wife, received an offer of $600,000 for a bout with Harry Wills in New York next September. The proposition is said to have been made by an emissary of Tom O'Rourke promoter.

The heavyweight champion said that he could not accept as his contract with Floyd Fitzsimmons of Michigan City, Ind., is still in force. He will engage in an exhibition match with sparring partners here Sunday night.

Challenge

The "Aces" of New London would like to challenge any club, school or church team in or around Norwich to a basketball game to be played in Norwich. This team has won three consecutive games out of three starts and should be able to put up a good battle to any team of same size.

The average weight is 138 lbs., and ages run from 17 to 19 years.

They play "Amateur" rules, and would glady engage in a preliminary game with any fast team.

For games write to Dick Lynch, 33 Williams street, New London or tel. 3092-4.

An end is to be put to this state of things by a proposed authors' protection bill.

What is regarded as one of the most singular works of art in existence is now in possession of a Berlin (Germany) dealer. It is a painting 6x4 inches, executed on a spider web and preserved by being clamped between two plates of glass, so one can examine it on both sides. The scene depicted is that of a happy family sitting together.

Test for Pearls

A new process for distinguishing between natural and cultured pearls was described before the French Academy recently.

The method, very simple and inexpensive, requires the inserting of a miniature tube in the hole bored in the pearl for beading purposes. Within the tube are two little mirrors very close together, at right angles to each other and at an angle of 45 degrees with the sides of the tube.

When a light is thrown into the tube on the first mirror it is reflected on the second mirror if the pearl is composed of concentric layers, as is the case with all natural pearls. If the core of the pearl is not composed of concentric spheres, the ray of light instead of striking the second mirror shines through the substance of which the cultivated pearl is made and appears as a tiny spot of light on the surface.

WESTERLY

FIRE DEPARTMENT HAD TWO CALLS WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 28—The Pawcatuck Fire department responded to two fire alarms on Thursday morning, the first being about 7 o'clock in the morning when the whistle alarm was sounded from Box No. 41, Clarkville, for a bad chimney fire in the house occupied by George W. Holland, 50 Pawcatuck avenue, Clarkville.

A gale of almost hurricane strength was blowing, and although Mr. Holland at work at the time at the mill of the American Thread company declared that stove drafts had been left closed, the big chimney at the last house on that side of the avenue in the village was on fire from top to bottom. Pawcatuck Fire Engineer Pierce Morrison with the truck of the F. E. Barber Hose company and force of firemen were soon on the scene. The small hose from the booster tank was taken up the roof and the end thrown over the chimney edge. The entire contents of the 40-gallon chemical tank was poured into the chimney. So hot had the chimney become that the end of the hose was scorched when the pipe lay on the top brick of the chimney. The recall sounded an hour after the alarm had been rung in.

The second alarm came about 10:30 o'clock from Box No. 62, Liberty street and Stillman avenue and was also for a chimney fire, this time being a slight one at the house of Chickery Mousey, Farley avenue. Some of the chemical was used from the booster tank of the P. S. Barber truck, which had been reloaded after the first fire. Blight damage or loss was occasioned by either blaze.

Westerly experienced "quite a spell of weather" in the early morning hours on Thursday. About 3 o'clock there was a heavy flurry of snow, followed by almost cyclonic wind blasts, which diminished but little during the remainder of the day. A large plate glass window six feet by eight feet, in the second store of the Barrows block, over the newstore of Arthur N. Nash was blown out by the wind and fell to the sidewalk with a loud crash, just missing Charles F. Prior, who stood on the curb stone just beyond. A similar large plate glass window on the second floor of the same store was blown out several months ago. Fruit displayed on an outside stand was whisked down the street where an alert restaurant proprietor gathered up the "windfall" apples to convert them into pies before they were ground up by passing autos.

Report was common in Westerly Thursday that a side of the Atlantic Beach casino had blown in. A visit to the beaches showed that although rough weather seems to be used as far as the eye could reach, yet the surf was not high nor was the tide such as to cause the beach cottages to be inundated. No damage was discovered at the casino, except that of a week ago when the large glass windows near the 3rd base dream room were blown in and had been boarded up. Paper shingles from roofs of cottages had blown off, as well as canopy tops of wood and screened lattice and trellis work.

The bridge team in the inter-guild bridge whist tournament of the Westerly Masonic club, No. 178, captained by Caleb Mudge were the guests of their defeated adversaries, under the leadership of George E. Broughton, on Thursday evening. A roast turkey dinner was served in the Arcadia banquet room of the commandery in the Masonic rooms on High street at 6 o'clock. Some fifty card "sharks" enjoyed the following menu, served by the club chef, Henry A. Stubler:

Fault Cocktail
Chicken Soup
Roast Turkey and Dressing
Creamed Onions Mashed Potatoes
Mashed Turnips Pickles and Olives
Celery Squash Pie
Mince Pie
Ice Cream
Coffee

Following the dinner adjournment was taken to the club rooms where cards were enjoyed.

Officials of the Westerly Automatic Telephone company and representatives of Wray & Co. of Chicago, telephone company investigators, held a conference Wednesday afternoon at the telephone company's offices on Main street. By vote of the former and present town councils of Westerly, Westerly Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., has been directed to investigate local telephone rates, tolls and tariffs, following representations made by the former Westerly town council to the Rhode Island State Board of Public Utilities in Providence. Questions have been asked by the investigating company and the conference followed. Among those present at the conference were Fred W. Story of Boston and Dr. John Champlin of Westerly, members of the executive committee of the Westerly Automatic Telephone company and Attorney Grant of the New England Telephone company and Messrs. Cumming and Haines, the latter an attorney, representing Wray and Co., of Chicago.

Reports of officers and committees of the previous year will be heard and followed by the election of officers for the ensuing year. Previous to the meeting a dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock.

A number of Westerly Scottish Rite Masons were in Providence Tuesday evening when they attended the meetings of the bodies of Ancient Accepted Scottish Rites of the Valley of Providence held in Freemason's hall on Dorrance street. The degree was worked under direction of Ill. Victor H. Frazier, past thrice potent master. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Harry B. Kane of Narragansett and New York was a visitor in Westerly Wednesday.

Charles Morrison and family of Bradford left Thursday for Dallas, Texas, where Mr. Morrison is to be in the employ of the Great Atlantic and Pacific stores.

OAKS INN TAVERN LICENSE IS REVOKED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 28—A budget meeting of the Westerly town council was held in the council chambers of the Westerntown hall on Thursday evening, following the action attended by all the council members, and was called to order by Council President John D. Nichols, at 7:30 o'clock. During the voting list was canvassed. The additions about equalled the number of names taken off by reason of deaths, transfers and removals.

Meeting with the council, following the preliminary budget meeting of the council held Friday evening several weeks ago, were the heads of the various town departments, who had submitted their respective estimates of expenditures and probable needs for the year to come. These combined figures will be presented to the annual financial Westerly town meeting to be held in the Westerly town hall.

It was after 10:30 o'clock when Councilman Isaac G. Smith, stating that the available income estimated as compared with the previous year, 1925, showed $385,000, to which could be added $20,000, by doing away with the 5 per cent tax discounts, making a total income of $405,000, against which the budget figures of estimates for 1926 totaled $415,000. Continuing, he said, an extra $10,000 for the expenditures would be looked for by the council from the tax assessors. Speaking for the assessors Walter C. Hiscox said that the previous record in years past had shown that the assessors could raise increased amounts when required. Assessor Hiscox asked for the co-operation and help of the councilmen and town people instead of criticism and he thought a way could be found. On motion of Mr. Smith it was voted that the following estimates of budget figures be recommended to the financial town meeting subject to readjustment and reclassification as the council might determine: Highways, $120,000; schools, $145,000; evening schools, $500; new schools, no amount this year; police, $17,000; town hall, $6,000; town officers, $14,500; street lights, $15,000; printing and advertising, $2,500; public shade trees, $250; support of poor, $7,000; poor in hospitals, $400; interests, $32,000; state tax, $25,000; assessors plats, no amount this year; miscellaneous, $7,250; town advertising, $100; payment of bonds, $20,000, town planning, and mothers aid, no amount this year, making the total budget, $415,000.

On motion of Councilman Colman it was voted that the town council recommend to the financial town meeting of Feb. 2nd that no provision be made for a reduction in the taxes assessed. This does away with the discount of five per cent granted in previous years.

He also moved and it was voted that the tavern license granted to Thomas Gotis for the Oaks inn, raided some time ago when liquor was seized, be revoked. The council adourned about 11 o'clock.

The request for funds to carry on highway work in the town of Westerly for the coming year, was made as follows:

1926 budget work contemplated. Ocean View highway, extend to completion at Clarks Cor. penetration method, $6,500; Pleasant street, hot mix top from High street, to Mariott avenue, $5,463; Pond street, curbing and grading, $8,055; John street, complete with hot mix to Granite street, $14,169; Everett avenue, complete—penetration method, $5,175; Weekapaug causeway, widen and fence, $2,000.

New projects. Main street, heavy duty road from Broad street to School street, $35,000; Wells street, complete—penetration—Beach street to hospital, $12,000.

Maintenance. Resurfacing, oiling, cold patching, cleaning gutters, catch basins and drains. Auto equipment, salaries, sidewalks and incidentals thereto, $45,000. Total $184,362.

(Note—Streets to be resurfaced include Railroad avenue, Dixon, West, High streets. Narragansett avenue, Spruce, Summer, Granite streets, Park avenue, Newto navenue, Cross and Beach streets, Atlantic avenue, Pleasant View.)

The final figure asked by the highway commissioners was $135,000.

This budget estimate by the highway commission was the only figure which the council fathers slashed, the final action leaving the final figure at $120,000. The highway commissioners said that to stand this cut the Main street project would have to be materially abbreviated or else some of the other streets needing attention, by reason of sewerage installation, would have to continue in its present poor condition.

COLD WAVE PREVAILS OVER MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Borne on the wings of a forty mile gale from Canada, sub-zero weather settled over the middle west last night, remained today and gave indications of staying for a while longer.

While the middle west shivered, simultantaneous storms off both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts endangered shipping and delayed fast Atlantic liners.

The cold wave this time was not as general as some of the previous sub-zero blasts that have swept out of the northwest. It hit Minnesota, where 24 degrees below zero was reported, swept across Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana, but did not extend as far south as other cold spells this year.

It was also expected to be a short-lived cold snap as warmer weather and snow was promised for tomorrow.

THREE MEN HELD FOR ABUSE OF MINOR FEMALE

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 28—(AP)—The three men arrested Wednesday afternoon at the railroad station by Detective Sergeant Arnolsky and Railroad Officer Nadel and held on serious charges in connection with the abuse of a minor female, all appeared in the city court this morning. Their cases were continued under heavy bonds until February 4.

The three men held are Paul Larue, 28, a waiter of 165 East 27th street, New York; Peter Khachadrian, 38, proprietor of a rooming house at 639 Water street, and Michael Tanelan, 45, proprietor of a rooming house at 621 Water street.

Larue is at present held under bonds of $2,500 on a charge of breach of the peace and held for investigation, but if is expected that the charge will be changed to a more serious one when he appears in court again. Khachadrian is held under bonds of $2,000 on a charge of abuse of a minor female and his companion is held of a similar charge under bonds of $1,000.

The trio were arrested after a telephone tip had been received by the police from a local restaurant where they were dining. The "tipster" followed the party to the railroad station where Sergeant Arnolsky and the railroad officer made the arrests. Larue had already purchased tickets for himself and the girl to New York. When the girl was questioned at the depot she broke down and confessed relations with many men at the instigation of Larue.

The girl is but 16 years old and lives in New York city. The police claim that Larue not only brought her to Connecticut, for immoral purposes, but also had her in Providence.

TO CLARIFY THE COAL PROBLEM IN BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Representatives of the leading coal companies conferred today with the Chamber of Commerce fuel committee in an endeavor to clarify the coal situation and cooperate as much as possible in seeing that consumers are supplied and protected as the strike period lengthens into its twenty-second week. One of the outstanding decisions of the joint meeting was the revision of the committee to include members of the Retail Dealers' association and the extending of an invitation to the Manufacturers' association to provide representation. It was also decided that beginning tomorrow the Chamber of Commerce station at 105 State street for the demonstration of anthracite substitutes will demonstrate the use of run of mine coal, which sells between $8 and $11 a ton, instead of the sized semi-bituminous, low volatile West Virginia coal which has been demonstrated to over 3,000 consumers visiting the station.

STORY OF THE MARITAL TROUBLES OF THE BOURNES

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Arthur K. Bourne, Jr., grandson of the late Commodore Frederick G. Bourne, who is head of the Singer Sewing Machine company amassed a $40,000,000 fortune, testified today in his wife's suit for a separation in supreme court that since October, 1925 he has earned only $40.44 as an insurance agent. His wife has been receiving $50 a week temporary alimony.

Mrs. Bourne, the daughter of a Long Island contractor, with whom Bourne eloped in September, 1922, when each was $19 years old, testified she had refused her husband's suggestion that she get a Reno divorce because of religious scruples. She is a Catholic.

"Do you still love your husband?" Justice Tierney, presiding, asked.

"Yes, I do," Mrs. Bourne testified. "I have pleaded with him but he says he is through with me and was tired of being married. He just wanted to run around and have a good time."

Her counsel later produced evidence purporting to show that Bourne had lived with another woman under an assumed name in a New York apartment from October, 1925, until last Thursday and that at another time since his marriage he lived with a woman, not his wife, in an apartment at Hollywood, Cal.

Mrs. Bourne's alleged non-support and abandonment.

The last time she saw her husband, Mrs. Bourne testified, was in September when he threw a nickel on the floor and said, "there is your alimony." On cross examination she denied pointing a pistol at her husband and saying, "I'll kill you."

Her mother-in-law, Mrs. L. Emily Bourne, testified that her son's wife was very extravagant. Justice Tierney interposed the remark that all women were extravagant and adjourned the trial until next Wednesday.

Under the will of the late Commodore Bourne, his grandson is heir to one-third of a trust fund of $1,775,000 which he will get upon the death of his father, in addition to whatever part of the original $40,000,000 his father leaves him. Arthur K. Bourne, Sr., received a large portion of the original estate.

Acids in Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, sicating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals and no more fear of indigestion.

Puts New Life Into the Fast Dying Roots and Nourishes Them

Don't Wait Until the Hair Root is Dead for Then Nothing Can Prevent Baldness

If your hair is falling out, prematurely grey, brittle, lifeless, full of dandruff and your head itches like mad, quick action must be taken to save it. WEATHER SIGNS

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Talking about the weather—

"But who's talking about the weather" you break in. Well, you are a good deal more of the time than you'd think. You would discover it, too, if some one should "keep tab" on you for a week and dock you two bits for every meteorological wise-crack you get off during that time!

We're all of us talking about the weather, pretty near all the time. We begin the day with a "Good morning," and end it with a "Good night," both phrases of weather application. "We begin even our business conversations with a "Fine day, isn't it?" or a "D'ja ever see such weather?" If it's cloudy we ask every one whether he thinks it will rain or clear up. If it's October we demand information from anybody and everybody whether it's going to be a hard or an open winter. Indeed, I don't know what a great many folks could find to make conversation about if it wasn't for the weather. It takes precedence as a general subject of even such things as Uncle John's corns or Grandpa Ebenezer's rheumatism.

Considering all which no one needs make any excuse for talking or writing about it. As well make excuses for planting when it's hot or swatting a fly in fly-time.

Also considering how rarely most men use the reason which God gave them in their daily affairs, it isn't to be wondered at that most of the things we think we know about the weather are like the ones which Josh Billings had in mind when he averred that it was better not to know very much than to "know" a lot that wasn't true.

Every state, every town, I had almost said every family has its "weather-prophet," to whom appeal is made daily for information as to what the weather is to be. The children want to know if it will rain enough to break up the picnic; the boss farmer wants to know if it will be a good drying hay-day; the kitchen-gardener wants to know if there's going to be a tomato-killing frost; and so on and on and on.

Usually the self-elected weather-prophet hems and haws long enough to keep up the excitement, and then issues his prediction. It may be based on the way the clouds look, or on the extent to which the old rooster's tail-feather droops, or on the chirp of a cricket, or on the behavior of the robins, or on the spots of a goose-bone, or on the shape of the new moon. In any case the prediction turns out either wrong or right. If wrong: "Oh, well, the best of us miss sometimes;" if right, "I told ye so. I told ye so; if ye'd only listened to me ye wouldn't have got wet!"

If only we could really know for a certainty the night before what the weather will be tomorrow; or even if we could be sure in the morning what it will be all day, we assuredly could plan much more intelligently and efficiently. But knowing is very different from guessing or even supposing.

Are there really any "signs" which mean something, which are more than guess-work based on superstition and fortified only by chance coincidence? I've just been reading with much interest and some profit a little book by Prof. Brooks of Clark university in which he sets forth in plain language that any layman can understand what we actually know about the weather, what makes it, how it comes, why it changes, and what indications usually precede any change in it. It is based not only on his own work as secretary of the American Meteorological Society and former meteorologist, U. S. weather bureau, but also on the observations and records of thousands of trained observers all over the world for a long series of years.

Prof. Brooks has small patience with a good many so-called "weather signs," which are the spawn of ignorance or superstition or chance coincidence, or all three. This includes all the moon signs, from that of the "wet" or "dry" moon according as its horns tip up or down, through that which credits a "change" in the moon with producing a change in the weather, to the less common superstition that it will rain if you can see the new moon in the old moon's arms. All these are because of astronomical reasons, having absolutely nothing whatever to do with weather conditions. They are all as sheer nonsense as the kindred belief that the dog star causes "dog days." Most of these superstitions were born in the days when astrology was regarded with awe and intelligent astronomy had not even been born. Prof. Brooks likewise finds no basis whatever for the idea that a "coppery" sun prophesies stormy weather. The coppery tinge is really due to smoke in the air which smoke is usually from forest fires, which fires are the accompaniments of droughts. And of course he dismisses the St. Swithin's "forthy days of rain" as unworthy of a single thought.

But there are some real weather signs, apparent even to the unscientific and unschooled, which recorded observations prove to have actual prognosticating value. Among these, as preserved in more or less doggerel rhymes, he notes the famous old one:

"Evening red and morning gray
Sent the traveler on his way;
Evening gray and morning red
Bring down rain upon his head."

Another, almost equally popular and equally correct is the couplet:

"Rainbow in the morning, sailors take warning;
Rainbow at night, sailor's delight."

Other rhymes which contain useful intimations of weather probabilities are summarized in Dr. Jenner's famous compilation:

"Last night the sun went pale to bed,
The moon in halos hid her head;
The boding shepherd heaves a sigh
For see! a rainbow spans the sky;
Hark how the chairs and tables crack;
Old Betty's joints are on the rack;
Her corns with shooting pains torment her
And to her bed unlikely send her;
Loud quacks the ducks, the peacocks cry,
The distant hills are looking nigh.
The busy flies disturb the kine,
And restless are the snorting swine;
Low o'er the grass the swallow wings;
The cricket, too, how sharp he sings!
In dery red the sun doth rise
Then wades through clouds to mount the skies.
'Twill surely rain.—I see with sorrow
Our jaunt must be put off tomorrow."

Practically all these rude rhymes or jingles have sound reasons behind them, reasons easily discovered and strictly in accordance with the known workings of natural law. Moreover, most of them have been demonstrated true by long-continued observations and trustworthy records, which set down failures as indiscriminately as successes. Their jingly form makes them easier to remember.

I'd suggest, if you want to work up a local reputation as a weather prophet, that you cut 'em out and paste 'em in your hat. So long as you confine your weather predictions to them, you'll be apt to score more hits than misses.

Prof. Brooks dismisses, as unworthy of a moment's thought, the too popular idea that fall and winter weather may be predicted from the flight of wild geese, the amount of fur and feathers on outdoor animals and birds, and the ancient belief that squirrels, etc., store up more food when the winter is going to be hard and long. He says:

"Such portents as an indication of forecasting ability in animals have been wholly discredited by scientific investigation and by the observations of intelligent people generally. Neither animals nor birds possess any instinct which foretells the weather of a season yet to come."

Wild geese fly south either because they are in search of better pasturage or because their young have got strong enough for the flight or because there is an overpopulation, just then, of their feeding-grounds. Patridges have thicker feathers and chipmunks closer fur when they've had better than ordinary rations during the summer. Squirrels lay up bigger stores of nuts when it is a good nut year and the things are plentiful. All of these utterly regardless of what may happen the coming winter. In truth, it often happens that one hunter, killing a partridge which has found good grubbing all summer and is, consequently, full-feathered, will confidently announce a cold winter, while another, on the same day, killing one which has lived in poorer luck and, consequently, has thinner feathering, will just as confidently predict an open winter.

But there are a few autumn signs which have reason behind them and are, therefore, fairly trustworthy. "Sun-dogs" and "rings-around-the-sun" are among these. Such phenomena are caused by the fine ice particles of lofty cirrus clouds. And the coming of such clouds usually precedes a storm. Same with the ring around the moon. When only the big stars show and they seem to shine with a milky sort of light, look out for precipitation of some sort. Again the cirrus cloud is the cause. It has hidden the lesser stars but isn't yet thick enough to shut out the brighter ones. Don't worry; it'll keep on growing thicker.

"Rain before seven, clear before eleven," is another rhyme which carries some degree of truth. Not that the hours of seven and eleven have any magic effect on the weather. But most storms last only a few hours anyway, and, if it is raining before seven the chances are at least even that it will stop raining in four or five hours. In the case of a really big storm with a front and a depth of a thousand miles or so, the proverb doesn't work. When a genuine northeaster sets in, it isn't apt to stop for two or three days, whether it began before seven or not.

Of one think we may be reasonably sure in this world of natural law and order: whatever happens has a cause to make it happen.

There's some cause, somewhere, for a three days' northeaster, and there's some cause, somewhere, for a July thunder-storm. Otherwise, there wouldn't be either northeaster or thunder-storm.

Storms gather and break and pass rather quickly. It is seldom that one requires more than a week from its inception to the north and west of Medicine Hat to its dispersal off Newfoundland. Most storms are even shorter in duration. There is, therefore, no sound basis for assuming that anybody can ever predict the weather for more than about a week in advance. But all storms, however lasting or transitory, require some appreciable time to gather and take some appreciable time in coming. They grow, and grow slowly enough to be studied. Moreover, they all have fringes of some sort around their centers of precipitation or gale. Those fringes precede as well as follow them. The only real chance for a local weather-prophet to do really useful work is for him to know and recognize these approaching fringes. When he sees them coming, head on, he is justified in forecasting a storm. Even then, some unexpected twist in the upper air may deflect the storm center to his right or left, and thus disappoint him. But such a thing won't happen anywhere near as often as it fails to happen.

A weather sign which hasn't a valid reason behind it, or which is opposed to plain reason, or which misses as often as it hits the mark, isn't a thing to place dependence up. It is just a guess. And, when it comes to guessing, a fool is often as lucky as a philosopher.

THE UNATTAINABLE

The things we want and cannot get
An added value gain.
We have a special yearning for
The joys we can't attain.
We envy those more fortunate,
While they, contemptuous,
May set small store by what they have,
And maybe envy us.

How much more sensible 'twould be
If we'd refuse to let Ourselves unwisely pine and yearn
For what we cannot get;
And, vowing not to be henceforth
Dejected and forlorn,
Would spurn the things we cannot get.
And look on them with scorn!

COLD WAVE CHECKS STORRS EGG LAYING

The upward trend in egg production at Storrs was checked during the twelfth week by the cold wave that spread over the country, resulting in a decrease of thirty-six eggs as compared with the lay for the eleventh week. A total of 4,474 eggs, or almost forty-six percent., was the production for the week. Although this is a three dozen egg decrease over last week's lay, it represents a gain of 1,103 eggs when compared with the production for the corresponding week a year ago. A grand total of 43,329 eggs have been laid to date by the 1,400 contest pullets.

A New Jersey pen of White Leghorns entered by The Kerr Chickeries, from Frenchtown, heads the honor roll for the week with a lay of fifty-eight eggs. Another pen of White Leghorns, entered by Dudley Poultry Farm, from Webster, Mass., and a pen of Rhode Island Reds, entered by George B. Treadwell, from Spencer, Mass., tied for second place with a production of fifty-three eggs each. The Winlay White Wyandottes, from Mystic, Conn., took third place on this week's honor roll. Two pens of White Leghorns tied for fourth place, each with a lay of forty-eight eggs. They are the entries of Hanson's Leghorn Farm from Corville, Ore., and Amakassin Farm, from Yongers, N. Y.

The most important change of the week among the leading pens took place when the Dudley Poultry Farm went up into first position in their class, displacing the entry of Mount Hope Farm. The Mount Hope birds have led in the Leghorn class ever since the second week of the competition, and from the second through the eighth weeks they led the entire contest. Another change of importance took place when the White Wyandottes entered by The Locusts, from West Cornwall, Conn., went up into third place in the class, changing positions with the entry of R. W. Colman, from Medina, N. Y. John Z. LaBelle's Rhode Island Reds from Ballouville, Conn., continue to lead the way in the matter of high production to date with a record of 603 eggs.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

The meeting is to be held on Wednesday, February 3, at 2.30 p. m. The superintendent of the sanatorium will present the tuberculosis problem from its institutional phase, and this will be followed by a discussion of tuberculosis care as met by the nurse in the field.

Opportunity will be given to make a tour of the sanatorium.

New England Shippers Advisory Board

Several hundred New England manufacturers and business men will attend the second regular meeting of the New England Shippers Advisory board to be held at the Congress Square Hotel, Portland, Maine, on Friday and Saturday (January 29-30). Governor Ralph O. Brewster of Maine, will attend Friday. Officers of the American Railway association from Boston and Washington will be present together with representatives of all New England railroads.

DIOCESAN BUREAU OF S. S. TO NOTE TENTH ANNIVERSARY

The diocesan bureau of social service is to observe its tenth anniversary—with a dinner at the Hartford club in February. Rt. Rev. John J. Nilan, bishop of Hartford and president of the organization, will preside. The principal speaker will be Rev. Dr. Robert F. Keegan, secretary of the Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of New York. Rev. Matthew J. Judge, director of the bureau, will be toastmaster. The musical program will be under the direction of Daniel Nolan.

The Diocesan Bureau of Social Service was organized in May 1920 with headquarters in Hartford. Its purpose is to coordinate and systematize the work of all Catholic charities throughout the diocese, to study social conditions and to develop new activities to meet social needs as they may arise.

The work was divided into three departments: family welfare, child welfare and group activities. The two bureaus in Bridgeport and New Haven became branches of the central office in Hartford in June, 1921, a branch was opened in Waterbury and at the same time a New London county office was opened at New London. The Norwich office is at 120 Main street.

In general families, requiring material relief over a long period are referred to the public charities, though in many cases the bureau is called upon to give supplementary aid and supervisory care in regard to migratory families. The policy of the bureau is to encourage them to return to the communities in which they have legal settlement.

The diocesan bureau has cooperated with the state department of child welfare, referring to the state bureau all available foster homes for which the diocesan bureau has no children.

Because of the need for intelligent lay participation in the bureau's work, the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women was organized in November, 1920, to serve as a volunteer corps to the bureau. There are forty of these councils, with 14,000 members.

In June, 1923, Lakeville Manor, the vacation house for Catholic women and girls with accommodations for sixty-five guests, was opened. In 1924 the council established a scholarship fund to be used for the training of social workers.

Health Education Via Radio

All towns in the state are being reached through the broadcasting programme of WTIC. This is a splendid opportunity to bring health subjects to the very door of the citizens that they may be kept informed on the latest methods of disease prevention and health promotion.

The health programme being broadcast by the staff of the state department of health will continue weekly. This is made possible through the courtesy of the department of medicine and hygiene of the Travelers Insurance company of Hartford.

During February such subjects as safe water, nutrition, dental hygiene and tuberculosis will be broadcast. These are given each Friday morning at 11 a. m.

NAVAL RESERVE CRUISES FOR SUMMER OF 1926

The Navy Recruiting officer at 952 Chapel street, New Haven, is in receipt of the schedule of summer cruises for the Naval reserve units of the state of Connecticut for the months of July and August, 1926.

Since each reserve division is being trained to man a destroyer in event of mobilization, the summer cruises will be made in active destroyers of the Scouting fleet. The New Haven division Lieutenant E. L. Best, commanding, will embark on the U. S. S. Bainbridge, at New Haven, and will cruise during the period of July 28 to August 6 in New England waters. The Hartford division will cruise on the U. S. S. Lawrence from August 12 to August 28, and the Bridgeport division, under the command of Lieutenant C. L. Leopard, will go to sea on the U. S. S. Hopkins for the same period. The Hartford division will embark at New Haven and the Bridgeport division at their home city.

Officers and men will stand watches and carry out the duties of their respective ranks and ratings under the supervision of regular Navy personnel. Officers will be assigned duties as assistants to the permanent ship's officers. Reserve divisions will be formed and trained in gun crews. Near the end of each cruise a modified target practice will be fired in order to qualify gun pointers and gun captains for the succeeding year. Athletic competitions, such as baseball games, boat races, and field and track events will be carried out between the various divisions making each cruise. Week-end liberty will be granted in the larger New England seaports.

With the plans made well in advance, and since such a large number of active destroyers will be employed which will cruise in company afford ing ample opportunity for tactical manoeuvres and for steaming at night, it is expected that the coming summer cruises will be the most successful and comprehensive that have ever been attempted.

Flock of 1,000 Swallows

A flock of swallows estimated at 1,000 in number, passed over Groton Tuesday afternoon at about 5 o'clock. They flew in a northeasterly direction having come apparently from over Long Island. Flying at a height of about 500 feet, the whirr of wings could be heard from a distance. Spectators likened the throbbing sound to that of an approaching squall. John Abley, of Groton, said that the flight of the swallows is a sign of an impending storm.

The successful borrower gets credit for his efforts.

SIX NEW LONDON P. S. CAR OWNERS SOLD ON SLY; PUT OUT OF BUSINESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 28—As a result of the conviction of six operators of public service cars in the police court recently of violation of the liquor law and following 19 raids being made by state and local police upon information furnished the state authorities by two stool pigeons, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operators' licenses of the convicted men to be suspended.

The six drivers to suffer the loss of their licenses are Abe Davidson, 42 Bank street; Dominic Gillombardo, 73 Woodbridge street; Murray Cascio, 440 Ocean avenue; Antonio DeLaura, 33 Shaw street; Joseph Farina, Niles Hill road, and Gaspero Pincotelli, 8 Hampton street.

The motor vehicle department has absolutely no jurisdiction over violators of the prohibition law, but as the state law makes it mandatory that all owners of public service cars carry accident insurance, and as the several companies holding the insurance of the convicted men have recently cancelled the insurance policies, the suspension of the several licenses was made possible because the operators are not covered with liability insurance.

The convicted men, all of whom own their own cars, were caught in a wholesale raid three weeks ago. In some instances the stool pigeons had obtained alcohol or liquor from the drivers and in other instances liquor or alcohol was found in possession of the drivers when they were taken into custody at the public service stand at the union station.

It is understood that the drivers will endeavor to take out liability insurance with companies other than those which heretofore carried the insurance. In the meantime the drivers are deprived of a means of livelihood for, except in one or two instances, the owners of the cars have been compelled to place their cars in storage.

Commissioner Stoeckel today also caused the operator's license of John White, 17 Amity street, to be suspended.

An automobile owned and operated by Jean W. Lyons, 133 Montauk avenue, struck Lucinda Donnelli, 4, of Tabor court, this afternoon on Montauk avenue, near Nameaug school. The child was running across the street and as he did so he was hit by the machine. Lyons had the boy taken to the office of Dr. O. John Satti where examination revealed that the youngster had sustained injuries no more serious than bumps and bruises.

A week or more ago Officer John Clifford arrested William F. Howard on Bank street, when two girls complained to him that they had been insulted by a man who took hold of them and attempted familiarities. Policeman Clifford was in civilian clothes but he crossed the street and took the alleged assailant into custody. George O'Brien saw what was being done so he interfered with Clifford and in a scrimmage Howard got away. O'Brien was not so fortunate, for Officer Clifford clung to him and arrested him, presenting him in the police court the next morning for obstructing and assaulting a police officer in the discharge of his duties. O'Brien was fined $100. Officer Clifford, when he took hold of Howard observed that he had a bottle of liquor so the officer confiscated that in doing so one of his hands was occupied while he held to his prisoner with the other. This predicament gave O'Brien an advantage and Howard made his escape. This evening Howard walked into the police station and gave himself up, saying he was the man Clifford had when O'Brien interfered. Howard was held in a substantial bond for arraignment in the court tomorrow.

A still alarm of fire this evening at 7:50 o'clock called Ockford Hose company and the Allen Hook and Ladder company to 237 Howard street where a chimney fire existed. The occupant of the tenement is Benjamin Hartman. The fire was subdued with chemicals without loss of consequence.

SEA SLED COMPANY TO LOCATE IN GROTON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 28—The plant of the former Groton Iron works is to be a busy place within a few weeks, it became known late this afternoon when it was revealed that the Sea Sled company of Mystic had obtained a lease of the joiner shop, with privilege of purchase. The deal whereby the Sea Sled company will come to Groton was consummated about 3 o'clock. Inquiry of officials of the Sea Sled company stated that it was intended to begin work at the Groton plant at once, probably Feb. 1st. The joiner shop consists of 23,000 feet of floor space and is one of the largest buildings on the site. It is expected that 200 men will be employed when the work of manufacturing sea sleds is started.

At the present time the Sea Sled company has contracts for 75 sleds each to cost $8500. The company has also contracts for 300 sleds, which will cost $2700 and these will be manufactured at the Groton plant and will be sent to southern waters for the most part. The sleds to be constructed at Groton are of the smaller type of craft, and are capable of producing a speed of approximately 23 miles an hour.

WHITEHEAD AND LINDER GUILTY OF COLLUSION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 28—Chief Boatswain Ralph Whitehead, until recently commander of the United States Coast Guard patrol boat 187, one of about 30 craft with headquarters at the state pier and whose duties it is to apprehend traffickers in liquor, especially craft obtaining their supply from the fleet of schooners off Rum Row, together with H. H. Linder, chief machinist's mate of the same craft, were given prison terms in the naval penitentiary, Portsmouth, N. H., today as a result of a court martial of the two coast guarders, who were charged with having been in collusion with members of the crew of the British ship Vingus, one of several rum supply craft at anchor off Montauk Point awaiting to transfer the cargo to rum runners.

Whitehead was sentenced to one year, shorn of his American citizenship during the period of his confinement, deprived of his wages and upon his release from prison will receive a dishonorable discharge.

Linder was given a sentence of six months and with the same provisions as was his commander.

The court martial of Whitehead and Linder was brought about last October by two Filipinos of the 187, Felix Palma and Guillimo Manilla, who were taken into custody on State street by State Police Officer Henry Albright, Groton barracks. The Filipinos carried grips and it was found that they contained two bottles of liquor. When questioned as to how the liquor came to be in their possession, Palma and Manilli declared that earlier in the day the patrol boat, which had been on picket duty in the vicinity of Montauk Point, went alongside the Vingus and a quantity of liquor was transferred from the schooner to the patrol boat. When the coast guard craft arrived in port the liquor could not be placed in safe compartments and the Filipinos were given the remainder and it was this they had in their possession when they were arrested.

When Whitehead and Linder were accused of collusion with the British ship's crew, Commander F. H. Young, in charge of the local section base coast guard forces, emphatically denied that Whitehead and Linder or any members of the crew of the 187 were guilty of the charges preferred against them. After the facts had been revealed to the treasury department at Washington a court martial was ordered and it occupied several months. This resulted in five members of the crew of the patrol boat receiving dishonorably discharged from the service, while another was placed on probation.

Following the arrest of Whitehead and Linder the patrol boat was stripped of its crew and Boatswain's Mate Fred Lewis was put in command. Since that time Lewis and his crew have been arrested in New York and are awaiting trial in the New York federal court. It being alleged that the 187 had been connected in the rum ring headed by Big Bill Dwyer who is awaiting trial in the New York court.

SHIRLEY MEEK, BRAZEN, GOES TO JAIL FOR 10 DAYS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 28—The police, in their crusade against vice, last night, scooped in Laura Bouvier and Shirley Meek, girls who have been about the city some time and who are said not to be employed at callings recognized as legitimate. Policemen George Perkins and John J. Sullivan watched the girls for a considerable time and trailed them to make certain that they were behaving themselves. What they saw did not convince the officers and finally the pair of fast ones was taken into custody at the approach to the Thames river bridge. They were loud in the street and were accompanied by sailors in uniform and in civilian clothes. The prosecutor told the court the women came to the streets from Plant hall. Laura denied that she was intoxicated, but her companion admitted that she had lapsed from the path of sobriety. It was represented that the Meek girl had been prosecuted as a victim of habit forming drugs in New York state and that she was on parole now, but she denied that she was at liberty only after having served the penalty which was imposed upon her. Judge Prince ordered her committed to jail for ten days and she went up to Franklin street, after a sailor friend had sought to have the judgment changed. Laura was discharged as not guilty. The Meek girl has been before the court on two different occasions in New London and was ordered out of town, but she came back on the representation of a friend who is a dentist, that she might return and take up her residence here. That was bad advice and Shirley was so informed by Judge Prince.

Al Dufour was charged with intoxication, but as he has employment and his offense was not a serious one, judgment was suspended. He was arrested at the railway station where an officer of the railway company observed him and where he was inclined to mix things up with other persons in the station.

Gordon Eager, of Hartford, was fined $100 for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. His car was in collision on Bank street, with a pushcart, the operator of which was slightly hurt. Eager is an insurance company employe at Hartford, but he was taking a great risk himself when he tackled booze in New London. His conviction means the revocation of his license and it also means the payment of $10 in costs. He was given time to raise the money he owes the state and the city, so his visit to New London must remain a recollection with him for a considerable time. He fell in with "friends" here and that led to his trouble.

BUILDING PERMIT DEMAND REACHES LOWEST EBB

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 28—Applications for building permits have reached the lowest number of the year. Inspector Linicus said today that there was nothing doing" in that line. "But," he said, "the outlook for the spring is excellent and there will be a great deal of work then." The conditions prevalent now are not different from those of previous years, during January and February.

Edward F. Lathrop, executor of the estate of his mother, Mrs. Nancy L. Lathrop today sold a house and lot on the westerly side of Montauk avenue, to William H., and Mary E. Denison. The price paid was $11,500.

Mazie Williams Downey, colored wife of Carl Downey, 28 Hill street has been under treatment at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital a fortnight for razor slashes of the face, sustained when she was attacked at the home of William Matthews, colored of Potter street, by Sylvia Wells also colored, and a former inmate of the alleged house of ill fame of the Williams woman. Mazie Downey was taken into custody late this afternoon by Sergeant Nelson Smith when the Downey woman was discharged at the hospital. She is charged with obtaining and maintaining females for purposes of prostitution and will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning. The accused furnished a surety on her bond of $1,000 for her court appearance. The Wells woman is now a prisoner at the county jail and will be a witness against the accused tomorrow morning.

1925 WAS REMARKABLE IN THE STEEL INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Characterizing 1925 as one of the most remarkable in the history of the steel industry, Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, announced today that the company's earnings totalled $38,988,743, equal after charges and preferred dividends to $5.30 on the common shares, compared with $32,996,489, or $2.95 a share in 1924.

The final quarter's operations yielded the corporation the largest profits of any period during the year, net earnings of $10,543136 comparing with $10,399,316 in the first quarter, $9,708,528 in the second and $8,237,762 in the third.

"The general outlook in the steel industry for at least the first half of 1926 is favorable," Mr. Grace declared. "There is a large demand for steel products of all kinds, sufficient to support the present high rate of operations; there has been no apparent accumulation of stocks by consumers; there has been a general improvement in prices during the last three months and if the current demand continues there is every reason to expect still further improvement. This, together with the increased production from Bethlehem's finishing units, should result in better earnings."

Goodrich protested against his arrest, declaring that he had received what he had considered reliable information that his first wife was dead.

He had married her in October, 1924, in Buffalo and deserted her in April the next year when he found her "mentally and physicaly incompatible" he said. In September, 1925, he married Mrs. Wilson, wealthy Rochester widow.

Born in Rutland, Vt., he was a former Methodist-Episcopal minister, but was ordained as an Episcopal pastor in St. Paul's Cathedral, Albany, in 1902, he said. His last pastorate he held five years ago near Detroit.

Breed Theater

The Breed theater is offering today and Saturday, The Outsider adapted from the celebrated stage piece by Dorothy Brandon. The producers have invested the production with a splendid cast heading which are Jacqueline Logan and Lou Tellegan. In the array of supporting talent are Walter Pidgeon, Roy Atwill, Charles Lane, Joan Standing, Gibson Gowland, Bertram Marbough, Crauford Kent and Louis Payne.

Rowland V. Lee was well chosen as the director for this film. Although it differs from the type of story he has done heretofore, it proves the man's versatility and filmgoers will find it quite as much to their liking as his productions As No Man Has Loved, Havoc or The Silver Treasure.

The story of The Outsider deals with gypsy lore that will prove different and enfirely fascinating to lovers of romance and adventure. Ragatzy, a chieftain possessing hypnotic powers and the ability to heal by faith, holds the center of the screen. Loved by his own people, he is despised by the more civilized as a dangerous fakir.

Coming to the Breed

Lillian Gish's latest picture, Romola, a film version of George Eliot's famous novel, is coming to the Breed theater on Sunday. The cast includes Dorothy Gish, Ronald Colman, who played opposite the star in The White Sister, William H. Powell, Charles Lane and Herbert Grimwood. Romola is an Inspiration Picture released by Metro-Goldwyn. Henry King was the director.

Read what New York's leading motion picture critics have to say about Romola:

We recommend Romola as one of the finest photoplays as regards direction, acting, photography and story we have ever seen. The acting of Lillian Gish as Romola was exquisite, like a cameo come to life. Certainly it stamps her, without question, as the leading actress of the screen.

Stephen Bathbun in The Sun.

Romola represents the art of the cinema in its highest form. We have not a single suggestion to make wherever the film might be improved in any way. It is a perfect product.

Harriette Underhill in Herald-Tribune.

A rich tale, superb photography, able direction, noteworthy backgrounds . . . Miss Gish looks like a plaque by Leonardo da Vinci. Her work brought a cheer from the audience.

Broadway Theater

That Reginald Denny is one of the foremost light comedy stars of the screen cannot be denied after seeing California Straight Ahead the Universal-Jewel feature which opens Sunday at the Broadway theater.

Presented with an unusual story, and many opportunities for clever comedy bits, Denny gives one of the most delightful performances of his screen career. Even his portrayal of the hypochondriac in Oh, Doctor! is rivaled by his performance in this latest farce.

The situations on which California Straight Ahead are based are intrinsically funny, because they chronicle an event painfully familiar to almost every one—a long motor trip. Denny in this picture is represented as a young man making a cross-country tour in a palatial motor bungalow and the adventures and mishaps which occur are productive of seven reels of delightful comedy.

Denny is given splendid support by Gertrude Olmsted as leading woman, and by Lucille Ward, Charles Gerrard, John Steppling, Fred Kenneton, Tom Wilson, Leo Nomas and others.

And this is not the only attraction, although it is fully worth the price of admission alone. There will be another feature full-length feature, comedy and Kinograms make a full show lasting for two hours and three quarters and the admission price is only 25c for any seat.

Palace Theater

Georgette's Players who play twenty-five musical instruments and have a program that includes everything from jazz to Grand Opera opened at the Palace yesterday and were received as a musical treat of this kind should be. Their program lasted twenty minutes but so interesting are their offerings that it hardly seemed over five. The whole entire bill is good and an unusual offering are the whip-crackers who do extremely difficult stunts one of them being able to pick a handkerchief out of his partner's pocket.

"The real world has just discovered that Pola Negri, the screen's finest dramatic actress, can do comedy!

Malcolm St. Clair, director, pointed out this new phase of the star's versatility in her new Paramount production, "A Woman of the World."

While essentially a strong drama, the story has a vein of sustained humor, largely contributed by Chester Conklin. Miss Negri has a number of moments of light, polished comedy. Her handling of these situations is surprising.

Many actresses have risen from comedy to drama, but it remained for Miss Negri to win a world reputation as a dramatic star and then prove that she was equally effective as a comedienne.

Featured in the supporting cast in addition to Conklin are Charles Emmett Mack, Holmes Herbert and Blanchee Mehaffey.

Coming to the Palace

"Mannequin," Fannie Hurst's story of American home life in a big city in 1907 and 1926 which won Liberty Magazine's $50,000 prize for the best story to be produced as a Paramount picture, comes to the Palace Theater for a run of 4 days next Sunday. Produced by James Cruze, who made "The Covered Wagon," "Beggar on Horseback" and "The Pony Express," the picture features Alice Joyce, Warner Baxter, Dolores Costello and ZaSu Pitts in the principal roles in the cast.

Wauregan Well Child Conference

The children of today will be the future citizens of tomorrow, so whatever program is planned to establish health at the beginning of life will bring its true reward at some future time when the healthy adult takes his place in community work. Children, both in school and in the pre-school groups, have learned certain rules of health. Mothers of Connecticut who attend the well child conferences have learned the value of establishing health rules in their homes.

The next conference in Wauregan will be on Tuesday afternoon, February 2, in company hall, from 2 to 4 o'clock.

Capitol Theater, Willimantic

The Gold Rush, Charlie Chaplin's new screen feature coming next Sunday for four days to the Capitol theater Willimantic under a United Artists Corporation release, is a symbolical autobiography by Chaplin himself.

With that genius which is peculiarly his own, and against the background of old Klondike gold rush days of Chaplinesque conception, the greatest screen comedian has depicted with subtly tender and delicate masterstrokes the struggle of man's eternal hunt for happiness, its heartbreak and tears and its laughter and joy.

Charlie Chaplin of the derby, cane, baggy trousers, funny mustache and waddling walk who has made the whole world laugh more than any other mere comedian that ever lived, has built in The Gold Rush a delightful structure of fun and laughter.

On the tragedy and misery suffered by pioneers who first journeyed to the ice-bound Alaska, and on the drama of the soul sufferings of the sourdough who braved mountains, ice, snow and starvation and death in their mad rush for gold, Chaplin has built the funniest and most hilarious comedy of his career.

He has clad himself in the role of a hard-luck sourdough who chases rainbows of the soul and heart in the midst of a mob and nothing but gold Pathos and suffering are converted into comedy and laughter—there is a laugh in every one of the eight thousand or so feet of The Gold Rush.

FINANCIAL DEBATE DRAGS IN THE FRENCH CHAMBER

PARIS, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The uncertainty of the issue of the financial debate, which is dragging slowly along in the chamber of deputies, has so impressed both adversaries in the struggle as to increase the chance of a compromise before the discussion is ended. The left bloc, which declared war on the government measures for financial renovation, finds its own projects received with such hostility that its leaders are showing a conciliatory disposition.

Government scouts in the lobbies of the chamber, who all along have declared that Premier Briand was ready to collaborate with any group that will accept the realities of the situation and set about earnestly to apply remedies to France's financial ills, say that the premier is ready to make a compromise between M. Doumer's proposed stamp tax on business transactions and the so-called "production tax," which some of the left bloc leaders have suggested might be an acceptable half-point on which to unite with the government.

The production tax which is still a vague project, is supposed to be a tax on all agricultural and mineral products and the output of factories, including wines, perfumes and other French specialities. Parliamentary circles aver that there is little difference between the two taxes, so far as concerns the cost of living. The change of name and the different method of application, would, however, furnish the radicals and socialists with an excuse for accepting it. If an agreement is reached on this question, the debate will be greatly shortened.

DENSE BLACK SMOKE IS CAUSING TROUBLE

NEW YRK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Twenty-five concerns that have been allowing dense black smoke to pour from thier chimneys, were placed upon probation for 24 to 48 hours today by Health Commissioner Louis I. Harriss. Dr. Harris announced that unless the conditions are remedied in that time, the plants will be held accountable at law.

Dr. Harris also declared that nurses visiting in the tenement districts have called upon the dwellers in 472 houses and have found 78 cases of illness directly attributable to the coal situation.

Basil Davenport, of Louisville, Ky., won the De Forest medal in the annual senior competition at Yale university for writing and delivering orations.

BARRYMORE TOOK YOUTHS WITH HIM TO PICTURES

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (AP)—A dramatic story, revolving around a young director and an even more youthful actress working in their first big production, was behind the filming of John Barrymore's latest picture, The Sea Beast.

When Warner Brothers announced Millard Webb as the director to handle the famous actor, Hollywood, shrugged its shoulders and wondered. Then Webb decided on Dolores Costello, a girl who had been on the movie lots only three months, to play opposite Barrymore. There were more movements of the shoulders and wonderment.

Miss Costello was given her role because she met the type demand and because, being the daughter of Maurice Costello, it was thought she could act. As for the youthful director handling a veteran of the stage in a production new to both of them, Webb said:

"Barrymore is one of the easiest players I have ever directed. For nerve he has no superior; in fact, his nerve brought us into trouble. John was at the top of one of the masts and the scenario called for him to slide down a long cable to the deck. I yelled to ask if he was ready, merely jokingly, for I planned to send a sailor 'double' to come down.

"Then I saw he was serious and as I called 'camera,' down he came about three times as fast as a regular sailor. He completed the scene before someone called my attention to the fact that his legs and hands were badly burned, cut and bleeding.

"Again, a fight between John and his half-brother was called for, John put so much reality into it he fell, breaking three ribs and causing a delay of as many weeks. It took us more than seven months to make the picture."

When the schooner, The Three Brothers, began hunting whales, several of the giants were killed, but they would not last long enough for the completion of scenes. So an enormous "prop" whale was constructed and operated through mechanical devices from shore.

It was at one of the biggest moments of the picture that the young Miss Costello came to test. The girl was to cry and the director wanted real tears, but she could not get herself in a 'crying mood' throughout the day.

"The next morning I said something to her about my responsibility for her opportunity and asked whether she was going to live up to my expectations," Webb said "She began crying immediately and what a scene we got!"

STATEMENT BY MARSHALL COMPLETELY DISPROVED

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The statement by David L. Marshall, Philadelphia chiropractor, that he killed Miss Anna May Dietrich and dismembered her body because she had attempted to blackmail him has been "completely repudiated" the police announced tonight.

Evidence was unearthed today, the authorities said, concerning a motive for the slaying. Beyond stating that it was not blackmail, however, they declined to say what the motive was.

Thirty witnesses will be summoned by the commonwealth when Marshall is placed on trial charged with murder in the first degree. Many of these already have been examined by the district attorney's staff.

Marshall, who yesterday collapsed after he had been held without bail for the action of the coroner and had to be placed in the hospital at Moyamensing prison, apparently had recovered today. His chief concern seemed to be to get a shave, but in this he was unsuccessful. Prison authorities have been informed that he has threatened to take his life and are taking unusual precautions to guard against such an act.

The plumber may now have a degree tacked to the end of his name. The Carnegie Institute of Technology has added to its curriculum a professorship and two scholarships in plumbing, heating and ventilating, and Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of the school, says he hopes they will result in a further improvemtn in standards of living in America. The scholarships, each valued at $500, are available to Carnegie Tech students. They are the gift of the National Association of Master Plumbers and Women's Auxiliary.

REPORTS ON Y. M. C. A. WORK AT HANGCHOW

There has recently been received at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. a report letter of the Young Men's Christian Association work at Hangchow, China, which was written by Eugene A. Turner, who has relatives in this city.

The letter gives the following interesting description of present day conditions in China from several aspects:

A new task of the Young Men's Christian Association in China is that of popular education in the meaning of citizenship. China became a republic almost over night. The masses of her people have not yet caught up with the procession. This in part accounts for the assumption of this new task by the association, but there is a growing realisation that greater than the need for such education is that of character in the citizen.

With this in mind, and seizing on the enthusiasm with which the 10th of October, called by the Chinese the "Twin Ten Celebration," commemorating the day of her independence from the Manchus, is being celebrated this year, the National Movement has launched a citizenship training program. There has never before been as large, wide spread and intelligent a patriotism in China as there is now. Its flames have been at white heat since the May 30th incident in Shanghai when the police of the foreign concession there fired on an unarmed crowd instantly killing four students and wounding others. As new fuel to the flames will come the tariff conference this month, through which the nation hopes to gain the administration of its own tariff, and that on extra territoriality in December through which she hopes to gain the right enjoyed by most nations without question of jurisdiction over and trial in their courts of the foreigner who commits crimes and misdemeanors while living in the land.

Let me add that since China is asking what is accepted in civilized circles as inherent rights of sovereignty is China are in full sympathy with them in their demands. The old order has been wrong, and in spite of the doubtful legality which some will plead for many of the prevailing conditions, it will have to go if the world want peace in the Far East. The status quo is based on injustice. Most of it was established through force. The never-ending wonder is that China has been so patient under extreme provocation and the constant rubbing of her sore spots. Under its increasing intelligence and national self respect, it will not continue so. The people no longer accept western aggression as uplift efforts on behalf of backward people. They rather regard them as plain, every day robbery through which the nations have taken what they wanted under the protection of pointed guns. They simply demand now that we stop it, and they are going to be sure that we do, even if they have to be unpleasant about it.

To me the readjustment they demand will not mean the ruin of business and the arresting of missionary progress. In the one it will mean equal opportunity and fair competition; in the other it will mean natural, untrammelled penetration of the highest ideals into life of the people. As it is now neither business nor the missionary enterprise has a fair chance. The one is handicapped, or favored by post agreements and established spheres of influence, depending on whose sphere it is; the other is hindered by the gun boat in the offing, which in time of trouble takes a part, whether the missionary wants it or not, and thus keeps him posed before the public mind as one who proffers the Bible in one hand and bears the sword in the other. After the first confusion of readjustment will come order, and I believe also better chances for the man of ideals both in business and in missions.

The enclosed sample of stone lithographing illustrates one appeal of the Hangchow Association in its citizenship training effort. This week-end of the 10th is the beginning of a long effort in education. There are to be lectures, special study groups in various phases of a citizen's responsibility, and other efforts which will carry on through the winter season.

Every school boy in China knows the story illustrated on the sheet, so it is being utilized to drive home the need for well rounded character. The title across the top is, "The Personality (character) of a real Citizen." Its characteristics are, reading down and from left to right, dilligence, honor to parents, thrift, love, loyalty, kindliness, public spirit, and unselfishness. On the right border, a good child remembers parental instruction. On the left, genuine love of country means loyalty. At the bottom, presented by the Hangchow Y. M. C. A. in honor of Independence day,

In the center is Yao Fei, just entering manhood, kneeling before his mother to receive the finishing touch to the education which she has given him. She was poor in worldly goods, but determined to give her son the best possible mental and moral equipment. The final lesson is to be tatooed on the back of her son. The four characters mean, "Protect your country to the last." It was not long after that that Yao became a trusted general in the army of his emperor. This was in the Song dynasty, eight hundred years ago. He was so zealous in his master's interest that enemies at court while he was in the field entered charges of disloyalty against him. He was convicted and executed. No sooner was the execution accomplished than it was discovered that the charges were false. The accusers, one woman and three men, were executed and an iron statue of each erected at the foot of the tomb of Yao to perpetuate their perfidy. Yao, on the other hand, had in Hangchow on the shore of West Lake a temple erected in his name in which burning incense and lighted candles do him perpetual honor, and his tomb is a national shrine. He is honored as the patron saint of the love of country.

The Young Men's Christian Association, is no more in politics than ever, but in this time of tenseness in international relationships it is taking this beautiful page from history and spreading it before the youth of the land, with a feeling that it is engaged in high Christian service. The youth here are inextricably bound up with America, and England and Europe, and we are just trying to make good citizens of them. The eyes of our youth still look your way. They want sympathy in their aspirations, and they get it from Russia these days. They have not gone Bolshevist, though, nor will they go that way, if we meet them in fairness and sympathetic understanding. The Association enjoys their confidence and is the forty-six centers throughout the country where it is established it stands and leads in the way toward a higher type of citizenship, and toward a high international order as well.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) GENE TURNER.

STOCK PRICES FLUCTUATED

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—(AP)—Operations for the first were resumed in today's stock market, but they lacked the breadth and vigor of those which characterized yesterday's session. One of the principal financial developments of the day was a further shading in time money rates, testifying to the abundance of surplus funds still seeking investment closing stock prices were irregularly higher, with a number of one to six point gains scattered throughout the list, but with the majority of issues showing only fractional changes.

Uneven price movements again characterized the commodity markets. Active wheat futures advanced over 3 cents a bushel on unfavorable weather reports and expectations of a shortage of supplies. Cotton fluctuated within extremely narrow and irregular limits in a quiet market. The sugar market showed further improvement but coffee prices were again reactionary.

Motors again attracted the most speculative attention in the stock market, because of optimistic reports concerning production and sales emanating from the manufacturing centers. General Motors closed fractionally higher at 128 3-4, after selling between 124 and 127 1-4. Hudson showed a net loss of 1 1-4, at 111 3-4 after having touched 113 3-4. Jordan closed 2 points higher at 58 1-2 and Willys Overland crossed 31 for a gain of more than 1 point.

Steels held relatively steady but some uneasiness was felt over the recent weakness of the metal for scrap iron. The Bethlehem Steel corporation reported earnings of $16,548,186 in the final quarter of 1925, bringing the year's total to $36,958,742, compared with $33,906,489 the year before. United States Steel common closed 3-8 lower at 133 3-8 as against an earlier high of 134 1-4, and Bethlehem closed 1-4 lower at 66 7-8.

Rubbers were again under accumulation in reflection of stiffening commodity prices. This showed little change despite predictions of an early increase in Mid-Continent crude prices. Farm implements showed impressive strength Kennedy preferred soaring 6 1-2 points to 91, and International Harvester showing an extreme gain of 4 3-4 at 131 3-4 and then sagging a point.

Substantial gains also were recorded by the various specialties. Cerro de Pasco advanced nearly 4 points to the highest price in seven years on the reported discovery of a rich ore body. National Biscuit moved up over 4 points to 91 3-4 on reports that company was to enter the bread baking business. Union Bag and Paper touched a new high on the current movement on expectations of increasing earnings through new contracts and the proposed segregation of water power properties.

Other outstanding industrial strong spots were Foundation company, Abitibi Power, California Packing, the Commercial Solvents issues, Columbian Carbon, Mary Wheel, Outlet company and Third Avenue Railway, not quite a million shares changed hands in addition to 3 to 8 points in many issues to respond to the publication of additional favorable earnings reports the preliminary statement of the Pennsylvania Railway showing over $ 6 a share earned on the common last year, while Baltimore and Ohio earned over $23 a share. A gain of over 3 points in Delaware and Hudson was one of the few features in the rail group.

Call money ruled unchanged at four per cent, for the seventh consecutive day. Time money was quoted at 4 1-4 to 4 3-8 instead of 4 3-8 to 4 2-4 but prime commercial paper held steady at 4 1-4 to 4 1-2.

Foreign exchange rates moved within narrow and irregular limits. Demand sterling held firm around $4.85 7-8, but French francs ruled about 3 points higher around 3.75 cents. Japanese yen reacted slightly on profit taking and Polish sloty broke 35 points to 16.00 cents.

TAFTVILLE

The regular meeting of the basketry class was held Thursday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

The next meeting of the Thimble club is to be held at the home of Miss Emily Pollard of South Second avenue.

Mrs. Edmund Hindle of North Third avenue, Mrs. Samuel L. Armitage of Norwich avenue and Miss Barbara McInnis of South Second avenue were among those in the Norwich delegation from Sachem chapter, O. E. S. attending the grand chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star at Hartford Thursday.

The iced surface of the roads in the town gave motorists no end of trouble Thursday morning if they happened to be without chains and parked close to the curb. Usually, when they tried to move away from the gutters, the fun started, and the crowd that congregated to watch the wheels spin round, were pressed into service, and asked to put their shoulder to the rear of the car and assist it back into the road.

John Urick has returned to his home in Lisbon after spending the past two months at Miami Florida.

John Busch and "Fighting Joe" Beauregard furnished the entertainment by going four rounds of fast fighting, Thursday evening at the joint carnival being conducted by the Sacred Heart church and the Army and Navy club at the Parish hall. There was a great deal of interest in this bout, as both the contestants are well known locally and both have a big following among the fight fans. To add to the fun at the carnival, the general committee staged a farce fight between "Joe Gans", and "Israel Cohen". This brought down the house. The crowd was fully as large as that of the opening night, and a feature of the evening was that the dance floor was given over to old time quadrilles, lanciers and reels. It was a night for the old timers, and the followers of Terpsichore forsook the Charleston for the old fashioned square dance. The Army and Navy club orchestra furnished the music, and August Czikowski, who is fast becoming a celebrated prompter in these parts, called off. The booths reported good business, and the committee is gratified at the progress of the affair from the opening night.

The Taftville fire department responded to a call Thursday noon for a chimney fire at the home of James Mosely on Riverside. The fire was in the chimney and the department used 10 gallons of chemical to extinguish the blaze.

CHIMNEY FIRE CALL TO SCHOOL STREET HOUSE

The fire department responded Thursday afternoon at 4:50 o'clock, for a chimney fire in the house owned and occupied by Richard Belli, 56 School street. The blaze was confined to the base of the chimney and to a sugar barrel, which was set up against it. Soot, burning in the chimney, heated the iron plate over the vent at the base of the chimney, which, in turn, ignited the sugar barrel. Before the arrival of the firemen, who cleaned the chimney of its burning soot, Mr. Belli removed the barrel and extinguished the flames with water. No chemical was used.

Another chimney fire in the house owned and occupied by John C. Quinlan, 19 Slater avenue, called out the fire department at 6:38 o'clock Thursday evening. Soot, in the chimney, was in flames, when the firemen arrived, and one tank of chemical sufficed to extinguished the blaze.

JUDGE AVERY GRANTS DIVORCE TO STONINGTON WOMAN FOR CRUELTY

Judge C. L. Avery who had been hearing the contested divorce suit of Elizabeth P. Loper Babcock against Horace H. Babcock of Stonington in the superior court for two days this week at New London handed down a decision Thursday granting divorce to Mrs. Babcock on the ground of intolerable cruelty, and giving her alimony and the custody of the minor children of the couple.

The testimony of Mrs. Babcock against her husband, who is a rural letter carrier and a World war veteran, related chiefly to the way he had beaten her when he was displeased because she had not followed orders and directions he had given her.

In his memorandum of decision, Judge Avery said:

The parties to this case intermarried Oct. 4, 1919 and have four children.

It is unfortunate for all concerned, especially the children, that the husband and wife cannot live together in harmony as they appear to be fond of their children, and of each other. The evidence shows that the defendant has a very keen sense of his wife's obligations and duties to him, and becomes irritable and violent if her conduct does not meet his ideas. During the last two years he has assaulted his wife upon three different occasions, once with great violence at a time when she was about to become a mother; and in consequence of his treatment the defendant is in fear if she continues to live with him she will be subjected to grievous bodily harm, and it seems hardly possible to doubt from the evidence that if she did live with him she would be certainly subjected to further assaults, with possibilities of grievous injury.

From all the evidence it is found that the plaintiff is entitled to judgment for divorce on the ground of intolerable cruelty, and that she is a suitable person to have the care and custody of the minor children, and under the circumstances the sum of $75 a month in addition to and outside of any sum that she may receive from the interest of the $3,000 trust fund is a reasonable sum for the defendant to pay by way of alimony.

Judgment may be entered in favor of the plaintiff for a divorce, the custody of the said minor children and for alimony for the support of herself and said minor children in the amount of $75 a month, payable monthly, said amount to be in addition to any amount she may receive as income from said trust fund of $3,000, the defendant to have the right to see said children at reasonable times.

N. H. R. R. STANDS HIGH IN SAFETY OF EMPLOYES

The New Haven railroad's constant safety efforts are bearing fruit, it is disclosed by a tabulation of interstate commerce commission figures showing the number of casualties to employes on the railroads. This table, showing injuries and deaths to employes during the first nine months of 1925 and during the previous three years, indicates that the New Haven has a consistently better record than that of the eastern railroads as a group.

During the nine months ended September 30, 1925, the New Haven's casualties were 25.90 per million man hours, as compared with 30.81 for all the principal roads in the eastern district, and with 26.31 for all class 1 roads in the country.

In 1922 the New Haven's employe casualties were 36.10 per million man hours, against 29.77 for the eastern group; in 1923 30.47 as compared with 24.75; and in 1924 27.68 as compared with 21.54.

FATHER AND DAUGHTER SUE MOTOR TRUCK DRIVER

Suit for $15,000 damages has been brought in the superior court against David Feister by Hilda Thoma, 18, both of Norwich, on a claim for injuries received by the plaintiff when she was hit while getting off a trolley car by a motor truck driven by Feister. The accident happened on Boswell avenue at the corner of Elijah street on the afternoon of April 8, 1925. Miss Thoma, it is claimed, received injuries to her right eye and eyelid which are permanent and by reason of which she has been and will continue to be obliged to wear glasses, she is unable to close the eyelid, she has tatooed scars over and under her eye, she is and will continue to be subject to headache and dizziness, her left knee has become stiff and will permanently continue so, and her earning power has been decreased.

Suit against Feister has also been brought by Miss Thoma's father, Egidius Thoma, for $1,000 damages on account of losing his daughter's wages from the time of the injury to September, 1925, and for his expenses for medical and surgical treatment for her.

BRINGS SUIT AGAINST TWO FOR INJURIES BY AUTO

Suit in the superior court for $10,000 damages has been brought by Joseph Petrone of Norwich against Albert A. Cloutier and his brother, Norman Cloutier, both of Norwich, the former alleged to be the owner and the latter the driver of an automobile that struck Petrone on the night of Dec. 18, 1925 on Boswell avenue near the crossover at the city line in Greeneville. Petrone was getting off a trolley car at the time when it was claimed the automobile driven by Norman Cloutier hit him. Petrone was knocked against the trolley car and dragged some distance, sustaining a broken leg, a shattered knee cap and other injuries. At the time of the accident no arrest of the driver was made as it was claimed he drove away without stopping to see what damage he had caused. No arrest has been made since then as it has been understood that Norman Cloutier left town for another state and has kept out of reach of the local police.

MENHADEN CO. RECEIVER SUES ON TWO NOTES

Two new suits for the superior court which were filed Thursday with the clerk of the court are the following:

Damages of $25,000 are claimed by Frederick W. Mercer, receiver of the Niantic Menhaden Oil and Guano Co., against Clarence M. Shay of New London. The suit is brought on two promissory notes, one for $10,000, dated April 21, 1919, due Feb. 1, 1920, and the other for $8,000, dated Feb. 1, 1920, and due Feb. 1, 1921.

William McHenry of New London brings suit against Lucius Wilcox of Norwich on a claim for $1,800, dated Jan. 19, 1926, on the common counts.

Demurrers Overruled.

In the libel suit of Edward Erskine of Niantic against Mary Emma Lincoln of Niantic in which $5,000 are claimed, a demurrer by the defendant has been overruled by Judge C. L. Avery.

In the same suit another defendant's demurrer has been overruled by Judge Avery, who says in his memorandum of decision that words imputing unchastity to a woman are actionable per se and require no allegation of special damage. Even if the occasion of the communication be conditionally privileged, the question whether the communication was privileged or not, under the circumstances, is a question of fact for the jury. The complaint alleges that the publication was malicious. This is a question of fact to be determined by the jury from all the circumstances disclosed by the evidence. The specifications of the demurrer are insufficient and the same is overruled.

Yankee Division Memorial.

The Yankee Division, New England's own wartime division, will perpetuate its deeds of valor and the names of its hero dead by erecting a beautiful and lasting memorial in France. In addition to placing a suitable monument at some prominent site, it will erect replicas of it or markers at all points along the western front that are of special significance to the men of the division.

The financing of the memorial will be conducted without appealing to the public, the survivors of the division contributing the necessary expense among themselves. It is expected that the total cost will be at least $75,000.

PARENTS REACH AGREEMENT OVER CUSTODY OF SON

After a morning of testimony in the superior court at New London, Thursday before Judge C. L. Avery in the trial of the suit of George A. Garrett of Hartford against Eleanor Coates Garrett of Niantic, his wife from whom he is separated, an agreement by stipulation was reached over the guardianship of their son, George Coates Garrett, a minor. Garrett had been removed from the guardianship of the boy by the Lyme probate court on the ground that he had abandoned and neglected the education and support of his son. The father took an appeal from this action of the Lyme court, which had made the mother guardian in place of the father.

The stipulation in the case agreed to set aside and vacate the decree of the Lyme probate court of Dec. 14, 1925, which removed the father as guardian, and it was agreed that the plaintiff and defendant should be and continue as joint guardians.

The boy is to stay with his mother during the school period of each year and with his father during the vacation period, and when the child is with either parent the other may visit the child whenever he or she desires. It is further provided that when the child is in his mother's custody he shall live with his maternal grandparents, Gurdon B and Maude Coates at East Lyme. If the grandparents desire to go to Florida on a vacation the child shall be in the custody of his maternal grandfather during the vacation period. Neither parent is to remove the child from this state without the consent of the other or a further order of court. It is further stipulated that George A. Garrett shall pay to Gurdon B. Coates $10 a week for the support of the child and also such sums as are needed for medical attention. The agreement as to payment is to be subject to further agreement or further order of court when the child reaches the age of 12 years.

Both Garrett and his wife, Eleanor Coates Garrett, are prominent persons, the latter being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Coates of Pennsylvania avenue, Niantic. Mr. Coates is a manager in the employ of the Automobile Insurance Co., of Hartford, with an alleged annual salary of $5,000.

It was brought out in the evidence that the little boy, aged five and one-half years, is now living with his mother at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Coates of Niantic. Also it was brought out that Mr. Garrett approves of the boy being there and is on friendly terms with his wife's parents.

Disagreed Over Money

Attorney George Curtis Morgan, counsel for Mrs. Garrett, and Attorney C. H. Hal Hull, representing Garrett both stated to Judge Avery that they were willing to settle the matter but the amount of pay which Garrett should give his wife towards the support of the boy was the point on which they had not reached an agreement.

Attorney Hull informed the court that his client was willing to pay his wife $25 per month for the support of the boy and is willing to pay in addition for any medical attention or clothes the child might need. Attorney Hull said that Garrett had written his wife to that effect. The attorney said that the case was one which should have been settled out of court and declared that only a few weeks ago both Mr. and Mrs. Garrett went shopping together in New London and appeared on friendly terms.

Attorney Morgan admitted that his client was willing for her husband to see the child and that she admitted Garrett was a man of good reputation. But he claimed that in view of the fact that Garrett was earning in excess of $5,000 per year he should pay about $60 a month for the child.

In answer to this, Attorney Hull said that his client would not submit to any such figure in view of the fact that he still maintained his home in Hartford and was willing to have his wife come back, she having left his home and took the child with her, according to her testimony.

All this information was given after the court had sugested to the lawyers that they should try to reach an agreement during the noon recess.

At the morning session of court Attorney Morgan placed on the stand Mrs. Garrett who told of her marriage to Garrett and of their immediate departure for Indianapolis. She told of returning with her husband to Hartford in May, 1923, where they took up residence.

Went to Mountains

During cross examination by Attorney Hull, she told of leaving Hartford with the baby and going to live with the mother of a girl with whom she became friendly in boarding school. The girl's mother lived in the White Mountains and that was where Mrs. Garrett went following trouble between her and her husband, according to her testimony. After a few weeks, she returned with the child to the home of her parents in Niantic.

A number of checks were identified as were letters, which Attorney Hull introduced as evidence that Garrett had given her money from time to time. Mrs. Garrett, however, claimed that she had filled out the amounts in the checks at the suggestion of her husband and could not write them for any amount she pleased.

There were continual clashes between Attorneys Morgan and Hull as to the admission of certain evidence and at times Judge Avery questioned the witness.

Shortly before the noon recess, the judge suggested that in view of the fact that both the father and mother of the little boy were reputable people and in view of the fact that the case presented features, which seemed to him might be settled out of court, suggested that another attempt be made to settle the matter.

MAYOR MAKES COMPARISON OF EXPENSES OF CITY

Wednesday's meeting of the Norwich Rotary club was devoted to business matters which included reports from various committees and discussion of plans for the local club's participation in the Charter Night celebration of the newly organized Danielson club. The club will be given its charter on February 4th., and the Norwich club will put on a stunt in conjunction with the meeting.

Alex McNicol, chairman of the programme committee, announced the following programme for the month of February:

Feb. 3.—Talk by Harold Larrabee on the Worcester conference. Five-minute speaker, Lucius Briggs. Song leader, George E. Johnson.

Feb. 10.—James L. Case will speak on Community Spirit. Five-minute speaker, Dr. Albert C. Freeman. Song leader, Joseph W. Curtis.

Feb. 17.—A representative of the eastern railroad presidents' conference will speak on Transportation. Five-minute talker, E. LaRue Bliven. Song leader, Richard L. Tarrant.

Feb. 24.—Observance of anniversary week in charge of Past President Charles A. Saxton. Five-minute speaker, Charles R. Butts. Song leader, Henry F. Lyon.

President E. A. Harris presided at the meeting and William G. Park was the song leader.

A very interesting comparison of the city expenses of 1849 and 1926 was made by Mayor Milo R. Waters who was the five-minute speaker of the day. Mayor Waters spoke as follows:

Almost all of the members of the Rotary club are taxpayers of the city of Norwich, and as such are interested in city expenses.

It was my good fortune a short time ago to come across a pamphlet printed in 1850 and entitled "Account of the Expenses of the City of Norwich from June 1, 1844 to May 1, 1850," published by a vote of the city and it seems that a comparison with the present expenses might be interesting. I have taken for comparisn the fiscal years of 1849 and 1925 for this purpose.

Our police department in 1850 consisted of two night watchmen who received a salary of $1 per night. The total expense of that department including charcoal and candles was $713.61. Our appropriation for payroll and general expense in that department this year is $69,500.

The total expenses of the city court in 1849 were $14.50 and other legal expenses were $237.78 paid in 1849 but covering two years. Our appropriation for the city court this year was $8,360 and other legal expenses will be over $2,000, something over $10,000 total.

The health department in 1849 spent $67.42 while for the present year our appropriation is $3,200.

The ordinary expenses of the fire department that year were $408.13 and for an engine house and lot on Union street, I suppose this was where the Chapman building now stands on Broadway, was $1,728.35. Our appropriation for the fire department general expense and salaries this year was $79,850. An engine house and lot recently acquired by the city cost about $15,000. I also note that in 1846 the city purchased three fire engines at a cost of $700. About 70 years later this city purchased several fire engines at a cost of $12,500 each. The amount expended on the city streets in 1849 was $1,622 and the town repaid to the city $1,000, leaving the net street expense that year $622. Our appropriation for maintenance of streets and improvements this year was $122,000 and the town pays to us $23,000, making a net cost of $99,000.

In 1849 there was no expenditure for street lighting, collection of garbage and ashes, parks, playgrounds, sewers, comfort station and many other things the city is now called upon to furnish.

In 1849 the city debt was $40,729.21 while today it is about $2,300,000 and the interest account was $2,421.00 while today it is $37,500.

It is interesting to note the tax rate during those years. In 1844 the rate was 5 cents or 50 mills on the net list; in 1845 the same; in 1846 no tax was laid, but in 1847 the tax was 7 cents and in 1848 it was 7 cents. In 1849 the tax had risen to 8 cents on the grand list, this exclusive of town and school taxes. This brought the city an income of $6,600.

Our income from taxes during the present year will be over $350,000.

In 1849 the city's income was $6,600, but they expended nearly $10,000, so it seems that the habit of passing the buck to future generations was well started.

We sometimes sigh for the "good old days," but if we had to pay a 50-mill tax in addition to town and school taxes with a dollar worth at least four times as much as it is today, we would say in the language of one of my legal friends, "God save the Commonwealth of Connecticut and the Providence Plantations."

ALCOHOLISM DEATHS INCREASE AMONG POLICY HOLDERS

Four hundred and eighty-five deaths were reported from alcoholism in 1925 among the more than seventeen million industrial policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. In 1924 deaths from this cause numbered 443. The 1925 death rate, according to the Metropolitan's statistical bureau was 2.9 per 100,000; it was 2.8 for the preceding year.

In 1923—436 deaths from alcoholism were recorded among this class; in 1922, 393 deaths; in 1921, 422 deaths; while in 1920 only 77 deaths were reported with a rate of 4 per 100,000.

The Metropolitan has approximately sixteen millions of industrial policyholders in the United States and approximately one million in Can. During four years, 1922, 1923, 1924 and 1925 there were 1,657 deaths from alcoholism among the holders of these policies in the two countries, of which 1,641 occurred in the United States and only 16 in Canada. Eight of the Canadian deaths were reported from the Province of Ontario.

Deaths from wood and denatured alcohol poisonings numbered 24, as compared with 18 in 1924, 37 in 1923, 26 in 1922 and 71 in 1921.

An appreciable increase is also reported in the mortality from cirrhosis of the liver, which is closely associated with alcoholism. Deaths from this cause numbered 1,116 in 1923, with a rate of 6.8 per 100,000 as compared with 889 deaths and a rate of 5.3 in 1924.

Using Wrong Mailing Wrappers

The New Haven postmaster has asked that attention of all physicians and health officers in the state be specially directed to the fact that many physicians are continuing using, for transporting laboratory specimens, mailing containers with old wrappers bearing the former New Haven laboratory address. This not only causes annoyance to the New Haven post office because postal regulations do not permit the forwarding of such specimens without first corresponding with the addressee, but it also results in so much delay that these perishable specimens are often times received in an unfit condition for examination. Physicians and health officers should correct addresses on wrappers of any old mailing containers in their possession. The gummed labels with new address supplied to all physicians and health officers for this purpose may be used or the address may be corrected in ink to read:

State Department of Health, Bureau of Laboratories, 247 Pearl street, P O Box 1001, Hartford, Conn.

ICE JAM BLOCKS AMERICAN WATERFALL AT NIAGARA

Result of Zero Weather and the Gale Thursday—Ice Jam Extends From Goat Island to the Mainland at Port Day—Venturesome Spectators Were Denied Permission to Walk Across—Harrowing Experience of a Cambridge Man on Whitcomb Summit of the Mohawk Trail.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Jan. 29—(AP)—Thousands of persons today viewed a dry Niagara—one of nature's rarest spectacles. Only a few gallons of water trickled over the American fall because of the formation of an ice jam from Goat Island to the mainland at Port Day.

The jam commenced to form a week ago at Port Day where the river is shallow and the ice moves slowly, high winds loosened ice farther up the river and in Lake Erie, aiding in forming the blockade. The gale Thursday, together with the zero temperature, completed the big dam. The water, which usually slides over the American Falls and drops in a seething mass of foam and spray on the rocks below, was diverted to the Canadian cataract. Under ordinary conditions about 90 per cent. of the volume of water passing over the Falls goes over the Canadian fall.

A number of venturesome spectators were refused permission to walk across to Goat Island from the mainland by reservation officials. When the same phenomenon occurred in 1909 a number of persons walked over the dry river bed.

EXPERIENCE IN BLIZZARD ON WHITCOMB MT, MOHAWK TRAIL

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., Jan. 29—(AP)—A story of a battle with a blizzard comparable to a Jack London tale of the Arctic waste was told today when John J. Williams of Cambridge, a manager of boxers, was brought here from Whitcomb Summit on the Mohawk Trail with hands and ears frozen. Physicians said he probably would lose his left hand.

Williams said the wind in last night's gale threw him from his feet at the Summit, the highest point on Mohawk Trail, and he rolled a mile down the side of the hill. When he recovered his senses, he fought his way back through the blizzard, reasoning that his only way to safety was in facing the blast that had carried him down. After an hour's battle with wind and driving snow, he reached aid. Persons acquainted with the district said that had Williams wandered in any other direction he would have perished in the woods.

With John Andresado, a boxer, who had a bout scheduled in Detroit next Tuesday, Williams left Boston yesterday morning by automobile. The car stalled during a snowstorm near the top of Whitcomb Summit, and the two men induced a farmer to draw it with a team of horses to a garage at the top of the hill. While Williams was using a shovel to clear away snow from the garage, a gust of wind lifted him from his feet, and he dropped over the side of the peak. Rolling or falling, as the nature of the ground decreed, he covered a mile down the steep hillside until he brought up, stunned and bruised, in a clump of trees.

Andresado and another man who had been marooned on the Summit took Williams to a hotel closed for the winter and cared for him, until morning when he was brought to the Curran Memorial Clinic here. Late today he was removed by train to Boston.

FIVE DEATHS BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN CAUSED BY POISON

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 29—(AP)—Five members of the family of Arthur Fulvi, 38, including the father and four children, the victims of poison, were found dead in their home here late today. Two other members of the family, the mother, and Gino Fulvi, 4, were taken to hospitals in a serious condition.

A quantity of wine found on a table was taken to police headquarters for analysis.

The wine was used at a party in the home last night.

Tull, another son, who did not partake of the wine, suffered no ill effects. Examinations of Gino's stomach also revealed traces of poison, hospital physicians declared, but no trace of this poison was found in the mother's organs. There also were burns around the victim's mouth.

The bodies were found by police who were summoned by a neighbor attracted by light taps on the window by the mother before she lapsed into unconsciousness. The neighbor called police after she was unable to get into the house.

Tull Fulvi spent the night with a friend and did not know of his relatives predicament until after the arrival of the police.

DISPLAY OF HEROISM BY COAST ARTILLERY OFFICER

NEW YORK, Jan. 29—(AP)—A land lubber, but a landlubber who also is a fighting man, was added today to the list of heroic men of the sea who rescued the crew of the gale-beaten freighter Antinoe.

Colonel Clint C. Hearn, of the coast artillery, a passenger aboard the President Roosevelt which kept a four-day vigil beside the floundering Antinoe, used his knowledge as a gunnery expert to aid in reaching the imperiled crew.

When the Roosevelt's deck gun boomed sixteen times, and as many times failed to shoot its line across to the Antinoe, it was Colonel Hearns who solved the problem for the seamen. With the rolling ship as his laboratory he devised a spiral coil to be put between projectile and rope to break the shock. Chief Engineer Turner made 13 of the coils.

They worked, and aided materially in establishing contact between the two ships so the rescue could be effected.

HARTFORD, Jan. 29—(AP)—Russell C. Everett, deputy state tax commissioner for the past three years, has resigned to become associated with Herbert E. Formal notice of the acceptance of the resignation was prepared tonight for publication in army orders and for communication to Colonel Mitchell through Brigadied General Samuel D. Hokenbach, commander of the district of Washington. The official order will read:

"The resignation of Colonel William Mitchell, air service, of his commission as an officer of the army is accepted by the president, effective Feb. 1, 1926."

ROCK DUST PREVENTER EXPLOSION IN A MINE

CHICAGO, Jan. 29—(AP)—Rock dust prepared and placed as an accident prevention measure smothered an explosion today in the world's greatest coal mine and turned what otherwise might have been a serious disaster with 1,235 men underground, into a minor accident, which cost five lives. The accident occurred in the new Orient mine of the Chicago, Wilmington and Franklin Coal company at West Frankfort, Illinois.

The great mine with a hoisting capacity of 12,000 tons a day, was planned throughout, workings, shafts and surface structures, before the first breaking of ground. Into the plans went the newest safety measures.

At strategic points throughout the workings, rock dust is stored on platforms easily tilted by the slight rush of air from an explosion.

Obstructionists in French Chamber

Radical-Socialist Group is Endeavoring to Embarrass the Government.

PARIS, Jan. 29—(AP)—The radical and socialist leaders decided today that the financial battle in the chamber is being waged on ground which is unfavorable for them and resolved to change their plans and draw the government, if possible, on to a new field where the radical-socialist chances are better.

It was agreed by the radicals and socialists this morning that the chamber should abandon consideration of the bills they themselves had presented through the chamber finance committee, and take a vote on finance minister Doumer's proposed stamp tax on all business transactions.

Supporters of the government, however, declare that this manoeuvre merely shows the radical-socialist fight is on purely political lines. The procedure asked for by the radical-socialist leaders, it is pointed out, is contrary to parliamentary rules, the finance committee having rejected all of M. Doumer's bills and reported on substitutes, which are the only measures now regularly before the house, with amendments which have been proposed. It is held by the government supporters that the stamp tax can be voted on only as amendment to the measures of the cartel.

The different groups of the cartel will deliberate separately on the question tomorrow morning. The chances are that they will all approve the manoeuver sugested by Leon Blum, the socialist leader, to force a vote on the government plan before the time comes for an issue on their own measures. This skirmish, it is thought in the chamber lobbies, is likely to have a very close finish with the chances in favor of the government in view of the exceptional character of the procedure proposed.

Coming just when the talk of conciliation seemed to justify hope for an early favorable issue of the financial discussions, the radical-socialist move has caused bitter comment among all the groups. Feeling ran high through the afternoon debate in the chamber, in the course of which M. Doumer presented the government's views.

He told the deputies that the time had come for parliament to assume all its responsibilities. He decried the disposition of the parties to throw the blame for the situation on their political adversaries.

WRECK OF BOSTON & MAINE CAUSED THREE FATALITIES

MACHIAS, Me., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Two men and a child were killed and about 20 injured, six or seven rather seriously, late today when a passenger train, bound from Calais to Boston, plunged through Cold Stream bridge on the Washington county branch of the Maine Central railroad, two miles west of Marion, derailing two cars.

The scene of the accident, the cause of which was unknown early this evening, was 15 miles east of this town and 27 miles west of Calais. Doctors and nurses were rushed in a special train from Calais and on a locomotive from here. The injured were to be taken to a hospital at Calais.

The persons killed were reported in official despatches to the railroad officials as Jason Gould of Calais, a Mr. Strout of Millbridge, a child, about two years old, named Hartford from Woodland, near Calais.

Zone Broadcasting In North America

Atlantic, Central, Mountain and Pacific Time Belts Participated Last Night.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP)—After hobnobbing all week with Europe between spells of static and S. O. S. calls, American radio fans "stayed at home" tonight and listened to North America broadcasting by zones. With exception of station WHAG few American broadcasters tried to reach overseas.

Miss Anne Morgan, sister of J. P. Morgan, financier, and Mrs. A. M. Dike, a member of the French Academy of Agriculture, who is a guest of Miss Morgan, broadcast greetings to France from the Richmond Hill, Long Island station. Both speakers used a new Dutch microphone hewn from a solid block of marble.

Promptly at 11 o'clock stations in the eastern and Atlantic time belts of the United States and Canada came on the air, continuing for 15 minutes. When they ceased the central time belt took up the relay to be relieved a quarter of an hour later by the mountain time stations, while the Pacific coast broadcasters completed the programme.

The exchange of programmes with foreign stations, which ended last night with a record of 21 overseas stations having been heard in the United States was a success from a technical standpoint, even though many many small, radio fans were disappointed, the radio week committee asserted.

Percy W. Harris, editor of Radio Press cabled the committee today that last night's programme broadcast from American stations were heard in London and Stuttgart. Both picked up selections by a band and part of a speech from station WJAZ, Chicago, while London also heard station WLW, Cincinnati, which broadcast for 30 hours continuously yesterday, and WGY, Schenectady.

At the same time American listeners heard ten of the 20 overseas stations that were on the air last night.

Tomorrow night the tests will be concluded with more zone broadcasting in which tonight's order of procedure will be reversed. Canadian stations from the Atlantic to Pacific coasts will be on the air the first 15 minutes, followed by stations in the entire northern half of the United States, then by the southern stations and finally by Mexican and Cuban broadcasters.

RUSSIA HEARD AMERICAN JAZZ BY RADIO THURSDAY

MOSCOW, Jan. 29—(AP)—Russia heard American jazz for the first time today from an invisible orchestra across the ocean. At 6 o'clock this morning, (or 11 o'clock Thursday night New York time), when the peasants were just waking up, the lively strains of an American dance tune swept across the Atlantic to Moscow, Leningrad and other big centers where the Russian government maintains wireless stations.

Owing to static interference it was impossible to determine which American station broadcast the melody, but it appeared to be on a wave length of about 500 metres. The lively swing of the music struck the buoyant Slav fancy and the Russians were soon swaying to it. A heavy snow was falling throughout Russia at the time.

MRS. BAKER, WIFE OF PUTNAM DEFAULTING CASHIER, IS PROUD OF HER HUSBAND

HARTFORD, Jan. 29—(AP)—Shortly after Mrs. Guy L. Baker, wife of the defaulting assistant cashier of the First National bank of Putnam, saw her husband, a prisoner in the Hartford county jail, this afternoon, she said that she was "proud of him."

Mrs. Baker had just been heard of in St. Petersburg, Fla., where she had been working as a waitress in a cafeteria.

"I think he has done a wonderful thing," Mrs. Baker said, referring to her husband's confession. "He has always been honest with me and now that he is honest with himself again, he is happy. He wants to take his medicine and I'm proud of him."

"When he gets out, I'll be waiting. Nothing is changed for me, Guy is the only man in my life and will remain so."

In this manner Mrs. Guy Baker refuted the stories that have come from the south reporting that she "had been seen with another man" and that she "was unconcerned over her husband's trouble."

"I tried so hard, to keep from crying when I saw Guy," the woman said. "Except one little time I didn't cry. I wouldn't have him see how badly it made me feel to see him where he is. He has been so wonderful to me. And now I think I'm a good sport."

Mrs. Baker explained that she hadn't come north as soon as she heard of Guy's confession because she couldn't afford it. She admitted that she went to work in a cafeteria.

"I had to do something," she said. "There was no money coming in. I never knew when Guy and I were living together whether he had one cent or a thousand. He never talked over matters with me. He is deep and keeps to himself." Ruth Baker related.

Mrs. Baker was asked if she thought that G. Harold Gilpatric was the cause of her husband's thieving, and starting to answer, caught herself.

"I think he's a wonderful man," she said. "He has many, many friends yet in Putnam. He was so pathetic when I last saw him after he was blind."

Mrs. Baker will return to Florida to work, she said, and will not visit any where in the north.

"I asked Guy this afternoon if he wanted me to stay for the trial and he told me that what he wanted was for me to do what I think best," she said. "It seems best to me that I go where I can work and not be criticised and I can't afford to stay here."

"I have to look out for myself now, don't I?" she half-questioned. "But I'll be waiting when he gets out. Nothing is changed with me."

EXPLOSION KILLED 38 MEN IN COAL MINE IN ALABAMA

Eleven Bodies Have Been Recovered—Twenty Five Men Are Said to Have Been Rescued—Relief Train Has Started From Birmingham With Doctors, Nurses and Mine Rescue Crews.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 29—(AP)—Sixty three miners were trapped late this afternoon in Mossboro mine of the Premier Coal Company near Helena and it is feared 38 of that number are dead. Twenty five men have been brought out alive. The known dead number ten, that many bodies having been recovered.

The mine is in an isolated spot, difficult of access and cut off from fire communication. A relief train was enroute to the scene from Birmingham carrying doctors, nurses and mine rescue crews.

No rescue help is available in the vicinity of the mine except local crews which are said to probably lack experience.

Twelve men were brought out in one group to be followed by another squad of thirteen workers, reports reaching here said.

The mine is not a gaseous property and the cause of the accident is undetermined. Mining men familiar with the physical aspects of the property said they believed a pocket of gas had in some manner accumulated and exploded. The men were entombed just at quitting time.

News of the disaster spread rapidly by means of the "communication of the hill," and within thirty minutes, wives and children and other relatives were about the pit waiting and calling for loved ones. A biting, cold wind added to the misery of those waiting word from their relatives.

He was informed that he was liable to a maximum penalty of a $5,000 fine and two years in a federal penitentiary.

"Well," he observed, after glancing over his quarters in the jail, "it's rather dirty here and I'm not used to dirt."

ACTOR-HUSBAND WOULDN'T FOLLOW ADVICE OF HIS WIFE

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 29—(AP)—If women "pay attention" to a personable man, apt at giving a romantic glow to stories told on the stage, is it his fault?

Foster J. McCarthy, known to playgoers on the Poli circuit in Connecticut as "Foster Williams," a stock player, asked his wife that question, she told Judge Isaac Wolfe in superior court here this afternoon, when she chided him for "running around with other women quite a bit" after his make-believe in the theater was done.

Agnes Zetterstrand McCarthy, whose stage name is "Shirley Gray," said she told her husband to pay no attention to himself when women paid attention to him. "If you don't like it, you know what you can do," she said he told her.

Judge Wolfe granted Mrs. McCarthy a degree of divorce on the ground of desertion and awarded her the custody of her three year old son. When on playing, she resides with her mother on Pauline street, Lordship Manor, Stratford.

OUTRAGES AGAINST NEGROES NEAR TAMPA

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Approximately fifty white men set fire to the sales office of a negro sub-division at Washington park, a northwestern suburb of Tampa, and drove off four special policemen there last night. At police headquarters it was said no report was made until today, and that motorcycle officers have been assigned to the district.

There have been repeated protests against the proposed negro sub-division and J. M. Doble, a negro property owner, recently reported various threats including the placing of a fiery cross before his home.

VIRGINIUS ST. JULIAN MAYO HAS BEEN GRANTED PAROLE

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 29—(AP)—Virginius St. Julian Mayo, 65-year-old New Haven, Conn., manufacturer who is serving a term for bigamy in Sing Sing, was granted a parole today by the state board of parole.

Mayo, who has served more than 8 months of a sentence of one to three years, will be released in three weeks. He was convicted in New York four years ago of marrying Wilhelmina L. Meyer in 1904, when he had a wife living in Scranton, Pa. He fought the conviction for three years, losing in the court of appeals.

GIRL WAS ORDERED TO PAY "PROTECTION MONEY"

BOSTON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Bessie Berger, young and attractive, testified before a jury in federal court today that she was ordered to pay "protection money" by the brother of Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea so that she might sell liquor in her grocery store without police interference. She was called as a witness at the trial of Mayor Quigley, his brother Thomas, who is a police inspector, and 27 other defendants, charged with conspiracy to violate the Volstead act.

Mrs. Berger described a visit to Mayor Quigley at his office and a subsequent call at her store by his brother. She said she had been obliged to pay $35 a week for eight or nine months to an alleged "bagman." In addition, she said, she paid a Chelsea police officer $5 and later $10 weekly. Another officer warned her in advance of raids, she said.

Inspector Quigley informed her, she said, that she should pay O'Keefe $35 a week. This, she said, she did over a period of eight months. Quigley came again, she said, and asked a $100 contribution for the mayor's campaign. With him, she said, was "Dutch" Henry, another defendant. She finally gave him $50, she testified.

Officer Edward W. Isbester, another defendant, called later, she declared, demanding $10 a week for permitting her to sell liquor and protecting her.

TO AID PROVE IDENTITY OF HENRY D. HUMMEL

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Several persons who knew Abe Hummel, once a noted New York lawyer, and recalled his friendship with Lelia Farrell, former opera singer of this city, today proffered their services to aid in proving that Henry D. Hummel of South Portland, youthful bake-cart driver, is Abe Hummel's son and entitled to share in the lawyer's estate.

Henry Hummel advanced no claim to the estate until a nephew of the New York lawyer cabled from London, where Abe Hummel died last week that his uncle never had a son, and that the pretensions of the South Portland youth were baseless. Today Henry engaged counsel to defend his claim, and old friends flocked to his assistance.

A dramatic story of the boy's boyhood and of the attitude towards him of the man he says was his father was told by Mrs. Emma S. Knight for many years a resident of Portland, and a life long friend of his mother, Lelia Farrell. Mrs. Knight said she recalled clearly a visit by Abe Hummel to the home of Henry's grandmother, Mrs. Cyrus Jellerson, when the latter was living in this city. She remembered that Hummel had referred to the infant Henry as "my boy" and had purchased a baby carriage for him.

CANDIDATE FOR REPUBLICAN NOMINATION FOR GOVERNOR

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 29—(AP)—Judge Albert M. Mathewson of New Haven, made known his candidacy for the republican gubernatorial nomination tonight, coupling with the announcement a denunciation of J. Henry Roraback, republican state chairman, and the political condition of the state.

Conspicuous among the Ullman, or anti-state organization republican forces of New Haven, Judge Mathewson, in an interview, asserted he would not consider the nomination under present conditions, but "if the people of the state should demand my nomination it would certainly be an honor to serve them as governor."

It must be decided now whether Roraback is the state or whether the voters have some voice in making their laws, said the former judge of New Haven city court. To repudiate the party now in power in the state and place the democratic party in charge of government would be "jumping out of the frying pan into the fire," he said. The alternative is that "some man must be nominated for governor who is strong enough and independent enough to remedy the evils which now exist. If I am that man I have pledged my best powers to accomplish results," he concluded.

CARDINAL MERCIER'S BODY IN ITS FINAL RESTING PLACE

MALINES, Belgium, Jan. 29.—(AP)—As the famous Malines carillon pealed forth funeral music, the body of Belgium's great war prelate, Cardinal Mercier, was lowered into its final resting place, a crypt in the Cathedral of St. Rombaut, today. Thus, in the presence of ecclesiastical authorities of the diocese, the members of his family and his two faithful servants, Frans and Virginie, the beloved cardinal was entombed in accordance with a tradition dating back to 1539.

Cardinal Mercier now reposes beside the mortal remains of his twelve predecessors in the Malines archbishopric. Fourteen cardinals have been enshrined in the cathedral, but the two oldest sarcophagi have been disintegrated with age and no trace of them is left. Burials in the crypt were forbidden in 1843, but Cardinal Mercier pleaded with the government in 1920 that it permit the burial of his body in the cathedral crypt, thus carrying out the ancient custom.

SALVATION ARMY DRIVE FALLS SHORT OF MARK

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 29—Hampered by the freshness of a series of drives, intensely cold weather and the general lethargy which follows the holidays, the Salvation Army annual campaign for a sustaining fund of $3,000 fell before its mark, the sum of $1,300 being reported at the closing meeting Friday night. This amount does not, however, include pledges and contributions which are expected within the next few days. In the opinion of the leaders the campaign will net approximately $1,600. The Tag Day, which was to have been held in this city on Saturday, as a conclusion to the campaign, has been postponed until milder weather. The day is expected to bring in a substantial sum. Profiting by experience it was decided to stage the next annual campaign in November, during fairer weather and previous to the holiday season.

Chairman F. F. Hill, of this city and Campaign Director Eldred A. McCabe, of Hartford, were optimistic in their talks at the supper Friday night. There was every evidence, they said, that the campaign had failed to reach its quota due to seasonal handicaps and not through lack of interest or moral support on the part of the populace. The two highest reports were made by Team Captains Donald Crane and Clarence Stedman respectively. Mrs. Walter Abbe, who canvassed the South Windham district single handed, announced the gratifying sum of $125, with more contributions outstanding. This was considered excellent support on the part of the little village.

HERE'S A RECORD FOR SOMEONE TO BETTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 29—Seventy-two griddle cakes and five cups of coffee made up the unusual breakfast of a local man, Friday morning, who had wagered that he could eat at least 60 of the cakes. He went "over the top", as it were. After eating this breakfast, which would have sufficed for all the patrons of a boarding house the man calmly rose. It was expected that "something" would happen to him but he merely remarked, "Well, now I don't eat again until noontime." At this point the man who had called the wager stepped up to the counter and paid the bill. The feat was performed in a local restaurant and witnessed by Thomas F. Shea and Joseph Sullivan.

FIRE WAS EVIDENTLY OF INCENDIARY ORIGIN

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 29—Incendiarism was given Friday as the cause of the fire which badly gutted an unoccupied cottage at 31 Willowbrook street, owned by Aaron Peck, about midnight Thursday. As states in Friday morning's Bulletin the origin of blaze was questionable at the time. Investigation by daylight Friday convinced Fire Chief Henry J. Kelley that the fire had been set in two places in and near the base of the chimney which was located about in the center of the building. The inside of the chimney was ablaze when the firemen arrived. Practically every room in the building was gutted. The amount of insurance carried on the building was given Friday as $2,500 which is said not to fully cover the damage.

Following some petting on the back that the weather had been remarkably fine so far this winter, Friday, calendar day for the month of February, dawned with local thermometers registering as much as four below the zero mark. Thursday morning about 8 o'clock the mercury went as high as 55 degrees. During the day a cold snap, accompanied by a high wind, brought the reading down considerably and in most places it was about zero or but a few degrees above at midnight Thursday night. At six o'clock Friday morning Mail Carrier Dwight W. Ide, of High street, looked at his thermometer and found it showing four below. The wind "cut" through all types of protection against the cold.

Ernest A. Gleason paid a fine of $25 and costs amounting to $9.10, after pleading guilty in the borough court Friday morning to the charge of passing a worthless check. The check which was for $22.50 was drawn on Dec. 31 to the order of the commissioner of motor vehicles for the registration of a Ford truck. The truck was duly registered and the number plates sent to Mr. Gleason. When the check reached the First National bank of Stafford Springs it was ascertained that Gleason had not sufficient funds in the bank to cover the check. State police at the local barracks were instructed to secure the number plates and return them to the motor vehicle commissioner. This was done and the case reported to the prosecuting attorney of the borough court, with the subsequent arrest and prosecution of Mr. Gleason. Mr. Gleason had only just left the court room when State Policeman Hardesty brought in F. H. Meeker, who said his home was in Plainville, but who has been working in this vicinity for several months. Meeker pleaded guilty to passing three checks without having funds in the bank with which to pay. The checks were all drawn on the Plainville Trust company, one on Dec. 12, 1925, for $5 was given to L. F. Dorman and by Dorman was endorsed to Archie Sanger. On Jan. 16th, Meeker gave H. M. Hansen, of West Willington, a check for $50, and on Jan. 19th, H. G. Bugbee was paid a bill of $39 with one of Meeker's checks. Both of these checks had been protested, as there was not sufficient funds to meet them when they reached the bank. Judge Heald gave Mr. Meeker a bit of kindly advice as to the seriousness of the offense and then imposed a fine of $25 and costs of $9.60, which the accused paid. He also deposited money enough to cover the three checks and protest fees. Mr. Gleason also agreed to take up his check drawn on the commissioner of motor vehicles.

NATIVE SAMOANS WILL RETAIN FEAST OF DEATH

PAGO PAGO, Samoa, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The Death Feast, an institution which has been handed down to each succeeding generation of native Samoans from the earliest times, will not be abandoned at present, the assembly of titled chieftains has decided. In this decision His Excellency Henry F. Bryan, captain of the U. S. Navy and present governor of American Samoa, has acquiesced.

In its inroads, western civilization has abolished many of the picturesque social or tribal customs of the Islands, but the primitive method of showing respect for the dead will not be outlawed until the Samoan people themselves are ready for the change.

A resolution to do away with the ceremony was defeated in the American Samoa Annual Fono. The Fono is an assembly of titled chiefs who meet each year to confer with the officials of the administration, and is presided over by the naval governor in person.

The Samoans believe that the proper way to honor the dead is to gorge themselves with food, then yell, chant or sing their hymns of sorrow until they fall asleep from exhaustion. The food is furnished by the family or clan of the deceased. All people are at liberty to partake of the feast. Food usually consists of pigs roasted whole, taro, breadfruit, baked bananas, fish, bread and perhaps keg beef bought from the traders' store.

The main objection lies in the fact that a family which has been unfortunate to lose one of its members may be unduly impoverished in upholding the custom. This is especially so in the case of high chiefs whose family connections combine several villages. The cost of the great amount of food sometimes so impoverishes the entire community that it does not recover financial comfort for months.

Governor Bryan in closing the discussion of the resolution of abolition said:

"The majority of the Samoan people are against the resolution, therefore it cannot be made a law. It is a Samoan custom, and it is for the Samoans to change their customs in accordance with their own desires."

Governor Bryan summarized the policy of the administration for 1926 as "Lesser taxation, improving of the school system, a progressive road-building program, better health facilities for the Samoan people and encouragement for a larger output of copra."

The chiefs expressed confidence in the naval administration and promised the loyal support of the Samoan people to any measure taken by the governor for the betterment of Samoa.

"WITCH DOCTOR" UNDER ARREST IN WATERBURY

HARTFORD, Jan. 29.—An East Longmeadow "witch doctor" who is alleged to have been guilty of serious offences upon the daughters of Wethersfield patients from whom he drove out evil spirits was arrested tonight in Waterbury. He was Thomas Mandato, 53 years old, whose home is in East Longmeadow, Mass. His offenses which are alleged to date back to 1923 were brought to light after an investigation by State Policeman Honeyman.

By his charms and gestures Mandato claimed to drive out evil spirits from the sick and well it was said.

A warrant for the man's arrest was issued recently by Grand Juror Joseph Maurice of Wethersfield. Five girls ranging between 7 and 14 years old were said to have been his victims. The state police will probably investigate the section where he was known. Mandato, who was detained at the Hartford police station tonight, will be arraigned before Justice of the Peace Howard Dunham in Wethersfield at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

BAG PIPE RETURNS TO FAVOR AS JAZZ BAND INSTRUMENT

GLASGOW, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The bagpipe, which was threatened for a while last spring when an American jazz operetta introduced the saxophone to Scotland, has come back into its own. The bag pipe was recently introduced in a jazz band here and in this new role has been going strong ever since. Only large men are engaged as jazz bag pipe players because of the necessity of having individuals with an enormous lung expansion who are capable of keeping pace with the saxophone and double quick time.

PROPOSE NORTHEAST CANADA TO MEXICO CITY HIGHWAY

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—(AP)—A highway extending from Northwest Canada to Mexico City will be considered at an international traffic conference held in connection with the convention of the American Road Builders' Association here Jan. 11-15.

The proposed highway would be created by connecting roads already in existence into a unified link between the two extremes of the continent.

Charles M. Babcock, road magnate, will make the opening address at the conference.

CHEVROLET

Improved!

A Type of Performance Never Before Obtained In Any Low Priced Car

Thousands have already driven the Improved Chevrolet.

They know its new smoothness, new stamina, new swiftness of acceleration.

They know that in performance it completely dwarfs every Chevrolet achievement of the past and that it ranks as the finest Chevrolet in Chevrolet history.

And if you are one who has not yet been behind the wheel, you have more than a treat in store. You have yet to experience a type of performance never before offered in any low priced car.

A performance so effortless, so smooth, so powerful, so spirited and thrilling in every phase, that you will call it nothing short of a revelation!

Chevrolet's leadership has been based on giving quality at low cost.

Now the Improved Chevrolet gives another reason for an even wider margin of leadership—performance the equal of which has heretofore been unattainable in the low-price field.

True, the Improved Chevrolet is easier-riding. True, there is striking beauty in the New Duco finishes. True, Chevrolet prices are lower. But the one great and outstanding reason why you and every other motorist should drive this splendid car, is to experience the matchless performance it now introduces.

Drive where you will—and as long as you like, through traffic, through sand, through mud, over hills—and over mountains, if you please. Expect something really new, really worthwhile, something really unique—and you will not be disappointed.

DANIELSON

RADIO FANS UNABLE TO GET EUROPEAN STATIONS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 29—Tonight brings the close of the week of international radio broadcast tests. There will be few regrets here or hereabouts. Receptions of foreign stations have been practically nil, and owners of sets have in the great majority tired of trying to hear a station from abroad. Static, Aurora Borealis, storms and SOS signals after all contributed to banish the fond hopes of achieving results that were entertained by the great majority of the fans when they started out on the big adventure last Sunday evening. Meanwhile they have lost a great deal of sleep and more or less patience.

It would appear that international broadcasting is as yet quite beyond the apparatus, both sending and receiving, now in general use. A Brooklyn man tells of having heard the music of a violin during the "silent" hour of Thursday night, but could not get the broadcaster's station letters. It likely was a foreign station and an effort at confirmation is to be made. This, however, is an exceptional case. The average set owner has not heard Europe this week in this territory.

Thursday night brought a howling gale as an additional feature of the rough weather of the week. As it swept out over the Atlantic it must have enveloped the European concerts meant for people on this side and brushed them back again. There must be a whale of a cargo of music somewhere on the waste of waters off the coast of England, doomed to roam about there for evermore, as do some of the phantom ships on one reads about.

An alarm from Box 24, called out the fire department at 1:35 Friday afternoon for attention to a threatening situation at Keech's store in the Heneault block on lower Main street. An overheated furnace set up a little blaze in the register and smoke began to fill the store. Little effort was required to bring the situation under control. A considerable volume of smoke issued from the store for a few minutes, but there was very little, if any damage to the stock.

The hoboes have adopted a new wrinkle to beat Danielson's ban against giving them free lodgings and of shooing them on their way. They are getting aboard trains and motor coaches these days, without money to pay their way and for the special purpose of being arrested for evading payment of fair. That scheme may not work to their liking if the continue to practice it. There is such a thing within the province of the court as to list a series of charges against them, including vagrancy, and giving them a much longer jail sentence than they desire.

President William Sangster of the Chamber of Commerce has named the following committees for the ensuing year: Entertainment, Henry Johnson, chairman, Walter Anderson, Harry E. Bitgood, Harry E. Back; advertising, Burdette C. Hopkins, chairman, Alfred L. Reed, M. H. Berthiaume, Jr., Herbert J. Barnett, Goodyear road, Harry E. Back, D. Fred Kenworthy, Burdette C. Hopkins; governor's reception, Walter Anderson, chairman.

Hundreds are again enrolled in the Christmas clubs conducted by Danielson's banking institutions. Indications now are that last December's releases of well over $100,000, will be eclipsed here in December of this year.

Having evened matters for last week's defeat at Baltic by taking Thursday night's game, here, from the All Stars of that place, the Danielson town basketball team now looks forward to other victories. Danielson has a fine team that is playing in good form.

Considering what one hears of railroad plans to run exceedingly long freight trains over the local branch of the New Haven road, it is recalled that nothing ever came of a plan talked of a dozen years ago of developing a big storage freight yard in Danielson. One additional siding was put in and that was all.

There are sportsmen over that way who would interest the state fish and game commission in making Blackwell's brook one of the especially stocked streams of the state. It is a big splendid brook, running through miles of territory and always has been regarded as good fishing.

In these days of fuel considerations, there are many who like to have the old ties for firewood that the railroad company has been burning up along its right of way hereabouts for a number of years.

Out door workers found it so cold at some occupations during Friday that they had to quit for the day, something that has been rare hereabouts during the present winter.

John Stowboski of New Bedford, a former resident in Danielson, is spending the week end with friends in town.

Mid-year examinations were completed Friday by students at Killingly High school, and there are few regrets that this feature of the year's work is now a thing of the past.

As yet comparatively few motor vehicle owners in this section have taken out renewal of their operators' licenses. The current licenses do not expire until February 28, so they still have about a month's leeway.

The more or less steady drop in the price of eggs for several weeks past has been checked in great degree of late, but further reductions are promised during February. Thousands of dozens of eggs produced in this territory are going into the Providence market through collectors who cover the neighboring towns.

Earl F. Wood, member of the faculty of Brown university, has been a visitor with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Wood, of Academy street.

If the habit of thrift is acquired when young by depositing in the savings department of the Windham County National bank, it brings happiness in old age, through a sense of security.—Adv.

It was noted by some who believe in such things that Friday was calendar day for February. A pleasant prospect.

The weekly vaudeville shows at the Orpheum theater on Friday attracted the usual large attendance.

It was a matter of only one minute and forty seconds from the time the alarm began to ring from Box 24 Friday afternoon, when the Captain Put Engine company was on its way out of the central fire station to respond to the alarm. Such records as these are not surpassed anywhere by volunteer fire departments.

Steaming or frozen radiators were too common during Friday's cold weather to suit motorists who found it necessary to get out their machines. The cold snap boosted the sales of radiator alcohol.

Killingly's board of relief is to hold its first session of 1926 in the town hall building, the first of the month.

Arthur A. Selden of Springfield was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Friday.

Members of the Baptist church here plan to show their sympathy for Rev. Charles G. Chilton and his congregation of Norwood, R. I., which lost a church by fire recently, by contributing to a rebuilding fund.

One hears of a string of pickerel taken from Old Killingly pond in which the fish averaged from a pound and a quarter to a pound and a half. This body of water does not yield great catches, but occasionally a very good one.

Temperatures ranging from two below to eight below zero were recorded here Friday morning. The weather was made particularly trying by the high northwest wind that prevailed.

Henry Nadeau, son of Mrs. Clara Nadeau of School street, is resting comfortably and improving at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, after undergoing a surgical operation a week ago.

The number of interesting things to be considered promises to make next Tuesday evening's meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of more than ordinary interest.

James Delisda has so far recovered from a recent eye infection as to be able to resume his work at the plant of the Jacobs Manufacturing company.

JEWETT CITY

ANNUAL FIREMEN'S BALL A DECIDED SUCCESS

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 29.—The twenty-eighth annual concert and ball of A. A. Young, Jr., H. & L. Co., No. 1, was held Friday evening in the Finn Opera house. The stage had been arranged by Schwartz, of Norwich, as a reception room, which greatly enhanced the beauty of the colorful scene on the dance floor. The grand march was led by Foreman Walter Field and his daughter, Miss Althea Field. They were followed by the officers of the Hose Co., and visiting firemen and guests. The music was by Harry Sharpe's Singing orchestra and entertainers, of Putnam. They gave a concert from eight to nine, the selections being: March, G. H. E. S., Roland F. Seitz; medley (Home Songs), Gustave Schumann; cornet solo, Aldah Folka, Losey, Joseph Diggett; Prisoner's Song, waltz, Gus Massey; sapophone solo, Saxophobes, Rudy Widoett, Adolph Bernier.

A dance programme of twenty-four numbers followed the concert. The committees who were in charge were: Master of ceremonies, Walter Field; floor director, Edward Walsh; aides, Leslie Hyde, Ed. Bryant, Walter Benjamin, John W. Blake, Austin Harris, Hector Sibellea ud; reception committee William Grenier, Louise Messer, Eugene Carroll, Thomas Wakely, Matthew Geary; committee of arrangements, Eugene Carroll, Walter Field, Austin Harris, Clovis Canavant, Mose Loranger.

The meeting of the Pachaug Community club was not as largely attended as usual Thursday evening as the weather was so very cold. The executive committee was in charge of the programme, which opened with community singing. Prentice W. Chase sang several solos, one with violin and piano accompaniment. The Ashland orchestra furnished several enjoyable selections. The members of the orchestra are Arlene Dugas, violin; Harold Tomlinson, banjo; Austin Harris, drum; Odna Dugas, piano. Susan Terry played a piano solo. Mr. Chase gave a talk on Life Saving and a male quartette, Stephen Peckham, W. B. Montgomery, Eino Karjarla and Harold Geer sang an illustrated song, The Old Oaken Bucket. Miss Sadie Thompson accompanied by Miss Ethel Thompson, sang a solo. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served. The committee for February is Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood, Susie Morgan and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burton.

Finn's, today, mat. and eve. Tom Mix in Everlasting Whisper.—adv.

The Jewett City Chamber of Commerce has issued invitations to an entertainment given by the Southern New England Telephone Co., on February 10th, in Rioux hall. There will be moving pictures, and a demonstration by telephone operators, using a model switchboard which will take the public behind the scenes and show how telephone calls are handled.

Capacity audiences witnessed the recent showing of Little Annie Rooney at Finn theatre.

Emory Campbell returned Friday from a two weeks' stay at the Backus hospital.

Mrs. Mary Swift and Miss Hazel Swift of Norwich, were guests of Mrs. E. H. Hiscox and Mrs. Ella Geer on Friday.

Eugene Maynard, of Lebanon, who won the Connecticut state fiddlers' championship contest at the Capitol theatre, in Hartford, is a cousin of Mrs. W. J. Robertson, Jr., and George Sparks of this place. Twenty-six old-time fiddlers took part.

Many Jewett City friends were much grieved to learn of the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Kingsley in Norwich. She was a frequent visitor at the home of her sister, Mrs. John T. Stewart, and many local people had become well acquainted with her.

PILL-SLAVE FREED FROM CONSTIPATION

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brought natural relief in a few weeks

A remarkable, convincing tribute is paid Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in this letter from Mr. F. C. Aminsen, of Seattle:

"I suffered with chronic constipation for many years and was compelled to use pills every night, but since I got your Kellogg's ALL-BRAN it works fine. I would not be without it. I was so deathly sick of taking pills every night. Now it is so different. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN works so naturally and is pleasant to take."

F. C. AMINSEN,
Kenmbole, Seattle, Washington.

You can get permanent relief from constipation with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN if eaten regularly. Two tablespoonfuls daily—or in chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend it because it is ALL BRAN. It does a job only ALL-BRAN can do. Part-bran products may not do any good at all.

Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or cream. Use it in cooking. Try the recipes given on the package. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek, Michigan. Served by the leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by grocers.

PUTNAM

LEARN OF DEATH IN CHINA OF MISS PHOEBE K. BEARD

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 29—Word has been received here of the death in Foochow, China, on December 23, of Miss Phoebe K. Beard, oldest daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Beard. Her parents are missionaries who have made their home in China for many years but who have made occasional trips to America. All of their children, five girls and one boy, were sent here to be educated. Phoebe Beard was born in China, June 18, 1895 but she attended the public schools here and was graduated from Putnam High school in 1915. She then went to Oberlin, Ohio, where she took the four year course in Oberlin college.

For two years she taught school in Berlin, Conn. She returned to China in 1921 and became a teacher in one of the best known schools of Foochow. She had a good working knowledge of the language and was interested in Chinese customs and life.

About a year ago she suffered a nervous breakdown, which is believed to have been the cause of her death. Her mother had been on a recent visit to this country and was in Putnam in November, 1925. She reached her daughter's bedside just one day before she died.

News of the girl's death was received by her aunt, Miss Emma Kinney, Putnam librarian, and her uncle, Elbert C. Kinney. Miss Beard leaves many friends in this city who will learn with regret of her untimely death.

There is probably no organization in the city that has given or is giving more time and means to real charitable work than the Women's Catholic Welfare council. At the annual meeting reports showed that there are 33 families and 177 children who have been helped, many of whom are still being helped by this organization.

It has all been done in a quiet day with no calls for public aid. To the retiring president, Mrs. Michael Keefe, and to the chairman of the social service section, Mrs. Stett Macdonald, the members are giving great credit for their tireless work.

The newly elected officers are: President, Miss Ada Maynard; vice president, Mrs. Stett McDonald, secretary; Mrs. Armand Montville, treasurer Mrs. Michael Keefe.

At the annual meeting of St. Philips Episcopal church, which was held in the guild room, the following officers were elected: Executive committee, lay vice chairman, Leonard H. Meller, Frank F. Russell, David Hust, Arthur Chadwick, Jerome Andrews, Joseph Shepard; clerk, Pierre H. Myers; treasurer, Andrew V. Frost; delegate to the archdeaconry session, at Willimantic on February 3, Pierre H. Muers alternate, Jerome Andrews, delegate to convention at New Haven Pierre H. Myers; alternate, Frank F. Russell.

The Putnam League of Women Voters, in cooperation with the Putnam Teachers association, will hold an all day school for the study of parliamentary law on Friday, February 5 at Odd Fellows Hall.

Mrs. George Twiss, president of the Putnam League of Women Voters and Mrs. Walter Rich president of the Putnam Parent Teachers association will conduct the meetings.

Mrs. James S. Cheesman of Providence, who for years has been active in the Women's clubs and Parent Teachers' associations of Rhode Island and who is now regional director of the New England states for the National League of Women Voters, will conduct the school.

Mrs. Cheesman is well qualified in parliamentary procedure having studied it for years and having served at large National conventions, as parliamentarian.

Any person in Putnam or the surrounding towns who wishes to attend the school, may do so. A special invitation has been extended to the Leagues of Women Voters in Windham county, as well as to the members of the Parent Teachers' association in the county.

The Valentine Tea, which is one of the principal annual events of the Woman's Board of the Day Kimball hospital is to be held next month at Odd Fellows hall. No effort will be spared to have it equal or surpass the Valentine Tea of other years. The booth committees are:

Candy, Mrs. S. M. Wheelock, chairman, Mrs. Gladys Wicks, Mrs. Nathan Weed and Mrs. Natalie Harris; flowers, Mrs. Herbert Bowen, chairman, Mrs. Luis deFlores, Mrs. Sherman Whipple, Webster, Charles Swain and Louis Ream; fancy work, Mrs. Silas Wheelock, chairman, Mrs. Alfred Reed, Danielson, Mrs. Herbert J. Smith; food table, Mrs. Geo. Bradley, chairman, Mrs. George L. Sampson, Woodstock, Mrs. Sydney Bard; Brooklyn; books, Miss Florence Wiley, Thompson, chairman, assisted by Eric Burtt; valentines and fish pond, Miss Elizabeth Rafferty, Miss Elizabeth Wheelock.

Afternoon tea will be in charge of Miss Sarah Crosby, chairman, Miss Lucy Olney, Miss Edith Sheldon, of Thompson, with a corps of attractive waitresses; supper, Mrs. John Bates, chairman, Mrs. Arthur Metcalf, Mrs. Ill. Mrs. George Butts and Mrs. George Young, Woodstock, Mrs. Florence Watson, Thompson, Mrs. Harry Porter and Mrs. Kenworthy of Danielson; dancing, Mrs. Charles Cushman, Pomfret, chairman, Miss Virginia Elliott and Miss Mary Bradford, Thompson, and Miss Sylvia Wheelock, Putnam.

Over 100 members attended the whist conducted by the members of the Women's Catholic Welfare council at the roms of the Knights of Columbus on Union street. Twenty tables were in play. The prize for ladies' high score was won by Mrs. Edmund Keane, a table runner; the second prize, an apron, by Mrs. Thomas Denning. Leo Giraca and John M. Horan scored the same among the men and on a cut, a box of cigars went to Mr. Giraca, while Mr. Hogan secured a pair of silk hose. A special prize of a $5 gold piece was won by Armand J. Montville.

After the last game a musical act was given by Miss Rachel Cain at the piano, George Lajeunnesse, banjo and violin and P. Edgar Lucier, banjo ukelele and vocal selections.

Refreshments of fruit punch and fancy wafers were served by the ladies of the council.

Frank Torrey and Luis T. Webber of Cambridge, Mass., have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Whitney of School street.

Mrs. George Sampson of Woodstock, is the guest of her daughter, Miss Harriet Sampson of New York city.

Thomas Delisle of Putnam, Conn., has been appointed administrator of the estate of Albany Delisle, late of Putnam by Probate Judge David A. Flagg.

John R. Brown of Fitchburg, Mass. has brought suit in Worcester county for the annulment of his marriage to Josephine Fenton of Worcester. He alleges that at the time of their marriage she was the wife of Alexander White of Sydney, Nova Scotia. They formerly lived in Putnam where Brown was employed at a textile mill.

Mrs. Gertrude Austin has been the guest of her son, Earl Austin and his family on Woodstock avenue, for the past week.

Miss Agnes Mathieu and Miss Juliette Brodeur have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Auguste Blanchette of Lowell, Mass., for the past week.

Mrs. Sarah Curtis, of Worcester, Mass., has returned to her home, after a visit of two weeks with her cousin, Mrs. Ellsworth Bixby of East Thompson.

Charles E. Ross, vice president and general manager of the Hamilton-Brown Shoe company, St. Louis, Mo., and Mr. and Mrs. Emory C. Munyan, of Worcester, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell D. Ross of Main street.

Sherwood Connell, of Worcester, has been spending a few days with his parents on Walnut street.

STILL DEADLOCKED

When the miners and operators were called into conference in Philadelphia there was nothing to indicate that there was any possibility of their getting together. No plan had been proposed which both sides endorsed and there had been no evidence that either side was willing to yield from the position which had been previously taken. Nevertheless there was no harm in trying. Time might as well be spent that way as any other, for even if they didn't come to an agreement they would be no worse off than as if they hadn't met.

But thus far it is certain that the prospect of getting together is no brighter. Each side has sought a new angle of attack without result. There is a refusal by each side of propositions which have been previously advanced. An old plan slightly changed and given a new name doesn't alter the decision. The one big bone of contention is arbitration as a means of preventing further shutdowns in the anthracite industry and the longer the strike continues the stronger such a requirement appeals to the coal consuming public.

But with January almost gone and the consumer able to get substitutes he is getting a convincing lesson that henceforth he has less and less to fear from troubles in the coal regions. He has learned that he is no longer dependent upon hard coal and he is daily becoming better and better acquainted with other fuel which produces good, if not better, results and costs him less money. Heretofore the coal consumer has made a great holler which has reacted to the advantage of the miner. That doesn't prevail today. The consumer has gotten sick of playing such a part and then having an additional burden slapped upon himself. He is now concerned with his own welfare. He is rooting for himself and as he takes good care to lookout for No. 1 he is getting a most valuable lesson concerning future conduct. A great many who never knew any fuel but hard coal have long since taken steps which mean that no more of such fuel will ever be dumped into their cellars. The anthracite coal miner and operator know what that means.

IDLE YOUTH

Juvenile delinquency is a problem that bothers many a community and many a state. Efforts to remedy the situation have had varying results. In some cases there have been improvements; in others such can hardly be said. In the past few years the great increase in crime among young people has directed increased attention in this direction.

After a consideration of the problems existing in that state the children's law commission of Rhode Island has made the recommendation that youths in that state must either continue in school until they are 18 or go to work. They leave school under the present compulsory age limit of 16 years unless lawfully employed. From the study the commission has given to this matter it is believed that such a requirement would keep them away from the places where crime is bred. The commission doesn't indicate its preference. It isn't working in the interest of increased education entirely, but it believes that it is far preferable that such be made compulsory than to permit those who leave school at 16 and then proceed to do nothing but congregate and lay the foundation for criminal futures.

Such a situation is one that ought to be met by the parents. But it is because of parental pampering or the failure of parental responsibility that too many young people are without something to do and devoting their efforts to conduct and associations that lead to trouble and the courts instead of doing something for their mental and moral uplift.

From the experience of the commission those who are working or those going to school do not have the time, or so much inclination, to develop undesirable traits. Many a youth has no desire to go to school beyond the age of 16, and some balk at going as long as that but it is invariably the case that they are anxious to get to work. To such the proposed law would not apply. It is intended to hit the idlers who are a handicap to themselves and a menace to others.

A POWERFUL LESSON

Just about the last thing one would expect to see is the conviction of a policeman, the representative of the law, for first degree murder. Yet that is what has occurred in New York and sentence to electrocution is to be expected. It is frequently the case that a policeman uses his gun, in an endeavor to halt criminals, in a manner that causes him to be held for a hearing, but in this case the policeman has demonstrated himself to have been all that such an official should not be. In the first place he was praying upon business men because of the fact that he was the wearer of brass buttons. He was demanding lower prices, preferred treatment and the loan of money because he was a policeman. As might be expected such an attitude was resented. It was apparently tolerated till it got to the point where a halt had to be called, and when that halt was called he pulled his gun into play to back up his demands. That resulted in a complaint being lodged against him and as he was brought face to face with his accuser in the police station he whipped out his gun and shot his accuser dead.

In the same manner that he expected to get away with his plundering as a policeman, he sought to have his act excused under the plea that he had been drinking. It didn't work. He was declared to have known what he was doing, even if he had had some drinks, and his conviction followed as a logical result of the evidence.

Apparently this man has been operating under the impression that the law applies to everyone except a policeman and that he has the right to take, demand and do anything. He has paid a high price for his enlightenment, but it is to be hoped that if there are any others who are laboring under the same impressions that he did that they will take the lesson home to themselves. The prompt trial and conviction of such an individual should have a beneficial effect upon conditions in the police circles of the big city. It savors too much of conditions under a New York police officer whose execution occurred only a few years ago.

SAFE AND SANE FOURTH

Fourth of July is some distance away but there cannot fail to be interest in the statement which is made by Surgeon General Blue concerning the necessity of giving attention each year to the importance of safety and sanity.

It has not been forgotten that the safe and sane celebration of the Fourth was advocated for the purpose of reducing the frightful death and accident list. Such a sacrifice did not represent patriotism. That could be more effectively displayed in some other way. It was a display of the results of reckless observance of the nation's birthday which left nothing but regrets.

The efforts put forth in behalf of a reform of such a celebration were thoroughly justified. They have accomplished much, but they have not done as much as they should. Surgeon General Blue points to the fact that last Independence day there were 111 persons killed in 36 states and a total of 1030 persons injured, and of the latter number 143 will probably lose the sight of one or both eyes.

The proper observance of the Fourth doesn't call for anything of the kind. There is the chance of accidents at any celebration but too many of those on this holiday are the result of an absolute disregard for safety and the failure to encourage a sane celebration. Children of course figure prominently in the casualty list but that is to a large degree due to a lack of proper guidance.

The needless waste of human life and limb may well get due consideration at all times, but when it is so comparatively easy to prevent it on such an occasion, and when the requirements are known so far in advance, there is good reason for the general cooperation that will greatly reduce such a loss of life and such a long list of injured. Plans for the safe and sane observance of the Fourth need to be formulated some time in advance of the night before.

PREMIER KATO

Japan has a new problem to deal with as the result of the death of Premier Kato. Whenever a man of such strength is suddenly taken away from the control of affairs it is apt to mean changes of a more far reaching character than simply filling the vacancy.

Premier Kato has been a guiding influence in Japan of no mean calibre. He has been obliged to face some big problems and he has dealt with them in a manner that has apparently given satisfaction at home. There have been international as well as internal difficulties, and he has been closely identified with Japanese affairs even before he was selected as premier. He has played a conspicuous part in determining and carrying out the policy of Japan and in the changing and establishing of treaty relations with other countries and having a bearing upon the far eastern situation.

He has been in the post of responsibility during particularly trying times, having guided affairs prior to during and since the world war and having taken a prominent part in connection with certain of China's problems and his death removes his influence at a time when an important international conference is underway in China and when a clash between soviet and Manchurian forces has been threatened. Kato's premiership has been favored with plenty of problems. He has faithfully served his country and it remains to be seen whether his statesmanship and policies are displayed by another.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The things that sometimes change the course of human events are in themselves so apparently trivial as to make one almost believe that blind chance is the determining factor. It is more likely that it is the way God takes to let the weak things of the world confound the mighty. I have in mind one of the decisive battles of history that changed the course of events in more than one continent. It was the battle of New Orleans fought 111 years ago this month. One cannot help wondering if the result would not have been different if the original plan of the British had been carried out. It was expected that Wellington, whose military genius was fully equal to that of Jackson's, would conduct the campaign, but at the last moment he was shunted off to another quarter, and in his place, Sir Edward Packenham, his brother-in-law, was sent. Packenham, however, was not to be compared to either Wellington or Jackson. Was this change mere luck or was it providential?

Other things seemed to conspire to make it a glorious American victory. First, the British uniformly underrated American military ability. They could no understand why tactics partly learned from native savages could under any circumstances, compete with their more scientific methods. The severe lesson of the Revolution did not teach them that raw, raw lined could furnish soldiers equal to their own. This was the cause of their disaster in January, 1815. Another reason was they did not understand the geographical situation which Jackson had completely mastered. The third reason was that Jackson's woodsmen from Tennessee and Kentucky were deadly marksmen, learned from the necessities of pioneer life. Hence the victory. Had Wellington gone to America rather than to Belgium, it might not have been France that met Waterloo.

I don't suppose that it is very complimentary to compare the highly-endowed human race to spuds. But certainly there are some points of contact in which the spuds have the right to complain. I recently ran across a bit of wholesale practical theology in The Connecticut Agricultural College Review. Listen to this common sense item: "There is a tendency for the older and more experienced growers of seed potatoes to keep their strains vigorous and comparatively free of diseases." In other words, it isn't good policy to dump upon the market carloads of scabby potatoes for planting. In the higher realms of life I wish there could be equal foresight and wisdom in dealing with scabby human beings. And this rationally applies to the moral and spiritual as well as to the mere physical. Fine strains of potatoes are necessary to preserve a high grade of that important vegetable. How much more important it is to preserve good strains in the human family!

In this same farm paper the writer ran across another exceedingly suggestive paragraph, and here you have it: "It is usually impossible to tell by examination of the tubers whether they carry the degenerative diseases or not. Therefore seed potatoes should not be purchased on appearance only." Of course not, nor anything else—not even a husband! A man would be a fool to buy even a horse by his looks only. He wants to get behind him with the reins in his hands to see whether in reality it is anything but an old plug ready for the bone mill, or whether there is within his sleek skin a really live horse that has still some go in him. Did you ever bite into an apple that looked as though it might have grown in the garden of Paradise only to find that it was rotten most of the way from skin to core? Painted faces and painted lilies look all right, but—

Again I read from this very suggestive farm review published at Storrs: "Since 1920 the seed potatoes brought into Connecticut have changed from practically all uncertified to practically all 'certified.'" I wonder if the strains of heredity of all men and women who have been coming into Connecticut since 1920 "have changed from practically all uncertified to practically all certified." Have we been going up hill in quality? Good strains ought to count just as much in men as in spuds! If blood counts in horses and cattle why not in men? If it is important to put forth great effort to improve the blood of live stock why not in men? For according to the Bible a man "is better than a sheep." Let us do all that lies within our power to have better schools, better churches, better fraternal organizations, better ways and means of impressing upon the "stranger within our gates" what real Americanism is and how to attain it, better everything that will improve our growing boys and girls.

One of the most despicable forms or wrongs is to make capital out of any national disaster. It is carrying the perverted mind to the nth power. I refer to the recently published poem: "The Sinking of S-51." Insult is added to injury by setting it to jazz music. Even if the song is not intended to be comic, or a parody on a serious subject, its manner of treatment shows most decidedly a lack of good taste. The frivolous way in which the tragedy is handled, and the atmosphere which jazz music gives to it show a very scant respect to the lads who lost their precious lives while in the service of their country. One can realize how fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, and wives or sweethearts who were connected with these martyrs must feel when they see how flippantly the tragedy is treated.

As one reads Dr. Gordon's "My Education and Religion," he can but rejoice that the youth in the schools of today are not subjected to such uncalled for severity as they were 60 years ago, at least, as they were in the public schools of Scotland. As we might surmise, the teaching was wonderfully thorough, and the discipline was more than that, it was simply savage. Think of a father today giving his seven-year old boy such a letter as this for the teacher: "Dear Mr. Dunn, I am sending my boys to your excellent school. They are very wild boys. Will you be especially severe with them?" Would you blame the boys for not giving the teacher such a letter? This Mr. Dunn, a relative of the family and a most excellent teacher did not need any such instruction. His lash was flying from the beginning to the end of the school day. When he was not thus preparing them for the kingdom of God, he was teaching the regular lessons.

A Scotch boy put this question to his mother about the year 1860: "If I should try all my life to be good, do you think that I should get into heaven?" "No," replied the mother, "if predestination is against you; many are called but few are chosen." The boy put the question again: "If I should try with all my might, all my life, to do my duty, do you think that I should get into heaven?" Again the answer: "No, unless you are elected, there is no hope." "Then," said the boy with just indignation, "I am done with religion. I am not going to throw away both worlds. I am going to have a good time here, and take what comes to me there." This sensitive boy whose whole being recoiled against such horrible nightmare, became one of the leading divines of America. Let us thank God that theologically we have passed out of the midnight into the dawn!

Lincoln's Visit to Norwich, And Dr. Gulliver's Interview

The proximity of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, Feb. 12, is instrumental in no small way in bringing back to the older residents of the city recollections of his wonderful address delivered here in the court house building, March 9, 1860, when he was touring Connecticut for the purpose of making political speeches. When Mr. Lincoln made his address before the crowded house in Norwich, Rev. John Putnam Gulliver of Norwich was in the audience and heard with great interest and admiration Mr. Lincoln's speech. So enthused was Dr. Gulliver with what Mr. Lincoln said that he gained an interview with him the next morning at the railroad station, as he was leaving Norwich for Bridgeport where he was to speak on that night, March 10, 1860. So far as is known Dr. Gulliver at that time made no publication of that railroad station meeting and talk with Lincoln, but, over four years afterwards, on Sept. 1, 1864, when Mr. Lincoln was a candidate running for the second time for the presidency, Dr. Gulliver for the first time published in the New York Independent, what has now become an historic meeting between these two notable men.

A Hard Campaign

The Norwich republicans of that time were thoroughly organized to promote the election of William Buckingham, their own townsman, for governor and their entire state republican ticket. The forecast of the election hung in great doubt. Hugh H. Osgood of Norwich, then a young, active and formidable party worker, volunteered to go out and search for Lincoln. Col. Osgood overtook Lincoln at Providence, R. I., and prevailed on him to come to Norwich and make the speech of March 9th.

The Connecticut state election in 1860 was so close that a decrease of 250 votes in the republican total would have thrown the election to the democrats. It can be truly said that Lincoln's efforts and speeches in Connecticut in 1860, convincing and powerful as they were, alone saved the state to the republicans and defeated the democratic candidates.

Spoke in Other Cities

Mr. Lincoln, before he spoke in Norwich, made addresses in Hartford, on March 5, 1860, in New Haven on March 6th and in Meriden, on March 7th. He made no speech in Connecticut on March 8th, but spent three or four hours of that day in New London on his way from Meriden to Woonsocket, R. I., where he spoke to the people of that state that night. At New London, while waiting for the train, he was welcomed and entertained by John W. Eggleston, an ardent republican and chairman of the republican town committee. It was on a Friday evening he delivered his forceful speech before the people of Norwich and on Saturday morning he took the train at the railway station enroute to Bridgeport.

Bought Bulletin of Richard McCloud

Probably no one in this vicinity has been a closer student of Abraham Lincoln than William H. Shields, the Nestor of the Norwich bar, and in connection with the visit of the former president to Norwich he called attention a few days ago to the interesting fact that as Mr. Lincoln was waiting for the train to take him to Bridgeport, Richard McCloud, a Norwich Bulletin newspaper boy of that time, sold to Mr. Lincoln the Morning Bulletin of that day. Mr. McCloud is still living and his home is in Durango, Col., where he is a noted practising lawyer.

Wrote Senator Trumbull

Inasmuch as Mr. Lincoln became very much interested in the Connecticut state election of April, 1860, as soon as he returned to his own state, Illinois, he wrote to United States Senator Lyman Thumbull a letter. Mr Trumbull was a native of Colchester. The letter follows:

To Lyman Trumbull

Chicago, March 26, 1860.

Hon. L Trumbull,
My Dear Sir:

They are having a desperate struggle in Connecticut and it would both please, and help our friends there, if you could be with them in the last days of the fight. Having been there, I know they are proud of you as a son of their soil, and would be moved to greater exertion by your presence among them.

Can you go? Telegraph them, and go right along. The fiendish attempt now being made upon Connecticut must not be allowed to succeed.

Your as ever,
A. LINCOLN.

Dr. Gulliver Interview

Dr. Gulliver's interview with the Great Emancipator as printed in the Independent appears in John Wesley Hill's volume Abraham Lincoln, Man of God and is as follows:

It was just after his controversy with Douglas, and some months before the Chicago convention of 1860 that Mr. Lincoln came to Norwich to make a political speech. . . . The next morning I met him at the railroad station where he was conversing with our mayor, every few minutes looking up the track and inquiring half impatiently and half quizzically, "Where's that 'wagon' of yours? Why don't the wagon come along?" On being introduced to him he fixed his eyes upon me and said, "I have seen you before, sir!" "I think not."

I replied; "you must have mistaken me for some other person."

"No, I don't; I saw you at the town hall last evening."

"Is it possible, Mr. Lincoln, that you could observe individuals so closely in such a crowd?"

"Oh yes!" he replied laughing, "that is my way, I don't forget faces. Were you not there?"

"I was, sir, and I was well paid for going."

As we entered the cars, he beckoned me to take a seat with him and said in a most agreeably frank way, "Were you sincere in what you said about my speech just now?" "I meant every word of it, Mr. Lincoln. Why, an old dyed-in-the-wool democrat, who sat near me, applauded you repeatedly; and when rallied upon his conversion to sound principles, answered, 'I don't believe a word he says, but I can't help clapping him, he is so pat!' Indeed, sir, I learned more of the art of speaking last evening than I could learn from a whole course of lectures on rhetoric."

"Ah! that reminds me," said Mr. Lincoln, "of a most extraordinary circumstance which occurred in New Haven the other day. They told me that the professor of rhetoric in Yale college was in the audience,—a very learned man isn't he?"

"Yes, sir, and a fine critic, too."

"Well, I suppose so: he ought to be, at any rate. They told me that he came to hear me and took notes of my speech and gave a lecture on it to his class the next day; and not satisfied with that he followed me up to Meriden the next evening and heard me again for the same purpose. Now, if this is so, it is to my mind very extraordinary. . . ."

"That suggests, Mr. Lincoln, an inquiry which has several times been upon my lips during this conversation. I want very much to know how you got this unusual power of 'putting things.' It must have been a matter of education. No man has it by nature alone. What has your education been?"

"Well, as to education, the newspapers are correct; I never went to school more than six months in my life. But, as you say, this must be a product of culture in some form. I have been putting the question you asked me to myself, while we have been talking. I can say this, that among my earliest recollections I remember how, when a mere child, I used to get irritated when anybody talked to me in a way I could not understand. I don't think I ever got angry at anything else in my life. But that always disturbed my temper, and has ever since. I can remember going to my little bedroom, after hearing the neighbors talk of an evening with my father, and spending no small part of the night walking up and down, and trying to make out what was the exact meaning of their, to me, dark sayings. I could not sleep, though I often tried to, when I got on such a hunt after an idea, until I had caught it; and when I thought I had got it, I was not satisfied until I had repeated it over and over, until I had put it in language plain enough, as I thought, for any boy I knew to comprehend. This was a kind of passion with me, and it has stuck by me; for I am never easy now, when I am handling a thought, till I have bounded it north, and bounded it south, and bounded it east, and bounded it west. Perhaps that accounts for the characteristic you observe in my speeches, though I never put the two things together before."

"Mr. Lincoln, I thank you for this. It is the most splendid educational fact I ever happened upon. But let me ask you, did you prepare for your profession?"

"Oh, yes! I 'read law' as the phrase is; that is, I became a lawyer's clerk in Springfield and copied tedious documents, and picked up what I could of law in the intervals of other work. But your question reminds me of a bitter education I had, which I am bound in honesty to mention. In the course of my law reading, I constantly came upon the word 'demonstrate.' I thought at first that I understood its meaning, but soon became satisfied that I did not. I said to myself, 'What do I mean when I demonstrate more than when I reason or prove?' I consulted Webster's Dictionary. That told of 'certain proof,' 'proof beyond the possibility of doubt'; but I could form no idea what sort of proof that was. I thought a great many things were proved beyond a possibility of doubt, without recourse to any such extraordinary process of reasoning as I understood 'demonstration' to be. I consulted all the dictionaries and books of reference I could find, but with no better results. You might as well have defined 'blue' to a blind man. At last I said, 'Lincoln, you can never make a lawyer if you do not understand what "demonstrate" means;' and I left my situation in Springfield, went home to my father's house and stayed there till I could give any proposition in the six books of Euclid at sight. I then found out what 'demonstrate' means, and went back to my law studies."

I could not refrain from saying, in my admiration at such a development of character and genius combined: "Mr. Lincoln, your success is no longer a marvel. It is the legitimate result of adequate causes. You deserve it all and a great deal more. If you will permit me, I would like you to use this fact publicly. Euclid, well studied, would free the world of half its calamities, by banishing half of the nonsense which now deludes and curses it. I have often thought that Euclid would be one of the best books to put on the catalogue of the Tract Society, if they could only get people to read it. It would be a means of grace."

"I think so," said he, laughing, "I vote for Euclid."

As we near the end of our journey Mr. Lincoln turned to me very pleasantly and said: "I want to thank you for this conversation. I have enjoyed it very much."

"Mr. Lincoln, may I say one thing to you before we separate?"

"Certainly, anything you please."

"You have become, by the controversy with Mr. Douglass, one of our leaders in this great struggle with slavery, which is undoubtedly the struggle of the nation and the age. What I would like to say is this, and I say it with a full heart. Be true to your principles and we will be true to you, and God will be true to us all!" His homely face lighted up instantly with a beaming expression, and taking my hand warmly in both of his, he said, "I say Amen to that—Amen to that!"

Dr. John Gulliver

Rev. Dr. Gulliver, professor of the Relations of Christianity and Science in the Andover Theological seminary, was the son of Sarah Putnam and John Gulliver. He was born in Boston, May 12, 1819, and died in Hanover, Mass., Jan. 25, 1894, in the 65th year of his professorship and the 74th year of his age. Educated up to the twelfth year in the Boston public schools, he then began what was expected to be a mercantile life in his father's business, who was a well-known merchant in Boston. The two years that followed were years of strenuous exertion, of long hours that necessitated rising at 5 o'clock, winter and summer, and unusual responsibility for a boy of his age, especially for a boy of his delicate constitution. He regarded this period, however, as perhaps the most valuable part of his education, particularly in his subsequent intercourse with business men.

In 1833 he entered Phillips academy in Andover, having decided to abandon a business career. Shortly after, he determined to devote his life to the Christian ministry, and with this end in view entered Yale college in 1836, graduating in 1840 at the age of 21. For two years he was the principal of an academy in West Randall, Mass., and in the fall of 1842 entered the Theological seminary at Andover, and finished his junior year there. In the fall of 1843 he left Andover, and took his middle year at the Yale Theological school, returning to Andover for the last year of his course. One of his biographers remarks: "In theology, it is said of him (Gulliver) by a competent authority that no disciple of M. W. Taylor had so thoroughly mastered the system of that great divine."

Immediately on graduation from Andover he received a call to the Main street Congregational church (Subsequently called the Broadway church) in Norwich. This call he accepted, with the understanding that he was first to spend a year of advanced study at Andover, his medical advisers deeming his health insufficient to permit his entering at once on his active duties.

In the fall of 1845 he was formally ordained and installed, Professor Edwards A. Park, preaching the ordination sermon. After a pastorate of 20 years, he accepted a call to the New England church in Chicago, where he served from 1865 to 1868, being one of the founders of the Advanced during this period. His presidency of Knox college, Galesburg, Ill., from 1868 to 1872 followed. From 1872 to 1875 he was pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Binghampton, N. Y., and from 1875 to his death in 1894 he filled the office of Stone professor of the "Relations of Christianity and Science," in Andover seminary, as the first incumbent of that chair. From 1851 to 1865 he was a member of the Corporation of Yale college. The degree of doctor of divinity was conferred on him by Iowa college, and the degree of doctor of laws by Iowa State university.

It was said of Professor Gulliver that he was a born reformer and that he spent his life against all forms of evil. Thus it was but fitting that he should face a storm to the last. This remark struck the key note of his character. "I desire nothing so much," he used often to remark, as to be able at the close of my life to say with St. Paul; 'I have fought a good fight. I have finished my course. I have kept the faith.'"

Started the Academy

Among the most lasting and most noble memorials to Dr. Gulliver is the Norwich Free Academy, known as one of the strongest and best schools of its class. It was largely owing to his efforts, reinforced by the assistance of a small but choice coterie of wealthy and intelligent men, that after a decade of intense struggle from 1846 to 1856, that victory appeared in the private endowment of an academy, free to rich and poor alike, and in the resulting reconstruction of the whole system of public instruction in Norwich.

Dr. Gulliver was a highly educated and gifted clergyman, a first rate pulpit and platform orator and debator and was active in the agitation and discussion in all exciting moral and political questions of the time.

Strongly Opposed to Slavery

Prominent among the reforms, in which Dr. Gulliver took a prominent part, was the anti-slavery movement. One of his old parishioners, speaking of his famous John Brown sermon, preached at the time of the John Brown raid in Virginia just before the war, said:

"Those of us who heard it will never forget it. Patrick Henry in the days of the Revolution, with all his eloquence, never electrified an audience as this sermon did, preached at the time when the anti-slavery movement was at the fever heat throughout the north. By request, it was repeated in two or three of the Norwich churches, and also in New London. The Bulletin printed the sermon in full, yet such was its popularity that the editors were unable to supply the demand for it."

OUR LIVES

Who can estimate the good accomplished in a consecrated life, especially when, in God's mercy, it is continued many years? None but the omniscient mind can follow the lines of moral influence and power. The Christian throws the pebble of prayer into the ocean of divine Providence and the influence is felt in every direction, widening and deepening along the course of eternal ages. Our mission is not to trace out results, but, rather, to create and put in motion influences. We spin the threads of life, but God weaves them, and in designs of his own. By simple faith we must do our work, and then leave the results with Him. We may have only "five loaves and two fishes," but under the quickening and directing power of the divine Spirit these are sufficient to feed the multitude with many baskets of fragments remaining. Causes are constantly creating changes in the material world but in all the changes created there is no loss—not a particle of matter is wasted. Through the power of heat, a quantity of water is converted into steam, and this passes beyond the reach of human vision and even the power of human knowledge, so the power divine grace acting upon the human soul, generates influences which radiate through the wide expanse of God's spiritual kingdom, but in ways unknown to finite minds. Wonderful beyond the power of human thought is the web woven from the threads of every human life. Eternity will not be long enough to trace all the threads in this marvelous web. What inspiration dwells in this thought! What a powerful motive it presents to the people of God to purer devotion and more complete consecration in His exalted service.

From Small Beginnings

Sebastien Erard, Improver of the Piano

In many lands, in many times, many men worked to make the piano. Over 500 years ago some one who loved what Shakespeare calls "the concord of sweet sounds" made a queer little box that was the great-great-ancestor of the piano. Then down through clavichord and spinet and virginal we come to the modern piano. There, for example, was Sebastien Erard—who would have thought he would ever have helped the delevopment of the piano! When he was born, in Strasburg, not 200 years ago, he was born into a poor home, and brought up to drive carpet-tacks! Yes, his father was struggling along in furniture making and repairing; and so he had the boy help tack on the cloth on the seats of chairs. He might have tacked cloth the rest of his life, but he met what he and every one else called "the worst stroke of bad luck." His father, the hard-working furniture maker, died.

Now, there is an old hymn that says, "Behind a frowning Providence He hides a smiling face." That bad luck helped to make Sebastien Erard famous, and helped to make the piano. Sebastien could not carry on his father's work. He was only a boy of what we call "high-school age," and so he did what boys have to do under similar circumstances—he looked around for a job. In the shop he had always puttered with ingenious contrivances, making all sorts of new things out of wood; planning all sorts of ways of cutting cloth; designing new ways of building houses.

Taking a little bag with a few belongings, he set off to Paris, much as Benjamin Franklin went to Philadelphia—to make his fortune. He wandered around a bit, and then got a job with a man who made harpsichords—really harps played by touching keys. The piano helps one to hit strings; the harpsichord helped one to pick at strings, and make a tinkling sound. Here was Sebastien's chance—and he took it. He made better harpsichords than any one had done. He set up business for himself, and developed a hammer instead of a "picker". In France and England he did a great business, and became very rich. He worked until 78, constantly improving his musical instrument. What would he have said if he could have seen the piano of today!

TREAT CHRONIC COLDS BY RADIO DAILY DOZEN

A prominent Park Avenue physician in New York reports remarkable improvement in many cases of chronic colds as a result of morning setting-up exercises taken over the radio.

His statement is included in a symposium of medical opinion on the value of the morning exercises as broadcast daily by Arthur E. Bagley from the tower of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company through stations WEAF, WEEI and WCAP.

"There is a type of case I see a great deal of this time of the year," he states: "cases of chronic colds, nasal or bronchial infections, where lack of exercise is a characteristic finding—such cases, plus cold showers after the radio exercises, improve remarkably."

The exercises are given practically universal praise by the physicians as of special value in cases of constipation and other disorders due to sedentary life.

"They will certainly aid elimination of effete matter through the kidneys, bowels and skin," states a Massachusetts practitioner. "Posture will be made correct. Stiffened joints will be loosened up. Backaches will be very much benefited and all the muscles of the body strengthened and toned up."

In common with a large number of his fellow physicians, he gives a warning about the use of the exercises. "For example, a stiffened tubercular joint should not be molested," he points out.

"In certain types of heart disease and in high blood pressure cases it is advisable to be very careful in taking the exercises."

The doctors point out that persons not in possession of normally good health should take the exercises only under supervision of the family physician. Mr. Bagley continually emphasizes this caution in his correspondence "over the air."

The reports revealed a widespread practice of prescribing the exercises for a great variety of ailments including overweight. "I know of no better therapy to prescribe for the entire populace of this country," declares a Washington physician; while a Baltimore practitioner considers such exercises invaluable," and they should prove an important factor in the increase of longevity," he adds.

Several physicians state that the new comer to the radio class should take it easily the first few days as the tempo may be too fast for them.

An observation appearing frequently in the physicians' reports is the superiority of the radio over all other means of getting people to take the drills they need. A Baltimore physician states "I have found that the psychological thrill of being directed through the air to the accompaniment of very charming music, takes with many where the former daily dozen methods failed entirely." Another physician declares "it does not seem as though you were doing it by your lonesome, and consequently it is taken as a pleasure and not a duty."

K. OF P. VETERAN DIES AT HIS HARTFORD HOME

George E. Wright, a native of Norwich, grand keeper of records and seals of the grand lodge of Connecticut, knights of Kythias, died Friday at his home in Hartford, where he had lived for a number of years. He had held the Knights of Pythias office since October, 1912.

Mr. Wright was born in Norwich, July 12, 1853, the son of George and Lucretia Davis Wright. He passed his early childhood and school days in Norwich Town and when 12 years of age became a clerk in a dry goods store. Following this he became an apprentice in the printer's trade in a large publishing house where he remained for five years. He then was a journeyman printer for a term of years and then took up the work of compiling, editing, indexing and proof reader for a large printing concern. For several years he conducted a large book and printing business for himself in Hartford and started a weekly newspaper in New Hartford which he sold to the Hartford Tribune. In 1910 he managed the Thompsonville Press and brought it up from an old-time newspaper to its present high-standing in the newspaper field.

Mr. Wright was a charter member of Lincoln lodge of Hartford on Nov. 23, 1894. In this he became an officer going through all of the chairs until he became chancellor commander. He became associated with the grand lodge in October, 1896, and was deputy grand chancellor for five years. In 1911 he was elected grand vice chancellor of the grand lodge and in 1912 was elected grand keeper of records and seals, which position he continued being the unanimous choice annually, up to the time of his death.

He had been prominent also for a number of years in the United Order of American Mechanics. He was a member of St. Johns lodge, F. and A. M., of Hartford, Ivanhoe chapter, Order Eastern Star, of Hartford, and was particularly interested in baseball, being for two years president of the Hartford fraternal baseball league.

Mr. Wright was married on Oct. 3, 1871, to Miss Mary M. Love of Providence, and they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Oct. 3, 1921. Besides his wife Mr. Wright is survived by a son, M. Edward Wright of Waterbury, a daughter, Mrs. Virginia Wright Bease of Hartford, six grandchildren, two great-grandchildren and one sister Mrs. Rebecca Morarty, of Worcester.

SUFFERED BROKEN LEG IN COLLISION ACCIDENT

Orrin Harris of Poquetanuck who was riding a motorcycle on the Military highway Wednesday afternoon is in the Backus hospital with a broken left leg and other severe lacerations, sustained in an accident just this side of Gales Ferry, when the motorcycle and an automobile driven by Thomas Baudro of Allyn's Point were in collision.

The automobile had the right front mudguard damaged and headlight lens broken, while the motorcycle, which upset, pinned Harris under it, was also damaged. Harris was brought to the hospital in an unconscious condition by Dr. J. W. Callahan.

According to a report made of the accident, the motorcycle passed the automobile and the driver of the auto noticed that Harris seemed to have some difficulty in operating his machine. The next thing Baudro knew the motorcycle had overturned.

Friends of Harris who visited him at the hospital stated that they found he could remember nothing except that he was riding his motorcycle and when he woke up he was in the hospital. They claimed to have discovered marks in the road that led them to believe that the automobile had come out of a side road onto the main highway and run into the motorcycle.

GAG MAN HAS CARVED NICHE FOR HIMSELF IN PICTURES

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 29 (AP)—The movie gag man is coming into his own. From a position of humble usefulness in the slap-stick comedy factory he has risen to a position of dignity and power in the field of the serious film drama.

The gag man used to be the fellow who, during the filming of a custard pie scene, jumped to his feet with a sudden inspiration and exclaimed: "I have it! While the sheriff is making love to the girl, Charlie hits him in the face with a custard pie. That ought to get a good laugh."

JOHNNY DUNDEE UNABLE TO MATCH PUNCHES WITH GLICK IN COMEBACK

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—(AP)—Joe Glick, hard-hitting New York junior lightweight, outpointed the veteran Johnny Dundee, former world's featherweight and junior lightweight titleholder in the main ten-round bout of a show at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Dundee, fighting to re-establish himself as a title contender after a six months' retirement, was no match for the clever and youthful New York puncher, who shattered Dundee's pugilistic dream of a comeback by a well directed and versatile attack.

With youth, weight, reach and height in his favor, Glick fought aggressively piling up an early lead on points which never left the judges' decision in doubt. There were no knock downs, nor was either boxer in distress at any time.

Dundee won the sympathy of a crowd of 15,000 by his gameness again. Glick's fire, and the decision was booed in a five-minute demonstration.

A poll of newspapermen at the ringside gave Glick 7 rounds, Dundee 3 and one even. Glicked weighed 130, Dundee 129.

The Preliminaries

Joe Dundee, Baltimore welterweight, won a judges' decision over Joe Simonich, of Butte, Mont., in a ten-round semi-final match. Dundee poured a furious volley of punches upon his western foe, but Simonich gamely held his feet under terrific punishment. The victor scaled 144, the loser 143 1-4.

Ra. Miller, Chicago lightweight, won a judges' verdict over Johnny Nichols, of St. Paul, in a ten-round match. Miller floored Nichols for a count of seven in the eighth round.

Nichols substituted for Johnny Drew of New Bedford, Mass., who developed illness during the day and was forced to cancel his engagement.

Tony Travers, New Haven lightweight, scored a technical knockout over Frankie Callahan, of Columbus, Ohio, in the second round of a six-round bout. The referee stopped the fight to save Callahan from further punishment.

In a four-round flyweight contest, Manny Wexler, of New York, won the verdict over Billy Kelley, of Scranton, Pa., but the decision did not meet with popular approval.

YALE WEEKLY ADVOCATES AUDITING OF COLLEGE SPORT

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 29.—(AP)—A feeling "that a periodical auditing, by some outside agency of our college sports as a whole in their relation to the educational arms of the country at large is necessary, if we are to stay solvent," is held by the Yale Alumni Weekly, issued today, in an editorial discussing the proposal of the Carnegie Foundation of Teaching to take stock of the American college athletic situation.

"According to the newspaper accounts," the Weekly says, "the inquiry will be into such matters as student and public over-emphasis on football, side-line coaching, scouting, proselytizing for players, alumni support of players, paid coaches—all relating to football, and professional football and baseball raids on college teams, with the accompanying summer baseball problems. These are all perennial questions, x x x. But all of them are necessary questions that should be raised periodically.

"So far as Yale's attitude towards some of these matters is concerned, it is one news that side-line coaching in football and coaching from the bench in baseball, has been frowned upon for years. Coach Jones is, we happen to know very careful in regard to infringement of his rule against this on the football field. And his reason is a good one; a team that can't play its own game and that has to rely on wig-wagging coaches on sidelines, isn't a good playing combination.

"A crew rows its own race, and a baseball and football team should play their own games; otherwise the sport descends to the level of a machine-made contest, the brains of which are outside the directing it. Scouting, x x x, can be bad or good, according to how it is done. It is ridiculous to rule against any team's representative watching rival teams in public play.

"The professional-vs-college sports danger is taking care of itself, when the eastern professional football managers are baring college players who are still in course, and when the American Association of Football Coaches refuse entrance to their organization of professional team players or officials.

"The paid coach question, in our opinion, will never be settled rightly until conditions go back to the old status of no salaried coaching at all x x x.

"But there are other and more insidious dangers, dangers to the spirit of amateur sport itself, and, these are the things that need most to be considered in any study of our college athletic conditions."

CONN. AGGIES WILL PLAY HARVARD TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Jan. 29—Connecticut Aggies will meet Harvard in basketball at Cambridge tomorrow night, in a game that shapes up as one of the toughest on the Nutmeggers schedule. It will be the fourth year that Connecticut has journeyed to Cambridge to play Harvard, with the record of the three games played favoring the Aggies two to one.

A record of three victories and two defeats is the Aggie standing to date for the games played this season. Norwich, Tufts and Springfield fell before Coach Dole's men at Storrs, while away from home the Aggies lost to Wesleyan and Union.

Against Springfield Wednesday night the Aggies used a shifted lineup Allard, regular left guard, did not start as he had not fully recovered from a recent illness, though he was put into the game during the latter part of the second half.

Connecticut's lineup tomorrow, provided Allard is in condition to play, will be Schofield and Eddy forwards, Captain Makofski center; Allard and Bitgood guards. In case Allard does not start, Schofield will be moved back to left guard, and Watson will take his forward berth.

Of this lineup, Captain Makofski, Allard and Schofield started against Harvard last year, when the Aggies lost by a 34-26 score. Captain Makofski, incidentally, was a member of the Aggie fives that defeated Harvard in 1922 and 1923.

Connecticut's attack will center around Captain Makofski and Schofield, who have been consistent point gatherers in the games played to date.

RAIN HALTS MATCH BETWEEN MISS WILLS AND MRS. HAYLOCK

CANNES, France, Jan. 29—(AP)—Helen Wills' progress through the Gallia tennis tournament was halted gaila tennis tournament was halted momentarily today by a heavy downpour of rain, which transformed the Gallia courts into a miniature lake. This afternoon, however, the sun came out brightly and the tournament is expected to go on tomorrow, with the American champion facing Mrs. Haylock in the quarter final round.

Since Mrs. Haylock is not considered a match for Miss Wills, it is expected that the California star will win her way into the semi-finals with little difficulty.

Miss Wills spent the morning writing, preparing her next newspaper article, which is to be a critical study of Suzanne Lenglen's tennis style. This afternoon she was a guest at tea at the Casino.

The Gallia organizers are hoping that a period of good weather will make it possible for the finals to be played Sunday, as the Riviere tennis world is scheduled to move on Monday to Nice for the Nice tournament. Miss Wills in that meet will play both the singles and the mixed doubles, in which she will be paired with C. F. Aeschlimann, the Swiss star.

Mlle. Lenglen is expected to make an announcement tomorrow as to whether he will play in the singles in the Nice tournament. If she decides to do so it is considered almost certain that she and Miss Wills will meet in the finals.

PLAINFIELD TOWN TEAM LOSES FIRST GAME ON HOME FLOOR TO COLLEGIANS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 29—The Plainfield Town team suffered its first defeat of the season on its home floor here tonight when the Purple Collegians of Worcester won 25 to 19. The local team was unable to do much against the stellar guard work of Hop Riopel and Golembeski, who completely smothered the Plainfield attack. Mondi Normandin, playing a forward berth, was the only member of the local team who was able to break loose and do any damage.

For the Collegians, Brouseau was a menace at all times and the guards had much difficulty in keeping him covered. Six times the Worcester boy broke loose and each time a basket was the result. In addition to his six field baskets he dropped in three single counters from the foul line. The game was fast and furious both teams playing at top speed. The crowd was one of the largest of the season.

Next week the Plainfield team clashes with the Middletown Town team at Plainfield. The summary:

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Kansas City has twenty-one golf clubs.

The 1926 French open golf championship, will be held at St. Cloud July 7-8.

It is said that Babe Ruth can drive a golf ball as far as any of the professionals when once he gets a good clip at it.

George Sisler, probably the greatest first baseman of all time, is one of the shortest men who ever played the first sack position.

Emerson Carey, Jr., the newly-elected grid captain at Cornell university is the holder of the Western junior golf championship.

Walter Johnson, the great pitcher of the Washington Senators, can throw a ball with such speed that it can hardly be seen in flight.

Sam Langford, like Georges Carpentier, started in the boxing game as a little fellow and gradually grew into the light heavyweight division.

Idaho is the home state of five of the greatest American jockeys of the present day—Earle Sande, Ivan Parke, and the three Garner brothers.

Stanley Ketchel was one boxer who often found it difficult to get bouts as promoters and managers feared he would kill opponents in the ring.

Contestants in the world's skating championships at St. John are loud in their praise of the hospitality of the New Brunswick city and the elaborate programme of entertainment for the visitors.

The Boston A. A. was the first athletic club in the country to use raised corners at an indoor track meet. When the new turns were first introduced in the early '90s the runners found it rather hard to get used to them.

The first law tennis tournament for the national championship of Guatemala was held recently in Guatemala City and was won by E. R. Aparicio who for years has been ranked as the best player of the game in Central America.

In order to develop a left hand punch and improve his footwork in his early days as a professional boxer Jack Dempsey tied his right arm to his side and fought three lightweights at a time in his training sessions with only his left hand free.

Golf has never been developed in Germany as in most of the countries of western Europe, but it is believed that the sport will be given a new impetus by the action of clubs in Berlin and other cities in opening courses for the training of juveniles.

The greatest international track and field meet ever held in America was held at Manhattan field, New York city, in 1895, when stars of the London A. C., and the New York A. C., engaged in a dual meet. The Americans won all of the eleven events.

Catcher Eddie Ainsmith, with Minneapolis of the American association last season, became a free agent at the close of the season. His place will be taken by Ernie Krueger, obtained by Minneapolis of the American association.

R. L. (Buga) Young, a member of the Ardmore team of the Western association, was fined $1,000 on conviction of violating the eighteenth amendment in federal court at Muskogee, Okla., last week. The judge emphasized that the "fine was to be paid," meaning that Young had to have his friends go right out and dig up the cash.

Jean Dubuc, one-time pitcher of the Detroit Tigers, who has handled a number of minor league teams in recent years, has been signed as pilot of the Manchester, N. H. team. Manchester plans to enter the New England league, which is being revived. Dubuc managed the New Hampshire city's team in the Boston Twilight league last season.

Catcher Cy Chisholm has been made manager of the Winston-Salem team of the Piedmont league. He has been a member of the Twins for several seasons. At the same time Chisholm was appointed, J. F. Smithdeal was elected president of the club, succeeding E. B. Ferrell, who resigned because his business took him away from the city. He is now located in Knoxville, Tenn.

Connie Mack has sent First Baseman Red Holt back to the Jersey City club of the International, where the Athletics got him late last season. He is a promising initial sacker, but with Joe Hauser on the job in the spring there would have been no room for him. Patsy Donovan was glad to have him back for the 1926 make-up of his Skeeters has been enhanced considerably by him.

Rube Deneau, a player of some years back, who later managed Berlin, Ont., (now Kitchener) and also London, Ont., died recently in Riverside, Ont. of pneumonia. He had been a member of the police force there since leaving baseball. Deneau could either pitch or catch and at the time Laughlin was with London often alternated with his teammate when the two were doing the battery work.

Eighteen games are listed on the Boston Red Sox spring schedule. Training at New Orleans again, the Boston team will meet the home team of the Southern league on March 7, 13, 14, 20, 21, 27 and 28; Mobile will be played in Mobile, March 29 and 30, and April 1, and the team will be in Louisville to play the American association team there April 3, 4 and 5.

President Ban Johnson of the American league has indicated that it may be necessary to extend the closing date of the major league season a few days in order to straighten out the National league playing dates. With Barney Dreyfuss and John Heydler at the schedule meeting, he was just about convinced that the senior circuit could not crowd its 154 games in 143 playing days. The meeting broke up in a deadlock over this phase and will be resumed in a few days.

L. Fresco Thompson with the Pittsburg Pirates until a short time ago, when he was sold to Buffalo of the International league, underwent an operation for removal of his tonsils in St. Louis last week. Young Thompson, who spent most of the 1925 season with Kansas City of the American association, on option from the Pirates, is a determined little fellow and declares he will be back to the big show in another season. He is a second baseman and probably would have been given more of an opportunity had he been on another team but Pittsburg.

Literary Lights Gather

First nights at the quaint little Lyric theater in Hammerstein have become great occasions that invariably attract most of the literary lights of London. Recently when Nigel Playfair produced "And That's the Truth," Arnold Bennett occupied a box and smiled down benignly upon H. G. Wells, who sat in one of the stalls looking younger than ever. A few seats away in the same row was St. John Irving, with whom Wells has lately quarrelled bitterly over the dramatization of his romance, The Wonderful Visit. The two maintained a cold indifference. Each sat through the evening without recognizing the other's presence.

RULES COMMITTEE VOTES TO ALLOW MODIFIED USE OF RESIN BY PITCHERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The joint rules committee of organized baseball, by a 5 to 3 ballot, today voted to permit modified use of resin by pitchers.

The rule change, proposed and favored by the national league representatives, and opposed by the American league delegates, was adopted on the votes of commission K. M. Landis, chairman of the joint committee, and Dale Gear, president of the western league and the minor league representative on the committee.

The exact phraseology of the rule has not been perfected but Commissioner Landis said the use of resin by pitchers was adopted in principle. Landis, working with John B. Foster, editor of the baseball guide, will write the rule tonight and submit it to the committee tomorrow for final approval.

The change, suggested by national league club-owners at their annual meeting here in December, was referred to the joint committee for consideration. The three national league delegates, William L. Veeck of Chicago, Samuel Bradon of St. Louis and Fred Clarke of Pittsburgh, were instructed to support the measure while the American league representatives, Umpire Thomas Connolly, Connie Mack of Philadelphia and Irving Sanborn of Chicago, carried instructions from the American league club-owners to oppose the measure on the ground that it would open the way to further modifications which might bring about a return to use of other freak deliveries, abolished in 1920.

The new rule provides that the resin must be obtained from a sealed bag, placed near the pitcher's box under the supervision of the umpires. Dust of the resin may be used only on the hands. Commissioner Landis said "doctoring" the ball with resin will not be permitted.

The national league delegates, commissioner Landis and Mr. Gear, contended that the change should be made in as much as the present rule is violated in spirit by the presence of bag of resin on the bench, into which big league pitchers have been dipping their hands for the purpose of drying them before going into the box.

The committee wrestled with other rule governing the international pass was discussed, together with ground rules affecting world's series games, but these were shelved until tomorrow when the committee will resume its deliberations.

The Highway to Life.

Many have wondered why so many inventions, labor-saving devices and other conveniences have been thrust upon us so rapidly during the past few decades. The penalty against the race was "Dying thou shalt die;" for mankind has been eking out an existence amidst laborious toil and hardships while man is a dying creature. Man's hope of life lies in the resurrection of the dead. If it has been necessary to earn one's bread through efforts causing "sweat of face," may we not conclude that labor-saving machinery is the forerunner of a time when man will not be a dying creature? And as a new government under Christ is promised, may not the casting up of roadway to facilitate the traveling of automobiles suggest the laying of the foundation of a better government in which will be cast up the highway to life upon which humanity shall be invited to walk.

Mr. H. H. Dingus of New York, representing the International Bible Students' association, will lecture on 'The Highway to Life," Sunday, Jan. 31st, at 3 p. m., in G. A. R. hall, and will take up the subject of redemption as it relates to humanity getting life in its fullness, without sickness and the fear of death.

The meeting is free and no collection will be taken. All are invited.

Broadway Sunday

Have you ever made a motor trip across the continent?

If you have, or if you haven't, for that matter, Reginald Denny demonstrates how it should be done in "California Straight Ahead," the Universal-Jewel feature at the Broadway theater, Sunday night.

With the unusual situations presented in a transcontinental motor trip, Denny and his director, Harry Pollard, have managed to make "California Straight Ahead" possibly the most entertaining of Denny's recent series of feature farce comedies.

Traveling in a palatial bungalow-on-wheels, Denny, in the role of a jilted suitor, attempts "to forget" by journeying across the country by motor. Instead of finding solitude and peace, he finds everything else, including his fiancee, various accidents and mishaps, a storm in which several wild animals escape and invade an auto camp, and numerous other diverting things.

From the appearance of the scenes it is evident that the transcontinental trip scenes were filmed out on the open road, for we see shots of tourist camps, and the usual caravan of cars of all descriptions loaded with odd-looking baggage, and passengers who rival them in oddness.

All in all, the picture manages to be most entertaining, and presents an unusual combination of comedy and thrills, ending with a punch which is too good to miss, but also too good to spoil by telling here.

Gertrude Olmstead makes an appealing heroine opposite the star, and the supporting cast, including Lucille Ward, Charles Gerrard, Tom Wilson, John Steppling, Fred Esmelton and Leon Nomas, add many bits of comedy to the production.

The story was written by Byron Morgan and Harry Pollard.

If you want to see a Broadway youth who matches wits with bandits, sheriffs, cowboys and typical Western characters, see "Ken" Maynard in "Fighting Courage" at the Broadway theater.

Hollywood Bathing Beauties in a Western mining camp! No, they're not gold-diggers, but they provide compelling interest in the stunt drama "Fighting Courage" which opens at the Broadway tomorrow. Don't crowd, men: Line forms on the right! And this is the second feature on the same bill with Denny. In addition a comedy and News will complete this mammoth show the admission price of which is only 25c for any seat.

Quartet at Baptist Church

The Silvertone Male Quartette of New London, David Merritt Carlyle, first tenor, Rodney Rogers Carlyle, second tenor, Charles Rodney Carlyle baritone, William Desmond Taylor, bass, will render five selections at the evening worship service at the Central Baptist church Sunday evening, January 31st. All those received during the pastorate of Dr. Pitt, with their friends, are to sit together in the center sections of the church. Dr. Pitt will continue the series of evangelistic messages on "How Christ Helps Men Today."

Palace Theatre

Pola Negri in Women of the World and five paramount vaudeville acts at the Palace today. Georgettes players, who play twenty-five different musical instruments, offer a programme composed of grand opera and jazz. Thornton and Carlton, a pair of comedy fellows; Aussi and Czech, with a novelty offering that won't be seen in the small towns again for some time. This pair use the Australian bull whips in a fashion that shows that many pain-taking hours have been spent in perfecting many of their tricks. Marion Claire just brimming over with personality and possessing a wonderful voice with a splendid routine of songs; Dover and Salton, a young couple with fast dances and songs and the Scarlet Streak, the thrilling chapter play make up the rest of the programme.

If Winter Comes the Great Moving Picture Feature at Norwich Y. M. C. A.

Perhaps no more impressive moving picture has ever been shown than the one entitled "If Winter Comes," taken from the famous book by A. S. M. Hutchinson, and many who have seen it feel that the picture is "mightier than the book." It is a Fox production. The book has already had a tremendous circulation. Of all the serene adaptations of popular novels, the height of perfection has been reached in the picturization of "If Winter Comes." It is the world premiere of the photoplay, and for those who have read the book, the unique and original characters seem to live and breathe before the eye; for those who have not read the book the picture is entirely different and refreshing in its individuality. Ministers all over America have the highest praise of this wonderful production; one minister states that in Mark Sabre the author has created as Christ-like a character as could be conceived in modern life. If Christ were living today he would be considered by some a futile simple fanatic, much the same as the central character in "If Winter Comes." Men who have been God touched, like the character of Sabre in the book and on the screen, were the saviors of the world and in them faith in humanity was vindicated. The carefully selected cast headed by Percy Marmont has created a film masterpiece.

The great picture will be shown on two Sundays, because of the number of reels in the feature. Six reels will be shown each Sunday at 4 o'clock in the large Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. Both men and women are cordially invited. The management prefers that none under fourteen attend, on account of the limited number of seats, though everything possible will be done to accommodate some three hundred or more if children come at all they must be each accompanied by an adult.

Hugh Kinder will furnish music for the picture. The service will take the form of a really religious meeting with the picture emphasizing definitely the spiritual note.

A free will offering will be taken.

Breed Theater

"Give us Lillian and Dorothy Gish in the same picture," has been the demand made by countless film patrons ever since the two girls appeared together in "Orphans of the Storm." And this request has been answered at last.

LILLIAN GISH in "ROMOLA"

with the ever-popular Lillian and Dorothy doing team-work in what has been called one of the great pictures of the year, "Romola." "Romola," which is Henry King's production of the famous novel by George Eliot, is coming to the Breed theater on Sunday. It is an Inspiration Picture released by Metro-Goldwyn. Besides the Gish sisters, the cast also included Ronald Colman, William H. Powell, Charles Lane, and Herbert Grimwood. The entire production was filmed in Florence, Italy.

Coming to The Palace Monday

A Charleston contest for the championship of eastern Connecticut, will be started at the Palace Monday night. Two hundred dollars in cash will be paid to the final winners. Two classes will compete. Juvenile, which will consist of dancers under sixteen, and a senior class, consisting of dancers over sixteen. Aspirants should leave their name as soon as possible at the box office as the quota for Monday night is about filled.

A wholesome story of tremendous heart appeal, a cast of popular players, direction that leaves nothing to be desired, drama, mystery and thrills, staged against a background of fascinating New York—you'll find them all in James Cruze's latest Paramount masterpiece "Mannequin," which opens Sunday night at the Palace theatre.

This is the picture version of Fannie Hurst's $50,000 prize-winning Liberty Magazine tale, and it is the type of homey, human plot that lends itself admirably, to visualization on the screen and strikes a sincere, realistic note because it deals with incidents and situations familiar to all.

To relate the story in detail would be to rob the picture of the element of surprise, which is, after all, its greatest asset. Suffice to say that it centers about a family, whom we first meet back in 1907. The father is a struggling young lawyer, trying to keep his head financially above water in spite of his charming wife's innocent extravagances in a number of small ways. The third member is a little baby girl, who is kidnapped by a good-for-nothing nurse, brought up in the slums of the lower East Side, and after a lapse of eighteen years finds her parents under the most drastic circumstances.

The acting is uniformly good, which was to be expected from such a group of capable players as Alice Joyce, Warner Baxter, ZaSu Pitts and Dolores Costello.

WESTERLY

ATTORNEYS PAY FINE TRIBUTE TO JUDGE TURANO

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I. Jan. 29—"Judge Turano," said Attorney John J. Dunn at the conclusion of the regular Friday morning session of the third district court, "I wish to express to you with the sanction of the other members of the Westerly bar, at this the last regular session on which you will probably occupy the bench, the sincere appreciation of the many courtesies which you have extended us and the conscientious judgment you have exhibited." Continuing, Attorney Dunn said that they had differences of opinion on various occasions, but that those differences of opinion were excusable, and that he regretted that Judge Turano was about to leave the bench of the third district court.

"Thank you for those very kind words," replied Judge Turano, "for the three years that I have occupied the bench, the experience has been a wonderful one for me, and I have enjoyed the courtesies extended, to me by the attorneys and all court officers I trus, in the future my successor will express himself likewise. We have gotten along very nicely and again I thank you kindly and the officials of the court."

Clerk M. Walter Flynn, Jr., for the last time in the regular session of the third district court, read the following:

Brown vs. Antonio Flore, continued two weeks; State, William L. Kay, deputy chief of police of Hopkinton, compl't vs. Thomas Golden, continued one week; State, Elmer A. The case against Angelo Turano, a procuring complaint by Westerly Chief of Police Brown, was also called and continued two weeks at request of Town Solicitor Ferguson.

John Carey, 52, alias "Shorty" arrested by Patrolman George H. Champlin, on Thursday when he was claimed to have started a disturbance at the Potter Hill mill, was presented on an intoxication charge. Solicitor Ferguson said that Carey had given police but little trouble. Carey was fined $6 and costs.

Thomas Madison, 40, was charged with operating an automobile on the traveled part of Main street, Hope Valley, at a rate of speed greater than reasonable and proper. Solicitor Ferguson told the court that a civil suit was pending and that his council had asked that sufficient evidence to convict be admitted. Madison was found guilty and fined $25 and cost. Notice of appeal being given the bond of $200 was left for the next hearing.

Frank P. Gorman, 22, was arraigned on complaint of the larceny of 483 pullets on September 22d, last. He entered a plea of not guilty. Solicitor Ferguson told the court that he was the third of those who had taken pullets at Hope Valley and tendered a worthless check in payment thereof. The case was set down for trial next Friday, February 5th and surety was required in the sum of fifteen hundred dollars.

John Habereck's case was called, as a woebegon when Attorney Dunn stated that he must be somewhere in the polar region. Judge Turano said that he probably was experiencing difficulty in getting up Brightman hill. Attorney Roche, for the plaintiff, said that he had been ready for some time and after the court took a recess, case was marked continued.

Cold weather struck Westerly Thursday with increasing bitterness so that on Friday morning, thermometers in the vicinity were quoted as reading anywhere from four below zero to thirteen above. A biting wind blew the cold indoors.

No less than six automobile accidents of greater or less seriousness occurred on Brightman hill, in the town of Hopkinton, R. I., between 7:30 o'clock o Thursday evening and early Friday morning. Although the state board of public roads had caused this dangerous slope on the cement state road to be sanded, the strong wind rendered their labors fruitless for the material was quickly blown off.

The accidents of the early evening were attended by no serious results. At noon after 12 o'clock a Dodge coupe headed toward Providence and occupied by Robert Spencer, 35, of North Stonington, Oscar C. Barney, 38, of 77 Murry street, and Clifton Emmons, 22, of Greenville, R. I., skidded and turned over, badly damaging the auto and injuring the occupants. Emmons sustains cuts about the face and head; Barney a bad cut on the tops of his head, which bled profusely; while Spencer was badly shaken up and has possible internal injuries. This auto party was found, dazed and unconscious, by Joe Salimeno, who was coming toward Westerly. As Spencer collapsed Salimeno picked him up and carried him across his shoulders. The injured men were brought to the Westerly hospital, where they were attended b, Dr. John W. Helfrich.

About 5 o'clock Friday morning Deputy Chief Kay was called out to investigate another accident on Brightman's hill, in which Stanley Rogers, of Brooklyn, N. Y., sustained cuts about the head and was carried to the Westerly hospital for treatment. R. F. Russell and Jean Russo, of Brooklyn, were with Rogers, Russell being the operator of the machine.

The machine bearing the New York registration number 2K4937 turned over on the hill after it had collided, according to the police, with a Buick machine owned by C. F. Miller of Moorelands avenue, Edgewood. Both of the cars were considerably damaged, but the Miller machine was able to run and bring the injured man to the hospital. Russell was taken to the hospital with Rogers, but was later discharged, it was stated by the investigating officer.

"At about 6 o'clock Tuesday hevening a Cevrolet car turned over on Brightman's hill, but the police report that no one was injured and no record of the accident was made.

The running gear of an Oldsmobile sedan owned by Rev. O. M. Brees, pasto of the Niantic Baptist church, at Bradford, was damaged considerably Thursday evening, when it skidded on Brightman's hill, went off the road and bumped over several large rocks before coming to a stop. A heap of sand left by employes of the state board of public roads checked the progress of the car, which narrowly escaped striking a pond at the foot of the hill.

The accident resulted, it is said, when Mr. Brees turned out to pass a truck. Riding with Mr. Brees in the sedan was L. Walter Potter, of Bradford. Both men were unhurt.

Meeting as a board of canvassers the Westerly town council held a short session in the council chambers of the Westerly town hall, on Thursday night when the list of eligible electors to take part in the annual Westerly town financial meeting in the town hall, on next Tuesday evening, Feb. 2nd., at 7:30 o'clock, was corrected as follows:

Added to real estate list—Erastus H. Benn, 14 Chestnut street; John Bogan, 2 John street; Antonio DeFanti, Bradford; Robert J. Drysdale, Jr., 3 Newton avenue; Bessie Fancher, 89 Franklin street; Domenico Federico, Potter Hill road; Fred Ferraro, 11 Summer street; Mary Ferraro, 11 Summer street; William F. Owens, 6 Cottage court; A. Barclay Robertson, 18 Chestnut street; Guiseppe Turco, 15 Dayton street; Thomas Whyte, 67 Cross street Elizabeth G. Williamson, 41 Franklin street and George M. Williamson, 41 Franklin street.

Taken off real estate list—Sarafino Celestino, Teresa Celestino, Frederick L. Champion, Sophie Champion, Ann L. Cotter, Mary E. Cotter, William B. Gavitt, Gladys C. Koelb, Ralph H. Koelb, Frank I. Payne and Alexander H. Thompson.

There was considerable discussion upon the many questions involved in the making up of the budget list figures for the various departments of the town of Westerly which were published in Friday morning's Bulletin together with the votes passed by the town council, of which the entire membership was present.

At the beginning of the meeting Westerly Town Treasurer James M. Pendleton told the councilmen that in preparing the final budget list to submit to the voters of the town qualified to vote in the financial town meeting on next Tuesday evening, that with the present Westerly tax rate of 26 mills and valuation, no more appropriations could be made than last year. Reviewing figures which he had furnished the councilmen, he said that Mothers' Aid would need no appropriation the coming year as $45,700.09 was the amount carried over from the previous year, under Agent Miss Maud S. Price Treasurer Pendleton said that the state tax to be paid for the first half of the year would be $11,730.48, while for the last half of the year it would be larger, about $16,000, depending on the action of the Rhode Island general assembly. If other estimates were increased the town's indebtedness would become greater, and, furthermore, if the Wall Accounting recommendations were carried out, the town's statement would make a worse showing The indebtedness of the town was steadily increasing, and, although the town was paying off $20,000 yearly on maturing bonds, it was going into debt in other directions. He figured the total receipts of the town to be $423,479.67 and the expenditures $423,754.03, which would leave a possible $9,000, which coul" be spent.

Westerly Tax Assessor Walter C Hiscox said that the assessors' work had never failed to show results and "you will never find one which will not show an increase." He suggested the cancellation of the 5 per cent discount which would add between $20,000 and $25,000 to the town's income. Treasurer Pendleton thought that a mistake would be made in doing away with the discount as it tended to make for prompt payment of taxes.

Highway Commissioner Charles F. Berry thought that if the discount was omitted it would be, "an awful job to collect—all summer, if omitted". Collector Hiscox thought that this difficulty would be discounted if a penalty sufficient to cover was made and that the time of the assessors used in tax discussions could be better used in the equalising of valuation. He said that a tax increase should not be considered. Frank W. Coy called attention to the fact that the Westerly Automatic Telephone company was "getting along well," since it had dropped the discount to their customers.

Selden M. Young asked for appropriations to care for the improvement of the Haversham end of the Shore road. Engineer Leon said that $100 from state road money would be available this year for that work.

Henry E Leonard, of New York, who has been a visitor in Westerly and Rawcatuck during the past week, returned home Friday afternoon.

Following the windup dinner of the bridge whist teams in the Westerly Masonic club tournament, Charles M Lubbi and Loren G. MacLaren were named as captains of opposing teams in the play to start for the coming several months.

LARGE PIMPLES ITCHED BADLY

On Face, Shoulders and Arms. Cuticura Heals.

"My trouble began with pimples breaking out on my face, shoulders and arms. They were large, hard and red, and festered, and scaled over, causing disfigurement. The pimples itched badly and when I scratched them eruptions formed. My clothing irritated the breaking out on my shoulders. The trouble lasted for some time.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they afforded relief in a short time. I continued the treatment and after using four cakes of Soap and four boxes of Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Grace M. Ward, Thetford Center, Vt., Aug. 12, 1925.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Norwich grange, No. 172, had its officers installed at the meeting on Wednesday evening in Steiner hall, which was preceded by an installation supper at 6:30 with an attendance of 126. It was served in excellent form by the feast committee consisting of Mrs. Jennie M. Davis, chairman, Mrs. Ethe Rogers, Mrs. Alice Clark, Harry L. Clark and Charles E. Ellis.

The installation was carried out by Louis S. Barstow, master of Quinebaug Pomona grange, who had these assistants: conductor, Miss Helen Hearle; emblem bearer, Miss Ruth Spalding of Lillingly; regalia, Mrs. Shippe of Manchester.

The officers installed were the following:

Master, Mrs. Ida E. Richardson; overseer, Ralph H. Marsh; lecturer, Mrs. Roswell J. P. Brown; steward; John O. Peckham; asst. steward, Lewis E. Aldrich; chaplain, Charles E. Ellis; treasurer, Edward Cook; secretary, Mrs. Ora C. Spencer; gate keeper, Mrs Adelle Spaulding; Ceres, Mrs Ivy O. Peckham; Pomona, Miss Helen Moore; Flora, Miss Belle Rathbone; lady assist. steward, Miss Florence Brown.

In accepting her office as worthy master, Mrs. Richardson spoke as follows:

"Worthy Fellow Patrons:—When we think that during this month of January 4,000 similar installation ceremonies will be held in subordinate granges in this fair Land of ours, we begin to realize the strength of this order.

"Reports of the active co-operation of the Grange with other state and local organizations in pushing ahead agricultural undertakings and community projects, is one of the most hopeful aspects of rural America today. The Grange has always advocated such team work, and in countless instances have opened their Grange doors wide to projects that promised service to the farmers and betterment possibilities to the locality. It is interesting to note the many legislative acts passed by many states that were sponsored by the Grange. The Grange is non-sectarian in religion and non-partisan in politics. For more than half century it has always stood firm for orderly government, and has demanded respect for the Constitution, for duly enacted laws and for duly constituted authority.

"Norwich Patrons of Husbandry have always endeavored to sustain this true Grange spirit, and we wish at this time to express our appreciation of the officers of the past year, who by their sterling characters and splendid examples have exemplified that same standard.

"In looking forward to the year before us, we can see much of promise and opportunity for Norwich Grange. Our lecturer's programs look brimful of good things. A woman's auxiliary to our Grange is being planned. The Grange fair committee is looking forward to a much larger fair than we have before attempted. Three other objectives I hope to see reached in 1926:

1. A closer co-operation with other organizations interested in agriculture;
2. Some outstanding piece of community service;
3. A net gain in membership.

"What would be the result if every one of our large membership would attend meetings regularly, would pay their dues promptly at the first of the year, would take their place on the program, would tell others the value of the Grange, and would secure just one application for membership? If our membership could accomplish this result, Norwich Grange would be one of the most dynamic and dominant factors in our community.

To quote our Worthy National Grand Master Taber, "The success of the coming year and years rests upon the shoulders of the officers and members alike. Let each individual patron serve so faithfully that growth will be assured. In short, let us work and boost."

A past master's jewel was presented to Arthur W. Avery by John E. Fanning who spoke in commendation of the two years of service which Mr. Avery had given while he was worthy master. Remarks were made by Bro. Bartlett, master of New London county Pomona and by the installing officer. The annual word was given only to those who presented a card showing that their dues were paid up to Jan. 1, 1926.

There were visitors at the meeting from Killingly, Manchester, Plainfield, Ledyard, Pachaug, Franklin and Preston City.

POETRY

Winter Ghosts

I know it must be winter, (though I sleep)—
I know it must be winter, for I dream.
I dip my bare feet in the rushing stream.
And flowers are many, and the grass grows deep.

I know I must be old (new ways received)—
I know I must be old, for all unseen
My heart grows young, as autumn fields grow green,
When late rains patter on the sailing sheaves.

I know I must be tired (and tired souls are)—
I know I must be tired, for all my pain
To deeds of daring beats a steel flail roll,
As storms the river pine in mystic stir.

I know I must be dying (Death draws near)—
I know I must be dying, for I crave
Life—life, strong life, and think not of the grave.
And turf-bound silence, 'tis the frosty year.
—Edith Matilda Thomas.

Child

I would have a child's eyes,
Laughing eyes that see
All the wonder of the world
And its mystery,
Fairies in the green grass,
Fairies in the deer
And a host of elfin folk
In the sunbeams, too.

I would have a child's ears,
Ears that ever know
The secrets of the lilac-tree
And the winds that blow
From beyond the mountains
Of the witching moon,
Echoing the gladness
Of a fairy tune.

I would have a child's heart,
Heart of rosy bloom,
Where there is no sorrowing
And no thought of doom,
Going in the glad ways
Where the white stars gleam,
Fragrant blossoms breathing
In a land of dream.

The total amount of any of the elements occurring in the entire ocean is stupendous. Iodine exists in sea water only to the extent of about two parts in a 1,000,000 yet the entire ocean contains some 60,000,000 tons of iodine, valued at present prices at $540,000,000,000. Bromine is also obtained in a limited way from the mother liquor left after the crystallization of salt from sea water. California produces approximately 250,000 tons of sea salt each year. A gallon of sea water contains approximately a quarter pound of salt, and since the average density of rock salt is 2.34 times that of water, the entire ocean, if dried up, would yield approximately four and a half cubic miles of salt.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
My Prayer.

I bow my forehead in the dust,
I veil my eyes for shame
And urge, in trembling self-distrust,
A prayer without a claim.

No offering of my own I have,
Nor works my faith to prove;
I can but give the gifts he gave
And plead his love for love.

I dimly guess, from blessings known,
Of greater out of sight;
And, with the chastened psalmist, own
His judgments, too, are right.

And if my heart and flesh are weak
To bear an untried pain,
The bruised reed he will not break,
But strengthen and sustain.

I know not what the future hath
Of marvel or surprise,
Assured alone that life and death
His mercy underlies.

And now beside the silent sea
I wait the muffled oar;
No harm from him can come to me
On ocean or on shore.

I know not where his islands lift
Their fronded palms in air;
I only know I cannot drift
Beyond his love and care.

And thou, O Lord, by whom are seen
Thy creatures as they be,
Forgive me if too close I lean
My human heart on thee.
—John G. Whittier.

Scattering Sunshine.

If you meet a child on the road some day,
Just a freckled kid in the street at play,
Ragged 'n' dirty 'n' full of fun
With a grin as bright as the noon-day sun;
Don't forget he's a kid 'n' you're a man,
It's up to you to do what you can
To tell that child in a pleasant way
That the street's no place for a kid to play,
And if he does he'll get hurt some day,
For there in that ragged child, you see,
Is only the kid YOU used to be.

If you meet a man on the road some day,
An old man—wrinkled, with hair of gray,
Creeping along with but little speed
Through a world that rushes with lust 'n' greed;
Give him a nod and a friendly hand,
Speak! Say "Where are you going, old man?"
Help him along to the place he goes.
Help him and cheer him for—well—who knows?
In that worn-out man you perhaps may see
The tired old man YOU are going to be.

ASKS FOR BIRTHDAY DATES

Dear Social Corner: First of all I wish to say thank you to a Social Corner Member for a pretty little calendar. Also to all who sent cards for Christmas. While reading an old book the other day I came across these lines—

Biblical Comforters

If you have the blues, read the 37th Psalm.
If your pocketbook is empty, read the 37th Psalm.
If people seem unkind, read the 15th of John.
If you are all out of sorts, read the 12th of Hebrews.
If you are losing confidence in men, read 1 Corinthians, the 30th.
If you find the world growing small, and yourself great, read the 19th Psalm.
If you are discouraged about your work read the 126th Psalm.

Please, new members, give your birthday dates.

With best wishes to all for the year 1926.

CLUB 6 MEETS FEBRUARY 3

Dear Social Corner Sisters:—What a wonderful morning this is with the trees so lovely with snow! I just love a day like this the snow is so nice and clean and white. Well soon we shall see no more of it for the winter is fast slipping away. We have had a very fine winter so far.

What a fine time we had at our last meeting and hope to see you all at our next meeting on Feb. 3 at the Buckingham. Those who were at the last meeting know what a treat we are going to have this time. Come one, come all and help make a jolly time. Sorry not to have had Windham Blue Bell with us and hope she will be able to be with us this time. I have been so busy could not write before. Hoping to see as many as can possibly come to our next meeting. With much success to all the Corner Members.

THE LONELY TIME

Dear Social Corner Sisters: The little article written by Imogene Graef was so good I cannot let it pass unnoticed, as I, too, have a son married who has forgotten mother. Only on rare occasions does he spend any time with me. I am not complaining, far from it. I am glad he has a good wife, and she comes first. My two daughters were taken from me years ago, and my husband also. So you see I am all alone and am getting on in years, a lonely time of life. But I am trusting in God who doeth all things well. Hope Imogene Graef will write again. I will watch the Corner.

MRS. E. A.

HOW I SPENT MY DOLLAR

Dear Editor and Social Corner: Wishing to get the most enjoyment possible out of the dollar which our editor sent me, I invested it in Christmas cards and so was able to spread it around among quite a number of people. As I received about the same numbers of cards as I sent, it seemed as if the dollar came back to me.

I thank the sender of the very pretty little calendar. It was certainly appreciated.

Would like Pedestrian to know I was most grateful for the kind Christmas message which she sent to me.

Best wishes to all.

CLEOPATRICA.

INTERESTING ARTICLES FROM EUROPE

Dear Social Corner Friends: I received a calendar with a nice verse there on, and extend to the donor my best wishes. I love to be remembered.

On Dec. 26, and Jan. 1, accepted invitation of Pleasant Guest to have dinner with her which I accepted with thanks. One of our well known citizens was present and at our request told us of a few places he visited while in foreign countries—the people, their habits and customs, and seeing our interest, invited us to his home to see some of the curios he collected. He said ask a few others. In this respect we were obedient. O. E. S. was represented by four members and had a milliner to judge if colors blended and a young lady to give her opinion on the articles. Saw a stone thrown out of the mouth of Vesuvius. It looked like quite a mixture of substances and colors, seemed well cooked and must have relieved poor old Vesuvius when it came out, but nothing seems to relieve the lofty object permanently as we were told it continually makes a noise similar to the gasoline stove used by plumbers when soldering or heating their irons to mend pipes in our homes. The mouth of this volcano is as large as a small house lot. He showed us a ladies companion in the shape of an egg from Italy and as I was given one several years ago by Mrs. Thom of Appleton, Wis., whose daughter Helen purchased it when in that country I'll describe it so you Corner people can make a few. It is made of wood three inches and one quarter long, six and one half inches in circumference in largest place. Inside fastened to the smaller part of the egg is glued a hollow piece of wood size of a lead pencil to put sewing needles in and cover to keep them in. The length of this is two inches. Then there are two spools in one piece for thread. They are one inch and a quarter long, diameter inch and one eighth, hole in center of bobbins trifle less than half an inch. Then pass over the needle case to bottom of egg leaving about three-fourths of an inch of the needle case protruding and on this part the thimble is placed, which is of metal and you can buy separately as I noticed his case had no thimble. Hole in needle case one-eighth of an inch. The workmanship of the little article is fine. Saw beautiful dishes from several countries. He enjoyed his visit to Ireland whereupon I asked if he saw a shillalah? He said, Yes! and brought one home, taking the cudgel from a hook which seemed to be a knot from an oak sapling, with a handle about eighteen inches long, coming from Shileagh, a place in Ireland famous for its oaks. When we had Ireland as the topic in our Woman's club for the years work, Mrs. Young one afternoon brought in a shillalah, given to her husband by an Irishman who visited his country. It was quite different being of black hawthorne about 27 inches long. I think about four inches in circumberence with small limbs or twig cut off every jet black in color, a saucy looking jet black in color, a saucy looking keepsake. We saw so many beautiful articles. Were then asked into dining room and were served fancy cookies and delicious hot cocoa served in cups from Italy. I certainly felt I'd learned much. It gave me nice material to think about when occupied with my household duties.

"Never late until the moon is down", first month of the new year, wish you all health, rest will follow. I'm glad Mr. Foxglove is away as my sympathy nerves are hard to control at times.

LABOR

Dear Social Corner sisters: I thought of writing to to you yesterday but found it necessary to make soap and do various other things instead. The soap was made like Crimson Rambler's recipe except that half the borax and the ammonia were left out. It is very good made either way.

I wish to thank the editor for the Social Corner pin received.

Many years ago a woman rode on the stage from Andover to Colchester, stopping at mother's home to rest before walking to her home on a cross road. She said that her stomach bone had been nearly joggled out. Years later a little boy came in from play at school and told the teacher that his gizzard was bothering him. She asked him how many gizzards he thought he had and he said he supposed he had only one.

Now I will write upon the subject "Labor," which I started in my letter a month ago.

The correct settlement of the labor question will depend largely upon education, which is the forming of habits. The great business of parents and teachers is working to form correct habits. If a bad habit is once formed, it will require all one's energy to get rid of it. All people know this for they have tried and failed, so it is a good thing to be on guard against the danger of forming bad habits. If made of substantial stuff, habit is restful and conduces to dignity.

Self development does not usually come to the person who is always aiming at his own growth of character. This usually results in self-righteousness or self-pity. Self-development is more likely to come from interest in other people. A willingness to learn from everyone, a desire to help anyone, who needs help and moral integrity are the qualities which ensure self development.

The man who wish to solve the labor problem should know how to induce others to work for the advantage of the community. They should know how to make certain workers happy by letting them train helpers, as this gives both a greater efficiency. Some foremen have the power to exercise mastery over others, exciting loyal submission, while many are a constant irritation to the workers. It is natural for human beings to obey and almost worship the acceptable master. At present there is too much need for obedience and too little chance for mastery, but if a great task can produce thrills of delight with a smile, all are happy.

The lack of Approval by others makes some people utterly miserable. They need to be treated with respect, which gives the feeling of satisfaction necessary for happiness. Religion comforted by its promise of a better, richer life in the future with God. Many people spend a vast amount of labor on dress, their house or garden, simply for winning the approval of their neighbors. The laborer should be made to feel that his job is worth while, increasing his usefulness for a fuller life.

Individuals vary in physical strength, in neatness, order, system, memory and various other traits, so that exercise which is a pastime to one, is hard labor to another. As certain kinds of work are too much of a strain on a person who is entirely unfitted for it, so it should be changed for more suitable labor. Conditions in each job and community vary greatly in their effect on individuals.

The reduction of things which are really objectionable, like monotony, noise, dirt, solitude and rudeness will bring satisfaction to many annoyed workers. Wise employers who study men as complex individuals find it profitable. Workers should be treated always as men and women. Employers should realize that a position is never properly filled until an employe is found who fits that job so that he can do it well and with a certain amount of satisfaction.

Studies of labor including all of its evils and rewards for different sorts of individuals should be desirable for the laborer as well as for his employer. A knowledge of labor in all its aspects especially to improve working efficiency, fair hours and labor, would greatly help the worker.

It is useless to furnish a free library for the operatives of a plant, if it contains only books which they cannot understand. Some libraries may benefit the workers greatly but classes in English and other subjects often do more good at first. Free libraries and hospitals are often not as much appreciated as those where a small sum of money is required from each person using them. Sometimes a part in the management of public institutions insures their success.

With best wishes to all,

ROSARY.

A LETTER FROM FRANCE

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: While we may enjoy letters that are in local vicinity, we feel a special interest in those that come from a long distance. This applies both personal as well as on Social Corner pace.

Just the day before Christmas I received a very interesting letter, with Christmas card enclosed, from a young lady in France. There are several items, also the text of her French grammar, that might be of interest to our sisters and readers, who may not be in direct touch with a correspondent in France. To briefly explain, would say, that during the world war, my oldest son, a soldier in the service was stationed with his division for four months, in a little hamlet called Saint Remy, awaiting their turn for transportation to their American home. During their stay there, the village people were most kind and grateful and in every home where they could spare a room, it was offered to the soldiers for their use and comfort at a very small price. My son was one of the fortunate ones to secure these accommodations and with three other soldiers, enjoyed the hospitality and friendship in one of these private homes. The family consisted of father, mother and daughter and a daughter-in-law, widow of the son, who had sacrificed his life, in the defense of France, about a year before the American soldiers took part in the great contest. Since the close of the war, this "daughter" in the family, I refer to has written to me several times and has sent me cards and beautiful gifts I have a young lady friend nearby, who kindly translates this French manuscript, for me. This copy may interest some mother as it does me, who had a soldier boy, "over there," in those never-forgotten days of anxiety and sadness.

Saint Remy, France.
6 December, 1925.

My dear Madame,

With such joy your letter was received! You would not believe, how happy I am! each time there comes to me some news of my friends from over there. I thank you a thousand times for the photographs that you sent me. They are very interesting. My parents and I are happy to see you, large and small, with bright faces. With the aid of my English dictionary, I have translated my best, your letter, I have an uncle who knows well the English language, so when I have too much difficulty, I have recourse to him. We are all very enchanted to know A—— is very happy, and we keep the thousand remembrances of your son: mama does not forget all the kindness that he did, while he was with us. We would like to see him. Tell him to come and visit his friends in France. Glad your son F—— and his dame, his children are all very well; I would love to see them. My parents are well, but very tired. It is near the end of the year. We have had a very nice autumn, but the winter is come. It makes itself felt. Sometimes the sun comes out to warm us for a little hour but the nights are glacial.

The workers are quiet for the moment, one has many difficulties to get some aid. All the farmers are pleading not to work. In our kitchens the work does not go very well, the pastry cooks are on strike during the summer. It seems at this moment to be in better condition. Workers need work, for life is hard here. In the U. S. the conditions of work are better, but I see also the expenses for living are very high. I have seen in the papers here, in the coal mines, the miners have griefs. They strike by this means to obtain an increase of salary. They are not always satisfied. Hartford is a town, as you describe it to me, which resembles our town of Dijon. There are also factories here. Dijon is 60 kilometres from here. We go there easily, and it is there my uncle lives, who have charge of my English correspodence. In our house we have installed electricity for a year and truly such great ease, we have in our village also electric lights. At your house you know that, since you are the "new world". Do not fail to write to me at all the times you can. You know that your letters are always amicably received. Before closing my letter, I wish to offer, you, dear, madam, also to your family, our best wishes for a happy year and good health for 1926, I thank you much for yours.

Your friend from France.

Hoping this few lines may be received with interest as an expression of gratitude from one, among thousands of French people, who have not forgotten what America did for them, in the time of their great trouble.

Best wishes and sympathy to all.

JENNIE

CHANCE FOR A CARD SHOWER

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: Rosary's mother will have her 80th birthday February the 3 and I know that the card showers from the sisters please the dear old lady very much, so don't forget her this time.

SOCIAL CORNER READER.

ALONG THE HUDSON IN BYGONE DAYS

Greetings, Sisters: As anxious as I am to read the Social Corner page each week, it occurred to me that I should help fill it, and certainly to acknowledge Mrs. Lynn's pleasing description, as she viewed it, of my home town and that wonderful body of water, the Hudson river. Indeed, Sister Lynn you made me feel quite homesick and I wish I might be allowed a glimpse of the dear old scenes before I retire. Perhaps I often have seen your windows shining as the setting sun illuminates many windows on the opposite shore and in some instances one is inclined to think the interior of the house is ablaze. We lived, at one time, where we had an unobstructed view of the water and opposite shore and no doubt you have seen the place as you go by when going down Fairmont ave. I never lived more than a block from the river at anytime. Relatives lived way upon the hill, called South Mountain and in those days there were three houses up that way, so they must have been conspicuous, especially in the winter. But now there are a number of residences built where we used to go chestnutting and once we "hooked" some apples but the owner of the land resented our intrusion and gave us orders to "vause mit una." We couldn't understand how anyone would have the slightest objection to our helping ourselves to a peck or so. Guess we had rather socialistic ideas in those days believing "What's yours is mine." You wrote of going to Closter. Do you happen to know of the Tavanieres? Think there was a family in Tarrytown and also in Closter, so was wondering. Your name reminds me of Helen Gould's estate Lyndhurst. I am also acquainted with sections further up the river, as I taught school in the historic town of Stony Point.

Should like to hear from you personally, as perhaps our fondness for these scenes does not appeal to those who have never viewed the same.

Olga: Sorry to hear you were ill. Haven't seen you since October in Goshen. I am still putting on the superfluous. You must not think of leaving Iola for a neighbor, for we can't spare her. She and I have a number of discussions on various subjects and I surely enjoy her company.

Caught snatches of some one reciting over the radio recently and one poem ended each verse with the words "Say something good about him, if you have to make it up." Could some member send in the complete poem?

No doubt a number of Social Corner sisters, like myself, were among the many at the Grand Chapter O. E. S.

With best wishes for good health and prosperity to the members for the New Year from

NYACK ON THE HUDSON.

A LETTER FROM FOXGLOVE

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: It seems such a long long time since I have written, and as I have not had a paper since Nov. 22, I feel as though I was like an outsider.

Mr. Foxglove had a nervous breakdown in October and so I have had him to take care of. He did not seem to get any better—just grew thinner and weaker until finally we discovered his teeth were discharging pus and when he had them out the first part of this month all but three of the 17 had pus sacks so we think that was why he did not get better by all his doctoring. Last Saturday father took him to Florida for the winter. They started Saturday, January 16, by machine and so far he is standing the trip fine. We hope when he comes back the first of April he will be all well. Also you see I have had my time to take up. I have not had time to write.

"Cretia": I thank you for your interest in my husband and know you will be glad to hear he has such a wonderful report for the change you said he so much needed.

Olga: How are you? Also all the dear Sisters and families? Oh wouldn't Whirlwind and I just love to see you all. We hope to the very first meeting in April. Both cars are up for the winter.

Mavis, Olive and Jennie: How are you all? We don't get any chance to see each other during the winter, but we do hope you will all be able to go to the Social Corner in April if all goes well. I'll write you later about that.

Whirlwind: You old dear, just know you were the dear Sister who renewed my subscription for my Social Corner paper, for you were the only one that knew. I had not had it since November and missed it so.

It was a very pleasant surprise, when I found the paper in my mail-box and to find it paid for till Jan. 1927. I just can't tell you how much it meant to me but perhaps there will come a chance to show you.

Joan: Guess as usual I owe you a letter. Perhaps now I will have more time to write.

I wish to thank all the dear kind sisters who sent me cards during the holiday season. They were particularly appreciated just at that time for things were pretty dark for a while. Every one was a bright spot to be long remembered.

I appreciate our radio now more than ever for with Mr. Foxglove gone the evenings are very long for he was always home with me. How glad I shall be to read my Social Corner paper again every week. It will get me in touch with you all again and I won't feel like an outsider any more.

Practical Polly: You have a big squeeze coming when I see you again. How's the grandson?

Well think I've made up for lost time so will ring off with best wishes to all, and thanks to a S. C. member for my dear little calendar.

CLUB NO. 2 MEETS FEB. 3

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: It is rather late but I wish you all a very happy New Year. I meant to write earlier this year, but time goes so fast when one is so busy. Thanks to Social Corner Member for my pretty calendar. The wish is a good one, and I appreciate the thought.

Necia: You think me a slacker. Well I meant to have seen you before this. How is Mr. Necia. Hope he is keeping pretty well. I haven't had that visit you promised me sometime ago. Hope to see you Feb. 3th at Odd Fellows hall, if possible to leave your hubby. Have a lot to tell you.

Maple Leaf: Did you get the card from True Blue. You must give me your proper address, next time. Hope you and family are well.

Wetona: I see you are keeping up your resolution about writing.

Joan: Why not bring some more music with you next meeting?

Black Eyed Susie: Hope you have not rested, and that Mayflyre will be in good trim as usual. Bring Annette with you Feb. 3rd.

There are some very nice poems sent in by different members. I enjoy reading them and some I cut out and save.

Hope all the sick ones are better and ill be at the next meeting. Best wishes for the Corner.

SCOTTIE.

FADS OF OTHER GENERATIONS

Dear Sisters: As I read of so many of you making beautiful bed quilts and rugs, my thoughts stray back to a dear, old aunt whose diversion in winter was to piece up bed quilts and comfortables and when warm weather came she set up the quilting frame in the big old fashioned attic or garret, as they used to call it, where it could stand any length of time without being disturbed and in all her spare time, might be found sitting there marking out intricate patterns with chalk and line and then painstakingly tracing them out in fine even stitches omitting the comfortables with tufts all snipped off to exactly the same length. No doubt many of the Lebanon Sisters remember well the beautiful bedquilts "Aunt Abby" Wetmore of blessed memory used to piece and put together for the Ladies' Aid. I loved to watch her cut and sew every piece so exactly true that nobody could detect the slightest difference.

But I would like to know where "you all," as the Southerners says, get all your pieces. In the days when everybody wore print dresses and aprons around home and made them, too, and changed pieces with all the neighbors, it was easy, but it seems to me we would have to buy most of them now.

My first attempt at sewing was making a doll's bedquilt for my big doll when I sat in a small low chair and sewe dpieces overhand, "over and over" it used to be called. Some years later I made an album quilt the kind where you had all your friends make a block with a white center on which the name was written. But the blocks all being made by different ones they didn't always fit well and so album quilts were not an unqualified success until some one got the idea of making all the blocks by one and then having the friends write on them. It isn't the easiest thing to do to write on cloth with a common pen and ink and sometimes the ink spread or faded so it was hard to decipher. Those were the days of photograph albums and autograph albums, when everybody (of the young class at least) besieged everybody else to "write in my album, please." But I wish I had kept mine and can't see why I didn't. I should like to look it over now.

Also those were the days when we had a lot of visiting cards of different colors and patterns, printed with our names and exchanged them all around.

Now we make albums and collections of snapshot pictures and so each passing generation has its own hobby.

Olga: I am sure I should enoy being one of your neighbors but not having had any intimation of it before I was naturally somewhat surprised when I read your last Saturday's letter and can't think where such a rumor could get afloat, as at present we are very well satisfied where we are. It seems one can often hear of things about themselves that they don't even know of.

Barbar: I should also like to eat one of those greenings again, but I daresay the old trees are dead by now, though the old apple trees were long lived. The pippins were my favorites though.

Good bye for this time.

IOLA.

MAKING USE OF THE FRAGMENTS

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Although being a shut-in, and not having had a chance to attend any of the meetings for several years, I hear more or less of what goes on there; and the other day I heard something which seems worth calling attention to, and perhaps some others will tell what they think about the subject. No offense is intended. While dinner was being cleared away at a meeting, one of the sisters made the remark it was a shame to see so much good food thrown away when there was no need for such a thing. There are thousands of people, especially little children, who would be so glad of that piece of cake, or the sandwich so thoughtlessly tossed aside. If we all think of this, and care for each piece, never leaving anything on our plates—for that can be of no use to anybody; perhaps none of us, or of ours will ever go hungry. An uncle of mine married well to do, but his wife, although she always had had plenty, seemed to have a fear of wasting the smallest thing. But, too, she always appeared to fear some one would come hungry, and go before she had had a chance to feed them. A child, a stranger was always welcome at her table, and yet, as year by year went by her means seemed to increase. She never seemed to miss what she gave away, but she was always giving, and it always seemed to be because she never failed to take good care of what was left. In Matthew 14:20, it says "They took up of the fragments that remained." Notice, even though the 5,000 had eaten all they wanted, yet they saved each piece that was left. To me, the fact the bread came from Heaven, is no more wonderful than when it had come, and they were filled. Christ and the people took up all that was left, and took the right care of it. I wish we could think more of that last part of the lesson. I wish the Social Corner could be a place where people learn to take this part of the lesson home to themselves. Take "up of the fragments, which are left," and see that they are used.

I thank the Social Corner Member, who sent me the calendar at New Years.

Necia: I will write you very soon.

Best regards to all.

BETSY BRAY.

DONATION DAY FOR CLUB NO. 1.

Dear Social Corner Members and Editor: Greetings one and all. Will not give any excuses for silence; it hasn't been sickness that kept me from writing, just been everlastingly busy.

Now look out, as I once wrote, when I pick up writing, it means two or three letters a going.

Have found out my letters have been missed, also my presence at meetings since fall. Let me say I sure did get a royal welcome at our last meeting, and it seemed just like getting home from a long vacation.

A Social Corner Member: Many thanks for the dainty calendar I received, the very prettiest one you've chosen, for me yet.

Our meeting February 10th at Willimantic will be Donation day, at which time, food, vegetables, jellies, money, etc., are gladly received and distributed equally between Salvation Army and Welfare bureau for benfit of needy Willimantic families.

This custom was first started by "Tiddy Addly" Mrs. Charles Willard of Willimantic, in February, 1917, who later moved to Groton, and until her death about four years ago was an ardent worker.

As I am having charge of this meeting, I hope it may be as successful as my last year's February meeting.

"NEIGHBOR EVEREADY".

TAFT'S BROWN BREAD

Dear Editor of the Social Corner: I want to answer E. L. M., about the brown bread. I made some this morning and I used 1 cup of granulated meal and 1 cup of sifted pastry flour. I always made it before by guessing according to the thickness. It says "thick enough to pour from spoon," but I like it stiffer, so measured this time in order to tell you right. Think you will like it; we do. Thanks.

TAFTS.

BUSY WITH RUGS

Dear Social Corner Friends and Editor: Hope you are all well this lovely morning and as happy as I am I am very busy making rugs.

How are you Robin? Also Scottie and Dearie? Wish you would write. I thank a Social Corner Member for my lovely little calendar. I love blue birds also nice scenery and the verse is lovely. Many thanks.

CHATTY LETTER FROM PAPA'S BOY

Social Corner Sisters one and all: I am ashamed at not writing before to thank a Social Corner Member for the lovely calendar received at Christmas time but I do send many thanks.

Am so busy every day that time simply slips away and I do not get time to write.

Chubb: How is the little son? Hear occasionally through V——.

Country Sister: So you live on Fox Hill, too? Some windy there days.

Olga: When you get a bug on piecing quilts send me one. You need a lot these cold nights.

Sis: I am going to try your recipe for ginger crisp cookies and will send results to you.

When you have three little hungry mouths, a lunch to pack for a motorman and three big mouths to keep filled up the cooky jar is hard to keep filled I find.

Merry Farmer's Boy: And where are you? See you "Dodge" around quite a bit this winter. When does my turn come in?

Diamond: Am waiting anxiously for that March vacation.

Peggy Annie: So you have lost a son and gained a daughter. It doesn't seem as if "Sonny" was old enough to do-Lie up. You ought to see my lovely son. Do you remember our snow ride to Willimantic in March, 1916? Snow and cold! I shall never forget how "Ting" lent me her muff so to hold a tiny baby and all the bundles.

Elizabeth: Our letters crossed at my mail-box. Guess we will have to take a chance on who owes it now.

Chelsea: Sorry to hear you are in for so long. Will call you up and visit when I can squeez in a spare minute.

Rural Delivery: Are you going or have you gone south yet? Better drop a line anytime will do.

Keziah Doolittle: Where are you? Send your address and will drop you a line.

Catnip: Do you remember me? Used to see you long ago at 26 Main street. Now who am I?

Will close now with best wishes to all.

PAPA'S BOY.

IN-LAWS

Dear Cornerites: Oh there have been so many things I have wanted to write about in the past few weeks, but never a one have I done. I have been doing some extra work so have had little time to write but I do want to write on "in-laws" before the subject gets cold. So many unkind things are said of mothers-in-law. They are not all perfect but some are mighty fine. I think when it is at all possible the mother-in-law should keep her own home as long as she is able to care for it even if the children have to provide it. She will feel more independent and after she makes her visits to the children how good it will seem to have a place her very own to go to and it will seem good to the children to be able to go to mother's. Do go often, especially if she don't get out much herself. If mothers could or would realize that son loves her as much as ever even if he is married. Of course he loves his wife but the love is different. No true woman wants her husband to stop loving his mother just because he has married her. We seldom hear of a man who wants his wife to stop loving her mother just because she has taken him for a husband. Neither does the wife's mother make such a fuss as the husband's mother.

Mothers-in-law stop and think back when you were newly married and remember you took some mothers son. If your mother-in-law made mistakes see you don't repeat them. Daughters-in-law if the mother lives with you try and be as agreeable as you possibly can. No matter how well you get along there will be times when you will both wish you could live by yourselves. Some mothers want to help with the work and some satisfactory arrangement can be made and you do not feel you have lost your place as head. If she is the kind who prefers not to help don't expect her to; treat her as a mother but don't make your self a slave to her.

Mothers, if the daughter-in-law must live with you don't expect too much of her. She may not know how to do much, but don't laugh at her. Show her how and give her a little praise now and then. She will have some good points. Her ways wont be your ways or yours hers. You can learn from each other. Let her feel free to have her friends visit her and let her plan for their entertainment and help carry it out. Which ever in-law lives with the other, let them feel that their room, or rooms is their very own and a place where no one can intrude. Sons and wives and husband but only one mother.

MINE.

THE COTTAGE INTRUDER

Dear Corner Friends:—A thrilling experience was recently mine. There is a furnished but unoccupied cottage on our place. At least I thought it unoccupied. Subsequent details, however, will show my mistake.

A former tenant called and wished to see her old home again. I could not find the keys, so we climbed in a window, immediately fastening it again. For our exit we chose the back door, shutting but leaving it unlocked. My intention was to find the keys and so back later to lock up.

It started to storm, and stormed all night. "I shall go in the morning," thought I. "We are on the edge of the woods, tucked far away from the highway, no one will come in anyway."

Accordingly, next morning I went down. All was as we had left it, until I reached the dining-room. The table cover was on the floor.

"Mercy!" flashed through my mind, "That cover was on the table yesterday. Some one came in after all."

A noise startled me. I listened. Footsteps! Distinctly I heard them, step, step, step, then silence. I was rooted to the spot. What do—scream, run, or brave it?

I kept still and listened. Sure enough, there it was again, step, step, then an unearthly moan.

All the hold-up, murder, and scandal headliners that had made me inwardly pop-eyed reading them, now paraded uncannily before me. Another moan, this time painfully drawn out, told me the intruder was in the bed-room adjoining the room in which I stood. This shook me into action.

Cautiously I tip-toed over to the door and peeked in. The bed-room door leading into the hall stood wide open. This strengthened my misgiving, for I remembered distinctly closing that door the previous day. Just as I stepped forward, something in the hall moved and flew toward the window in the hall. It was an owl! I leaped in, slammed the door and so trapped him. When he had quieted down, I opened the door carefully to peek in. Here was Mr. Owl, a beauty in every way, markings, colorings, and what eyes! Looking so knowingly at me. I could not resist poking my head in and letting out a big "Whooo0." at him. No sooner done, than he made a perfectly good aim at my face. A lightning slam of the door was all that saved me.

Sisters, don't ever believe too strongly that an owl is blind in daylight. This one wasn't. And I have since learned of others that weren't.

That night at dinner, I told my experience, and expressed surprise that an owl could see in daylight; for I had always been led to believe that they could only see in the dark.

"I hope to tell you those birds can see in daytime," said a friend who happened to be dining with us.

He then told us, when he was a boy, he had tried to steal an owl's eggs. The owl caught him at it and made for his face, aiming at his eyes all the time. He said that owl could see better than he could.

The mystery, however, is, how did the owl get into the cottage?

AUNT SARAH TO ENTERTAIN CLUB NO. 3

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I wish to thank a Social Corner member for the calendar; it is sweet, pretty.

Don Pedro: I often think of you. Sorry you are sick again.

OLD TINS AND TEAKETTLE

Editor: Just a few lines to let you all know I have not forgotten the Social Corner friends and to thank A Corner Member for kindly remembering me with such a lovely calendar and send many many thinks for it. I just keep it in my writing box. I am always ready to read the Corner page but Saturday it did not come. That is the third Bulletin that has failed to come inside of ten days. I don't see why and I do hate so to miss the Saturday paper. Now I must tell the sister who has had a dish pan 33 years I can beat her for I have a pan I've had for 45 years last summer. I wanted a strainer pan or colander one day to drain some greens and having none I took a small milk pan and went to the corn house, took a hammer and a tenpenny nail and stuck it full of holes and drained my greens in it and have used it ever since. Still have it now and drained some beans in it today. It is some worn but is still useful and I have another colander I had for 30 years and some large milk pans I've had for 46 years and use them. They are heavier than the new ones you can buy now. I did have 60 but have given away and loaned them and worn out some till I guess there is a dozen left. I should not know how to get along without them. My dear old iron teakettle which I used for 47 years, sprung a leak last spring so I had to discard it. I do miss it. It held eight quarts of water and it heated quickly. I just loved that teakettle and I did hate to put it out.

It has been such a long time since I met with the sisters I should feel like the old saying, "a cat in a strange garret," for there aer so many new ones and so many have gone that I have met with.

Cricket and Spry Bird: I often think of you and your loss of daughter and sister. I lost a dear sister in August so know how you feel. Our loss is their gain but it is hard sometimes to think of it.

What good winter weather we are having now but now is the time for it if we are to have it.

Now I guess I have said enough for this time. Don't want to take up too much room or make this too long. Best wishes to all shutins and sick.

AUNT JERUSKA.

PIECING BEDQUILTS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I have not written for sometime, so I thought I would get busy. I have been sick but am better now. I hope to be able to attend the next Social Corner meeting. Hope Wurdy Belle will get back by that time.

Thanks to Theoda for the birthday card and all the rest that sent cards and flowers. I saw where Olga is piecing bedquilts. I have pieced four and have another started called the railroad block and another called shoofly. Hope all the sick ones are well again. Am looking for spring once more.

WINDHAM BLUE BELL

GREETINGS FROM LAVENDER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I neglected in my letter of last week to ask for a Social Corner pin, if it is not too late.

Biddy: My answer to you is seeing is believing, and I am still waiting. You will understand.

Sid Hopkins: What has become of you? Or in your own words, Where art thou?

Olive: What has become of you? You must not forget your old friends in Willimantic. Hope you will be able to meet with us in February at our Social Corner gathering in Chamber of Commerce rooms.

I do not think it too late to wish all a happy new year.

LAVENDER.

SEWING AND COOKING TIPS.

Dear Sisters: When putting on the collar of a blouse, the collar itself should not be stretched. If necessary the neck of the blouse should be stretched.

In making a sauce which contains egg yolks for thickening the sauce should not boil after the egg yolks are added or the sauce will curdle. Never put a meringue on a pie when it is warm. That is what causes those sirupy tears.

A. P.: I made the cocoa as you suggested and it was delicious, best ever. This is the way you advised: Put one cup of milk in the double boiler, then

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Just 50 years ago this week Congressman Henry H. Starkweather, a native of Preston, and congressman from the Third congressional district, this state, died in Washington. The same week the new fire alarm system, which had just been installed, was tested out and found to work admirably. The Connecticut National guard was making plans for a nine-day trip to Philadelphia. The Norwich Pistol company, which had suspended operations some time ago, resumed operations that week. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of January, 1876, are as follows:

Monday, Jan. 24, 1876.—A horse owned by C. W. Barnes of Preston ran away on Little Water street Saturday afternoon and made it highly exciting for teams on the way till it reached Union street, where a collision occurred, two wagons were damaged and the charger was stopped.

The first heavy snow storm of the season commenced Saturday evening and continued till after midnight. About two inches fell, which was followed by rain. The treets were in a vile condition yesterday, but the snow rapidly disappeared.

Through the kindness of several ladies and gentlemen of the city the necessary amount of money has been raised quite recently for the purchase of an excellent cabinet organ for use at the jail. The order was sent off the latter part of last week and the instrument, which, by the way, is of Boston make, and similar to the one in the vestry of the Second church, is expected to arrive within a few days.

Tuesday, Jan. 25, 1876.—The Broadway church has engaged the service of Miss Lottie Pratt of Worcester as their soprano for a year from April 1st, with Miss Minnie Hopkins, alto, F. H. George, tenor, George W. Furness, bass, and Costello Lippitt, organist. Miss Pratt has been soprano at the Salem street church, Worcester, for the past five years. She sang at the Broadway church Sunday and created a very favorable impression.

An exchange remarks that a velvet coat, light trousers and patent leather pumps form the proper morning dress for gentlemen, but we observe that our leading citizens come out and take in the milk mornings in the same old negligee of an army blanket and a pair of rubbers. It makes one heartsick to think that people have no more desire to keep up with the fashions.

A Norwich man calls himself on his card a "temperance bootmaker." The use of temperance boots is apparent, for although they are not generally drunk they are often very light.

A bowling alley has just been opened in the city. It is a novelty here and people who have been taught to shun the bowl don't know whether it is right to go in or not.

The work of establishing boxes for the fire alarm telegraph has commenced. The gong at police headquarters was put up yesterday.

Wednesday, Jan. 26, 1876.—Two horses owned by Samuel Webberly of Canterbury ran away on Main street yesterday and near Shetucket street came in collision with a buggy in which were two ladies of the family of Mr. Weller of Taftville. The buggy was upset and they were somewhat bruised.

Daniel Shugrue, an employe at the Falls company's mill, caught a hand in the machinery yesterday and three fingers were cut almost entirely off.

It is reported that a new stock company has been organized to publish the Argus and that our esteemed fellow citizen, Hon. Henry Ruggles, will write regularly for it.

When you remember that 50 years ago you could buy four cigars for a cent, all this enthusiasm about national progress seems to be a very grievous error.

Thursday, Jan. 27, 1876.—The Norwich Pistol company, which suspended operations a short time since on account of a misunderstanding among the owners, resumed work yesterday.

The St. Mary's T. A. and B. society debated the question "Is the rum seller or the rum drinker most disgraceful to society?" with James Conklin and James Doyle in favor of the former and Peter and James Byrnes opposed. It was decided that the rum seller was the greater disgrace.

The ladies of the East Main street M. E. church gave a very pleasant pound party last evening in the church parlors, which were crowded. Everybody who came brought a pound package of something which was afterwards sold by auction by Mr. Crowell. The refreshments were abundant and fine. During the evening a neat little play was given by Misses Nellie Martin, Jennie Bailey, Carrie Lewis, Nellie Crowell, Abbie O'Brien and Ada Smith and several tableaux were produced.

Friday, Jan. 28, 1876.—Sheridan and Mack, with a variety troupe, gave a very good entertainment in Breed hall last night. The company was an unusually good one and was repeatedly applauded by a large audience which insisted on nearly everything being repeated.

The Second Congregational church have engaged the following choir for the coming year: Soprano, Mrs. Robert G. Colt; alto, Mrs. H. F. Palmer; tenor, H. E. Stevens; bass, George D. Colt; organist, George H. Moore. The only change from the present choir is in the alto.

The last of Prof. Miller's regular socials will be given in Steiner's hall tonight, with additional music. Prof. Miller promises several extra dances before the close of the season.

J. P. Barstow of this city has been elected second vice president of the State Agricultural society.

Saturday, Jan. 29, 1876.—The new fire alarm was tested yesterday at all the boxes and found to work admirably. A new box will probably be put up at the Richmond Stove works. As soon as the keys now in Chief Carrier's possession are distributed, the alarm will be ready for use.

The trip of the Connecticut National guard to Philadelphia will occupy nine days. The regiments are making arrangements for sustenance while there.

Connecticut is today called to mourn the loss of one of her most distinguished sons. The Hon. Henry H. Starkweather, representative in congress from the Third congressional district in this state, died at Willard's hotel in Washington at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. Henry H. Starkweather was born in the town of Preston, in this county, on the 29th day of April, 1826. In 1867 Mr. Starkweather was elected to congress by the republicans of this district, and was re-elected for the fourth time in April last.

PENDLETON HILL

There is a large force of men repairing the road which is in very bad condition as a result of the storm of Monday, the 18th.

Miss Sarah Palmer went to Montclaire, N. J., last week. Miss Palmer has been offered a position in the Montclair Normal school.

Mrs. Willis Ailing was a visitor in Pawtucket, over the week-end.

Mrs. James Cook is visiting her son, Morton Cook, at Stonington.

Miss Clara Brown returned to her home last week, after visiting with her sister, Mrs. William Burdick, of White Rock.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson, Miss Mildred Johnson, Miss Alice Chapman and Miss Christie Palmer attended the funeral of William Hiscox, at Jewett City, Monday.

Miss Iva Roode returned to her home here, Saturday, from the Westerly hospital, where she was operated on for appendicitis. Her many friends are glad to hear she is recovering.

The men of the community formed together Wednesday of last week, and got up a generous wood pile for both the church and the parsonage. Clarence Main was on hand with his sawing machine and the wood was soon put in shape for the stove. Clifford Thompson very generously furnished the wood from his wood lot. The women served dinner for the men.

Mrs. Clifford Thompson and Miss Kathryn Thompson spent Thursday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Thompson, of Westerly.

Listeners hear as little good of others as they do of themselves.

NEW LONDON PEOPLE OVER THE TOP IN FIRST COMMUNITY CHEST CAMPAIGN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 29—The community chest drive for the raising of $58,000 for distribution among 19 social service societies and which will result in the elimination of numerous tag days was concluded tonight with a victory meeting in Bukeley auditorium. The amount sought for was more than obtained but what the total figure will reach will not be determined until tomorrow.

The funeral of Mrs. Anna Colby, wife of Edward A. Colby, formerly of this city, whose death occurred several days ago at the residence of a relative in Detroit, Mich., took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. Services were conducted by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church, in the presence of a large number of relatives and former acquaintances of Mrs. Colby. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Funeral services for Miss Isabelle R. Avery, late of Waterford, were held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Montauk Avenue Baptist church and were attended by many mourners. Rev. Horatio J. Clase, pastor of the church, and Rev. George H. Strouse, pastor of Waterford Baptist church, officiated. Relatives and intimate friends of the family acted as bearers. Burial was in East Neck cemetery, Waterford.

Robert Scott, of 121 Hempstead street, a patient at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, was able to return to his abode today.

James Smith returned to his home, 147 Bank street today having recently undergone an operation at the private hospital.

The Union & New Haven Trust company, New Haven, executors of the will of William S. Reyburn, late of this city, has sold a house and lot on Lower Boulevard to Ray S. Leeds and Howard B. Marshall.

Theodore Bodenwein has sold a building lot on Vauxhall street to Margaret E. Leblanc.

Elmer E. Jayne has sold a house and lot on Jefferson avenue to L. S. McLaughlin, Inc.

Margaret W. Mahan has sold a building lot on Vauxhall street to Margaret B Leblanc.

Miss Harriet A. Emmerich, of Connecticut avenue, employed as clerk in the probate court, left this evening for Richmond, Va., where she will remain a week at the Hotel Jefferson. During her stay in Richmond Miss Emmerich will witness the inaugural ceremony at the capitol Monday noon.

During the height of the terrific gale that swept the city last night a large gasoline sign in front of the premises corner of Bank and Shaw street, was blown down. The weighty object was removed from the sidewalk by Patrolman Timothy Sullivan, with the assistance of a pedestrian. Another sign collapsed in front of the building occupied by Moon's pharmacy, Bank street, and smashed a plate glass window.

Floor Clerk Terrence Cook, employed at the post office in passing through State street about 6:30 o'clock this morning observed a vivid glare in the cellar of the Barrows building. Believing that a fire was in progress Cook caused the police station to be notified and in a short time Patrolman George Laboue arrived. In the meantime fire headquarters was notified and Deputy Chief Thomas Shipman responded. Investigation showed that the glare must have been caused by the fireman employed at the building turning the fire over in the furnace, making a strong glare as the door was open each time and coal shoveled into the fire box.

The dwelling at 108 Williams street, owned and occupied by Mrs. Alice Savage and family, was threatened with damage by fire this morning when a quantity of soot in the chimney became ablaze. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters and Chief Charles Rose and the Northwest Hose company responded. When the firemen reached the house the flames had been confined to the chimney and were extinguished by an application of chemical in a short time. No damage of consequence resulted.

Policeman Clarence Wells is confined to his home, Tilley street, by illness.

New London has been very fortunate in the matter of fires this winter for notwithstanding there were some eighteen fires in as many days the loss was comparatively small.

Fish dealers complain of inability to secure stock for their trade. The intensely cold weather of the past two days has interfered with the catches of fish, and the wind has been so strong that vessels could not make usual trips. Prices are higher than they have been for some time because of the condition that prevails.

A man who was in town today had the intention of establishing a first-class Italian-American restaurant in this city, but he abandoned the idea after he had made inquiry as to what the chances of a paying patronage were. He was told that there were 73 restaurants here now and that the conditions of business were not as promising as they were months ago.

The freedom from snow during the winter and the comparatively mild weather up to the past two days has been a source of profit to the New Haven railroad, as is shown by the volume of business the company is handling on its rails and by the steamers the company operates from this port. By land and by water the patronage has held up above the ordinary, the freight business and the passenger traffic by rail being such as employes have an idea will show a big increase in receipts. The net is likely to show most favorably for there has been little to add to the cost of operation. The company is operating buses from this city also and that is a source of profit and a reduction of expense in the operation of the trains that were not carrying sufficient business to show a profit. The relations between the management and the employes of the company were never more cordial than they are at present and that too gets the maximum of work from the toilers who wear the overalls and the blue flannel shirts.

Funeral services for Mrs. James Coote whose death occurred in Brooklyn several days ago, were held this morning at 10 o'clock at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Thomas, 226 Carlton avenue, Brooklyn. Among the attendants at the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Ward T. Alling, 43 Vauxhall street, son-in-law and daughter, of Mrs. Coote.

Pasquale Gigliotti has sold to the city of New London a strip of land on Church street. The acquired land will be used in widening the highway.

Carlos F. Riley, Waterbury, has sold to George and Mary Floutier, property in Uncasville consisting of an acre and three-quarters of land, a large house, several barns and a garage.

Saul Tanenbaum, 72 Connecticut avenue, and Mrs. John Mondelci and infant daughter, 225 Colman street, were patients dismissed today at Home Memorial hospital.

Joseph Fine is confined to his home, 395 Pequot avenue by illness believed to be of a serious nature.

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Morris, Sr., Henry street, has returned to New London, after having attended the convention in Hartford of the Order of Eastern Star, grand chapter of Connecticut.

The police received another complaint late this afternoon which alleged the viciousness of a dog owned by G. Curtis Morgan, Broad street, the complaint being the third of the same nature that the police have received within the past month. The complainant today was Mrs. Philip Butleman, 293 Williams street, who declared that her little daughter was walking along Broad street, between Cleveland and Channing streets about 3 o'clock, when one of the dogs owned by the attorney leaped over the fence and attacked her, biting the girl extensively about the limbs. Mr. Morgan was communicated with and he declared that the dogs had been chained since 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The complaint, however, was turned over to Dog Warden John Sweezy for investigation.

So scarce is the supply of coal in New London that parents are sending their children about the city in an endeavor to obtain wood as a means of providing fuel. Soft coal and substitutes can be obtained at most of the coal yards and at yards that are supplying coke. The price is $22 per ton.

What the director of law of the city will recommend to the council no one can say for he is not known to have expressed an opinion. He will do so very soon, however, for the majority of the city council desires to have the plans ready to proceed with before summer travel sets in and the street is congested. There seems to be a way out of the congestion difficulty by extending Green street to Tilley street and opening up Washington street to Reed street. Whether either of the latter plans will be looked upon with favor by the council is not known. Either of them would be comparatively inexpensive as compared to the Bank street alterations.

THEFT OF MEAT VALUED AT $800 IS REPORTED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 29.—Isadore Kaplan, proprietor of a meat market, 229 Howard street, complained to the police this evening that he had been robbed of a considerable quantity of meats. Kaplan's loss is figured as being about $800.

Kaplan declared that he had placed an order with a Boston beef company and this morning about 4 o'clock a truck arrived at the market with the goods. The place was not open for business so the driver of the truck unloaded the foodstuffs and placed them at the store entrance. When Kaplan arrived at the market about 7 o'clock instead of finding the meats he found only the bill for the same. Kaplan declared that the order called for 110 pounds of loin pork, two strips of bacon, one fresh ham, 25 pounds of salt spareribs, one back of beef, one lamb and one sack of lamb legs. Why Kaplan did not report the alleged theft of the good immediately upon finding that the meats had been stolen is more than the police can imagine for he did not make known his alleged loss until 12 hours after the theft is supposed to have occurred. It has become a practice of late of drivers of trucks leaving merchandise of a perishable nature in the doorway of stores when there is no one to receive the goods and it has also occurred several times that the goods were stolen prior to the opening of the store for business. The theft from the Kaplan store is the biggest haul the thieves have yet made. In order to convey the goods from the store entrance a truck would have to be used and undoubtedly the thief had assistance, besides having knowledge of the practice of goods being left at the store entrance to await the opening of the store.

STRUCK BY AUTO AFTER ALIGHTING FROM TROLLEY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Agnes Svenberg, 20, employed at a local State street store, and residing with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Svenberg, 28 Evergreen avenue, was seriously injured this evening when she was run down by an automobile, owned and operated by Jacob M. Linicus, Jr., Glenwood park. Miss Svenberg is now a patient at Lawrence hospital suffering from a fractured right leg, scalp wounds and abrasions about both arms and knees. While no fatal results are anticipated, the girl experiences considerable pain and will be under treatment at the institution indefinitely.

The girl boarded a Connecticut company trolley car at the State street terminal about 6 o'clock to go to her home. When the trolley car arrived on Montauk avenue, corner of Sherman street, Miss Svenberg started to alight. She stepped from the car to the highway and as she started to cross to the sidewalk the Linicus automobile, headed in a southerly direction, came along and at an alleged fast rate of speed. Before Miss Svenberg could get out of the way of the automobile she was struck with great force and hurled to the macadam highway. Other passengers went to the assistance of Miss Svenberg, who was unable to regain her feet. Miss Svenberg was placed in a passing automobile and rushed to the hospital.

OWNERS WILL RESIST BANK STREET CHANGES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 29.—Members of the city council are giving serious consideration to the plans for the improvements in Bank street, these contemplating the widening of the highway and the establishment of building lines. The first of these projects is expensive enough, but it is claimed that it will not be as costly to set the curbing back and to relay walks that have been disturbed as will be the fixing of building lines, in that property must be taken to do this, for which heavy damages will be sought.

Some of the property owners have been paying taxes on sidewalk land which they have not used except as the public uses it solely for purposes of travel. The owners claim, and, it would seem rightfully, that they are entitled by owning the land in fee to have the use of it in the event that they desire to build upon it. The fact that they have not made use of the land is the exercise of their fancy only. The establishment of a building line on the street would deprive them of what they have bought and what they have title of record to. In specified cases some of the land has been built upon and in other cases the eaves of buildings overhang the proposed lines. To disturb the conditions now and to require changes will be something that property owners will resist in the courts.

DOWNEY WOMAN MAKES APPEARANCE IN COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 29—The effort of the New London police department to clear out vile and disreputable resorts which begun with the arrest of a colored girl named Sylvia Wells at a house in Potter street a week ago, continue today, when Mazie Williams Downey was charged in the police courtw ith being a person who kept the Wells girl for purpose of prostitution. The Downey woman was brought from Lawrence hospital where she has been for treatment for wounds inflicted upon her with a razor in the hands of the Wells girl. That slashing was a terrific one and left the woman with scars she will carry the rest of her life. Her face was a mass of plaster patches. The Wells woman is in jail where she is held until she appears in the police court Tuesday next to answer to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. Mrs. Downey has secured counsel, it is understood and will attempt a defense, though how that will serve her is not apparent. The prosecutor asked for a continuance of the case against the Downey woman to the 2nd of February at which time the Wells girl and men who were in the resort where the cutting took place are to be on hand to give testimony if needed.

The Wells girl has made a full and complete statement under oath as to her coming to New London, and has said that a man named Jackson, who is in jail to serve a sentence of six months and to pay a fine of $100, brought her here to enter the Downey house as a prostitute. Miss Wells has not concealed anything and has named the men who were frequenters of the house. She will give as testimony the same statements she has made to the police. Jackson acknowledged his part in bringing the Wells girl here when he pleaded guilty and was committed to jail and fined. The Downey woman has been a character well known to the police for many years. She has been convicted of various offenses and has often been punished. It is certain in that the cases in hand will result in ridding the city of characters who should be disposed of. All the parties concerned are negroes.

BOSTON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Lawrence W. Lunt, and Bertram O. Willis, old friends met today in the lobby of Suffolk county court house.

"What are you doing around here?" asked Willis.

"Oh, I'm just one of the goats," Lunt replied.

A few minutes later in the superior court they heard Judge McLaughlin declare a mistrial in a bucket-shop case because of their conversation. Willis was a juror at the trial, and Lunt a prospective witness.

OILS FEATURED MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Revival of speculative interest in the oil and rail shares featured the resumption of the upward movement in today's stock market. Pool operations again played a prominent part in the day's trading, being influenced by prospects for a further reduction of money rates next month.

The weekly mercantile reviews stressed the fact that business was running ahead of a year ago. Dun's reports "the business movements of the first month of the new year have been mainly favorable and encouraging prospects predominate," explaining further that "even in lines where results have not wholly met expectations, as in the principal metal trades, it is recognized that potential needs are heavy and that fundamental conditions are strong." Bradstreet's states "there has been an apparent slowing up in trade and industry during the past week" for which climatic and seasonal influences are responsible.

Spirited bidding for the oil shares just before the close of the market was accompanied by rumors of an early increase in crude prices. Standard Oil of New Jersey advanced from 43 3-4 to 46 on total transactions of less than 50,000 shares, and Sinclair was pushed up from 22 to 24, a net gain of 2 5-8 on total sales of nearly 115,000 shares. Pure Oil rallied moderately on the declaration of an extra dividend. Marland closed 2 3-8 higher at 60, and Pna-American B., Texas Company, General Asphalt, Maracaibo and a few others advanced a point or so.

Rails made a belated response to the publication of favorable December earning statements, under the leadership of New York Central, which advanced 2 1-2 points to 151 3-4. Good buying also was noted in such issues as Lackawanna, Wabash preferred "B", Southern Railway, "Soo" common and preferred, Chesapeake and Ohio, and "Katy preferred. Reports that several of the rail unions were preparing demands for increased wages apparently were disregarded.

Food specialties were among the most spectacular features. California Packing soared 13 points to 170 1-2, and then reacted 3 points on profit.

Taking on persistent reports that the company would be merged with Postum Cereal, whose stock advanced six points to 123 1-4, and then fell back to 119. Beechnut Packing, which was also mentioned as a likely unit of the proposed combination showed a net gain of 4 1-2 points at 78 1-2. Austin Nichols, Coca Cola and Jewel Tea each closed about two points higher, and a better demand was noted for Armour A., and B.

Other outstanding strong spots, included American Brake Shoe and Foundry, Famous Players, International Combustion Engineering and Durham Hosiery, all of which closed 3 and 8 points higher.

Commodity markets moved within rather narrow and irregular limits. Active wheat and cotton futures showed slight recessions. The raw sugar future market was firmer and coffee prices showed net advances of 25 of 40 points.

Call money opened at four per cent., but advanced to five in the afternoon, closing at the top. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A rally of about five points in French francs, which touched 3.80 cents for the first time in over two weeks was the feature of the firm foreign exchange market. Demand Sterling ruled just under $4.86 and Japanese yen wore back to 45 cents.

ATTORNEY TANNER GIVES ELOQUENT TRIBUTE TO LATE BRYAN F. MAHAN

The late Bryan F. Mahan, former mayor of New London, and a former congressman and state senator, had the vision of a greater New London and what he accomplished for the city will remain as monuments to him declared Attorney Abel P. Tanner in delivering an eloquent tribute at the memorial service held for Mr. Mahan by the county bar association at the superior court short calendar session in New London Friday morning.

Judge Allyn L. Brown presided at the memorial service at which there was a large attendance of the members of the bar of this county.

Resolutions signed by a committee, consisting of Alfred Coit, Abel P. Tanner and William T. Connor, were accepted, spread upon the records and a copy is to be sent to the family. It was also voted to file the address of Mr. Tanner in the archives of the bar association.

The resolutions spoke of Mr. Mahan as a successful lawyer, competent official and cheerful acquaintance, in whose death the Bar had lost a valiant member, the city a useful public servant and the state a distinguished citizen.

Tribute By Atty. Tanner

The tribute to Mr. Mahan was given by Attorney Tanner as follows:

It can hardly be information to his contemporaries to say at the outset that Bryan F. Mahan began his career at the lowest round. He came from the ranks of the common people. He was born in New London, in May, 1856, the second son of Andrew and Dora Meade Mahan; he lived in this city all his life, was more or less identified with its growth and here he died in the Catholic faith, in November, 1923, at 67. When he was born, New London had been a city for 72 years; but its area was small and its people were few. Now, seventy years more have passed, since then and in that time its dimensions have grown larger and its population has been multiplied four fold. Thus the child, Mahan stood in the gateway between two nearly equal periods in the city's history and he lived to see it grow as it had never grown before.

His father and mother were sturdy emigrants from the south of Ireland, nor unlike the many who have come, from time to time, from that troubled isle to help build our canals and our railroads; initiating, so to speak, some of the great trans-continental lines which now reach from sea to sea; doing almost as much, in peace, to hold these states together with bands of steel, as the Union armies did to preserve them in the awful storms of war. But, though his parents were poor, they were industrious and they taught their seven children to be self supporting. Bryan, with his predilection for mechanical labor, early learned the tinman's trade when that business was more specialized, and he became an expert in that line. Some have preferred to call him a plumber, a kindred industry with a little more tone. Very likely he was an excellent plumber but he had no false conception of the dignity of labor. With him all productive work was honorable; and, so far from concealing the fact that he had been a tinman, he was proud of it and used to say, "I was a tinman and I think I was a good one."

Early Showed Ambition

Nevertheless, he did not care to be always a tinman or even a plumber. He believed that in this country the humblest artisan has a right to climb higher. And so, after a course in the public schools including his years at Bartlett, he had earned enough money to put him through the Albany law school on his way to the profession he had elected to serve, and in 1881, following a brief term in Judge Wheeler's law office, he was admitted to practice in this state. He came to this bar without adequate academic training; he could not have inherited much aptitude for the law from his immediate ancestors and he could hardly have been called a close student; but he had the magic combination which, in our profession, opens stubborn doors; native ability and a temperament peculiarly adapted to the role of an advocate. He was combative, forceful, aggressive and daring, and never was fezzed or discouraged by defeat. He had something of the martial instinct. With a military education he might, in the event of war, have been an able commander. At all events, a course at West Point would have helped him. It might have cured his one great weakness: impatience and lack of self control. He might, there, have learned that "He that ruleth his spirit is greater than he that taketh a city." He might have learned something else, even at West Point he might have learned the art of conciliation. Lacking that, he was not always able to command the full support of even those who thought with him, politically. Yet, in spite of his limitations, he was successful and that, after all, is the main thing. He was nominally connected with this bar for more than forty years, and long enough in active practice to develop capacity as a trial lawyer. His ability as an organizer served him in the preparation of causes; his concise and pungent style of utterance interested the triers, and, on occasion, he could be psychological.

Went Into Politics

But "One man in his time acts many parts." To one, of his mercurial temperament it is not strange if, the restraints of a courtroom oppressed him and he sought an arena where the combatants make their own rules. Though competent to field work, he seems to have preferred, if we may use a military expression, the chart-room of a general staff where legal battles are mapped and planned. This and his digression into political and other side lines, led many to suppose he had abandoned the law; whereas, he was occasionally employed, or his suggestions adopted in some cause of moment, through all the forty years. Some of these cases were tragic in their possibilities, they involved issues of happiness and misery, and even of life and death. In some of them he was not even counsel of record, received no compensation, had no newspaper praise, secured no advertisement; his very suggestions, apparently, springing from an impulse to help some unfortunate who was caught in fate's ... bus web. He was resourceful, ... emergent situations. He had a ... inspiring hope and courage ... disgrace sometimes faltered—... uring them to the performance ... seemingly, impossible tasks—... ach is the gift of leadership. ... is not surprising that those ... erved these things, believed ... in him the maiden of a ... er, if he elected to make the ... e week and had wrought wid... owledge. And some of them, ... s back, will always regret ... 's hand so early, from that ... field by his commercial instinct and the stress of politics. They believe that in time he would have stood in the front rank of his profession; that he might have been just as successful, financially; that his career would have been less stormy; that he would have made more friends and fewer enemies and that in the end, he would have been happier. Still, it is not for those who, now, reflect on that pathetic phrase, "It might have been," to criticise his motives or his preference.

His Successes

He had a right to choose his way of life and we cannot say that he failed. He did not fail, financially, starting as an impecunious lad with no money except what he earned or could borrow, he left an estate worth $300,000, mainly acquired through business adventures. He did not fail, politically. He was in the local school board was twice chosen to the lower house of the general assembly; was prosecuting attorney; received a plurality vote for secretary of state; was postmaster under three administrations; mayor of New London for nine years; state senator; four times a delegate to the national conventions of his party and, finally, elected to congress, the only democratic member from this district in sixty years. He did not fail in executive ability. On the contrary, in the field of municipal achievement, he wrought some of his greatest triumphs. Of this there is abundant evidence. There are the city's granolithio walks; its parks and public squares; its added residential districts, and there is Bronson Hill; this is his distinguished part, not only in the founding of The Connecticut College for Women, but in connecting New London and Groton by a permanent span, there is, also, the municipal building, and there is the state pier—the crowning achievement of his life—and there they will remain forever.

Met Opposition

Curiously, Mahan was opposed in nearly all he undertook. Though not himself, of classic mould, he came to know, in his limited sphere, something of the criticism which has beat upon the great characters in history, who, like him were successful men. Manifestly not in their class, he might yet have been identified with them beyond his own frontiers.

He might have been a Robert Clive, a Cecil Rhodes, or even the president of Peru; with his figure enlarged by the camera of circumstances to heroic dimensions, but for the rift in his nature and that something which genius does not govern—the mysterious intervention of fate. Man proposes, but God disposes; and, obviously, the divinity which shapes our ends, elects the man of destiny. Mr. Mahan did not win that appellation. Localized in his allotted corner, he remained, to the nations, obscure. Yet, with strange irony, he was credited by some with the same impulse which has moved so many potential candidates for world fame, in the forum of mankind. It was said that he coveted official station; was impatient of rivals; maneuvred them out of his way or wantonly rode over them; and that it was all for the love of place. Yet, this ardent citizen who courted public recognition, according to the claim, was singularly free from vanity. The name, Mahan, is by no means undistinguished in history, and it would have been easy to connect him with the family tree; but the lure of ancestry, which fascinates so many, did not appeal to him. Apparently, he cared little for coats of arms, or titles of distinction, or badges of office; still less for the plumes and trappings of dress parade. He knew that time is strangely democratic that they who are great enough to reach posterity, usually arrive denuded of distinguishing titles. He may have wanted power for what power can do, but he cared nothing for its pomp and circumstance except as a means to an end. If he was ambitious and sought the high places of the field, and was impatient of rivals, it was rather because he believed he was capable of doing great things and of doing them better than some who sought to displace him; though, in this he may have been mistaken. He was subject to fits of temper in which he berated his enemies and scolded his friends; yet his greetings were the same to rich and poor. Rising from obscurity to near national fame, and from penury to affluence, he developed no snobbish traits, assumed no lofty airs. Apparently, his courtesy knew no distinction between a friend robed in costly attire and one clad in the rags of poverty; and he was not without magnanimity, at times, towards even an acknowledged foe. Whatever criticism he may have merited, and, those who shared his confidence believed that, in the alchemy of his mind, the whole catalogue of alleged mistakes was, somehow, transmuted into a kind of civic benefaction; that, though his methods might be costly and extravagant and, sometimes, unwise, he believed that in the end they would rebound to the welfare of the city; and the city was his great objective. He visioned a greater New London, of magnificent proportions; he wrought incessantly to that end, and in the imagination he saw, in the far off horizon, the city yet to be.

A Political Storm Center

Confessedly, impetuous in disposition, he was, politically, a storm center. Around him the cauldrons of passion boiled and bubbled. He came to know life's loves and hates. He heard himself commended by the noisy throng and he heard himself called hard names. But time writes the answer to all equations; it is the physician that cures all ills. As an ocean buoy, nearly submerged by the seething tide, rights itself at slack water, so do time and circumstances restore the prestige of him who leads his fellow men. It will be so with our friend. Those who admired him living, will cherish him dead. In their fond conception he will again be the leader whose courage never failed. And the hostile will forgive and forget, as the years o'ertake their resentment. Posterity will gauge him fairly, with its metewand and scale in those dreamy years to be and charity, with gentle hands will mantle all mistakes, as the snows of winter cover his peaceful grave. Whatever else occurs or men may say, one consequence is sure; no complete history of New London will ever again be written with his name left out; and, may be, that is the finest compliment we could pay to him or any of his fellow men.

Mr. Mahan was twice married. His first wife, Nora Shehan, lived but a few years. He married, second, Margaret W., the daughter of Mr. E. C. Whittlesey, a prominent New Londoner and one of the old New England stock; and, together, like his father and mother, they reared seven children to maturity in their native town, and lived to see them included among its best citizens. These, no doubt, in future time will recall with pride his many achievements when, perchance, they are aged and gray, and, may be, it will be given to them to behold the city of his dream. But he will not be here. In him, the mystery of birth and death accents the pathos of human life. He came, in the rift of spring with its scent of apple blossoms and song birds' melody; he went out like the many, in the fading season "in the blanket of the dark," as the winds of November tossed the dead autumnal leaves. So runs the current of this mortal stream. We go back fifty years, in recollections of this bar, and endeavor to count the long roll of the dead, and the number is appalling. Yet, they all travelled with us for a little way; and then, we saw them not. We called the roll, at sunset, but they did not answer; and we have left them by the wayside, out there among the hills.

LANDSCAPE ARTIST FOR STATE'S HIGHWAY SYSTEM

The Connecticut highway department announced Friday the appointment of a landscape architect. This is a new post created by the department upon the approval of the board of control and Hans A. Bauer of New Haven, graduate forester, has been appointed to the place. The appointment was authorized by the board of control on December 10, and Mr. Bauer began his actual duties with the department on January 1.

The highway department has been for a long time studying the problem, and, after having several reports rendered by experts in the matter, decided that it could only possibly do this work by the organization of a new branch of the department.

The entire problem has been thoroughly surveyed, including the needs of future highway development, property ownership, traffic conditions, electric line wires, tree growth, soil conditions and the legal aspects, with a view of preserving the beauty of the state's roads and learning the probable cost of the undertaking.

A survey of the conditions as made shows the need for an organized forestry service as an adjunct to the state's road building program. Proposals along this line will be submitted to the general assembly at its next session.

Under the authority of the 1922 legislature, the department is empowered only to plant shade trees bordering the state trunk line roads, and the department will suggest that the next legislature authorize the commissioner to take charge of all tree growth along the highways and provide an appropriation to carry on this work.

The highway commissioner feels that the planting of shade trees along the highways is only a small part of the work which should be done and that the spraying, pruning and trimming of the trees already along the highways is very important.

Mr. Bauer, the newly appointed landscape architect is 27 years of age, a graduate of the Sheffield Scientific School and Yale School of Forestry with the degrees of PhB. and M. F.

He was connected with the New Haven division of the department during 1924 road survey work, and later was employed by the Abitibi Power and Paper Co., Ltd., of Canada in a forest-engineering capacity, and also surveyed the timber holdings of the New Jersey Zinc company of Franklin, N. J.

Mr. Bauer commenced this month to arrange a plan for planting on the reconstructed sections of the Boston Post road so that active work may be started early in the spring. Where sections of highway have been relocated, small plots of land remain that can be utilized for a beautification program. The work is to be pushed just as rapidly as possible with the hope that inside of four years plantings will be made on the complete highway system.

FALLS COMPANY MILL HAS THREATENING FIRE

Shortly before 9 o'clock Friday morning a threatening fire broke out in the dusting room under the picker room at the Falls company's mill, on Yantic street. Quick work by the fire department and men in the employ of the company, held the blaze down and it was soon extinguished with a minimum loss. It was 8:50 o'clock Friday morning when the department received a telephone call for help at the fire. When the firemen arrived there was a bad fire in progress in the dusting room. The mill fire department had two lines of hose laid and the sprinkler system was aiding in holding the blaze. Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft and Squad A, remained at the scene after the other apparatus and Chief Howard L. Stanton had returned to the stations.

Shortly afterwards an auto truck loaded with cotton waste and standing outside the building blazed up. The firemen soon had this fire extinguished and then more trouble hove in sight. The large smokestack showed signs of fire and two more lines of hose were laid and water poured into the chimney. Lint and waste scattered from the dusting room, had been drawn into the chimney causing the chimney blaze.

Some of the flooring in the plant had to be torn up in order to get at the blaze. Several holes in the mill flooring had become filled with water and one of the firemen accidently stepped into one, dropping down into freezing water up to his waist. As fast as the water rushed from the hose lines it froze and a number of the firemen were coated in ice.

It was a hard fire to fight and had it not been for the usual efficient work of the local department the entire plant might have been destroyed. It was 11:40 before the last of the apparatus arrived at Central station.

FRANK L. FARRELL TO PLAY WITH GOVERNOR'S FOOTGUARDS

New Haven papers are giving considerable space to the fact that when the band of the Second company, Governor's footguards, gives its first symphony concert at Poli's Palace theatre, New Haven, one of the soloists is to be Frank L. Farrell, so recently of Norwich.

The "Feeters" are getting up a big benefit, to help defray the expenses of a European trip in May by the Feetere, the Richmond Blues and Putnam Phalanx. The New Haven Feeters is the only one of the three organizations to be accompanied by a band.

Harry Berman, leader of the theatre orchestra, is directing the concert and has secured musicians drafted from other New Haven orchestras to make a company of sixty. May Bradley Kelsey will be soprano soloist.

Mr. Farrell is to play the celebrated Ist Concerto, which magnificent composition he played with the late Frederick W. Lester, and which created such a profound impression at the Palace Theatre, Norwich, last year, in the series of concerts arranged for the benefit of Connecticut college by Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins.

The Footguard orchestra is composed of most of the New Haven Symphony orchestra. The theatre chosen for the concert is a big structure, with great auditorium, three balconies, etc.

His Norwich friends learn that Prof. Farrell is continuing his fine musical work in the Elm City and has made a most favorable impression by his skill as organist and chorister at St. Mary's Dominican church, in the Yale university section of the city.

Eyestrains which are caused by faulty vision are a tremendous handicap to most people. By straining your eyes you strain your entire nervous system. This may cause headaches, nervousness, depression, as well as other physical discomforts.

The brain is also affected, and the power to concentrate and think quickly is lessened.

Come in and let us examine your eyes. You owe it to yourself to have this done now. Your eyes should be examined once a year.

CAPT. FRIED CALLED HEROIC RESCUE "MERELY OUR DUTY"

Captain and Crew of the U. S. Liner President Roosevelt Were Greeted at Plymouth, England, by Rousing Ovation—All Manner of Craft in the Harbor Bore Crowds Which Shouted Their Welcome—Hamburg American Liner is Engaged in Rescue Work.

PLYMOUTH, England, Jan. 31—(AP)—British conservatism went by the boards when the storm battered United States liner President Roosevelt entered Plymouth sound at ten o'clock this morning, carrying 25 members of the crew of the British freighter Antinoe, whose lives the Americans saved after a four days' battle in mid-ocean.

The whistles and sirens of hundreds of ships and factories greeted the men whose valor transcended national lines and has focussed the eyes of the world on Captain Fried and his gallant crew. They work of mercy succeeded though it costs the lives of two gallant rescuers.

"Well done," was the signal hoisted on two tenders which steamed out to meet the Roosevelt, coming in with empty davits, indicating the position of the lifeboats which had been battered to pieces in the cruel sea through which the Roosevelt's men sought to reach the Antinoe crew clinging to the sinking freighter.

Captain Fried responded to the signal with flags which spelled out "Thank you."

All manner of craft in the great naval harbor bore crowds which shouted their welcome. It was an ovation to heroism, pure and unselfish heroism, the sort that British and Americans had displayed shoulder to shoulder in the Great war. The tenders were crowded with notables representing the king and the admiralty, but all made way for a little woman weeping with joy who was the first person to cross the lowered bridge to the deck of the Roosevelt. It was Mrs. Harry Tose, wife of the Antinoe's captain.

She rushed into the arms of her husband and collapsed; the strain had been too great for the little woman whose husband carried her to a seat and soothed her until she regained her composure.

Shortly they were walking the deck with entwined arms and the crowd rushed from the tender to welcome the survivors and congratulate the Roosevelt's crew.

Mrs. Tose lives at Stockton-On-Tees; she had her first intimation of the peril in which her husband was when she went to a library in her home town to consult Lloyds' list. There she saw "Antinoe in distress." For nearly five days she neither slept nor ate, and prayed constantly for the success of the efforts of the rescue parties.

"How can I ever thank you enough for giving me back my husband," she exclaimed tearfully when she was introduced to Captain Fried, who modestly replied: "I did what any sailor would do. It was just my luck to be there. Any other ship would have done the same."

The mayor of Plymouth, Captain Goldsmith, of H. M. S. Douglas, representing the admiralty, Commander Holcombe, representing the commander-in-chief at Devonport, Captain Humphries, the king's harbor master, Captain J. King, representing the board of trade, and Ralph C. Busser, the American consul, made up the official delegation which greeted Captain Fried. The mayor of Plymouth congratulated the Roosevelt's captain on a deed "that will go down in history as unequalled in the records of the seas," and expressed profound sorrow at the loss of two American lives.

"This heroic rescue," he said, "will make closer the relations between the great maritime nations and all English-speaking people. All mourn the gallant dead who gave up their lives for humanity. Their unselfishness will never be forgotten. Their names will live forever, as well as the gallant deeds of the President Roosevelt's captain and crew."

Captain Fried replied on behalf of his officers and men: "We merely did our duty. Any other ship able to cope with such an emergency would have done the same."

The Antinoe's crew was a quaint jolly party, whose spirits had been revived by a diet of American buckwheat cakes and Philadelphia capon, which greatly cheered the chilled seamen who had not had a bite of warm food for four days before their rescue.

The passengers and crew of the Roosevelt clothed the men in whatever garments they could supply from their own wardrobes, and the survivors looked as though they had been outfitted at a rummage sale, but their joy at reaching England again and meeting their relatives made them forget their quaint appearance.

HAMBURG AMERICAN LINER ENGAGED IN RESCUE WORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Another passenger boat halted in mid-Atlantic tonight to aid a stricken freighter, the latest victim of the North Atlantic's week -long storm. Captain Grasiff of the Hamburg American liner Westphalia wirelessed that he was standing by the Dutch steamer Alkaid, in answer to a rescue message for help.

The transport, that the Westphalia had to have to, came shortly after news of the arrival of the President Roosevelt in Plymouth with 25 members of the crew of the British freighter Antinoe, rescued from the foundering vessel after a four-day fight with the storm.

Captain Grasiff's message to the New York office of the line stated: "Having been asked for assistance by the Dutch steamer Alkaid, am standing by. Position, Latitude 47.05 south, Longitude 45.38 west."

The Alkaid, bound from Rotterdam to Philadelphia, is believed to be carrying a crew of about 30 men. The Westphalia was on its way to New York from Hamburg.

Several other steamers and schooners reported yesterday they were in distress because of the heavy sea and gale. A schooner and submarine were towed in today.

The schooner Bright of Georgetown, Me., was towed into Sandy Hook today by the coast guard cutter Seneca which had gone to its aid 120 miles off Ambrose Light. The storm had ripped the canvas and torn loose the bright's winches, and the five master called for help yesterday. No one was injured.

The naval submarine T-3 was taken in tow off Key West, Fla., by the naval tug Bay Springs today, after spending last night at the mercy of the storm with her fuel line broken and her oil supply exhausted.

The Alkaid is the third freighter since last Sunday whose call for aid has been answered by a passenger boat. The North German Lloyd liner Bremen rescued six men from the foundering Ladistan before it sank with the remaining 25 members of the crew. The President Roosevelt's rescue of the crew of the Antinoe was made at the cost of two lives of the liner's crew.

DESCRIBED HIS SHIP'S BATTLE WITH THE STORM

PLYMOUTH, England, Jan. 31—(AP)—W. Richardson, deckhand on the Antinoe, belonging to Cardiff, graphically described his ship's battle with the storm. His right hand in a sling because of injuries, he told of the wreck of the vessel.

"I came on deck at seven bells on Sunday, January 24, the weather was terrific. The Antinoe came up into the wind and a heavy sea struck her and swept away the bridge, small boat and the ice chest. The boat crashed into the steering gear and put it out of action. The crew worked frantically to repair the damage. But the vessel took a list and the cargo of grain shifted.

"The Antinoe began to drift; seas were breaking over her and these started the seams and plates. The water began to pour through, and the grain started to swell. Hatches were forced up and could not be got back. We had to improvise tarpaulin covers, we tried to cut chocks of wood to secure the hatches but they would not hold.

"We fought continuously with these conditions and lived on biscuits and tinned meat. Though we had good supplies of potatoes, the galley fire was disabled and the dynamo was disordered, so the wireless operator could not work. I was knocked down by a wave and broke a bone in my right hand. Pumps were kept going by three engineers while the power lasted, but the water was gaining the whole time.

"Between the time of the first and second boats leaving the Antinoe took a list of ten degrees. As the first boat departed Officer Miller shouted "I will come back later for you. Good luck."

"When the second boat came to the rail our ships was practically level with the water and we had to be very careful in jumping.

"The American ship in the first place picked us up with a searchlight, but the Antinoe then had enough power to keep the lights going so the Roosevelt could hold her in view. At one time we lost sight of the American ship for eight or ten hours. We drifted, I think about 53 miles altogether.

"The first boat that was launched from the Roosevelt was spreading oil on the sea but she capsized and two of her crew were drowned. In all my experience I have never seen such foam and spray. The only partly dry place on the Antinoe was the forecastle.

"And the cabins—they were awash to their bunks. We tried to get a little comfortable sleep by lying on the lagging pipes to dry our clothes and when we got up we could scarcely move for cramps. During the rescue work our wiless operator fell into the water but was pulled out again."

Another deckhand, J. S. Shipley, described how when the Roosevelt sent a rocket line across he grabbed it and jumped from the main deck to the well deck but failed to allow for the list and landed in the sea.

SUBMARINE T-3 IS BEING TOWED TO KEY WEST

KEY WEST, Fla., Jan. 31.—(AP)—None the worse for her experience the naval submarine T-3 tonight was being towed to port here by the naval tug Bay Springs after spending the night and part of yesterday anchored out in the Atlantic with her fuel line broken and her oil supply exhausted.

ASSISTANT FIRE CHIEF FELL FROM OVERWORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP)—In one of the smokiest fires the city has seen in years Assistant Chief Joseph B. (Smoky Joe) Martin collapsed today from overwork, one fireman fell off a fire escape and was slightly injured, and half a dozen others were overcome with smoke. The fire was in a five story brick building occupied by a lumber company in Wooster street on the lowest West Side.

Smoky Joe, known throughout the department for his indefatigable energy, took charge of the fire when a second alarm was turned in by a deputy chief. He commanded the fire fighters for more than two hours before the flames were brought under control.

His work done he left the building and as he stopped to talk to reporters he suddenly crumpled up in the street. He was removed to his home where doctors said his collapse was due to overstrain. It was said his strength had been sapped by recent fires which had prevented his getting enough sleep. He clondition was not believed to be serious.

Origin of the fire was undetermined and firemen made no estimate of the damage.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Radio Tests Failure in France

PARIS, Jan. 31—(AP)—So far as France was concerned the international radio tests which began a week ago, proved a disappointment, although elaborate preparations were made to receive messages and programmes broadcast on the other side of the Atlantic, the result was extremely poor. Radio experts blame the extraordinary atmospheric conditions which prevailed during the week.

RESEARCH AND COMMERCIAL DEVELOPMENT OF AVIATION

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Tentative plans for administering the $2,500,000 fund established by Daniel Guggenheim for the promotion of aeronautics were outlined today by Harry F. Guggenheim, president of the fund, who suggested that the money be used to finance educational activities, scientific research and the commercial development of aviation.

In addition to aeronautical courses now being supported in eastern universities, the preliminary report suggested the establishment of chairs of aeronautics in colleges of the west, south and southwest. There may be strong justification at the present time, it added, for the establishment of a school of aeronautics in one of the established engineering colleges on the west coast, inasmuch as no aeronautical instruction is available west of Michigan.

"In considering such projects," said the report, "one must not overlook the act that at least one year must elapse before a chair could be established, another four years before students could be graduated and another, say, two years at least before these graduates will have 'found themselves,' that in considering our market for aeronautical engineers we must look seven years ahead."

Other educational activities under consideration include encouragement of general aviation lectures to seniors in civil and mechanical engineering at various universities, donation of special equipment for aeronautical education and research, the creation of aviation fellowships and arrangements for giving instruction in the practical mechanics of aircraft in trade schools.

SENATE MAY VOTE ON TAX REDUCTION THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The tax reduction fight in the senate, centering on proposed repeal of the inheritance tax and discontinuance of the publicity of income tax payments, will reach a showdown this week.

Expressing confidence today that the senate would approve the compromise between republican and democratic regulars, as embodied in the finance committee's report on the bill and including repeal of these two provisions, Chairman Smoot of the committee predicted a final vote would be reached by Saturday night.

This is several days earlier than the February 10 deadline set by the chairman for the passage of the bill, and no action is not obtained by Saturday night, Senator Smoot said he would press for night sessions next week to speed up the work. Under this program, leaders expect to assure final enactment of the bill by March 15, when first income tax installments are due.

All non-controversial items have been disposed of in the three days the bill has been under consideration by the senate, and the fighting points will be taken up now in order. These include the new surtax rates, proposed repeal of the inheritance and publicity provisions, and proposed reductions in the miscellaneous levies.

One the most serious contests now in prospect, those involving repeal of the inheritance and publicity provisions, party lines are not expected to prevail. Chairman Smoot and other republicans of the finance committee, as well as a majority of the democratic members, favor both propositions, while Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, is leading the fight against repeal of the publicity provision and Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, for the retention of the present inheritance rates.

The bill will be sidetracked for two hours tomorrow to permit the senate to transact some of the routine business which piled up during its long debate on the world court, but Chairman Smoot plans to call it up later in the day and keep it constantly before the senate thereafter.

TWO SIDES OF EXCAVATION GAVE WAY IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—Two sides of the excavation for the new Paramount theater building, fronting on Times Square, between 43rd and 44th streets, gave way tonight during the height of the after-theater rush, breaking a water main and a gas main and threatening to cause a cave-in of the Tons of water poured from a 24-inch surrounding sidewalks and streets main into the excavation.

OBITUARY

George Vere Hobart

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 31—(AP)—George Vere Hobart, humorist and author or co-author of more than fifty musical comedy librettos and plays, died in the Alleghany hospital here today. Death was attributed to a general breakdown, Mr. Hobart was 59 years of age.

The playwright had been under the care of physicians for several months and entered the local hospital immediately after arriving here two weeks ago from his Ventnor, N. J., home to visit his mother-in-law, Mrs. Anna de Vries.

Suffering from kidney and heart complications, his condition gradually became worse, and after two heart attacks on Thursday he was so weakened that hope of recovery was abandoned. His two children, Vere and Bayne, were at the bedside.

Hobart's most pronounced stage success was the morality play "Experience." Among the best known of his other plays were "Our Mrs. McChesney," written for Ethel Barrymore; "Miss Print," designed as a vehicle for Marie Dressler; "Sonny," "Buddies" and "Sweet Sixteen." More recently he had been writing scenarios.

Mr. Hobart was born in Cape Breto, Nova Scotia, January 16, 1876. His journeyings as a telegrapher took him to Cumberland, Md., where he founded the Scimitar, in which his earliest humorous sketches and stories appeared.

Soviet Russia is to Barter Crown Jewels

Will Turn the Sparkle of 25,000 Diamonds Into the Glitter of American Steel.

MOSCOW, Jan. 31—(AP)—Soviet Russia is ready to turn her crown jewels into American plows, tractors and machinery.

Negotiations are in progress for the sale of the vast collection of gems to American and other foreign jewelers, but it is realized that private buyers can take only a negligible portion of the treasures because of their enormous value. The government, therefore is prepared to exchange the remainder for American agricultural machinery, locomotives and other products Russia urgently needs.

"We want to turn the glitter of our twenty-five thousand diamonds into the glitter of American steel," said one high official to the corespondent of the Associated Press today. "These magnificent jewels were bought by Russia's former tyrants with the sweat, toil and trial of our peasants; we desire now to give them back to the peasants in the form of implements with which to till the ground or machinery for industries. We have already turned millions of military bayonets into ploughshares; we wish now to turn the imperial jewels, which are a dead asset, into tractors."

Russia makes no secret of the fact that she lacks money for equipment to reconstruct her shattered industries. Having failed to obtain loans abroad in the last eight years, she is obliged to utilize her own resources for the rehabilitation of the economic fabric. The government intended to spend the receipts from grain exports for American machinery, but, despite the crop, the plan for collecting grain from the peasants was not fully realised, and orders for foreign machinery had to be curtailed.

Officials point out that the crown jewels are only one of many resources that Russia, if pressed, might convert into cash; others include mining and oil concessions and museum treasures, among them several hundred paintings by such masters as Rubens, Rembrandt, Van Dyke and Raphael, valued at $1,000,000,000. The Soviet officials are determined, however, not to part with the museum treasures.

The Associated Press today obtained the first complete and accurate description of the regal emblems from official sources The jewels date from Peter the Great to Nicholas II. They comprise 406 separate pieces of jewelry; the total weight of the diamonds alone is 25,300 carats: pearls, 6,300; sapphires, 4,300; emeralds, 2,200; and uncut rubies, 1,300, and also a great variety of miscellaneous stones.

No other historical collection of gems, whether royal or private, according to the Russian officials, approaches the crown jewels, either in value or historical interest. The present collection does not represent all the Russian crown jewels, only those covering the last 200 years. The jewels worn by Russian potentates prior to the seventeenth century are still in the Kremlin or Moscow or the Hermitage Gallery at Leningrad.

The jewels offered for sale are appraised by Russian, French and Czechoslovak gem experts variously, but the average of their estimates is $264,000,000 about $50,000,000 greater than Russia's debt to the United States.

Of the 406 items in the collection 20 per cent. were supplied by Peter the Great, 40 per cent by Elizabeth, Catherine the Great and Paul; 25 per cent by Alexander I and Nicholas I; 10 per cent by Alexander II and Alexander III and 5 per cent by Nicholas II.

NARROWLY ESCAPED BEING DASHED ON CAPE COD

BOSTON, Jan. 31—(AP)—A story of keeping both engines at full speed astern to keep from being dashed on Great Point, Cape Cod, in a furious gale Thursday night was brought in today by the coastwise steamer Corsica. The vessel, which sailed Thursday for Norfolk to load coal, crept back to port with the aid of two tugs to take stock of damages.

After the gale struck her the Corsica anchored off Great Point, but both chains let go. The steering gear was damaged, making it almost impossible to maneuver, and it was not until daylight that the racing engines were able to pull the ship from her dangerous position.

Tugs met the Corsica in the lower harbor today and because of the lost anchors and faulty steering gear nosed her to her pier where survey of the storm damage will be made tomorrow.

HATPIN TO BE USED BY WOMEN THIS SPRING

LONDON, Jan. 31—(AP)—The hatpin, cast aside with the advent of the bobbed head, has come back. But it is not to be thrust through buns of hair, or even maintain the modern hat upon the modern head; it is to be used solely to keep in place cut strips of felt and velvet which serve as trimmings for the new style spring millinery.

Longer than the jewelled brooch which had such vogue this winter, the new pin has a head fashioned upon a single stone, and the tip protrudes beyond the hat with or without a guard of the same stone. Without the pin it would be impossible to get the turned back brim effect which is all the rage just now.

Increase in Volume Of Federal Taxes

Receipts From Connecticut Were $36,277,528 in 1924—$37,706,943 in 1925.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Despite generally lower levels of tax rates in effect during the calendar year 1925, the federal government received a greater volume of taxes than it did in 1924. Official figures for the two years, made public tonight by the bureau of internal revenue, showed total receipts of $2,694,257,246 for 1925, compared with $2,688,045,620 for 1924, or an increase last year of $6,211,625.

The revenues from sources other than the income tax, failed to go forward under the stimulus of reduced taxation, the income taxes, however, yielded $1,825,704,135 last year, a gain of $24,599,724 over 1924. Miscellaneous receipts dropped from $886,941,208 in 1924 to $868,663,110 in 1925.

Receipts from Connecticut were 1924, $35,277,523; 1925, $37,706,943.
